National unity, the hub of federal-provincial relations, was a preoccupation of Canadians in 1964, and it is almost certain to remain the principal preoccupation of the federal government in 1965.

SHOWDOWN IN VIET NAM EXPECTED

Cannot Rescind Suspensions Of Deportations

Supreme Court Ruling Cuts Minister's Power

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Monday that the immigration minister does not have unlimited powers to order deportations.

The Supreme Court decision, made in a 6-to-3 judgment, ruled that Guiseppe and Rocco Violi had been held illegally for deportation at Montreal's Bordeaux Jail for eight months under a warrant issued by Immigration Minister Tremblay. The 24-year-old Italian immigrant twin brothers were released from jail at 5 p.m. EST Monday.

They entered Canada together as landed immigrants Dec. 26, 1959, but were ordered deported separately after earlier convictions. Both were later given probationary periods, and heard nothing more from the immigration department until March 31 this year, when they were notified their cases had been reviewed and the immigration department had decided to carry out the deportation orders.

In overruling the decision made under the present ministers, Mr. Tremblay, the Supreme Court left the immigration department with a serious problem. There is no appeal from Supreme Court of Canada decisions.

The only way to get around the ruling is for Parliament would be to change the act and this requires the consent of Parliament.

SAYS IT'S IMPORTANT

Deputy Immigration Minister W. M. Isbister described the judgment as "extremely important," and said the department would study the decision with a view to making possible recommendations to permit enforcement of deportation under similar circumstances.

Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick was appointed several weeks ago to study complaints of the Canadian Civil Liberties Union of foreign nationals have been abused under the immigration act, especially in cases involving seamen in Canada illegally. His report is expected in a matter of days.

The Supreme Court's majority judgment, written by Mr. Justice Ronald Martland granted an appeal by Paolo Violi, brother of the twins, for a writ of habeas corpus and Neptune and the navy's tracker anti-submarine planes.

—For the army, the 81-mm mortar, more anti-tank guided missiles, five - ton cargo trucks, a new "family" of radio sets and portable equipment for the airborne special service force.

Abolish Hangings In U.K.

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—The House of Commons voted decisively Monday night to abolish capital punishment in Britain.

In a free vote involving no party loyalties, the 630-member House divided 355 to 170—a surprisingly large majority of 185 —in support of a private member's bill to outlaw hanging for murder.

The majority—nearly twice as much as expected—means that the bill will almost certainly be accepted by the House of Lords and will become law sometime next spring.

Automatic reprieves for the two convicted murderers now under sentence of death are expected to be issued in the next few days.

One of the prisoners, 18-year-old Peter Dunford, was scheduled to be hanged Jan. 8 for committing a murder-in-fact year.

Hangman Harry Allen, for more than 20 years a public executioner, spent the evening of the debate reading Enid Blyton stories to his grandchildren. He declined any comment on the vote.

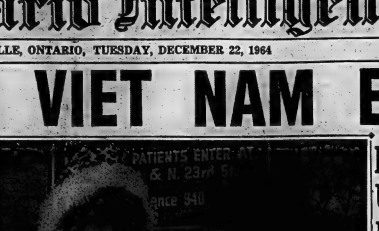
A vote against hanging was a victory for 69-year-old Labor MP Sydney Silverman, the man who presented the bill. Silverman, a vociferous backbencher with a goatee, has been campaigning against the death penalty for 30 years.

In Monday's debate he made no speech without the aid of notes—calling hanging "a piece of unspeakable barbarity."

Silverman based his case on the inconsistencies of the 1957 Homicide Act, a strong reform bill that retained the death penalty for four categories of murder. By shooting or explosion, in the course of a theft, killing a police or prison officer and murder for a second time.

"I do not believe we have any real right to carry out this cold, callous brutal ritual unless some useful social purpose is attained," Silverman told the House.

ACT UNWORKABLE



Silverman said the 1957 act was unworkable because it spared murderers who stabbed their enemy in the back and hanged those who shot their enemy in the front.

One of the most dramatic moments in the debate was the announcement by Henry Brooke, former Conservative home secretary, that he had been converted to the abolitionist camp during the last 10 years.

Brooke said his experience in the home office, when it was up to him to make the ultimate decision on the fate of those murderers should hang, had convinced him that the death penalty did not deter and that in a trial period of five years.

Brooke's speech is thought to have swayed many Tory MPs who would have otherwise abstained on the issue.

Labor MPs were overwhelmingly in favor of abolition.

2,000 Flee Californian Floods As Rain, Winds Hit Far West

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — More than 2,000 persons were evacuated from their homes stricken hemmed in communities in northern California during the night as more heavy rain swept areas in the Far West.

The storm struck with also lashed sections of Oregon and Washington State and 50 families near Portland were forced to leave their homes.

About 800 residents of Orrick, Calif., 45 miles north of Eureka, were forced from their homes as Redwood Creek, a normally placid stream, inundated the community. All highways leading into the town were flooded.

Earlier more than 1,300 persons were evacuated from their communities in the Eel River Valley in northern California.

Some 600 residents in the summer resort town of Weott, 30 miles south of Eureka, fled their homes as the Eel River rose toward a record crest. The community was under five feet of water. Weather bureau officials predicted it would reach 27 feet, nearly 10 feet above flood level. That mark was reached in the disastrous floods in northern California in 1955.

5 Killed, Car Hits Truck

MONTREAL (CP) — Three men and two women were killed today in a snowstorm collision with a brewery truck in suburban LaSalle.

Three other men, occupants of the truck, were injured. Two were treated at hospital and released and the third was kept in hospital for x-rays.

The accident occurred a few minutes before 7 a.m., about a half hour after the snowstorm began. The street, Newman Blvd., was reported to have been slippery at the time.

One of the dead men was identified as Pasquale Giovannangelo, 31, driver of the car. The dead women are Maria Caruso, 25, and her sister Elisa. The other two men were not immediately identified.

The three injured men were Jean Paul Lecomte, 36, who was kept in hospital, Roger Tremblay, 33, and Jacques Barlteau, 21.

All are believed from the Montreal area.

Refuse Lamontagne's Wife Right to Tell About Talk

OTTAWA (CP)—A judicial inquiry into charges of attempted bribery and coercion by assistants to federal cabinet ministers struck a temporary snag today when public hearings resumed under Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court.

Several lawyers raised strenuous objections against permitting Mrs. Pierre Lamontagne, 29-year-old wife of Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne who levelled the charges, to testify about a conversation with her husband last July 14.

Mr. Lamontagne testified last week that he awakened his wife about 3 or 4 a.m. July 15 to tell her that Raymond Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, offered him $20,000 to drop his opposition to bail for a Montreal man whose extradition to the United States was sought in connection with narcotics smuggling.

Mr. Lamontagne was counsel for the American government in proceedings to extradite Lucien Rivard, wanted in Texas on charges which linked his name with mafia international crime syndicate.

Mrs. Lamontagne, a short blond dressed in a pink suit and navy blue pillbox hat took the stand to testify about events in Ottawa last July 14 with her husband at the Denis' request. She testified in English.

Under questioning by Andre Desjardins, counsel for the judicial inquiry, Mrs. Lamontagne testified her husband went to see Mr. Denis when they arrived here from Montreal about 10 p.m. on July 14.

Later the two returned to the Lamontagne's room in the Chateau Laurier where, after talking "generalities" for a while, they began to discuss the Rivard case. At this point, she said, she fell asleep.

She said that after Denis left, her husband awakened her about 4 a.m.

She had started asking why her husband roused her.

She had started to reply that "he wanted to tell me . . . when Guy Guerin, counsel for Mr. Denis, interjected with objections that Mrs. Lamontagne's evidence on what Mr. Lamontagne said was hearsay and self-serving testimony not permitted under the Canada Evidence Act.

Mr. Desjardins argued that he was not trying to introduce what was said between Mr. and Mrs. Lamontagne but only that the conversation actually took place.

L. Y. Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, and Ross Drouin, counsel for the Progressive Conservative party, argued that the bar against hearsay evidence applied only in a normal court of law where there was accuser and accused.

Mr. Fortier argued that even the RCMP and the government were trying to "gag" the inquiry. It was Chief Justice Dorion's duty to hear the testimony then assess it. He said there is nothing in the Canada Evidence Act to prohibit introduction of hearsay evidence in the present circumstances.

Chief Justice Dorion resolved the point after a 50-minute legal argument among the lawyers by ruling out any kind of hearsay evidence.

Such evidence, he said, constitutes a "very weak kind of evidence" and he could see no reason to set aside the normal rules of evidence.

Khan Assails U.S.'Colonialism' In Radio Talk

Better to Be Poor, Free Says Army Commander

SAIGON (Reuters)—A direct showdown between the U.S. mission in Saigon and South Viet Nam's armed forces commander, Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh, appeared to be developing tonight.

As Khanh went on the radio with a military order of the day implicitly criticizing the United States policy and role in Viet Nam, American officials pinned the responsibility for the weekend military coup on him.

Projected increases in American aid to South Viet Nam have been suspended until the armed forces backdown on their decision to dissolve the High National Council, it was learned today.

Khanh, and some key leaders of the Sunday morning coup, are among the strongest advocates of extending the Vietnamese war and moves to do this with new American aid were "in the works" until Sunday's coup.

Khanh said on the radio tonight that the armed forces would not "carry out the policy of any foreign country."

He also said in a clear reference to the U.S. threat to suspend its aid increases:

"Better to live poor but proud as free citizens of an independent country rather than in ease and shame as slaves of the foreigners and accomplices."

Khanh also specifically reserved the right of the armed forces to step in over the government to "act as an intermediary" in all disputes and differences benefiting "the common enemies: communism and neutralism in any form."

Khanh's statement in his capacity as commander-in-chief was seen by some observers as indicating his return to political armed forces council.

It appeared to conflict with reports indicating that he has been squeezed out of power in the armed forces although his exact position remained far from clear.

The young South Vietnamese generals who ousted the provisional military regime of Huong on Saturday themselves today.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The storm which brought snow to Northern Ontario Monday night has now moved a trifle to Bermuda in a draw which took place over the weekend. Don and Vicki will serve Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. The weather pattern will show little change in the next few days. Mild temperatures should continue.

Scant Clues Provided In Robbery

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—Two jackets, a pair of pants and a ski cap provided scant clues today in the search for three gunmen who escaped Monday with more than $200,000 in cash.

Police said early today they had no description of the men except that they were white and, in the words of a witness "appeared to be past their youth."

The clothing, identified by the victims, was found on a road near this city 10 miles west of New York City.

The men, wearing Hallowe'en masks, took over a Roman Catholic church rectory during a church service, held four priests and a janitor at gun point, ambushed two bank messengers as they entered the rectory, and escaped with $211,000 in cash from the bank truck and $1,700 in church funds.

Working swiftly and speaking rarely, the trio vanished less than half an hour after they drove up to the rectory adjoining St. Anthony's Church about 8:45 a.m.

Deputy Police Chief William Ludwig said the robbery, considered the biggest in New Jersey history, was the work of professionals who were well-versed in the route and schedule of the bank messengers.

Names Put "In a Hat" To Win Trip

TRENTON — While others are busily buying sweaters and snow boots in anticipation of the winter's chill, two Trenton residents, Donald McPherson and Mrs. Vida Wilson are laying in a supply of shorts and bathing suits . . . the reason? The Mcpherson's trip to Bermuda in a draw which took place over the weekend. Don and Vicki will enjoy the trip of a lifetime paid, by courtesy of a lawn mower manufacturer. They bought tickets from the western Ontario company last year, and their names were "put in a hat."

Five-Year Defence Costs Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer today announced a five - year weapons program for the armed forces totalling about $1,500,000,000.

He said in a statement that the 1965-70 program is designed to re-equip and improve the mobility of the army, provide an adequate air and sea lift for immediate deployment in an emergency, acquire tactical jet aircraft and maintain a relatively constant improvement in anti-submarine capability.

Most of the details of the program had been disclosed by officials in recent months.

One of two new details are acquisition of the Swedish Carl Gustav anti-tank weapon to replace the army's seven-year-old Heller and the planned purchase about 1970 of a conventional submarine to replace the HMCS Grilse on the west coast.

LISTS ITEMS

Major items in the program announced by Mr. Hellyer and Associate Defence Minister Cardin:

—An initial order for 15 de Havilland aircraft of Canada Buffalo transport planes.

—Four helicopter - carrying destroyers and two support ships along the lines of the tanker supply ship Provider.

—Twelve more Sea King helicopters.

—The American torpedo system known as Asroc (anti-submarine rocket) to be built into the seven Restigouche class destroyers.

—Four additional Hercules transport planes for the RCAF.

—A tactical jet fighter, still to be selected. This plane will not be the expensive American McDonnell Phantom jet.

—Improvements in the RCAF's Argus and Neptune and the navy's tracker anti-submarine planes.

—For the army, the 81-mm mortar, more anti-tank guided missiles, five - ton cargo trucks, a new "family" of radio sets and portable equipment for the airborne special service force.

Cuba 'Like an Armed Camp' Say Canadians Taking Part in Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Soldiers, police everywhere — all with guns. It gave me the willies."

That was Dave Steen's impression of Cuba during a trip there last week to compete in the Havana International Friendship Track and Field Festival.

The young Canadian shotput star from Vancouver said he and the other Canadians left as soon as their events were over.

"Like an armed camp," said John Minichiello, the Canadians' coach.

"Men lounging around everywhere with guns, clicking the safety catches on and off, toying with the triggers; no sign of discipline or responsibility.

"Nervous? You bet I was," said Minichiello.

Steen, Minichiello and pole vaulter Gerry Moro of Trail, B.C., spent four days in Cuba to attend Havana track meet. They were glad to get back to Canada.

"I figured I'd better get out while I could," said Minichiello, who has been coaching since 1951.

Steen's impressions of Havana:

"It's an awful place, run-down, dilapidated and depressing. We were kept busy socially our every waking hour. Don't spare time, and I am sure this was the intention."

Minichiello's impressions:

"Our interpreter told us that the average family must retain was one-quarter to one-half pound per week. We had as much as half a pound per meal."

One night the Canadians were whisked off for an exhibition of current Cuban dance crazes called the Mozambique.

"Then we were treated to Cuban answer to the Beatles," said Minichiello.

Here, a sort of wild cross between the twist and the Watusi. We sat up front, and midway through the performance the Cubans in the rear seats burst into the aisles and broke into a frenzied dance.

"Only it was plainly neither gay nor impromptu. I guess we were supposed to be impressed, but all we were was embarrassed."

Premier Fidel Castro, who was to have made an appearance at the friendship festival, never did show up.

Minichiello said the athletes were told that Castro was at a suburban farm working on agricultural reforms.

Eskimos Don't Need Santa Claus To Celebrate Christmas in North

WINNIPEG (CP) — Across one-third of Canada Santa Claus is secondary at Christmas—or not a part of things at all.

Most Eskimo children of the northland have heard little about that delightful fellow from the north pole. Nor do they have much to do with Christmas trees—usually scrubby bigger than a bush grows in their domain.

But Christmas can be fun all the same. Eskimos call it Kobvisahoovik—the time of happiness. From near and far, Eskimo families travel by dog sled to attend Christmas at towns or trading posts.

Eric Mitchell, 37, remembers it well.

He spent 13 years managing Hudson's Bay Company trading posts in the north before moving to Winnipeg last June with his wife and three young sons. Sometime Eskimos travel as far as 175 miles for the occasion, he says.

They arrive with dog sleds laden with furs for trading, and proceed to greet friends they may not have seen for months. They build snow houses in which to spend the holiday, or bunk in with friends who live at the settlement.

While communities have come up with festivals, feasting, contests and games, trading, dancing and the howling of sled dogs.

The dogs howl at night, Mr. Mitchell says, to keep themselves warm in sub-zero cold. One howl often sets off fun-loving dogs and the chorus may last five minutes.

Dances go far into the night, accompanied to the beat of an Eskimo drum—a hoop with a piece of seal gut stretched over it.

Sometimes, says Mr. Mitchell, one can see visiting Eskimos before Christmas digging into a snow-covered cache near a trading post, uncovering shoes for dancing that were obtained months earlier. The shoes were never taken home because the only place to use them is at the post.

Christmas foodstuffs very, and turkey is not necessarily the thing. In some places seal meat, arctic char or ptarmigan — a northern grouse—are the Christmas dishes.

Gifts are often prepared by the white residents of the posts for Eskimo children. Various groups, such as the RCMP, teachers and nurses, get together on the program. The gifts, often used clothing, are sent from the south by church or other groups.

The Mitchells spent their last three years in the north at Southampton Island, in Hudson Bay more than 1,000 miles north of Winnipeg.

Everything they had for Christmas—including a turkey—was ordered the previous March and delivered by boat in September.

Mr. Mitchell was medical dispenser and dentist as well as post manager at Southampton Island, where about 230 Eskimos live. Although not really a dentist—or doctor — he pulled more than half a dozen teeth on Christmas day.

Hugh Murray Gets Contract For Hospital Boiler House

Subject to Ontario Municipal Board approval, a Belleville building contractor, Hugh Murray Ltd., has been awarded the contract for the construction of the new boiler house at Belleville General Hospital.

The amount of the tender is for $383,660, or approximately $80,000 below the architect's estimate.

The tender of Hugh Murray Ltd. was one of three firm bids received by the board. The others were Sullivan and Son, Arrprior, and Chas. Huffman of Peterborough.

Acme Electric of Belleville will do the electrical work and Harold R. Stark of Ottawa, the mechanical trades while the boiler will be installed by Dominion Bridge Company.

The boiler, tendered separately earlier this year, will be a completely automatic oil-fire unit. Cost of the boiler is included in the Hugh Murray Ltd. tender price.

The contract also calls for construction of a tunnel from the new boiler house to carry steam lines to the hospital. The boiler house will be constructed south of the Dundas block.

Construction of the new boiler room is expected to get underway early in the New Year, according to the hospital board.

The present boiler house at the hospital has to be razed to make way for the proposed new hospital addition which also is to be constructed south of the present building.

Plans for the new hospital have now been completed and tenders are expected to be called next year.

Short Session Winds Up Business of City Council, Arena Skating Rates Upped

Belleville city council yesterday wound up its business for the 1964 calendar year. The session was a short one, marked by no year-end message from Mayor Jack Ellis and with the exchange all around of Christmas best wishes.

Later members of city council were dinner hosts to city hall department heads at the Queens Hotel. Also attending the dinner meeting were Aldermen-elect Kenneth Soden and Thomas Lally, Police Chief J. B. McLachlan and Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

At the council meeting yesterday accounts were ordered paid and a number of recommendations were referred for consideration by next year's council. Included was the recommendation to impose an import on undeveloped land to cover part of the costs of installing storm and sanitary sewers. The recommendation has been under discussion for over a month.

SKATING RATES INCREASED

Council struck a recommendation on the arena committee recommendation to increase the rate for skating at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

The recommendation, brought to two weeks ago, called for increasing adult skating charge to 65 cents from the present 35 cents and to raise the junior rate to 35 cents. The motion at that time was referred back for further consideration.

Yesterday's compromise was to increase the adult skating fee to 50 cents, but leaving the children's rate at the present 25 cents.

The matter again prompted considerable discussion yesterday with Alderman Frank Murray stating the committee's reasoning for asking the rate increase.

"The reason," he said, "was an attempt to recover some of the operational deficit at the arena. He asked if it was fair that persons who do not skate be required to help pay for the recreation of those who do.

But Alderman Jack Whalen and Bill Jarvah said there were many areas in which taxation was spread across the city, list. ing city buses and schools for examples, and council approved an amendment by Ald. Ezzo and David.

COUNCIL CONCURS

Council concurred with Moira River Conservation Authority recommendation for application to be made to the Ontario Department of Energy and Resources to allow the city's representation on the board to be increased from the p...ent to four members.

Dr. J. S. Barlow and Herman Moore were re-appointed to the Bay of Quinte District High School Board for a period of three years.

Under general business Alderman Ross David raised the question of relief payments in the city which, he said, according to an earlier report this year had been decreased by 50 per cent.

He quoted from a recent welfare report for the city made by Mr. Claudius Welfare Council which stated that if relief paid was insufficient, recipients must go to private organizations for help. The report indicated this was not good practice as private welfare received by nobody whereas city—welfare was subsidized by 80 per cent.

MAYOR REPLIES

Mayor Ellis replied, however that the welfare reduction in Belleville had been to the benefit of the people rather than to the degredation of the recipients. He said there were now fewer complaints than when welfare payments were higher.

Welfare payments in Belleville this year will be less than in many centres, the mayor added.

Alderman Jack Deacon observed that welfare had paid Thurlow township $75,000 in annexation settlement and asked if this money could not to the good been anticipated five years ago when annexation was made. The Mayor replied that the final figure was within $3,000 of what had been expected.

Alderman Ben Corke paid tribute to retiring Alderman Wilbur Wilson and said that council recognized the great contribution which this alderman had made to council and other civic bodies.

ALD. NOT PRESENT

Alderman Wishart was not present at the meeting having been called out of the city due to the death of a brother-in-law.

Mayor Ellis added his word of appreciation for Alderman Wishart's long service in council. At the same time he expressed regret that Aldermen George Brown and Eugene Carmichael would not be back next year.

The full text of the Mayor's year-end report to the ratepayers is published elsewhere in today's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer.

'New Look' Comes to CNR And Is Explained to Rotary

The "new look" has come to the C.N.R., guest speaker Murray Hallonquist, CNR System Supervisor of Terminal Operations, told Rotary Monday.

Railroad ties are now welded together, creating one long, smooth track, and eliminating the clickety-click-click heard a few years ago.

In the old days, the slight break between the ties approximately every 39 feet created the clicking as the iron wheels sped along the track.

Radios in every train allow crews and yard personnel to communicate. Yard men can now direct the trains into location by voice rather than hand signals, and over considerable distances.

The new "Hump" system, now in effect in Winnipeg, Moncton and Montreal and scheduled for Toronto in early 1965, has the engine push the cars up a grade and leave them there.

Computers and electronic devices measure how fast and far the car or cars will roll down the grade and by remote control clears the track they will roll on.

When the cars on the top of the grade are released one man pushing buttons can change tracks and guide the cars into place rather than using an engine to shunt them back and forth.

Trying to Track Down Owners Of Articles

City police arrested a Belleville man last night after they claimed finding him opening other people's Christmas presents.

Detectives say they are still trying to track down ownership of various articles allegedly found in the possession of 37-year-old William Sagger.

They include a transistor radios, shirts, gloves and tree decorations.

Police say Sager was busy opening the parcels shortly after midnight in an automobile on a Pinnacle Street car lot when a constable tapped on the window.

Today he was remanded one week in custody by Magistrate T. Y. Wills on a vagrancy charge.

Extend Visiting At Hospital For Holidays

Visiting hours at the Belleville General Hospital will be extended for the Christmas and New Year holidays, it has been decided by the hospital board.

On Christmas Day and also on New Year's Day, visiting hours at the hospital will be from 2:30 p.m. until 8:00 o'clock, instead of the present one hour periods in the afternoon and evening.

Hospital administrator Stan Johnston said the extended hours would give visitors from a distance a better opportunity to visit relatives and friends in the hospital.

No Bus Service Dec. 25 and 26

At a recent meeting of the Belleville Transit Commission it was decided to discontinue all bus service on Dec. 26 at 7:45 p.m. to allow drivers to spend Christmas Eve with their families. Due to Boxing Day being proclaimed a holiday by the city, there will be no service on that day or on Christmas. Regular service will commence on Monday, Dec. 28, 1964.

Jail Prisoners To Get Special Christmas Fare

Thanks to the Salvation Army, which has made arrangements to augment the customary menu, inmates at the Hastings County Jail will fare quite well on Christmas day. Governor W. G. Thetsell reports that there will be bacon and eggs for breakfast. Later the inmates will enjoy Christmas ham and dressing, with apple sauce, mixed pickles, hot mince and apple pies and canned peaches.

In the afternoon Salvation Army Bruce Brandon singsters have arranged for a special two hour film. Coffee and cake will be served and the prisoners will receive one of the familiar Salvation Army "sunshine bags" filled with fruit, candy and chocolate, and also reading material.

And the families of inmates will not be forgotten. Arrangements are being made by the Salvation Army to assure their Christmas will be as bright as circumstances permit.

Ald. W. Jarvah Is Moving To Bramalea

Belleville city council will have a vacancy early in the new year.

Alderman William E. Jarvah, who has represented Ward 2 for a two-year term, is being transferred by Northern Electric to Bramalea and will make the move late in January.

Alderman Jarvah is the accounting supervisor for Northern and at Bramalea will have the dual role of accounting supervisor and manager of merchandise service.

Mr. Jarvah was elected to council first in 1960 for a one-year term. A year later he was elected for a two-year term, was out of council in 1963 and again elected for a two-year term for 1964-65.

During his service he has acted as chairman of the finance and executive committee and also of the personnel committee and on the recreation and arena and parks committee. Currently he is serving as a finance and executive committee member.

The Mayor's First Year

(Mayor Jack Ellis reviewed his first mayoralty term at last night's city council meeting. This is a text of his address.)

At the halfway mark of the first two years term for a Mayor in the City of Belleville, I feel it is only proper that I report to the citizens of Belleville on some of the accomplishments which have taken place during the past year.

In the beginning, I feel I should comment briefly on some of the personalities at our city hall. Part way through the year we were sorry to lose Alderman Bailey, but congratulate him on his new post as Sheriff of Hastings County, in his place Alderman George Brown has been doing a very commendable job. Retiring this year because of health, Alderman George Wishart will be missed by his many friends and colleagues in council and on the city hall staff. Alderman Wishart has been a devoted servant of the city of Belleville for the past seven years. His wise contribution to council debate and, almost more important, his fine work with the Moira River Conservation Authority, is a record to be envied. If Alderman Wishart's health will permit, I hope to have the pleasure of nominating him to continue his service on the Moira River Conservation Authority next year.

The council started into 1964 with three new aldermen: Aldermen Boyle, Joss and Williams. I am personally very proud of the accomplishments of these new men. It is very unfair for a first-term alderman to accept the chairmanship of a committee, but, in this case, each has and has been successful in his particular field. Alderman Joss with the combined Parks, Arena and Recreation has done a fine job of bringing these three groups in to closer liaison. Alderman Williams has just completed the formation of the new Social Services Planning Council as chairman of a special committee. And, of course, Alderman Boyle is well under way towards establishing senior citizens' housing and low income rental housing with his special committee.

There has been one very important addition to our city hall staff this year in the person of Mr. Eric Smith, the new assistant to the welfare director. It is impossible to mention everyone on our fine city hall staff, but I am going to make special note of our welfare director, Mr. Aitken, who this year has reduced our welfare payments considerably, while in my opinion, increasing the respect for the individual recipients who come through his office each and every day.

The balance of our staff deserves equal mention, but it will have to suffice to say that I still feel we have the finest municipal civil service in East ern Ontario.

MAYOR ELLIS

The balance of our staff deserves equal mention, but it will have to suffice to say that I still feel we have the finest municipal civil service in East ern Ontario.

"A New Era of Close Relationship..."

There have been many accomplishments in the city of Belleville over the past year. Some of these are physical and not all a direct result of council action. The opening of the Sir Mackenzie Bowell School by the public school board in November was partially a result of close co-operation between the board and the city hall staff, who processed all the necessary paperwork immediately upon receipt of approvals from the Ontario Municipal Board, and I think the total time from the approval of the O.M.B. to the occupancy was the shortest yet experienced in the city. In my opinion, the new era of close relationship between the school board and the council, which has been implemented this year, is in itself an accomplishment.

Our new library opened in the East end this year is a credit to our community. The new YMCA building which opened in the late fall and which will soon be a prize for its architects, Craig, Zeidler and Strong, is a credit to the community.

Our public works department have, in the past year, completed a number of projects; principally concerning the resurfacing of city streets and more and more using the services of contractors for the actual work. The foundations are in for our new public works building and work is now underway on the new garage. There was some difficulty in arriving at the final site of the building but with the extreme increase in costs over the conception stage engineers agree it is the right one. Nonetheless, a good compromise has been reached and the city will benefit in the traffic study for the city, which we hope can be implemented over the next few years. This is a detailed study of the downtown street system and the Dundas and Front street bridges. It may seem to some that we are doing nothing with regards to our traffic problems and, indeed, we have had to delay the start of our program due to a large expenditure in building our new schools, we are not standing still. The city engineer and I have been to the Department of Highways and have received tentative approval of the Dundas and Bridge section of the traffic study. Each major piece of reconstruction elsewhere in the city such as North Front Street and Pinnacle Street is a part of the overall plan.

Not all of our accomplishments are physical. One was the completion of the aerial photography of the city and the establishment of this city's topographical maps which have been a tremendous asset to the planning department in the city engineer. It is a major step forward which should speed up area development, subdivision and new road layouts.

This fall saw the city formally adopt the Damas and Smith proposal for this city's traffic

The mayor of Belleville automatically is a member of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and progress of this board under the chairmanship of John Barlow, Ph.D., and with Joseph Beavis as director, would require an entire separate report to do justice. Mr. Beavis is just completing a very detailed study of the planning problems in the northwest area of Belleville and which has passed the majority of Mr. Beavis' recommendations in connection with this area and I hope the balance will be passed early in the new year.

Projects such as the fair board and committees other than fire and police services, where I attend regularly, have of necessity, received little of my attention. I have attempted, where possible, to attend the functions of these groups when requested and represented the city to the best of my ability.

I extend to all our citizens season's greetings and best wishes for the years ahead.

Debentures Show Confidence in City's Stability

Early in the year a representative of the Utilities Commission, the Board of Police Commissioners, the Bay of Quinte District Secondary School Board, the Public School Board and the Separate School Board met with members of city council and staff on the Ontario Municipal Board. To my knowledge, this is the first time this has happened and I am sure that the information gained by these boards and commissions was the start of the fine co-operation we have had throughout the city this year between all such boards and committees. It has led to a mutual understanding of the city's financial problems and a greater effort on the part of all to stay within our budgetary limits. Our capital works budget this year has stayed well within the limits set by the Municipal Board and our preliminary figures from the Bay of Quinte District Secondary School Board and the hospital, it would appear that next year's budget will also be in those limits. We see evidence of a new depth of co-operation between council and its departments and other boards and commissions. Such close liaison can only lead to a better return for our tax dollar. One example of this co-operation is the fact that the Separate School Board, the Public School Board and the High School Board have relinquished their share in the municipal works assistance program on staff thus allowing the city to use all the help from this source in the financing of the hospital.

Our debentures this year were sold at 98.275 at 5¼% for a 20 year debenture. This was the granting of the "freedom of the city" to the Prince Edward Regiment at the time of their receiving their "Freedom" scroll in the form of a "Railroad Week". Both of these occasions were major undertakings and the people in our community can be justly proud of their part in the activities. I personally feel that our citizens are pleased to have the name of Belleville improved in our national image.

As your mayor, I sit in various other committees and boards, and shall include a brief report on these.

The Police Commission this year has seen a number of constables and some of the NCO's on staff complete their training at the police college at Aylmer, Ontario, this summer. We feel that the old YMCA building, when properly renovated, will be of a value greater than the 20 years budgeted for, and that it will be a definite improvement over the old quarters and a morale builder for the staff. We are confident we have informed me that he has found many more steel beams than anticipated in the old building and assures me that the completed job will be as durable as a new building.

The hospital board has let the contract now for the new boiler house which is the first step towards the construction of the new addition to the hospital, which will give us in 1967 a rated capacity of 440 beds. Many people feel that this addition has been too long in coming, but thanks to our fine building committees at the hospital, we are sure of having the finest hospital buildings that can be found anywhere in Ontario.

The Public Utilities Commission has completed the first phase of its program to circle the city with a large, high-pressure watermain, which will ensure all its users equal pressure and service. We have also started on a building program to provide adequate quarters for both water and electric departments.

Mr., Mrs. Freeman French Happily Wed for 67 Years

TRENTON — A well-known (and well-beloved) Trenton area couple, Freeman French and his wife, Etta, are celebrating their fifty-seventh anniversary today, quietly, at their Lacey Ave. apartment.

Mr. French is a big celebration next year on our 65th anniversary", Mr. French told a reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. French moved to Trenton from Consecon in 1932 and into a private apartment built for them by their son-in-law, William Steenburg, adjacent to the Steenburg home.

On December 22, 1897, Miss Etta Brooks of Victoria was joined in wedlock to Freeman French of Melleville, at the home of her parents on the second line of Amelisburg Township. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. H. I. Allen of the Victoria Methodist Church. Best man was Frank Brooks, the bride's brother and bridesmaid was Ida Gibson, who later became Mrs. Ida Chase of Belleville.

Mr. French was working in his father's carpenter mill at Melleville, and the couple moved to Albury, where they stayed for a year.

In 1902, they moved to Melleville and in 1929, to Consecon, where they lived for 23 years. Mr. French became manager of the cooperage mill and took an active interest in community affairs, presiding as chairman of the Consecon School board for 12 years. Mrs. French was choir leader in the Consecon United Church for 23 years. Mr. French retired from busines life in 1947, following a severe heart attack in which he was badly injured.

The couple have three surviving children, Mrs. Charles Kathleen, (Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick) of Buffalo, Gina, (Mrs. Alexander) and "Buddy" of Belleville.

Civil Servants At Air Stations Hold Meeting

TRENTON — Civilian Personnel Officers from Air Transport Command units across the country met with the Director General of Civilian Personnel from Ottawa at a recent conference held at Air Transport Command Headquarters, Trenton. The conference, hosted by W. J. Parker, the Staff Officer Civilian Personnel at Trenton, lasted for two days and was mainly an information conference concerning the recent integration of the armed forces and its natural effect upon the civilian component of the Department of National Defence.

Women's Club Holds Meeting, Enjoys Party

TRENTON — The General meeting of Business and Professional Women's Club, was recently held in the Hotel Gilbert, in the form of a dinner meeting, President Violet Kennedy presiding. Being the Christmas meeting, all business was dispensed, and after dinner Carol Ann Hall became introduced, Mrs. Eileen Forchuck head table guest spoke in regards to her recent running for Town Council.

The meeting was then turned over to Program Convener, Viola Davis, which started with a sing song of Christmas Carols, led by Mary Thompson. Mary Casselman then sang a solo, and Mary Campbell gave a reading of the Littlest Angel. A puppet show and song was displayed by Eva Baker, following was a chorus, sung by Kay Patterson, Eva, Baker, Mary Graves, Isabel McCrodan, and Alfreda Wilson.

Brighton Gives $2,000 to Trenton Hospital

TRENTON — The village of Brighton has made a $2,000 donation to Trenton Memorial Hospital. Thirty per cent of patients come from Northumberland County and the majority of these from the Brighton and the immediate area. This is the third year in a row a similar grant has been made by the village.

Reeve James Simpson handed over the cheque to Trenton board chairman, Sherman Graham in an informal ceremony at the latter last night. The board of directors has voted to use the money to furnish the new addition that is to be completed in about six weeks, but arrangements have yet to be made for the furnishings.

Mr. Graham pointed out that in the past three years the hospital has hired a full-time radiologist, a full-time pathologist and a full-time physiotherapist. The pathology laboratory was extended last year.

As to the future of the hospital, Mr. Graham said that with the medical and surgical space "full to overflowing," it wouldn't be long before the board would have to think of adding another floor to the two-storey building. The basement is given over to utilities—kitchen, laundry, etc.

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Redcliffe of Wooler opened their home to friends and relatives on the occasion of the 30th wedding anniversary of Mr. Redcliffe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Redcliffe.

Mr. and Mrs. Redcliffe, (Mrs. Redcliffe was the former Edna Ray), were married by the Rev. John T. Hall, in Stirling, on December 22, 1914. They have lived for 35 years in Wooler, Mr. Redcliffe being employed at the garage until his retirement a year ago. Mrs. Redcliffe has been very active in church and community affairs.

The couple have five children, Lorne of Wooler; Helen, at home; Olive, (Mrs. Stewart McGowan) of Trenton; Gordon of R. R. 3, Trenton and Mabel, (Mrs. Garnet Graham) of R. R. 1, Frankford, and eleven grandchildren.

RCAF Officers Send Messages To Area Friends

TRENTON — Best wishes to all friends of the RCAF in the Quinte district have been voiced in Christmas messages from Air Commodore R. J. Laze, air officer commanding Air Transport Command, Group Captain E. M. Butchen, commanding officer, RCAF Station, Trenton, and Group Captain J. R. Thompson, commanding officer, 6 Repair Depot, Trenton.

"At the same time, I want to add my fervent hope that our work with the United Nations will indeed help to bring 'peace on earth among men of goodwill'" said Air Commodore Laze.

Similar hopes that the contribution of the RCAF would help preserve peace were voiced by the heads of the Trenton military officers.

Russell King Elected Head Legion Branch

TRENTON — Russell King was last night elected to head up Trenton Legion branch 110. Comrade King, a sergeant with the local police force, has also been active with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Other executive officers elected were Ross (Red) Brummell, first vice - president; George Briggs, second vice; Frederick Lewere, secretary; William McLaren, treasurer; Michael Harrison, trustee; Stanley Sears, service bureau officer and Wm. Willman, sgt.-at-arms.

Elected to the executive council of the branch were John Spencer, W. J. Langley, Arthur Ray, Alan Vanderwater, C. A. Shenael, and Kenneth Craig.

The elections were conducted by Zone Commander Harold Simpson of Brighton and a team of officers, under the direction of Service Officer Simpson, conducted the installations following the election.

Flew 10,000 Miles Seeking New Industries

We have two new community efforts in Belleville this year; one is the Industrial Commission Incorporated and the other, the Social Services Planning Council.

The latter will supplant Dwe United Appeal and we feel that with a proper staff and a dedicated board of directors we should be able to co-ordinate all the welfare services in the community and by next fall launch a truly united appeal in our city. The calibre of the board of directors under its new president, Gerald Wisbart, is in itself a guarantee of success.

The Industrial Commission, after its formation earlier in May, has had a very busy time. Our new industrial commissioner, Ernest Mockeridge, and myself have flown either separately or together over 10,000 miles in search of new industry. We have at present some ten active briefs and are looking forward to much more activity in the new year. We have been successful in fall in completing in the record time of eight weeks a new building for the radar repair division of the Northern Electric Company. This was accomplished by Pan Properties Ltd. with the close co-operation of the utilities commission, Lakeland Natural Gas and a hard-working contractor. We are confident that this is just the beginning of the industrial part in the northeast section of the city.

Another step taken by council this year was the request to the Ontario Housing Corporation for senior citizens' and low-rental housing. By this time next year, I expect that we will have available for these needy families, fine detached or semi-detached rental units and for our senior citizens a number of bachelor and one - bedroom apartments. These will be subsidized primarily by the federal and provincial governments and to a degree by the city itself. This is not charity, but a necessary service in our modern economy to help the less fortunate and the duty to those of our older population who have, through no fault of their own, been brought our city this far.

I had the personal pleasure this year of representing our city at the Ontario mayors' and reeves' convention in Sudbury where I accepted a post as director and at the Ontario Municipal Association in London where, with the city manager and Alderman Deacon, our city was well represented in the various debates and committees which took place. In my opinion, these are necessary and important duties. As a community we should be proud and willing to take our place in provincial affairs and give leadership where possible.

No man is an island unto himself and least of all a mayor in a municipal council. All the actions of the council are the actions of the considered decision of the majority. This is a safeguard of democracy. In my humble opinion, your council can be carried out its obligations well and truly and in the best interests of its citizens. I am proud to have been able to report on their behalf.

I extend to all our citizens season's greetings and best wishes for the years ahead.

CHILDREN... FOR ADOPTION

Many boys and girls in Ontario need the love and security of a permanent home. They are wards of Children's Aid Societies and are available for adoption. Somewhere there are new parents with whom each child could share a lifetime of happiness. Here are descriptions of a few of the children:

PEEZER is 3½ years of age, a French Canadian, Roman Catholic boy who is big for his age. He has hazel eyes, light brown hair, a round face with even features. A lively, fun-loving lad with a pleasant personality. He is progressing normally for his age and needs Roman Catholic parents who will enjoy a robust, sociable rugby player.

KIM is a little 2 year old, Roman Catholic girl of English and Irish ancestry. This child is slender with lovely eyes of an unusual grey-green colour, long lashes, strawberry blonde, wavy hair. Gentle, she is shy and quiet at first but sticks-to-you personality soon emerges. She is an average intelligence and is a healthy little girl.

BARRY and SHIRLEY are brother and sister and they want parents who would welcome two children since they wish to remain together.

Barry is a 9 year old, Roman Catholic boy, of English and French backgrounds. Sturdy build, dark brown eyes and hair. Grade 4. Barry is an outgoing lad, pleasant personality, bright and friendly.

Shirley is 6 years of age, in Grade 1. A slender, dainty girl with brown eyes, fair hair and complexion. An attractive appearance. Somewhat shy with a pleasing personality, bright and a very appealing little girl.

JUDY and ROSS are separated from their family but love each other, and they wish to remain together. Judy is a 5½ year old, Canadian, Protestant boy. Stevie is tall and slender with blue eyes, blond hair, rosy cheeks and even, fine features. A handsome youngster. Judy is a pert and shy girl, strangers, but outgoing and demonstrative on further acquaintance. Here is a healthy normal boy who wants parents by adoption.

ROSS is a 6 year old, chubby little Roman Catholic Indian girl. She has brown eyes, black hair and a dark complexion with a round face. Ross is a normal, healthy, average little girl with a placid disposition. Ross needs Roman Catholic parents Dutch child who is tall and slender with blue-grey eyes, blond hair and a fair complexion. Ruth is a healthy, likable and active girl who is a nervous to please and has a great need of a permanent home. This little girl feels insecure and only Protestant adoptive parents can give her sufficient security and happiness.

STEVEN would like a country home with his very own adopted parents. He is a 3½ year old, Canadian, Protestant boy. Stevie is tall and slender with blue eyes, blond hair, rosy cheeks and even, fine features. A handsome youngster. Stevie is quiet and shy with strangers, but outgoing and demonstrative on further acquaintance. Here is a healthy normal boy who wants parents by adoption.

ROSS is a 6 year old, chubby little Roman Catholic Indian girl. She has brown eyes, black hair and a dark complexion with a round face. Ross is a normal, healthy, average little girl with a placid disposition. Ross needs Roman Catholic parents

LYNN is a healthy, very active, contented and happy child of 4 years and a half. She is a Roman Catholic girl of Dutch and Negro parents. Lynn has a large frame with dark brown eyes, black hair and delicate complexion. Free facial features and very attractive looking. She is outgoing and friendly and needs loving parents.

WAYNE is a healthy and bright, 17 months old, Roman Catholic baby boy of Irish and Indian descent. He is well developed with blue eyes, light brown hair and fair complexion. A handsome boy. This wee lad is active, inquisitive and friendly and sensitive to new surroundings and new people. Wayne has a slight involuntary movement of the eyes, this however, does not preclude normal childhood activities, schooling or adult attainment. Wayne needs Roman Catholic parents and his own permanent home before he grows any older.

now, so she may grow up in her own home.

A Bail Proposal

A week ago we commented on a protest by the John Howard Society against existing requirements for bail for persons accused of various offences.

"Whenever money enters the picture in the administration of justice," we said, "it is extremely difficult to avoid having, in effect, one law for the rich and one for the poor."

Now, not surprisingly but nevertheless hearteningly, we find we are not alone in being concerned about this fact.

Donald MacKinnon, probation officer for the County of Hastings, has given considerable thought to this matter and has drafted a proposal which would at least ameliorate, if it did not eliminate, hardships now all too common. Mr. MacKinnon has submitted his proposals to the probation service branch of the Ontario Attorney-General's Department and to others, including Arthur Maloney, Q.C., well known Toronto barrister.

Basically, the reform which Mr. MacKinnon proposes is an extension of a present alternative to bail, the release of accused persons on their own recognizances. The difference is that Mr. MacKinnon would provide a penalty for persons so released who failed to appear before the court on the date set. Now there is no penalty imposed, a warrant for arrest being issued. Because there is no penalty, the court is generally reluctant to release people on their own recognizance unless the alleged offence is insignificant, or the person well known and of long residence in the community, or both.

Mr. MacKinnon's proposal would take notice of such things as the nature of the offence and the length of residence of the accused, but they would be just two of several factors which would be considered. His proposal is that a "penalty bail bond" would be available to persons who have had an address for six months or more within the jurisdiction of the court, have been employed in the area for six months or more, have relatives in the area or have lived in the area for ten years or more. Information concerning his employment record, his family responsibilities, his residence, references, the current charge and previous record would be considered.

The idea appears worthy of study.

It seems obvious, though, that it would not provide a complete solution to the problem of providing equal treatment for all. Because a man is a "drifter," because he may be without a job, because he may not have a family does not necessarily make him less trustworthy than a native, a steady worker and a pater familias.

But perfection does not come easily in this life and it rather more difficult to attain in the administration of justice than in many other fields.

Nigeria Speaks Up

Perhaps to nobody's great surprise, Nigeria is the first African nation to defend the action of Belgium and the U.S. in rescuing hostages from the Congolese rebels.

Nigeria was not the first British colony in Africa to be granted independence, but it is earning the right to leadership.

No more striking examples of the wise and right ways to colonial progress or the wise responsibilities could be provided than by the contrast between events in the Congo after the withdrawal of the Belgians and the orderly progress of Nigeria since the British relinquished control.

Education gives the new nation a chance. But it does not guarantee success, as events in Ghana have sadly proven. There, Nkrumah's exaggerated ideas about his indispensability have given rise to totalitarian tendencies. Even there, though, the contrast with the Congo is all to the advantage of Britain, with its insistence that there be trained men ready to assume the reins of power before colonial rule is ended.

One of the hazards of an otherwise glamorous occupation in covering an event like a food fair is that you are expected to taste everything you are offered. As an novice I once remember seeking and eating up an entire plateful of Turkish delight, only to find out that I was then expected to sample another 14 dishes on that one stand.—Dibbs Mather on the BBC.

I regard human bloody-mindedness and human contra-suggestibility as perhaps our next most important evolved characteristics after our intelligence. They serve to protect us from bullies and from nut cases, and from well meaning enthusiasts, including myself.—Dr. Alex Comfort of the Department of Zoology, University College, London.

This Is How Big Lie Grows

Milwaukee Journal

The article said this:

Since 3500 BC the world has known only 292 years of peace. During this period there have been 14,511 wars, large and small, in which 3,640,000,000 people were killed. The value of the destruction inflicted would pay for a golden belt around the earth 198 kilometres in width and 10 metres thick. Since 650 BC there have been 1,656 arms races, only 16 of which have not ended in war. The remainder have ended in economic collapse."

When this ran in a RAND Corporation publication, which is concerned with war and peace, some of its bright young men wrote about it. The obvious first question was how such information could be proved—it contained so much of what some statisticians call "UK statistics," or unknowable ones. And they started to trace it all down.

Norman Cousins of the Saturday Review wrote a piece for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch back in 1953 on the "Electronic Brain in War and Peace." He labelled it "A Report of an Imaginary Experiment." A year later he used it again in a piece in his own magazine, more carefully labelled "The following editorial is of course fanciful."

Then in 1960 a Brazilian publication, Journal do Brasil as Publicidade, picked up the statistics and ran them as true—not pointing out that their source, Cousins, had labelled them as fragments of his imagination. Since then, according to Brownlee Haydon of the RAND Corporation, writing in the magazine Air Force and Space Digest, they have run in military and other publications in the United States Canada, Australia, Norway, Ireland and points east, west north and south—as fact!

There have been major hoaxes in history. This is not a hoax. It started out plainly stamped as imaginary. It was picked up and reprinted without the stamp. And thousands of people, undoubtedly, are citing these amazing statistics as truth when the most amazing thing about them is that it would be impossible to amass them for the period of 3000 BC to 1964 AD. Warfare, even in those years lie deep in historic darkness. It's a lesson: Don't take anything for granted without checking.

The idea appears worthy of study.

Reservoir Of Goodwill

Ottawa Journal

The extraordinary reception Pope Paul VI has received in India from millions of all creeds — Hindus, Moslems, Sikhs, Parsees, Buddhists and Christians — is a heartening new sign that religious differences among men are far less than dividing force that once they were.

The historical animosities between the great religions of India, which still was strong until recently would have made a much less enthusiastic, even a cold reception, understandable for the Pope, in the Indian phrase, is the "burra guru" — great holy man — familiar throughout India, a religion which must seem a world apart to India's ordinary people.

But they came not to say, as was threatened, "Mr. Pope Go Home," but to seek "Darshan" — the Indian belief that a person achieves holiness by coming into the presence of any exalted person.

How not to under-estimate the reservoir of goodwill in people

Those who say this world has not seen great changes for the better should consider what the chances were even a decade ago for the Pope of Rome to be hailed in Bombay, India, reading a Hindu prayer to Moslem imams and Hindu swamis, and quoting from Hindu scripture.

In one short week mention the Pope cut across centuries of prejudice and through layers of misunderstanding.

"Are we not all one in this struggle for a better world, in this effort to make available to all people those goods that are needed to fulfill their human and Christian life, to live lives worthy of the children of God?"

Goodwill has been answered by goodwill across a great gulf. It is a magnificent herald to the season which Christians are soon to observe and perhaps a lesson to them.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 22, 1964 . . .

President Thomas Jefferson instructed the U.S. Congress to pass the Embargo Act by which, for a time, all foreign shipping was forbidden, 137 years ago today—in 1807. France and England were at war at the time and between them had paralyzed American seaborne commerce. Jefferson believed the warring powers would be shamed by their decrees blockading each other. He was wrong, however, and was forced to repeal the act four days before he retired from the presidency in 1809.

1894—Capt. Alfred Dreyfus was condemned on a charge of selling French military secrets to the Germans; he was later exonerated.

1921 — Belgium and Luxembourg formed an economic union.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—the Russian campaign in Armenia was slowed by severe winter conditions but Turkish forces were reported to have been repulsed with heavy losses; Russia was also forced to have dismissed Gen. H. A. Meretshoff who directed the invasion of East Prussia, was admitted to 1,823 dead in the war against Finland; the Finns forced the Russians back on the Eastern Front and were fighting the Soviets to a standstill in the Karelian isthmus region.

Rabbinical Pay is High

United Church Observer

Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg, of Beth Tzedec congregation in Toronto, is near the top of the rabbinical salary scale in North America, according to reporter Allen Spraggett in the Toronto Star. He estimated the rabbi's salary at about $60,000 including basic salary of $35,000 a year, plus $10,000 for "perquisites (fees for weddings, funerals, Bar Mitzvahs, etc.), and in free housing.

Rabbi Gunther Plaut of Holy Blossom Temple receives $30,000 a year, and the average rabbinical salary in Toronto area is about $15,000, the report states.

Inquiries by The Observer confirm Mr. Spraggett's figures.

"One reason for the relatively high salaries is the lack of any anti-money bias in Judaism. One rabbi said there is no motion that poverty is piety are related," Mr. Spraggett says.

A Jewish source pointed out that Jews do not have foreign missions to support.

Unitarians also pay their ministers well. The Star reports a salary of $13,000 plus a house for Rev. John Morgain of the 700-member First Unitarian Church. Some congregations pay about $9,000 total.

Top United Church salaries for parishes are fairly set. Dr. C. A. Lawson of Timothy Eaton Memorial at $20,000 plus a house, and Dr. Angus Mac-Queen at $12,000 and a house. Dr. Gordon Pitch Knox Church, at $11,000, is the top Presbyterian minister.

Salaries for United Church and Presbyterian ministers are made public through the church year books.

Ulcer Badge Of Good Work

Erie Pa. Morning News

Dr. Edward C. Rosenow is a friend of the man with ulcers. The former president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association told members of a Los Angeles Kiwanis Club that employers should be nice to employees who have ulcers.

The doctor said "these people are excellent workers. They are supersensitive, and don't have to be prodded. They prod themselves."

This theory may lead to something. Maybe future job application blanks will ask prospective employees if they have ulcers.

Those so afflicted would then go in a preferential hiring line and after word got around, we'd find it quite "in" to be on a bland diet.

Ancestor's Rheumatism Now Known as Arthritic Pains

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a severe case of arthritis, with quite a bit of pain in spite of medication prescribed by my doctor. Would you help? I am 45 and secretary to a busy executive.

What do you think of the old home remedy of vinegar and honey in a glass of water, as a friend suggested to me? — Mrs. J. H.

Arthritis is a very prevalent ailment; it is also a very ornery one. It's the "rheumatiz" of our forebears.

We have to get along with it, but that does not mean that nothing can be done about it. We can do things to help, but we cannot expect a cure.

The ceremony I approve of had "dignity and grandeur"; the ceremony I disapprove of had "pomp and ostentation."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 22nd, 1944

"In distribution the difference between advertising and non-advertising is the difference between fishing with a net and a single hook."

This is the statement made by the president of the New York State Council of Retail Merchants Inc., in a letter to the chairman of the War Production Board, in which he warned that "both production and distribution will bog down in the post-war period if the merchandise which is manufactured is not sold."

And he declared that "it will not be sold unless the merchant is provided with the opportunity to advertise." The letter was written to the war Production Board in an appeal for the supply of newsprint to newspapers to be increased.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 22nd, 1934

The Deacon Shirt Company entertained the members of its staff at a Christmas party at the New Queen's Hotel on Thursday evening, and an excellent Christmas dinner was enjoyed. Mr. W. B. Deacon occupied the chair. Pleasing music was provided by the staff orchestra under the direction of Reg. Hinchey.

Dr. F. G. Wallbridge of this city has been appointed a coroner for the County of Belleville and County of Hastings.

Miss Ruth Belair of St. Michael's Academy was presented today with the Governor General's Medal, being the award for having obtained the highest standing in the entrance examinations to the high school last June.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 22nd, 1924

Mr. Samuel Leslie of this city is celebrating today the 89th anniversary of his birth and many friends will be pleased to extend to him congratulations and good wishes.

Mr. Leslie died here yesterday — very cold — the thermometer registered 25 degrees below zero. It is much milder today, and the prospects are for higher temperatures with more snow.

Rev. R. Lloyd Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hale of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, a second year student in arts at Queen's University, is here to spend Christmas with his aunt, Mrs. R. E. Hanna, Charles Street. His mother was the former Miss Minnie Lloyd, who resided on Charles Street, this city.

Mr. Austin Walters is home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Dec. 22nd, 1914

A Prince Edward County farmer named Cross was driving a team across the bay last evening when the horses broke through the ice and were drowned.

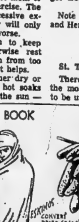
Mrs. Frazer and ex-Ald. A. Robinson have announced themselves as candidates for the office of mayor at the coming municipal election.

Many citizens are of the opinion that the assessment rolls should be published and the city council is giving the matter consideration. A letter to the city clerk will report at the next meeting with regard to the petition received making the citizens be given an opportunity to express their opinions in the matter.

Got Job Back At More Pay

Windsor Star

There's a curious story out of Ports mouth England, Mr. William Kirby, a former pastor to Gosport Borough, resigned because he needed more money. He went to London, where he got it. Then he noted his old job advertised at $1,500 ($1,500) a year more than he had previously received in it, so he applied for it and was accepted.



Why wasn't the man given more in the first place, as he wouldn't have felt impelled to quit his job? His work evidently was satisfactory, as there was no hesitation about rehiring him. He might have been retained for £250 ($750), instead of being hired back at $1,500 extra.

Such cases are not uncommon in private enterprise. This is the first instance where we have noted it in reference to the public.

Brunswick gained ¼ to 14½ in slow senior base metals trading.

Volume Monday totalled 2,799,000 shares compared with 3,185,000 shares traded Friday, the lowest point volume has reached since Oct. 15 when the TSE processed 2,198,000 shares.

On index, industrials rose .70 to 163.57 and the TSE index .65 to 133.19.

Youth Given Month in Jail

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today jailed a youth for one month for driving under suspension.

It was the stiffest penalty meted out for the offence for some years in Belleville.

Jailed was 20-year-old Gerald Edward Wilkes — hailed before the magistrate a little more than one month after being convicted of dangerous driving in a police chase.

It was on that charge Magistrate Wills took away his licence.

"This is a direct defiance of the law," he rebuked Wilkes this morning.

He said he could not "help it" if the sentence affected the youth's job.

"We can't have nonsense like this going on," the magistrate concluded.

LOCATE WRECK

harm with a knife. He was ordered deported Feb. 1, 1961.

But Feb. 24, 1961, the department advised him deportation had been deferred for a year to give him a chance to rehabilitate himself.

Giuseppe was convicted and fined Dec. 22, 1961, in Montreal for failing to stop his automobile at the scene of an accident. He was ordered deported Oct. 16, 1962, but a letter from the department dated Dec. 10, 1962, said deportation would be suspended for six months provided there was no unfavorable report.

A second letter, dated May 28, 1963, told him he no longer had to report to immigration officials.

Then both brothers were told March 31 of this year it had been decided to carry out the deportation orders.

Mr. Justice Martland ruled in the judgment that after granting the probationary periods, the minister "did not, thereafter, have power to make a further review and to decide to extend the probationary period for an additional time."

Nurses Get New Furniture

It was "moving day" one day recently at one of the nurses' residences at Belleville General Hospital.

All bedroom furniture at the East Residence was taken out and new continental beds, with modern dressers and combination desks and tables installed.

To complete the picture the Women's Hospital Auxiliary has supplied new window drapes.

A Trenton firm acquired the old out-moded furniture, with the new equipment being supplied by T. Eaton Company.

Hospital administrator Stan Johnston said the new furniture was a move on the part of the hospital board to improve living conditions for the nurses. Also at the middle residence the present maple bedroom furniture has been completely refinished.

Catholic Mission Sisters Shooting Crocodiles to Earn Money for Hospital

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (Reuters) — Three Roman Catholic mission sisters in the desolate Gulf District of Papua are shooting crocodiles to earn money for a desperately needed maternity hospital.

The sisters decided to take up shooting in the sluggish Brown River surrounding their mission after they found money was coming in too slowly from the sale of the skins of crocodiles bought from the local villagers.

Because of the high death rate in the primitive villages near the tiny airstrip of Terapo, about 120 miles northwest of here, the nuns vowed to raise $2,240 to set up hygienic facilities for delivering babies.

"There were about 100 births in our area last year," said Sister Joseph-Mary from Brisbane, Australia. "But only 18 babies were delivered in hospital." Because of this the death rate was high, compounded by native suspicion of multiple births and lack of protein foods.

So far, Sister Joseph-Mary is the only one who has shouldered a gun—"And I'm not very good at it." Sister Mary-Paul of France and Sister Mary-Melicia of Belgium have not yet learned. They belong to the French order of the Daughters of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart.

HUNT FROM LAUNCH

Sister Joseph-Mary says she has travelled more than 200 miles aronde the swamps and rivers aboard the mission's new 35-foot launch. The others man the engine while she watches for crocodiles.

They started in the crocodile business by buying small animals from the villagers, skinning and curing them themselves in off-duty hours and stuffing them with waste sawdust from a sawmill.

Skins are also provided by the brothers of the order on the station, who shoot crocodiles at night from dugout canoes.

The story of the shooting sisters came to light after the nuns nursed a British novelist, Richard Pape, back to health when he became victim to a severe tropical infection while touring the remote Gulf District.

Apart from their medical and hunting duties, the nuns also teach native children at the station's boarding school.

A hospital is badly needed so that adequate care may be given to villagers who become seriously ill. At present they must make a canoe journey in the nearest hospital at Kuldpi or be flown to Port Moresby.

Christmas Concerts

ST. COLUMBA PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The church school of St. Columba Presbyterian Church conducted a service of worship, and a pageant by the Explorer Group on Sunday evening. The minister, Rev. Norman Hutchinson, conducted the service.

Parents and friends joined the young people of the congregation to sing Christmas hymns. Special lighting was used to dramatize the story of "The Little Shepherd."

White gifts were brought by the children to be given to the Children's Aid Society. Refreshments were served in the Sunday school rooms after the service.

Bible readings were given by Lynn Pollard, Michael Plante, Marilyn Hayman and Craig Cook.

Mrs. J. W. Ritchie introduced the pageant with the following performers taking part:

Angels, Sandra Bateman, Georgina Brickwood, Jill Farmer, Barbara Hayman, Judy Knoblauch, Sheila McLaughlin, Carol Ann Reid, Terry Riley; mother, Judy Farmer; Elizabeth, Heather Dallas; Debbie, Deborah Ham; Dorothy, Susan Pearce; Alice, Mary Lou Taylor; Joseph, Keith Pearce and Allan Pearce; David, John Olaveson; David's angel, Laurie Hill; Marty, Mitzi McLaughlin; solo, Sherrill Taylor.

ST. JOHN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

Point Anne public school auditorium was the scene of the most successful concert when St. John's (Sunday) school entertained a large audience recently. The auditorium was beautifully decorated in the traditional Scottish style by the senior members of the public school under the direction of the principal, Mr. Dale King.

The concert was under the direction of the Sunday school teachers: Superintendent, Mrs. Dorothy Hart; intermediate, Nancy Fisher (in the absence of Mrs. F. Akey); primary, Mrs. Doris Mollins; nursery, Linda Fraser; beginners, Allan Colden and with the help and cooperation of the senior members of the choir.

The concert was opened with O Canada led by Mr. Everett Smith. Master of ceremonies, Dale Akey, announced the program as follows:

Welcoming recitation, Jill Smith and John Grindrod; Hindu folksong sung by beginners and nursery class; The Beatles, impersonated by Phillip Fournier, Terry Givens, Dale Akey and George Smith; tap dance, Bonnie and Debbie Green; solo, Mrs. Christmas, Susan Duane Akey; piano duet, Deborah and Cheryl Mollins;

Recitation, My Dolly, Susanne Horwood; tableau, God So Loved the World; beginners' nursery and nursery classes, narrated by Pamela Akey, accompanied by pianist Mrs. Mollins; tap dance, Margaret Green; one act play, Christmas Looking Glass, George Smith, Phillip Fournier, Perry Givins, Brenda Colden, Debbie Green and Cheryl Givins.

Tap dance, Carolyn Chisholm, accompanied by Billy Joby at the piano; recitation, Uncle Simm's Sermon, Dale Akey; recitation, Filling Santa's Stocking, intermediate class; Hawaiian dance, Carolyn Chisholm; one-act play, Tilda Pellent, Deborah Mollins, Bonnie Green, Cathy Smith and Bonnie Hart; solo, O Thou Joyful Day, Cathy Smith.

Grand finale — the gowned choir, together with the junior members, each bearing a lighted candle, surrounded the Nativity scene, singing "What Child Is This", and "Jesus Bids Us Shine". Joseph was portrayed by Hunter Fournier, Mary by Jana King, Angels by Betty Hart and Debbie Ellis, three Shepherds and three Wise Men by the primary and junior members of the Sunday school.

The audience joined in singing "Oh Come All Ye Faithful" to bring the concert to a close. Santa arrived and distributed gifts and candy. During the program the audience joined in singing of carols, accompanied by Penny Hart and Mrs. Mollins, during the interval when the stage was being set.

Yes, You Can Make Chocolates

By MARY MOORE

(Reposted by request from Dec. 15, 1959).

You can make chocolates if you are willing to obey the rules. A candy thermometer is a necessary piece of equipment.

Coating chocolate may be purchased in large candy stores that specialize in homemade goods or from a chocolate manufacturer in your own town.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Rolled Veal Hearts with Mustard Cream Sauce; Mashed Turnips; Creamed Onions and Peas; Cole Slaw.. Apple Pan Dowdy; Tea.

TO PREPARE CHOCOLATE AND COVER CENTRES

Shred the chocolate finely and heat in double boiler. Water below must not go above 130 deg. Fahr. Melted chocolate must not go above 110 deg. Fahr. Chocolate must be cooled to between 80 and 85 deg. for dipping centres. Remove the chocolate is stirred while melting the better. Drops of water should never fall in.

When centres (below) are ready for dipping, take one with your left hand and cover the melted chocolate; when covered lift out on stirring spoon and, with thumb and second finger of right hand, pick it up, allow to drip, place on wax tin tray or wax paper. Make string decoration or swirl from chocolate on spoon from fork or thumb. Work at room temperature of 67 to 70 deg. Fahr.

CREAM CENTRES

A Fondant base is used for all cream centres, Vanilla, pineapple, peppermint, orange, cherry being favorites. When made the cream is beaten until soft, a hole pushed in it, approximate size and flavor added, and worked through the cream. Break off small portions, roll into balls or desired shapes, dust with powdered sugar and let dry on wax paper at least 2 hours.

FONDANT

Into a 2-quart saucepan put 1 lb. granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 c. (a cup) hot water. Stir with wooden spoon until it starts to boil. Remove spoon, stir no more, wipe sides of saucepan with wet cloth to remove remaining sugar crystals. Insert thermometer and boil to 238 deg. Fahr. (soft ball). Pour boiling syrup into square tin pan or dish or marble slab brushed with cold water. Cool until hand may be held comfortably on syrup. With wooden spoon or paddle work slowly through syrup, turning it over and over toward centre, until it changes and form into a lump of cream. Leave where it is, cover with wax paper then damp cloth (not touching cream), let stand 12 to 24 hours. It is now ready for coloring and flavoring.

BUTTER CREAMS

Knead ½ lb. Fondant (above) until soft, push hole in centre, add ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 table, spoons butter and, if desired, 1 tablespoon breakfast cocoa or 2 tablespoons finely chopped nuts. With a broad knife work them in thoroughly. Roll small pieces into balls, flatten with powdered sugar, let dry on wax paper to form a crust before coating.

CHOCOLATE-COATED MARASCHINOS

Drain well as many maraschino cherries as needed. Judge amount of fondant needed and heat it in double boiler — water below never exceeding 150 deg. Fahr. Stir constantly, adding 1 tablespoon cherry juice. When hot and thinned, add vanilla sparingly if desired. Dip drained cherry in fondant to completely cover. Allow surplus to drain off, deposit on wax paper. Let stand until set. Coat with dark sweet chocolate (dipping instructions above). The acid in the cherry soon causes the cream to liquefy.

Debs Dubbed Worst-Dressed, Worst Turned-Out Girls Seen About for Many Years

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—The stately debs of England are shattered to the core. The 1964 crop of debutantes has just been dubbed the worst-dressed, worst turned-out girls seen about for many years.

And who says so? The very last person the debs would have suspected of such treachery. None other than that arch-priestess of London's social butterflies, Jennifer of Queen Magazine.

Jennifer, in private life Mrs. Betty Kenward, is Queen's society editor, a gracious white-haired lady with a clipped Edwardian accent who usually talks about the season's "gels" with enthusiasm. Week by week in her bland, starch-pencilled Jennifer's Diary column, she chronicles the doings of the debs in a style that resembles a fixed social smile turned into print.

Suddenly, however, Jennifer seems to have had more than she can take.

Right in the middle of a "very pleasant dinner," "very good dance" paragraph came the bombshell about the worst-dressed girls, followed immediately by a most uncharacteristic jab at debs' mums:

"I hope the mothers of 1965 debutantes do before and see that their daughters are turned out looking clean and wearing attractive clothes . . . This season girls have been allowed to go to dances with their hair unbrushed and worn like a blind down over the face (very suitable for the bed but not the ballroom)."

Mrs. Kenward singled out for special chastisement a girl she saw at one dance "creeping round the ballroom in a long-sleeved blouse, long fawn cardigan skirt, bedroom slippers and a worn-out black feather boa round her neck."

Commented the mother of the deb in question, 18-year-old art student Elizabeth Pryor: "Elizabeth always tends to dress a little eccentrically."

However, Jennifer seems to be fighting a lone campaign. Her opposite number on The Tatler, Muriel Bowen, told a Daily Mail reporter in her view the 1964 debs were "very pleasant people doing jobs of work, living rather more meaningful lives than their predecessors." And a society photographer Tom Hustler, something of an expert on the subject, praised the dress sense, originality and general up-to-dateness of the new girls, adding blumtly:

"Much better than all those stupid dames in yards of tulle you used to get . . ."

Widowhood How to Succeed in Politics

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A curious fact of political life in Canada is that if a widow stands for her late husband's seat in a federal byelection she is almost sure to win.

Twice in 1964 widows of MPs were given the nominations, bringing to five the number of occasions on which this situation has arisen. The widows have been successful every time.

In November, New Brunswick elected its first woman MP when it sent the widow of Sherwood Rideout to the Commons for Westmorland. Liberal Margaret Rideout, a mother of three, followed Eloise Jones, elected in June to succeed the late Harry Jones as Progressive Conservative member for Saskatoon.

Jean Casselman, married last August to a Toronto stockbroker and now Mrs. Robert Wadds, set the pattern in 1958 when she won a byelection to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Conservative A. C. Casselman in Ontario's riding of Grenville-Dundas.

Mrs. Wadds is still an MP. Others no longer in the Commons are Margaret Macdonald, who held Argenteuil-Two for Kings for the Conservatives in 1961 after the death of John A. Macdonald, and Agnes Macphail, who captured the Northwest Territories seat for the Liberals in 1963 after Mervyn Hurdle's death.

RECORD NUMBER

The result of the two byelection victories in 1964 is that the House of Commons has a record number of women members, six. Others are Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, Margaret Konantz and Ellen Fairclough.

This constituted an achievement in the Canadian woman's political acceptance in areas once reserved for men. And while 1964 perhaps wasn't the year in the sex war when it did produce a number of other firsts.

Prime Minister Malcolm M. Tait was appointed official reporter of the New Brunswick legislature, a post never before held by a woman in Canada.

The lawyer wife of a lawyer, Mrs. M. J. Batten of Humboldt, Sask., was appointed judge of Saskatchewan's district court, the first woman in Western Canada to receive a federally appointed judgeship.

Yvette Dussault - Mailloux of Montreal became a judge in Quebec's social welfare court, the first woman judge to have jurisdiction throughout the province.

Ada Pritchard struck a blow for women's rights shortly after taking her seat in the Ontario legislature as a Conservative member from Hamilton. She persuaded her male colleagues to abolish a 93-year-old rule barring ladies in women from the legislative chamber. Mrs. Pritchard continued to wear a hat herself, however.

GAIN IN QUEBEC

In Quebec, some change was made in the civil code to improve the legal standing of married women. They are still bound by the community system of property allotment which, in Quebec, means the husband is sole administrator not only of joint property but of his wife's property. But legislation passed in June makes some exceptions.

Women now are given responsibility if their husbands are absent or incapable, for example, as a result of mental illness. Wives now may administer property owned by law as trance intrigue, written when she was 16.

Mabel Poliak, 23, of Tuktoyaktuk, N.W.T., became the first Eskimo registered nurse when she graduated from the Winnipeg General Hospital school of nursing.

The woman as a representative of consumer interests received clear recognition in July when the 15-member Council of Consumers was formed under the federal food and drug directorate. Fourteen members are women, most of them representing women's organizations. They are to advise Health Minister LaMarsh on the consumer's point of view in some food and drug matters.

In June the Vanier Institute of the Family was initiated at the Canadian Conference on the Family held in Ottawa. The Catholic Women's League was the first group to announce it would raise money to back the institute, which plans to offer scholarships and organize study sessions to consider problems affecting family life in Canada.

Joanne Ruth Nichols, now a Grade 12 student in Vancouver, took first prize in an international literary contest sponsored by the Indian government, topping 3,000 entries with a 13,000-word novelette on the conference intrigue, written when she was 16.

Club Activities
MELROSE MOONLIGHT MUNCHERS

The eighth meeting of the Melrose Moonlight Munchers was held recently in the church basement in the form of a supper. There were 15 girls present, each with a guest, and the three leaders were also accompanied by a guest.

The preparation for the supper was done by the girls. They were divided into three groups. One group went early to set up and arrange the tables, and prepare the salad. One group in the kitchen and another group serving the guests.

The girls who had gone early ate with the guests. Then after the guests had been served the other girls ate in the kitchen.

There was a short business meeting and the girls decided to have a work meeting to do the covers for their books.

The guests joined the girls to sing a few songs and play a quiz game. Three of the club girls did a small scene on table manners. One girl narrated, while one girl displayed poor manners and the, other, good table manners.

Successful Living

This Sad Situation Is A Case for the Courts

DEAR DORIS — My wife was divorced when I met her and had two kids by her previous husband. When I married her we took in the one boy and the other went to the father. But the lad says they beat him and half the time don't feed him and he wants to move in with us.

I asked the real father if he'd help out by paying and the boy stay with us, but he said he married a woman who has kids and he is supporting them. My wife is crying all the time and I'm not sure what to do.—MR. CONFUSED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR MR. CONFUSED — This is a case for court action. If the situation is as bad as it sounds and the boy is young, it is highly likely that the judge will favor moving him into the care of his mother. In this case the judge will also decide about responsibility for his support. Seek help from Mr. Ross Bailey, Sheriff and Legal Aid Director for the County of Hastings, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS — My uncle (my mother's brother) married my aunt, who is white, against my grandmother's and my mother's will. My mother is now preventing me from coming in contact with my boy who is white.

Do you think that my mother's unreasonable attitude has any connection whatsoever with my uncle marrying my aunt? If so, what can I do to change her?

I'm 16 and we are Orientals. — TREATED UNJUSTLY.

DEAR TREATED UNJUSTLY — Quite probably. Sometimes race prejudices are pretty strong. I'm sorry to say. Your mother knows what your uncle and aunt were up against. Learn more about the problem yourself and be willing to wait a while to make up your own mind about this.

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can help. Write to her about your particular human problem.)

Christmas Concerts

S.S. No. 7, RAWDON

The Fourth Line, S.S. No. 7, Rawdon School held its Christmas concert on Friday evening, with Rev. Mr. Fletcher as efficient chairman.

The musical program conducted by Mrs. Doug Faires, consisted of carol singing, opened by Donald Masterson with solos by Carolyn Richardson and Marie Lake. Other numbers included a song by the junior girls, duets by Keith Richardson with Douglas Murray and by Glen. Mastin with Isaac Whitney.

An action play with Darlene Masterson as lector and Harold and Susan Morrison, Carol McGie, Christine and Elaine Morgan as animals, delighted the audience.

One of the newly elected trustees for Rawdon School Area, Mr. George Sutherland, spoke of the probable future of rural schools. He also read the final financial report of Rawdon, No. 7, prepared by Mr. Everett Lake.

Mrs. Murray gave a most interesting account of the history of the section, showing its link with the history of Canada, its early settlers, the three schools and the happy memories of former pupils. She traced the progress made through the years and asked that the new Township School Area Boards should in their future plannings, not forget their origins.

In closing she gave an example of the affection in which these rural schools are held. After her son, David, home from Royal Roads, at Victoria, B.C., to deliver the valedictory address at Stirling High School had revisited SS 7, she asked him if it appeared small and insignificant. His answer expressed a universal truth, "No it doesn't. It holds too many memories."

As the program ended Santa appeared to distribute presents and candy.

WELLINGTON UNITED CHURCH

Wellington United Church Sunday School held its Christmas concert on December 17th. The superintendent, Mr. Gordon Parks, welcomed the capacity audience.

Nursery and kindergarten classes sang Christmas songs, grouped around the manger. Primary classes—The Shepherd Boy was a dialogue done by three shepherds and their visit to the manger to see the Christ Child.

Junior Class—The Friendly Beasts. The girls sang carols and recited verses about the animals in the manger scene. Rev. Truax expressed the appreciation for the effort of the teachers and pupils involved in the presentation of the successful program.

Junior Classes—The Christmas Tree Forest was read by Mr. Ken Lane with boys and girls gathered around him while others enacted the story.

Intermediate Boys' Class—The Road to Jerusalem. The boys portrayed the Bible story of Herod and his court and the visit of the three wise men.

Intermediate and Senior Classes—True Religious Christmas. The choir sang several Christmas carols and a pantomime of The Christmas Story was enacted.

After the program everyone followed Santa Claus to the Sunday school rooms, where he gave each child a bag of candies.

WOMAN'S RECORD

TE KUITI, New Zealand (CP) —Pam Warren of Mokau achieved a tally of 337 sheep and lambs, all long woolled, shorn in one day here. In her normal working day, under shed conditions, she worked as a member of a shearing gang. It is believed to qualify easily as a world record for women.

GRAND ENTRANCE

Dear Susanna: Why not high light the Christmas pudding this year by placing a little co-ordinated candle on either side — red or green.

To make these, you will need two individual jelly moulds — the ribbed ones that are about three inches high. When you pour the melted wax into the moulds, allow an extra inch or so of wick to lie on the bottom. Then, when you unmould the wax, turn it upside down so that your candles look like miniature Christmas puddings. Next, pick out the end of the wick and cut it off at the desired length.

Use a large platter or tray and carry the pudding in with a flourish. Lift up by a Christmas pudding candle on either side. — I. M. C.

To be really festive, deck it all with miniature boughs of holly. How impressive can a pudding get! — SUSANNA

SHOE SHINE GIRL

Dear Susanna: It always seemed a shame to me to have to throw out the occasional bit of paste shoe polish just because it had dried out, and had become hard and crumbly.

I did a little experimenting, and came up with the perfect answer for restoring it to its original soft, useable state.

Using a small piece of wood, such as an ice cream stick, work a little paste floor wax into the polish. In this way, every bit of the shoe polish gets used up. — Mrs. E. Turner

Susanna's Family Fare

Whenever any of us are confronted with a miserable, crumbly tin of shoe polish, we shall think fondly of you, and apply your simple solution. — SUSANNA

Brief Aimed at Complete Removal of Duty on Presses And Auxiliary Equipment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian printing and publishing industry is being bogged down by a "horrifying" tangle of taxes and tariffs, the Graphic Arts Industries Association says in a brief to the tariff board for hearings starting here Feb. 1.

The association says these burdens—not earried by U.S. competitors—have inflated the industry's capital costs and curtailed its home and export markets, resulting in "much higher unit costs for shorter and fewer manufactured runs than we would have in a sensible set of circumstances."

"To put an image on a piece of paper in Canada, we render a colossal financial tribute to the Crown," the brief said.

"The customers we do have are compelled to pay far more than fair value, while the many prospective customers are driven away by public policy or, perhaps we should say, by lack of public policy."

The association said it spoke on behalf of commercial printers but that its brief had the backing of other groups, such as the Periodical Press Association, as well as "the broad sympathy and agreement" with some reservations—of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association.

Specifically, the brief was aimed at complete removal of the 10-per-cent duty on presses and auxiliary equipment used in the printing of books, general commercial work and the printing of packages and boxes.

The brief said a machine can be brought into Canada duty-free if it is used 80 per cent of the time to print newspapers, periodicals and telephone directories. But if the commercial use—including the printing of books and school books—exceeds 20 per cent, the duty must be paid.

"These ridiculous inequities cannot be policed," the association said.

The association also said that while the government collects a duty of 10 cents a pound or not less than 25 per cent on imported art printing and printed matter, it opens the door to a flood of direct mail advertising "without an eq uitary. "In an advertising age, this is a ridiculous state of affairs for the country, the government, and the industry."

For 34 years the above Christmas card has gone back and forth between Belleville resident "Newt" Thompson and Judge Paul Alexander, founder of the Y's Men's movement. The last two lines of verse state " . . . I'll sign my name in pencil so you'll use the card next year." Both friends followed the inscription to a T.

Food Parcel For Poor Price Of Mug of Ale

PHELPSTON, Ont. (CP) — About 25 families of Flos Township will benefit Christmas Day from Pete Rutledge's novel way of collecting food parcels.

Rutledge, operator of the beverage room in this community's only hotel, tacked a sign on the wall which read, "If you don't put here, then you don't drink beer."

Below the sign was space for patrons to deposit food packages.

About a ton of food was collected this year and Don McDonald, township welfare counsellor, will supervise distribution of it.

Rutledge said he first got the idea last year after recalling a hungry person would "rather have a can of beans than a 15 - cent Christmas card."

Last year, he said, 17 families benefited from the project.

Phelpston is 17 miles north of Barrie.

One Father-to-Be in Nine Suffers Pregnancy Pains

LONDON (Reuters) — At least one father-to-be in nine suffers from pregnancy pains, a Birmingham University professor suggested in the latest issue of the science journal Discovery.

Professor W. H. Trethowan said some men about to become fathers suffer "sympathy pains" for their wives ranging from toothache to morning sickness, to swelling of the abdomen.

One husband started "labor pains" after visiting his wife in hospital. His prolonged pains stopped 20 minutes before his son was born.

A soldier on active service, unable to see his wife after hearing she was pregnant, developed a swollen abdomen.

The swelling, which looked like an advanced state of pregnancy, vanished when he was anesthetized but returned when he was conscious. It disappeared when the soldier saw his wife and child.

Trethowan suggested three possible causes of these male symptoms of pregnancy:

The husband could be feeling "sympathy pains" in the hope of protecting his wife from the dangers of her condition; he could be converting repressed feelings of antagonism and jealousy toward the child into ailments; or he could envy his wife her procreative function.

Dief's Suggestion Branded 'Completely False' by P.M.

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker dropped a suggestion Monday that Prime Minister Pearson's controversial letter to Dorion Inquiry last week may have been prompted by knowledge of information in a still - secret RCMP report.

Mr. Pearson immediately branded the suggestion "completely false."

In the letter Mr. Pearson said he was first told about bribery allegations against a minister's aide on Sept. 2, not Nov. 22 as he had said in the Commons on Nov. 24.

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a press conference there had to be "a most unusual reason" for Mr. Pearson's letter.

"Certainly at that time he knew that Chief Justice Dorion had stated that the RCMP report could be produced."

The report gives the results of an RCMP investigation into the bribery allegations.

HALTS ABRUPTLY

"In the report you see s—" At that point Mr. Diefenbaker halted abruptly, paused, then said:

"I don't know what was in it."

This left the impression with reporters that Mr. Diefenbaker felt something in the report, which still has not been read at the inquiry, resulted in Mr. Pearson's letter.

Mr. Dorion later told a reporter, after being advised of Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks:

"The suggestion itself is completely false and is the kind of false speculation that has been responsible for so much of the poisonous insinuations and rumors that are being spread these days."

The prime minister also said it would be very interesting to know how Mr. Diefenbaker became aware of the police report in a way to make such a suggestion.

Mr. Pearson said he had checked his files for such a reference before making his reply.

The opposition leader reiterated the remarks while he was discussing the 1964 session of Parliament with reporters who had come to his office hopeful of getting a statement on reports that one or two Quebec Conservatives are considering leaving the party.

He also had remarks about Mr. Pearson's statement in the House last Thursday, the day after the letter was read at the inquiry. The prime minister told the House that in his Nov. 24 reply he had forgotten about the brief Sept. 2 conversation in which Justice Minister Favreau first mentioned the bribery allegations.

It had been "most improper" for the prime minister to say that he had no earlier opportunity under House procedures to expand on his Nov. 24 statement.

"He must have known that statement was far removed from the facts of parliamentary life."

Mr. Diefenbaker referred to an NDP motion that day which asked for a committee study of Mr. Pearson's remarks.

"Never in the years I have been in Parliament has a prime minister's word not been accepted," he said.

"The motion was ruled out of order, a ruling endorsed by the Commons in a vote of 122 to 105."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had received secret word back in 1960 without finding a precedent for such a motion involving a prime minister.

Harkness Blames PC Leader For Breakaway of Balcer

CALGARY (CP)— Douglas Harkness said Monday he blames threats of Quebec Conservative Leader Leon Balcer to break away from the party entirely on Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Mr. Harkness, former defence minister in the Diefenbaker government, was commenting in an interview from his Calgary home on threats by Mr. Balcer and Paul Martineau, another Quebec Conservative, to leave the Conservative party and sit as independents in the Commons.

Mr. Harkness said, however, "I would hope that Mr. Balcer and his friends would remain Conservatives in any event, whatever name they might adopt."

Asked if he saw a parallel between his own position in the Conservative party and any new stance that the Quebec Conservatives might take, Mr. Harkness said:

"I have always been a Conservative . . . what Mr. Balcer's position might be is still a matter of speculation."

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Quebec Progressive Conservative members of Parliament were of different minds Monday night about the statements earlier in the day from their colleagues on the possibility of quitting the party to sit in the House of Commons as independents.

Another Conservative, Georges Valade, member for Montreal-St.-Marie, said he has just returned to Canada after a trip to the Far East and did not yet want to comment on the feelings of discontent expressed by Leon Balcer and Paul Martineau.

Fighter Plane On First Trip

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The supersonic F-111, the fighter plane known around the world as the controversial TFX, took off on an abbreviated maiden flight Monday, 10 days ahead of schedule. A malfunction of the sleek craft's wing flaps developed, the pilot said, and caused the two-man crew to keep the plane down to 230 miles an hour.

Mark Sir John A. Birthday With Civic, State Dinner

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has established an interdepartmental committee to recommend steps it might take to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Canada's first prime minister next Jan. 11.

The committee, embracing several departments, will report to State Secretary Lamontagne, who has responsibility for the Centennial Commission and most cultural activities of the government.

An informant said it was too early to predict what the government might do to commemorate the birthday of Sir John A Macdonald. It might be a single federal project, a combination of several smaller projects, or a joint undertaking with the province of Ontario and perhaps some other provinces.

Macdonald was born Jan. 11, 1815, in Glasgow, his family emigrated to Canada when he was five and settled in Kingston, Ont., where he first went into municipal politics and then into the legislature. The leader among the Fathers of Confederation, he became prime minister the year the new dominion on July 1, 1867 when the British North America Act went into effect.

A combined civic and state dinner will be held in Kingston next Jan. 11 marking his birthday. Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker have accepted invitations. Prof. Donald Creighton, Macdonald's recent biographer, will deliver the main address.

The tab for the elaborate banquet is being picked up by the city of Kingston and the federal treasury, with help from the province of Ontario.

Because one of the stories about John A. is that he once insisted all toasts be drunk in champagne, that will be the rule for the evening. The hotel dining room will be decorated with the Macdonald tartan and badge for the occasion.

Suggestions for the observance have ranged from declaring Jan. 11 an annual holiday in Canada—much like Washington's birthday in the United States—to making some settlement in history or building a new institute.

Conservative backbenchers in Parliament have been advocating for years declaring Jan. 11 John A. Macdonald day. During the recent session a bill to do so was introduced by Heath Macquarrie (PC—Queens), but was buried on the order paper after one hour's discussion.

Take Stock Of Blessings Says Premier

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts, in a Christmas message, called on the people of Ontario Monday to be aware "that the considerations they and country which unite us in the Common good far outweigh those which at times would appear to divide us."

Mr. Robarts, read his message during a radio broadcast of carols by the civil service choir from Queen's Park. He said in part:

"I think we should take a few moments to think of the true meaning and spirit of the Christmas season, peace on earth, goodwill towards men and in Ontario and throughout Canada we should realize that we have quite an enormous responsibility as well as an opportunity to share our good fortune with those many millions of people throughout the world who are less fortunate than we and many of whom live in a world of poverty and destitution. . . .

"So let us at this time of year take stock of the many blessings which we have and when we do I am sure that we shall realize that the considerations in our country which unite us in the common good far outweigh those which at times would appear to divide us. So may I wish you all a very merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year."

Printers Settle With La Presse On New Contract

MONTREAL (CP)—The strike at La Presse entered its final stages today following conditional settlement of a new contract by striking printers. The French - language daily newspaper has not published since June 3.

The International Typographical Union (CLC) members voted 222-46 in favor of the settlement early today following a debate that lasted more than four hours, but attached certain conditions to their approval.

The new three - year contract provides for a three per-cent increase in 1965, three per cent in 1966 and 4½ per cent in 1967.

The settlement, recommended by special union negotiator Romeo Mathieu, guarantees 36 weeks further employment for senior printers after notice of layoff caused by such innovations as new computers in the composing room.

However, the printers wanted the settlement guarantee by La Presse that union members fill certain jobs only and were under their jurisdiction in earlier contract.

WANT JURISDICTION

The ITU members want the counting and bundling of newspapers, which they said was being done by non-ITU members, before the strike to come under the union's jurisdiction. The printers also want to be responsible for the pasted layout of the Saturday rotogravure section which they said was being done by members affiliated with other unions before the strike.

Maurice Charette, president of La Presse, said in an interview Monday that resumption of publication depends on when the new agreement is signed and how long it takes to get equipment, unserviced for nearly seven months, into operating order.

He said he does not believe the evening newspaper, which had a circulation of 250,000, will start publishing this week.

Conditions of the offer accepted by the printers are about the same as those accepted Dec. 10 by Confederation of National Trade Unions affiliates bargaining for journalists, office employees and technicians.

The Dec. 18 agreement contained clauses on freedom of expression in the workplace, which a CNTU official said insures against any "ideological interference" by management over news content.

LIMIT SET

Journalists writing commentaries, analyses or columns may not express views hostile to the management line or to "ideological views" although they may express contradictory views, the official said.

With these and other freedoms-of-expression clauses agreed on, the journalists returned to their work. But they made it a condition of resumption that the striking printers first settle with management.

There were 300 printers in the ITU at La Presse at the outset. After they struck, primarily over the issue of automation, a dispute between the paper and the 170 members of the International des Journalistes de Montreal became a major issue.

For the journalists, the major issue has been their working relations with the paper's management.

The clause of their agreement recognized that the employers have the power to administer, decide on policy, operate the paper, hire employees and direct their work.

Must Report Liquor Left Over From Banquets

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — Sally Stone of Milton, a golf club official, was fined $25 and costs Monday or 30 days in jail for failure to report the amount of liquor left over from a banquet.

Police said in magistrate's court here that they searched the Caledon Golf and Country Club Nov. 7 after a banquet permit had been issued Oct. 17.

They said they found 127 pints of beer, 23 full and two partly-full bottles of wine, and 10 partly-full bottles of liquor.

Liquor left after a banquet must be reported to the Ontario Liquor Licensing Board within 48 hours.

Tranquility on East-West Frontier Is Greatest Gift Mankind Can Hope For

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Tranquility on the East-West frontier is probably the greatest gift mankind can hope to receive in 1965. But peace has brought its problems. It has opened the way for intensified sniping within the Western family of nations.

The Paris conference of ministers last week averted a blowup that might have destroyed the present shape of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But the divisive factors are still there and while the crisis has been averted, it has not been eliminated. At the centre of the problem is the nuclear bomb.

Canada fears the push towards some form of Atlantic or multilateral nuclear force may lead to a separate Western club that one day may rival and shoot down the existing NATO structure. In fact, the British plan for an Atlantic nuclear force is based on the development of a central controlling political structure that would be separate from but could be linked with NATO. British officials say the need for this separation is that certain NATO countries, such as Norway and Denmark, want no part of any nuclear roles.

Britain says its nuclear clubhouse would always be open to full NATO membership — if other countries want to join. But France has indicated it would shun such a setup in persuade other European members to agree to a separate European nuclear deterrent under French leadership.

Since there was less than one per cent of the Western nuclear deterrent, this kind of club holds little attraction for most countries as West Germany which wants a finger on the nuclear trigger as added protection against the threat from the East.

So Bonn looks to Washington rather than Paris for a possible nuclear solution. And the people, France keeps on talking of massive retaliation as its military strategy — a concept that Britain trembles for this would mean that France, even with tiny supply of bombs, could start a nuclear holocaust through immediate escalation of an East-West war.

It would appear, therefore, to the benefit of Britain and other worried partners that France has agreed in principle to coordinate targeting of her weapons with those of the United States—in effect, agreeing not to lock French bombs in certain fixed directions and on certain targets. This would have limiting effect on French flexibility and on accidental wars.

But this has not entirely satisfied either Britain or West Germany. Britain now claims that while targeting co-ordination is a good thing, the United States has in effect elevated French prestige and given support to French nuclear independence instead of continuing to exert pressure on President Charles de Gaulle to join in some form of Atlantic nuclear force.

Dissatisfaction weaves a thread through the Western Alliance. Some of the smaller powers have pressed for deeper consultation by the nuclear members. The NATO conference next January should be the merits of their plea; but it seems that in 1965 the cleavage inside NATO will widen. There may be increased consultation among two separate NATO groups — those with nuclear bargaining power and those without.

Mickey Walker, the famous "Toy Bulldog" of the ring, will be one of the head-table guests at the annual Celebrities dinner of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association early next year.

The "Mick" would tackle anything that wore gloves, regardless of weight. He was middleweight champion from 1926 to 1931 and when he couldn't make the weight any more he took on the bigger boys.

He is 73—and believe it or not—he took up painting as a hobby after he retired from the ring. His oils went on exhibition and he once wowed a Broadway bar that he called the "Cows and Fallopes."

After he relinquished the middleweight crown he challenged Tommy Loughran for the light-heavy title, and lost, when many thought he had won.

In 1931 he fought a 15-round draw with Jack Sharkey. That was a year after Sharkey had lost on a foul in a heavyweight title fight with Max Schmelling. Later he took on Johnny Risko, K.O. Christner, King Levinsky and several others.

After 18 years as a fighter Mickey found himself in trouble with an awkward newcomer, Eric Seelig, and was stopped in seven rounds. "This is it," he said—and meant it.

"I guess I made a million dollars—and spent it" he told a New York sportswriter. "Let's find out," said the latter. They dug out an old trunk of Mickey's and found tax returns and cancelled checks which accounted for more than a million.

Perhaps one of his most famous fights was that with the late Harry Greb, "The Human Windmill," who was often accused of sticking a thumb in an opponent's eye.

As middleweight champion Greb beat back the title challenge of Walker in 15 rounds at the Polo Grounds on July 3, 1925. However the legendary meeting on the street became more memorable than the fight.

A few hours after the fight both were in a tavern hoisting a few and jovially retracing the fight. Eventually it was suggested that they adjourn to a night club, "The Silver Slipper."

The ribbing continued as they sauntered toward the club. In fact it got to the point where tempers began to fray. As they opened the door to the club, Walker said, "if you hadn't thumbed me, I would have knocked you out." That fired the flame.

Greb snarled, "Come on back into the alley and we'll see who knocks who out."

For a non-spectator brawl, the alley scrap was said to be a dandy. The cop who eventually broke it up, stood by and saw, he claimed, the Bulldog give Greb a fearful mauling.

At 21 Mickey fought Jack Britton for the welter title at old Madison Square Garden. Jack Kearns, the famous manager "adopted" him and took the Bulldog to Britain for a title defence against England's champion Tommy Milligan.

"Wheddya say, Mick," asked the canny Kearns a week before the fight. "I can get a helluva price if I bet your entire purse!" "Whatever you say," replied the Mick.

With everything but their ocean tickets riding on the result, Walker knocked out Milligan in the 19th round. He and Kearns reached their hotel with $200,000 in their suitcases.

Said old Lumlox never saw such a spree. With their canny followers they disgorged themself of nearly $200,000 before Mickey recalled he had promised his family he would sail for England and kiss the blarney stone. The trip did not interrupt the nocturnal orgies.

An hour later when their plane nosed into a pre-landing turn, Mickey woke up. He stared disbelievingly. Then he nudged Kearns.

"Look," he said, "you'll never believe it. They've moved the Eiffel Tower to Dublin.

They had taken the wrong plane and had been poured on the Paris flight. Kearns had a date with a French beauty so it didn't make too much difference.

Back to Harry Greb. The Human Windmill" was stricken with a heart attack in Atlantic City at the age of 32. He died during an operation. Four days later his attending physician revealed that Greb had fought for five years with a glass eye in the right socket.

Reay Juggling Produces Hot Line

* * * Hodge, Crozier Tied

MONTREAL (CP)—A little line-juggling by a coach can take on formidable proportions when its results are put through the National Hockey League's official statistics computer.

Coach Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks put together the line of left winger Bobby Hull, centre Phil Esposito and right winger Chico Maki which has turned out to be the top unit in the league in its first six games.

Hull and Esposito have each scored 10 points while Maki has scored six in the six games. Chicago has won its last seven, moving into a second-place tie with Detroit Red Wings. Each has 23 points, two fewer than first-place Montreal Canadiens.

Last week, Hull scored five goals, stepping up his scoring pace to a goal a game—25 goals in 25 games—and picked up five assists for a total of 44 points. Hull leads the individual scoring race by 10 points.

He has 42 games in which to score the necessary 23 goals to break the record for most goals in a season.

He second spot in the scoring race is Chicago's Stan Mikita whose points are made up of eight goals and 26 assists, best in the league. Another Hawk, Phil Esposito, moved into a three-way tie for third place by scoring four goals and five assists last week. He has 37 points, the same as Norm Ullman of Detroit and Claude Provost of Montreal.

While breaking even in their three games last week by winning, losing and tying, Toronto Maple Leafs slipped to fourth place from second place with 21 points.

New York Rangers, who have failed to win in their last six games, fell off the pace to fifth with 20 points. Boston Bruins, who have won only one of their last eight games, continue to play their role as league doormat. They're in last place with 16 points.

Charlie Hodge of Montreal and Roger Crozier of Detroit are tied in the Vezina Trophy race. Each team has been scored on 69 times, three fewer than Toronto. Crozier continues to lead in shutouts with three.

In the penalty department, Bob Baun of Toronto enjoys a wide lead as league badman with 95 minutes, 21 more than teammate Carl Brewer and 22 more than Detroit's Ted Lindsay. Toronto is the most penalized team with 464 minutes, six more than Detroit.

Leafs May Have Baun For Hawks

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Baun may be back in the Toronto Maple Leaf lineup before the Leafs' Friday and Saturday night Christmas series with Chicago Black Hawks, but chances are slim that Andy Bathgate will return before five weeks.

Baun is being treated for a charley-horse in his right thigh and, if the clotting dissolves quickly, he could be skating by Wednesday and playing by the weekend. But Leaf doctors say Bathgate's broken thumb won't be ready for action for at least five weeks.

Both players were injured during the Leafs' 3-1 loss to Detroit Red Wings Sunday night.

Either Duane Rupp or Larry Hillman, both of Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, will replace Baun while Bathgate, Leafs' top scorer and sixth in the National Hockey League race, will be replaced by either Jim Pappin or Eddie Shack.

Rangers Get Hicke In Deal

Dick Duff Traded To Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP)—Dick Duff will don his third National Hockey League uniform Wednesday night when he turns out with Montreal Canadiens, the result of a Montreal-New York four-player trade.

General - manager Sam Pollock of the Canadiens announced Monday night that Duff and Minor-leaguer Dave McComb were acquired by the Montreal club from New York Rangers for Bill Hicke, a Canadien property, and goalie Jean-Guy Morissette of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

The 28-year-old Duff, a left winger, went to the Rangers last season in a trade that sent Andy Bathgate to the Toronto Maple Leafs. Duff had played with the Leafs for nine seasons before that.

His best season was in 1958-59 when he scored 28 goals and assisted on 34 others for a 62-point total. He had three goals and nine assists in 37 games so far this season with New York.

Hicke, 26, was in the Canadiens' lineup for 17 games earlier this season but had been out since, only occasionally. He had about all he will give the Colts is "a few new wrinkles we hope will throw Cleveland off from the patterns they expect.

"Your game plan is pretty much dictated by the style of team you're playing," explained Shula. "You try to beat what they do best."

Quarterback John Unitas, who will carry out Shula's plan, was in accord with his coach on the week ahead.

"You prepare for the championship like any other game," said the veteran of Colts' title winners in 1958 and 1959.

Will Shoot To Win

No Change In Colts' Pattern

BALTIMORE (AP) — Don Shula began Monday polishing the most important game plan of his young coaching career. But there will be no startling new look by the Baltimore Colts against Cleveland Browns Sunday for the National Football League championship.

"When you've come this far along in the season, you go with what has been successful," said Shula in the solitude of his office.

His assistants and the 40-man squad had the day to themselves.

Shula, 34, and coaching in a championship game in only his second season, said in an interview:

Coach Hears What He Said To Himself

TORONTO (CP)—Red Sullivan, coach of New York Rangers, introduced a new gimmick to the National Hockey League Saturday night but it didn't help his club in their 6-3 loss to Toronto Maple Leafs.

The former Ranger star wore a miniature tape recorder throughout the game which preserved his instructions and complaints during the heat of battle. These were available for playbacks in the dressing room both to his players and himself.

"I talk to myself for a purpose," he explained. "In the heat of combat I forget things I want to tell the players later. I'll either play the recorder back to myself or play it back so the team can hear it between periods.

"It's hard to remember all the things you should be pointing out to your players between periods. This way, you don't miss anything."

Won't Strip Champion Of Crown

BANGKOK (AP)—The Thai Boxing Commission prepared to appeal to the World Boxing Association Monday not to strip world flyweight champion Pone Kingpetch of his title for possible failure to defend it against Salvatore Burruni of Italy.

The Thai position, backed by former WBA president Ed Lasman, has been to pick a Thai referee and two neutral judges for a title bout. The Italians want a neutral referee. The WBA has threatened to take away the title if the match isn't signed by Jan. 1.

Western Juniors Had Russ On Ropes

Lose Squeaker 7-5

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP)—The junior Edmonton Oil Kings, reinforced by six of their alumni and four intermediates, couldn't quite catch Russia's national team Monday night but their coach thinks the world amateur hockey champions can be had.

The Russians won the game 7-5. But they frittered away a five-goal lead, giving up two goals while they had a man advantage, and were hanging on the ropes until they fired an insurance goal into the empty net with 11 seconds remaining after the Oil Kings lifted their goaltender for an extra forward.

Edmonton coach Buster Brayshaw praised the tourists' puck control and passing ability but found them less outstanding than he had been given to believe.

"They threw a lot of blind passes at us," he said, "and as soon as our defencemen changed their tactics a bit they couldn't complete passes of that type."

Brayshaw felt Canadian teams shouldn't allow the Russians to dictate the tempo of play.

"You have to press them and they'll make mistakes. But they're well coached and in good condition. That wins a lot of hockey games."

Unbeaten and tied only once in seven Canadian starts, the Russians took a 3-1 lead at the end of the first period, beating goaltender Ken Broderick with two of the first three shots he saw, and made it 6-1 at the second intermission with Broderick again missing the first two Russian drives.

But the Toronto-born netminder, loaned by the Canadian national team for the occasion, made 30 stops, 25 of them in the first two periods, compared with 23 by Russian goaltender Victor Tolmschev.

Slonde Venlamin Alexandrov, one of the veterans of the Russian lineup, scored the clinching goal on a lofted backhand from his own zone and set up the first two of the game, both by Victor Kuzkin, 45 seconds apart in the first period. He also assisted on a third goal by Alexander Ragulin.

Vyatsheslav Starshinov, Yuri Volkov and Victor Yakushev were the other Russian marksmen.

Roger Bourbonnais, a former Oil King who faced the Russians before along with Broderick in the 1964 Olympics, scored two of the Edmonton goals with Harvey Fleming, Max Mestinsek and Bert Marshall getting the others.

Mestinsek, Marshall and Glen Sather rejoined the Oil Kings from Memphis Wings of the Central Hockey League. Pat Quinn came from Tulsa of the CPHL and Jim Eagle from Denver University. Bourbonnais is with the Canadian national team.

Fleming was one of four players added from the Edmonton Mets, one of the intermediate Central Alberta Leagues.

All three Russian goals in the first period were partially screened while Fleming got the first Canadian goal from a scramble. A bad pass by defenceman Ron Yanosik set up Starshinov's second-period goal.

Voted most valuable football player of the year by his Nicholson Catholic College team mates, Frank Farrell, quarterback and grade 13 student, receives the Stewart Malloy Memorial trophy from coach Father Gaseley. Behind them is the original memorial trophy kept in the school in memory of Stewart Malloy, coach and former player killed in a car accident this fall.

Rutherford Paces Win

Juniors Thump Peterboro 6-2

Belleville "B's" handed Peterborough Don Bye's their "Christmas surprise" a little early, thumping the Petes 6-2 right in their own back yard last night.

The win was Belleville's seventh in ten starts, tightening their grip on first place in the OHA Eastern Junior hockey league standings, and two of their victories have been over the Peterborough squad.

Belleville never trailed last night. Gordie Kelly's chargers opened up a 2-0 lead in the first heat and split a pair of goals in the second for a 3-1 margin. Another 3-1 edge in the final twenty minutes put the decision in wraps.

The "B's" next start will also be on the road. They meet the Islanders in Gananoque on Sunday night, at seven o'clock. Napanee edged Gananoque 3-2 in another game played at Napanee last night.

The winners spread their scoring points around with no player gathering more than two. Jim Rutherford again led the goal-getters by scoring twice. Steve White, Larry Stewart, Carl Boonbower and Grant Hagerman each collected one goal and one assist. Pete Fleming earned two helpers and Bob Boyle one.

Norm Bean, who splits his time between Peterbrough's "A" and "B" teams, scored both of the loser's goals. Joe Johnston, Bill Stabler and Al Saltern each had an assist.

In the penalty department, Peterbrough picked up four and the "B's" drew three. Included were fighting majors to Larry Stewart and Colin Ingram, at 13.10 of the second period. It was a peaceful affair overall with only one minor dished out in the third period.

Goalies Bob Moon and Brian Caley held the opposing attackers at bay until after the halfway mark in the first period. While gave the winners their first goal, at 13.52, while Don had a man in the sin bin. It stayed that way until the final minute of the period when Hagerman scored for a 2-0 Belleville margin.

The losers made their bid early in the second. Bean beat Moon after just 28 seconds of play while a Belleville player was serving a penalty laid over from the opening heat. Twenty seconds later Stewart got first back and the goalies kept their nets clear over the remainder of the period.

Most of the third-frame scoring also came late. Rutherford at 12.32 and Boonbower at 17.01, made it a 5-1 contest. Bean got one back at 17.36 but Rutherford's second counter, 20 seconds later, regained the comfortable Belleville lead.

Spoils Comeback

Durelle Verdicts Savoie

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian welterweight champion Joey Durelle spoiled the boxing comeback of veteran Armand Savoie by scoring a unanimous decision in a 10-round non-title fight Monday night.

Durelle, a cousin of former Canadian light heavyweight champion Yvon Durelle, started fast and held on as Savoie battled back in the final rounds.

A crowd of 2,213, heavily pro-Savoie, saw the fight.

Savoie, a Montrealer who weighed 144 pounds, yielded eight pounds to Durelle, a Baie Ste. Anne, N.B. native fighting out of Trois-Rivieres. Savoie seemed to be in excellent fighting trim and was the stronger in the closing rounds.

The three judges scored 46-45, 46-45 and 46-44 in favor of Durelle, using the maximum five-point-a-round system.

Durelle, 28, concentrated on body punches to wear down his 35-year-old opponent. He kept Savoie at bay with the flurries of punches and beat jabs inside during the numerous clinches.

It was Savoie's third fight this year in his comeback which was marked by two previous knockouts. The one-time Canadian light and welterweight champion had not fought previously since May, 1960.

In the main preliminary bout, Canadian featherweight champion Dave Hilton, 134½ pounds, fighting out of Montreal and Saint John, N.B. outpointed Arnold Sparks, 139 pounds, of Winnipeg in a 10-rounder.

Buffalo Saved Wrinkles

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Buffalo Bills didn't need their new "offensive wrinkles" against Boston Patriots Sunday and Los Angeles Chargers Saturday.

The coach of the American Football League's eastern division champions said today, however, "we're saving them just in case."

Saban, whose Bills defeated Boston 24-14 for the eastern title, appeared highly optimistic that Buffalo would end San Diego's reign as AFL champion. The Chargers won the title last year by crushing Boston, winner over Buffalo in 1964 eastern playoff game.

A capacity crowd of 41,000 a lot of them standees, is expected to watch the title game in War Memorial stadium here. Against Boston, Saban said he used the same offence that had been used all season. New ideas worked out by his staff were not needed because of the Bills' "tremendous team performance."

Pass protection was a big factor in the victory. Quarterback Jack Kemp was well guarded by fullback Cookie Gilchrist and halfback Wray Carlton. Their blocking helped Kemp complete 12 of 24 passes, including a 57 - yard touchdown pass to flanker Elbert Dubenion. When asked whether he thought San Diego's successive losses in its last two games might keep the chargers from "getting up" for Buffalo, Saban answered: "This is a money game—you can throw out the statistics. No, those losses aren't going to hurt them."

San Diego won the western division title with an 8-5-1 record. Two of the losses were to Buffalo, which won 12 of its 14 regular-season games.

Patterson, Chuvalo Switch

NEW YORK (AP) — The heavyweight elimination bout between former champion Floyd Patterson of New York and George Chuvalo of Toronto will be held on Monday, Feb. 1, an. will be shown on closed circuit television.

The original date for the 12-rounder was Jan. 29 but Ned Irish, president of Madison Square Garden, said Monday the date was switched to Monday night to accommodate theatres and arenas.

Irish said the New York arena would be blacked out of the closed circuit television. There will be no home television.

Lester M. Malitz Inc. of New York has been granted the closed circuit distribution rights. The Malitz organization also will handle network radio and community antenna negotiations.

Name Frank Farrell MVP

Frank Farrell was honored as the first winner of the Stewart Malloy Memorial Trophy during brief presentation ceremonies at Nicholson Catholic College yesterday afternoon.

Malloy, a former student at the school and a noted city athlete, was killed in a car accident this fall.

A number of friends and the N.C.C. student council combined to donate the trophy in his memory.

The trophy itself is a beautiful, large affair, standing 45 inches tall, and costing well over $200.

It will be presented annually to the Most Valuable Player on the Nicholson Catholic College senior football club. A miniature will be given to each winner for personal keeping and his name will be engraved on the larger trophy.

Father Gaxley made the presentation to Farrell, one of the school's top athletes, yesterday.

It was noted that Mr. Paul Mercier donated greatly to the trophy and the cost of engraving.

'So I Says To the Guy I Says . . .'

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy Greaves, Tottenham Hotspur soccer star, received an official summons Monday to say whether it is true that he swears at referees.

The English Football Association said Greaves might be called before the disciplinary committee to explain remarks he has made to the press.

The former Milan star got himself into trouble by comment on the case of Johnny Haynes, Fulham captain. Haynes was suspended for 14 days for using bad language to a referee.

Greaves told reporters at the time:

"I shall still call this referee a rude name tomorrow. I always do. I can't remember a match when someone hasn't called the referee a rude name. I hope we're not losing our sense of humor over this."

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Because of great speed and agility, Toronto's Davy Keon is the exception to the rule when it comes to observing the fundamental that you never should chase an opponent behind his own net, particularly when you're killing penalties.

On the other hand, Boston's Reg. Fleming has a habit of taking a run at players when he goes deep in killing penalties. Actually, he's getting trapped and cutting down his effectiveness, but more about that later.

Bobby Hull of Chicago is fast, too, but when he's killing a penalty he generally will come back deep, make the play for the man with the puck. If the puck carrier holds it or draws back, Bobby just circles and picks up his wing.

In contrast, Keon will come right in behind the net, with you. Because of his great dexterity, he frequently will outmanoeuvre the puck carrier and either get it away from him or force him to make a quick pass, which increases the element of error. So you have to watch him carefully when he comes in deep.

In Fleming's case, he often does what a point man like myself would like him to do. He will take a big, long run at you. By delaying the puck, you draw him on, then pass the puck when he commits himself to a body check.

You're ready for the check, so you absorb it. By giving with the check, you may even go to the ice.

But he goes down with you. That cuts them down to three men on defense, gives your players a little more room to manoeuvre.

Because the ice sheet in Madison Square Garden is the smallest in the league, the Rangers definitely put the rush on you, go deep, when they're killing penalties. Oddly enough, they're doing the same this year, even on bigger ice sheets.

Red Sullivan has the Rangers hustling. And this is one of the places where hustle will pay off the biggest of all in hockey. Any player will do well to keep this in mind.

NEW INDEPENDENCE

'Dancer' 1964 Top Sports Performer

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Northern Dancer—who also is the outstanding individual Canadian sports performer of 1964.

Nobody wanted this three-year-old colt for $35,000 at owner E. P. Taylor's annual pre-priced yearling sales because, they said, he was a little horse—15.2 hands—and probably wouldn't be able to stand the rigors of racing. But he was a terror at the track and now, retired to stud because of a freak injury, he's a potential millionaire.

The country's sports editors and sportscasters participating in the 30th annual Canadian Press year-end poll voted overwhelmingly in favor of the Dancer as the individual performer. Not only that, they said his brief but fantastic campaign on North American tracks provided the Canadian sports thrill of the year.

The majority of the 148 voters didn't bother to list a reason for their selections. Look at the record, they said.

The horse that Taylor was stuck with became the greatest Canadian - born thoroughbred the sport has known. He captured the imagination of Canadians who wouldn't know a fore-lock from a saddle. Some even wanted to parade him to city hall in Toronto.

WON TWO JEWELS

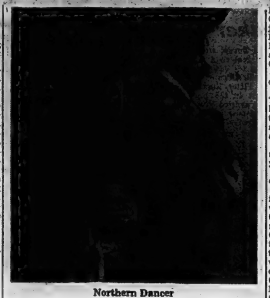
The Dancer warmed up to a great year with smashing triumphs in the Flamingo Stakes, the Florida Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes leading to the Kentucky Derby, a classic that no Canadian-bred had won in its 89-year history and the first gem of the triple crown. The Dancer changed all that.

He not only beat Hill Rise, the favorite, but established a record time of two minutes flat over the 1¼-mile distance.

There were still doubters around a couple of weeks later for the Preakness, the second jewel. Hill Rise again went to the starting gate as favorite and Northern Dancer romped in a 2¼-length victory over The Scoundrel with Hill Rise a distant third.

His triple crown hopes were smashed in the rugged 1½-mile Belmont at New York on June 8 when he finished third behind Quadrangle and Roman Brother. The son of Nearctic-Natalma came home to Toronto for what turned out to be his last race—the Queen's Plate. He won that handily by seven lengths, and then disaster struck.

The game little colt, who had never been out of the money in 16 starts, nicked himself and suffered a bowed tendon on his left foreleg in a workout at Belmont on an off-track in July. He was retired to stud Nov. 6 after a record of 14 wins, two seconds and two thirds and Canadian record total purses of $360,647. --



Taylor revealed the horse could have been syndicated in the United States for $1,500,000 and he would have had one-third of the shares but he preferred to keep him in Canada.

His stud fee is $10,000 and his 1965 book is full. He'll service between 25 and 30 mares in 1965.

While the colt is standing at the National Stud Farm at Oshawa, Ont., voters in Canada and the U.S. haven't forgotten him. A month ago he was named North America's leading three-year-old in balloting by the Thoroughbred Racing Association's board of selection, the first time a Canadian-bred had won the award.

Earlier, he was named Canada's horse of the year for 1964.

The CP poll results as the individual performer and thrill of the year were runaways for the Taylor-bred colt.

Northern Dancer

In the individual category, some gave their votes to track stars Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., and Harry Jerome of Vancouver; hockey players Jean Beliveau and Charlie Hodge of Montreal Canadiens, Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings; football players Tom Brown of British Columbia Lions and Tommy Grant of Hamilton Tiger - Cats; boxer Georges Chauvin of Toronto; jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B.; bronco - buster Marty Wood of Bowness, Alta., and Doug Rogers of Vancouver, Olympic judo silver medallist.

Among them, they received only 27 of the 148 votes.

One Crothers booster, Russ Taylor of CFCF Montreal, said he felt it was "inconceivable that a beast (Northern Dancer) should even be considered in any category but horse racing."

The balloting was much the same for the sports thrill of the year.

Others mentioned here included:

B.C. Lions' 34-24 Grey Cup football victory over the favored Hamilton Tiger - Cats; Canada's gold medal in fourman bobsled at the winter Olympics in Austria, a feat all the more impressive because there isn't a run in Canada on which to practise; and the pelicans' gold medal at the summer Olympics in Tokyo won by Roger Jackson of Toronto and George Hungerford of Vancouver, a pair not considered strong enough to crack the Vancouver Rowing Club-University of British Columbia eight.

'White Christmas' Was Most Popular Song on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — White Christmas was the most popular song on television Monday night. Andy Williams, his four brothers and sister were singing it on NBC about the same time Bing Crosby was tossing it off on ABC.

Network television is awash with Christmas songs, jolly Santas, jingling bells and cornflake snow flakes.

Any scrooge-like viewers who sought to escape constant reminders of the approaching holiday had a tough time.

Even ABC's futuristic action show, Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," stowed a big cargo of Santa Claus aboard its fabulous submarine.

The story included a bearded cast - away picked up near Christmas Island.

CBS, in an affective documentary, went to a settlement in the impoverished Appalachia area, visited some of the shacks and dropped into the one-room school on the day of its Christmas celebration.

The sight and sound of those youngsters singing Silent Night and a glorious Telephone Hour, NBC, 10-11 — special Christmas music show with Maureen O'Hara.

for everyone, a day of gifts and feasting. For some, it is just another dark and hungry day like the one before and the one before that.

Three years ago ABC made a series of 36 half-hour programs on the Franklin D. Roosevelt as a consultant. Finally, called FDR, it will get on the air. Starting Jan. 8 ABC will push 12 O'Clock High back to 10 p.m. and slip the documentary into the 9:30 spot.

The national Nielsen ratings, released Monday and covering the two-week period ending Dec. 6, found the three U.S. networks still running close in audience popularity. ABC, with a 19.5 rating, was first, followed by CBS with 19.3 and NBC with 18.8.

The three top shows were NBC's Bonanza, CBS' Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C., and ABC's Bewitched, also toppers in the previous report.

Recommended tonight:

The Red Skelton Show, CBS, 8:30-9:30 EST—with Greer Garson, Telephone Hour, NBC, 10-11 — special Christmas music show with Maureen O'Hara.

'Director' Mike Nichols Will Start With Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —What makes you think you can direct a movie?" asked Mike Nichols.

"I don't know that I can," he replied. "The only way to find out is to try it."

So he's trying it, and he's starting at the top. Next March 22 he will begin directing Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? for Warner Brothers.

Nichols has been successful at nearly everything he turned his hand to.

As comedian - actor he enjoyed enormous success with Elaine May, - their ad-libbed satires hailing to the quick of contemporary society. They could have sustained a long career in night clubs, television and on the stage.

Elaine has turned to writing and is working on a play for Gwen Verdon. Nichol is writing His own best has been toward directing, and he has been hailed as the brightest new director on Broadway.

His direction of Bare foot in The Park helped make it one of last season's hits, and the three-character Luv is one of this year's few successes.

Nichols, 33, here for conferences with studio boss Jack L. Warner and producer Ernest Lehman, said he has aimed at 22 he will begin directing Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? for Warner Brothers.

How does he plan to put the lengthy, talky and sometimes bawdy Edward Albee play on the screen?

"That's a secret," he said. "contemporary society. They "I'd rather put my energy into making the picture than talk about it. I think it's better that way."

He did reveal that he plans to spend two weeks of rehearsing before turning a camera; he hopes to shoot in sequence, from the beginning to the end.

—"I think it's easier to do that when you're not concerned with large bodies of troops."

Lions' Coach Lone Survivor

DETROIT (AP) — Coach George Wilson survived Detroit Lions' housecleaning Monday, but the staff of five assistants didn't.

William Clay Ford, the Ford Motor Company executive who purchased the Lions for $6,000,000 last January, said at a press conference that Wilson's contract has been extended "for an indefinite period."

Ford said Wilson and general manager Edwin J. Anderson agreed to fire assistant coaches Aldo Forte, Don Doll, Bob Nussbaumer, Les Bingaman and Sonny Grandelius.

There was speculation that because Ford no longer had confidence in Wilson, and was trying to force his head coach to resign.

"No, I wasn't trying to get George to quit," said Ford. "I think he's a good head coach and that's what I want him to do. I felt three guys should go and he went along with it."

PLAYERS SAID UNHAPPY

There had been earlier reports that some of the Lions' players were unhappy with the coaches and had gone to Ford over Wilson's head.

"The point is that I want coaching and not conversation," said Ford. "To suggest that some complaining player had anything to do with it is ridiculous. I'm not going to have the players running my club.

"I'm very proud of the talent we signed off this year's draft and I'm looking forward to next summer they will not be finished ball-players.

Ford added that Wilson would have a free hand in hiring a new staff.

Big Payoff For Colts, Browns

Weather May Be Bad - But Loot Is Lovely

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Professional football will approach baseball's World Series player shares for the first time Sunday when each winner in the Cleveland-Baltimore game at Cleveland for the National Football League title will pocket more than $8,000. Each loser will get more than $6,000.

In the 1964 World Series, each winning St. Louis Cardinal received $8,822.19 and each losing New York Yankee was paid $5,309.29 after a seven-game series.

The huge capacity of the Cleveland park with its 77,096 seats, plus standing room, means that about 82,000 people will see this game at the stadium.

The Cleveland club stopped taking regular ticket orders Saturday when a sellout was assured. It is expected gross receipts from ticket sales will reach $635,000.

The big money comes from television. The Columbia Broadcasting System which will carry the game is 98.1 per cent of the nation—with the Cleveland area blacked out—has paid $1,800,000 for the rights. Of this money, $900,000 goes into the player pension fund, $180,000 to the league office and the remaining $720,000 into game receipts.

BIG SPLIT

Adding ticket sales the actual game receipts will come to $1,300,000 of which 70 per cent goes to the players. Of the top of the players' share comes $100,000 to the second - place team and $75,000 to the third-place clubs. That should leave about $725,000 for the Browns and this to be split 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser.

How large the individual shares will be depends on the club's voting. With a 40-man player limit and some injured men and taxi squad players to receive consideration, each it could have more than 50 shares.

The pro football record for player shares was set last year at Chicago when each Chicago Bear got $5,890.77 and each New York Giant $4,218.15.

Back in the old days of the first playoff in 1933, each winning Bear received $210.34 and each losing Giant $140.22.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

In comprehensive clinical tests after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a frequent cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with applicator). Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

May Change Date Of B.E. Games

MONTREAL (CP)—The 1966 British Empire Games may be held later in August of that year than was originally scheduled.

LL-Col. Jack Davies, president of the British Empire and Commonwealth Games Association of Canada said Saturday the period set aside for the games, slated to take place in Kingston, Jamaica, may be put back from the original dates of Aug. 4-13.

David gave no reasons for the possible change which he mentioned during a meeting of Canadian officials called to lay plans for this country's participation in the event.

A plea for the inclusion of canoeing in the games was met with an absolutezero. This sport might not win inclusion in the games' optional events until 1970.

There will be a full eight-player badminton team representing Canada at the first time at the games. The association's budget for the games was estimated at $30,000.

Swimming and diving will have 19 Canadian competitors, track and field 36, weightlifting seven and wrestling eight.

Boxing was allotted eight competitors, cycling six, fencing nine and shooting eight.

Ann Landers

Can Find Some Dingbats In All Professions

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I agree with you about 95 per cent of the time. Today I feel the need to set you straight.

Your statement that doctors are immune to the charms of attractive women patients is ridiculous. If this were true no physician would be able to find a woman sexually attractive. And few physicians would ever be married.

I speak as an attorney who has maintained an active practice for 20 years. I've heard hundreds of complaints about physicians from women who have been subjected to questionable behavior and comments during physical examinations.

ANN LANDERS

I believe that most doctors behave themselves in the office but many do become involved with female patients. I know this is true because my father and two brothers who are doctors have discussed it quite openly for years. Do you dare print this? — BARE FACTS.

DEAR B.F. — Any physician who could become sexually aroused by the sight of a female patient on his examining table is too unbalanced to be practicing medicine. And if he survived even for a few years it would add up to a minor miracle.

Since there are thousands of physicians in this country, one must expect a few dingbats. Every field has them. I've heard some pretty wild stories about milkmen, postmen, plumbers and TV repairmen. Some stories are undoubtedly true, but most of the lurid tales are products of an overworked imagination.

I would not say physicians are better behaved than lawyers, engineers or business executives, but I will say that romantic involvements do not start on the examination tables.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My best friend who has lived next door to me all my life is going to have a baby. She is 16. The boy who is responsible denied everything, left town and joined the Navy.

The baby isn't due for four months but everybody in town knows about it. She has decided to stay home and have the baby in hopes that the boy will come back and marry her.

I am planning an all-hen party for my 16th birthday next month. This girl has been invited to every party I've ever given. I don't feel it would be fair to leave her out now just because she is in trouble.

My mother says the girl's reputation is already ruined and now I must think about mine. We have been arguing for four days and I'm out of things to say. Am I wrong about this or is my mother wrong? — LOYAL LOUISE.

DEAR LOUISE — If this were a boy-girl party I'd side with your mother. Since it's a hen party I'm with you.

Your friendship and kindness can mean a great deal to the girl at this difficult time in her life. Offer it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are two high school students who want to know what you think of an English teacher who:

(1) Spits on during class.

(2) Uses embarrassing language in the presence of his pupils.

(3) Criticizes other faculty members.

Must we respect him because he is older, and a teacher? We await your answer. — BLACKBERRIES.

DEAR BLACKBERRIES —

(1) It's rude to eat or drink in the presence of others if you cannot ask them to join you.

(2) I don't know what you consider "unbecoming" language.

(3) Criticism of other faculty members to students is in bad taste.

I suggest a committee of 5 or 6 students present your complaints to the principal — assuming, of course, you are willing to repeat the charges in the presence of the teacher.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Many Projects Planned by IODE Chapter

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter IODE held their regular meeting on Thursday evening in the Parish Hall with Mrs. W. A. Kingston, Regent, presiding.

Thirty-seven members were present. Mrs. F. Fisher reported plans had been completed for the Christmas band concert sponsored by Bemersyde Chapter IODE in the high school auditorium on Sunday evening.

Mrs. J. Trimble arranged for Christmas boxes to be packed and delivered to patients in the nursing homes.

In giving the treasurer's report Mrs. D. Bennett said IODE calendars had been ordered but were reported out of stock and would not be available.

A number of school books donated from a previous book store were given to the Campbellford Rotary Club by the Chapter as it was felt the Rotary had more suitable places in which to distribute them. The Rotary Club had previously sent books to Nigeria.

The Campbellford High School accepted the scholarships offered to Grade 9 and Grade 10 from the Chapter for 1965.

Services at home and abroad convener Mrs. J. Trimble reported having forwarded a considerable amount of knitted articles to headquarters; also some dicussion took place concerning disposal of pocket edition books to the armed services.

A detailed account of the amount of money being expended in the centennial grants and various projects to which it will be applied was given by world affairs convener Mrs. A. Whitefield. A large museum of Ontario hitory will be built in Toronto.

Educational secretary Mrs. E. Cryderman reported that $15 donated by Bemersyde Chapter to Merryvale School had been spent for suitable equipment for the school chosen by the teacher, Mrs. W. Hoey in company with Mrs. Cryderman. Mrs. Cryderman also reported having received a letter from the adopted school principal in Jamaica. As this is a secondary technical agricultural school, subscriptions to two Canadian farm magazines will be given to the school in Jamaica.

Capt. Charles Jeffs of the Canadian armed forces is expected in Campbellford at the Christmas season and his opinion will be solicited as to the best place to send the books.

A needy family will be helped with a Christmas hamper of food, clothes and toys.

A committee was formed to make plans for the annual dinner to be held by the Chapter in February.

Mrs. Flora Malcolm read the minutes of an old meeting of October 1937 which formed the basis of interesting comparison. Christmas refreshments were served by group three.

School for Retarded Holds Yule Party

CAMPBELLFORD — Merryvale School for Retarded Children held their annual Christmas party on Friday afternoon at the school.

The parents, volunteer helpers and association members were guests, also present were older retarded children from the House of Happiness.

Under the direction of the teacher, Mrs. William Hoey the children with Mrs. Hoey at the piano played the old familiar Christmas music on their rhythm band and sang the Christmas carols, with the favorite of the children being "Silent Night".

Cake and cookies were served later with volunteer helpers assisting.

The school room was brightly decorated with greens and pictures made in part by the children. One pupil about 12 years of age arranged the decorations of green sprigs and boughs and Mrs. Hoey says demanded perfection in the symmetry of the arranging. This is a characteristic of this particular pupil which Mrs. Hoey has repeatedly observed and which she believes could be developed into interior decorating ability in of course a limited sphere. Other pupils Mrs. Hoey observes have also ability along particular lines, some of the boys in wood work, assisted generously in the hearter sawing and other phases of the construction by caretaker Mr. Wm. Nicolas. Some of these wood pieces, such as kindergarten table, window boxes have been made by the pupils and sold. One of the girls is a fair typist.

Mrs. Hoey welcomes visitors to the Merryvale School. Some gifts were exchanged at the close of the party Mrs. E. A. Toombs invited those present to the Christmas party at the "House of Happiness" on December 22.

Churches Hold Special Services

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford churches held services appropriate to the season with special music and candlelight services.

In Christ Church, Anglican, the morning service was taken by the junior choir under direction of Mrs. A. Whitfield, and young readers, David Whitfield, Ann Robertson and Joan Cubitt, with the congregation joining in the hymns. At the evening candelight services the nine Scripture readings were taken by the men of the congregation. On Christmas eve the service will be held for the children at 7.30 p.m. with a film strip and carols at 11.00 p.m. Holy Communion and a sermon.

Music in St. Andrew's Presbyterian was under the direction of Mr. Francis DeCarroll. Rev. E. A. Toombs chose as a text for his discourse, "The Hope of the World."

The evening candlelight service in St. Andrew's was a choral service with soloists Mr. Francis DeCarroll, Mrs. A. Linton and a duet by Misses Sandra MacMullen and Jane Rutherford with both junior and senior choirs contributing special numbers.

Campbellford Baptist church junior and senior choirs presented a cantata to a large congregation. Soloists for the cantata were Miss Beryl Nicholas, Mrs. R. Forde with a trio, the Misses V. Lloyd, L. Clarke, C. Blair. The music was under the direction of pianist Mrs. James Richardson, narration was read by the pastor, Mr. B. J. Vanderveen.

In St. John's United special music was under direction of Mr. J. Cornwell, ARTC, with Mr. Don Bennett at the organ.

Vesper carol and candelight service was held in St. John's Sunday afternoon with Dr. Smith using as subject for his discourse "Lighted Lamps."

The theme in all services appeared to be the longing for peace is real, no one questions the sacrifice, no one doubts the great sense of urgency that now accompanies it. Peace begins with the individual, between various classes and interests in society, the hope of the world is that peace between nations is more than a dream.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Party

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Senior Citizens held their annual Christmas party at the Legion Hall on Wednesday evening, December 18 when almost 116 were in attendance.

This is a complimentary dinner given by the club to all its members. Mr. Harry Cassidy presided. Guests at the head table were: Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy, Mr. and Mrs. William Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Flossie Scott, Mrs. K. Forestell, Mr. E. Craighead, Mr and Mrs. Gillibrand, Dr. D. M. Smith and Mrs. M. Tanner.

Councillor elect Mr. A. Brown and Mrs. Brown were present and Mr. Brown spoke briefly wishing the club continued success. Mrs. Tanner spoke briefly.

Following the turkey dinner president H. Cassidy invited the guests to the club rooms of the Senior Citizens where they enjoyed music, dancing and cards. A local orchestra "The Night Raiders" contributed an evening of music and song.

The Campbellford Senior Citizens Club has been spoken of as one of the outstanding such organizations in the area. The bingo and other activities contribute sufficient funds for bus trips in the summer, trips to C.N.E. and Royal Winter Fair and recently to the Ice Capades in Toronto; also the annual Christmas dinner.

President H. Cassidy and Mrs. Cassidy and the club members are to be congratulated on the fine co-operative spirit displayed.

Rusk Urges Saigon Factions To Settle Issues

Nine Senior Generals Retired by New Govt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk urged feuding factions in Saigon today to set aside personal considerations and what he called lesser issues in the interest of getting on with the war against Communist guerrillas.

Rusk did not name any particular South Vietnamese leader but his remarks at a press conference came amid strong U.S. displeasure over moves by Saigon generals to purge the civilian leadership.

With President Johnson's approval, the state department Tuesday night issued an unusually tough statement warning Vietnamese generals that American support is based on the existence of a Saigon government of national unity without improper interference from any group."

The statement also gave full backing to U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, whose efforts to undo Sunday's military purge of the civilian regime is came under attack from Vietnamese Commander Lt. - Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

OPPOSES INTERFERENCE

"A duly constituted government exercising full power on the basis of national unity and without improper interference from any group," the statement said, "is the essential condition for the successful prosecution of the effort to defeat the Viet Cong and is the basis for U.S. support for that effort."

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey declined to say whether the strong U.S. wording amounted to an ultimatum threatening an end to large-scale U.S. aid if the military do not keep hands off the legitimate government.

Other U.S. authorities took a dim view of Tuesday's broadcast by Khanh, who as premier had had strong support from the U.S. government and from Taylor earlier this year. U.S. officials read his criticism as aimed pointedly at Taylor and the United States.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Weather associated with a front which should be clear across the northern United States and the Great Lakes is expected to continue for the next day or two. However, a storm centre which is expected to move along the track of the weather front and cross the Great Lakes tonight will produce colder weather and snow Wednesday to Friday near the lower lakes.

SAIGON (Reuters) — Nine senior South Vietnamese generals have been compulsorily retired by Chief of State Phan Khac Sun at the insistence of a group of young generals known as the "Young Turks," informed sources said today.

They included Lt.-Gen. Tran Van Minh, former chief of state, and three other generals who with him led the coup against the late president Ngo Dinh Diem a year ago.

The "Young Turks" — commanders of key fighting units—three days ago dissolved the high national council, the civilian provisional legislature. They also purged dissident politicians and took control of the armed forces.

The moves were coupled, with a statement by Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, former chief of state.

Tuesday Khanh broadcast "warning of the plot" which made it clear the South Vietnamese military fully intended to take the route of a new government despite strong American pressure to restore full authority to the civilian government.

The three generals retired with Minh have been charged with planning to hand over South Viet Nam to a neutralist regime.

The "Young Turks" had pressed for the retirement of the nine generals but were blocked by the High National Council, now dissolved.

AID HELD UP?

Planned increases of U.S. aid to South Viet Nam are reliably reported to have been suspended until the armed forces change their stabil.

Khanh and some other leaders of Sunday's group are among the strongest advocates of extending the war outside Viet Nam with increased American backing.

Khanh specifically reserved the right of the armed forces to step in over the civilian government as an "intermediary" whenever disputes or differences need to be settled.

The U.S. has clearly stated that such a situation is unacceptable because the civilian government would then have no real authority.

Khanh avoided mentioning the U.S., but his broadcast had the strong and unmistakeable anti-American flavor.

The exact role and position of Khanh remained unclear today, amid conflicting reports over whether he was being squeezed out of the picture or was the prime mover behind Sunday's coup.

Two Mystery Men Tried to Peddle Influence in Rivard Drug Case

New Plane Will Carry 600 Troops

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force, heading into the new year with bright prospects for a new giant plane that could carry 600 troops more than 6,000 miles without refuelling, will get a new commander Feb. 1.

Emerging from a meeting with President Johnson in Texas Tuesday, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara announced:

—Gen. John McConnell, 56, will become the new chief of staff of the air force when Gen. Curtis Lemay retires Feb. 1.

—The air force proposal for a start on blueprinting a plane so enormous as to dwarf the largest now flying has been approved by McNamara and Johnson.

Funds for beginning development of the C-5A will be included in the new military budget. Just to decide on the exact design, then design it, test it and build some experimental models will cost about $750,000,000; to build 58 such planes in a production program would cost about $1,000,000,000, in addition to the development.

OTTAWA (CP) — Two mysterious persons identified only as "Monsieur X" and "Masson" were said Tuesday at the Dorion inquiry to have been trying to peddle non - existent influence in the Rivard case.

Raymond Daoust, lawyer for Lucien Rivard, said these two persons were trying to get money out of Mrs. Rivard with claims they could exercise influence over Pierre Lamontagne.

Mr. Lamontagne has testified that he was offered a $20,000 bribe by a federal ministerial aide and put under political pressure for two months to agree to bail for Rivard, wanted in the U.S. for smuggling narcotics for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne, a Montreal lawyer, is acting for the U.S. government in trying to get Rivard, extradited to the U.S. to face the dope smuggling charges in Laredo, Tex.

Mr. Daoust, 41, testified before Chief Justice Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court about a series of telephone conversations he had the evening of July 20, six days after the alleged bribe offer by Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

Two of these calls were with Mrs. Rivard and Eddie Lechasseur, another client of Mr. Daoust's. Mr. Daoust said he was in his office and they were at the Chez Maxime motel north of Montreal.

Two other calls were with Mr. Lamontagne at Chicoutimi, Que., and still another with a certain Masson at Hull, Que.

Mr. Daoust said Mrs. Rivard and Lechasseur told him they had a third person with them— "Monsieur X" — who claimed he had influence over Mr. Lamontagne.

He said he had told Mrs. Rivard that she was being led down the garden path and that the third person was an imposter.

At the request of Mrs. Rivard, he had telephoned Masson and found that he, too, was telling lies.

Mr. Daoust said both "Monsieur X" and Masson claimed to have seen Mr. Lamontagne in Ottawa July 20, but he knew Mr. Lamontagne was in Chicoutimi because he had telephoned him there.

A Guy Masson, otherwise unidentified, is scheduled to testify before the inquiry.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, referred to an RCMP report of a police interview with Mr. Daoust Sept. 8 which quoted Mr. Daoust as saying he knew the type of individuals involved in the case.

He asked whether Mr. Daoust had been referring to Masson, Rivard and Lechasseur or to others.

Mr. Daoust said he was referring to a type and to no one in particular.

Francois Chapados, counsel for the Guy Masson scheduled to testify, said Mr. Drouin was describing Masson and others as criminals and identified the person who Mr. Daoust had called as Guy Masson.

Roland Stein, counsel for Mr. Daoust, said his client had never mentioned a "Guy Masson" but only "Masson."

Paul Jolin, counsel for the New Democratic Party, quoted the RCMP report as saying Mr. Daoust had told the police that he was sure that if $10,000 or $20,000 had been paid in the case it could be returned.

Mr. Daoust said that perhaps he had made a joke without thinking.

He said the interview with

Open Door For Balcer Says Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — "The door is always open," Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday, three days after his Quebec lieutenant, Leon Balcer, said he may walk out of the Conservative party to sit in the Commons as an independent.

But Mr. Diefenbaker made it clear this was not an unconditional invitation for a reconciliation. "Mr. Balcer's stand cannot be ascribed to me," he said.

Since Mr. Balcer, former Conservative transport minister, said he is "very seriously considering" the possibility of leaving the party, other members of the party's Quebec wing have been expressing widely-differing viewpoints on what they might do.

There were pretty firm indications Tuesday night that the mid-January caucus of the 10 Quebec Conservative members of the Commons will not result in a mass walkout from the party.

While Paul Martineau (Pontiac - Temiscamingue) said he would "take my lead, assess my position and make my decision" in the light of Mr. Balcer's move, Louis - Joseph

Raging Rivers Force Evacuation Of Whole Towns

Six Die, Three Missing; Quake Hits San Diego

EUREKA, Calif. (AP)—Torrential rains, whipped along on gale force winds, continued to sweep across four Pacific Northwest states today, imperilling scores of cities and towns and causing millions of dollars of damage. The earthquake caused panic, but minor damage, in San Diego, Calif.

Six persons have died and three rescuers are missing in the two-day storm that forced at least 5,000 persons to flee before the raging waters of a dozen flood - swollen mountain rivers.

A helicopter with three U.S. coast guardsmen aboard is missing after rescuing 12 persons off an island in California's Eel River.

A pivotal decision to evacuate the 11,000 residents of Yuba City, Calif. was made today by the city - county board of supervisors. The order to evacuate will be given if and when the Feather reaches 77 feet, supervisors said.

The river was expected to reach 79 feet this afternoon, earlier reports said. The river is backed up behind a levee. In the disastrous 1955 northern California flood, 38 persons died in the Yuba, Sutter - Marysville area when the levee washed out as the river reached 82½ feet, officials said.

Federal, state and local disaster units worked through the night to 6 o'clock hour wind to complete evacuation of whole towns as the storm raged. The weather bureau predicted no letup today.

Another storm, about 700 miles off the coast, was expected to bring more rain by Christmas, the weather bureau said.

RE DISASTER AREAS

California's Governor Edmund Brown at midday declared four northwestern counties disaster areas and appealed for federal assistance. Five other hard-hit northern counties sent urgent pleas to the state for similar help.

In Oregon, Governor Mark Hatfield issued the disaster call and ordered 1,000 National Guard to help workmen sandbag riverfronts in Portland. Reno as the Truckee River's flood waters spilled into the heart of town.

Idaho's national guardsmen were put on emergency duty by Governor Robert Smith, and 50 men were sent to the beleaguered town of Bancroft in the southern part of the state.

Natural disasters seemed the order of the day. San Diego

Cuban Exiles Charged

By BERNIE GOULD

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Cubans, identified as officials of the anti - Castro exile group responsible for the explosion on Cubah freighter in Montreal last summer, have been charged with taking part in the Dec. 11 bazooka shot at the United Nations Building.

They were quoted as saying they purposely missed the 38-storey East River skyscraper; that their motive was to take newspaper headlines from Ernesto (Che) Guevara, Cuban minister of industry, who was speaking to the UN General Assembly at the time.

Guevara in the No. 2 man in the Communist regime of Premier Fidel Castro.

The three Cubans were booked Tuesday night in Queens, from where the rocket was fired.

The missile from the wartime German - made rocket launcher exploded in a tugboat and exploded in the river about 100 yards from the UN secretariat building on Manhattan shore. No one was hurt.

BOUGHT FOR $25

Stanley Ross, editor of El Tiempo, a Spanish - language weekly newspaper here, said the three men told him before their arrests that they had purchased a de-activated bazooka for $25 from a war surplus store in Manhattan and fashioned a firing pin out of an ignition switch.

Ross said the men told him they could have hit the UN headquarters but purposely didn't.

Ross said his reporters found out who the perpetrators were and he urged the three to surrender. They did, at a time phoning just that when police picked them up, he said.

Ross identified them as members of the Cuban nationalist movement, an anti - Castro organization based in Miami.

The Cubans were booked as Pablo Carlos Perez, 31, a telephone repairman from the Bronx and brothers Ignacio Nuvo, 26, also a telephone repairman, and Guillermo Novo, 25, a doorman from North Bergen, N.J.

Country-Wide Drive to Cut Down Christmas Traffic Accidents Made

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A four-column newspaper announcement by Ontario Transport Minister Irwin Haskett — understands advertisement for gin, beside one for rye whisky and another for scotch — warns Canada motorists about the penalties for drinking drivers.

In Edmonton, teams of safety council members have been button - holing downtown shoppers and handing out leaflets and pamphlets urging safety during the holiday season.

Quebec police have been issuing bilingual warnings in public radio announcements against mixing intoxicants and motoring.

In Vancouver, motorists are being stopped at roadblocks and warned about safety factors—and impaired drivers.

The Manitoba government published an open letter to business managers urging them to arrange office parties so the consumption of drinks will be reduced.

Similar measures form part of a country - wide drive to cut down Christmas traffic accidents in Canada every year by the Canadian Press shows.

In many places, special squads of police have been out for more than a week in a drive against traffic violations that they hope will serve to deter reckless or drunken driving at Christmas and New Year's.

The safety drive is under way in the face of a prediction by the Canadian Highway Safety Council that 76 persons will be killed in traffic accidents in Canada during the Christmas and New Year's holiday weekends.

The toll for the 96 - hour Christmas weekend, from noon Tuesday to midnight Sunday, may reach 90, the council says. In 1963, 72 persons were killed in a 30-hour Christmas holiday period.

The annual drive against traffic violations at New Year's will be made this holiday the safest of all national holiday weekends in Canada, the council says. Even so, at least 220 Canadians will die in traffic during the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. New Year's eve to midnight Sunday, the council predicts.

Under the slogan "stay alive for '65," the Toronto safety drive has led to scores of charges against motorists—up to 600 in a single night the week before Christmas.

Most urban centres report accidents and traffic deaths up over last year.

Reds Endeavor to Outflank Europe by Way of Africa

LONDON (AP) — Algeria, China and the United Arab Republic have flown considerable quantities of arms and munitions to The Congo rebels, Lord Walston, a government minister, told the House of Lords Tuesday.

The Marquess of Salisbury, a former Conservative colonial minister, said this was part of an "eastern strategy" of outflanking Europe through Africa.

Walston, undersecretary for foreign affairs, said the arms sent to the Congolese rebels were mainly of Russian origin. The Chinese also have supplied the rebels, according to information reaching the British government.

Salisbury said: "The dams have been broken and the full surge of the eastern floodwaters are flowing over and submerging vast tracts of central Africa. Zanzibar has gone, great areas of the Congo are gone.

"How confident can we be that the forces friendly to the West in that country (The Congo) will prevail? How confident can we be about the future development in Tanganyika (now combined with Zanzibar in a republic called Tanzania), Kenya and Ghana and other new states of Africa?"

Walston and Salisbury spoke in a foreign affairs debate.

Almost All of Canada Will Have A White Christmas Is Prediction

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Almost all of Canada will have a white Christmas this year as snow continues to fall on much of the country and prognosticators predict cold weather to keep it on the ground.

Every Vancouver, usually plagued by rain at this time of year, has been hit by a snowstorm which plugged many roads in the southern section of the province. The city has already received more than $100,000 snow removal budget.

On the East Coast, the outlook was much the same. A storm which dumped two feet of snow on Sydney and varying amounts on New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, buffeted Newfoundland, with about a foot of snow and winds up to 90 miles an hour.

A snowstorm which swept through western Quebec and eastern Ontario Tuesday resulted in a car-truck collision which claimed the lives of the two persons riding in the car in LaSalle, a suburb of Montreal.

The same storm dropped about 1½ inches of snow on Ottawa Tuesday morning and left between two and four inches in Montreal.

Every section of Canada not hit by storms was south-central Ontario. Mild temperatures, ranging up to 40 degrees in Toronto, were predicted for today and some light drizzle in the morning.

In Northern Ontario, however, temperatures should remain below the freezing mark all day and intermittent snow was predicted.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan will have more snow today but forecasts are that temperatures, which have been below zero for several days, are expected to moderate to 10 above in Winnipeg and zero in Regina. Another cold snap is expected to hit just in time for Christmas Day outings.

Alberta will get more snow as the Vancouver storm crosses the Rockies and heads out across the Prairies. A cold snap which has already brought the lows of most cattle in the northern part of the province will continue.

The Pacific storm moved into southern and central Alberta Tuesday night, dumping five inches of snow on Lethbridge in 12 hours, three inches in Calgary and Medicine Hat and 2½ inches in Edmonton. It was expected to hit Saskatchewan overnight or early today.

Nine men stranded on Manna Island, 300 miles north of Vancouver, were rescued Tuesday from a construction project by an RCAF helicopter. The men were stranded in the storm which swept the west coast province in the weekend and the rough weather forced a Hillan plane back from an attempted rescue Monday.

200 Teachers Are Expected For Summer Course Here

A summer course in education will be held this summer at the Harry J. Clarke Public School in Belleville with approximately 200 teachers expected to take advantage of the classes to increase their professional training.

Schools superintendent L. A. Kulls told public school board members at their December meeting this week that arrangements for the five weeks summer course are nearing completion. Planning for the course has been underway since the early fall of 1963.

All public school board members were in attendance for the final meeting of the year, while trustees-elect George Rutledge, Walter Elliott and Gerald Joyce also attended on the invitation of board chairman F. P. Clarke.

CHAIRMAN HONOR, SITE

City planning director John Bosvik spoke to the board regarding plans for a roadway from Avondale and Wright Avenues through to Palmer Road.

The effect of this planning could result in a re-location of the school site now owned by the public school board. The board approved a report of the property committee recommending collaboration of the board with city officials on the planning changes.

A major consideration is immediate access of children to the Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school and later problems that would arise for high school pupils when a fourth high school is built in the West Belleville area.

Approval was also given for a minor realignment of the site of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School if this is required in plans for a roadway.

ADDITION APPROVED

The Ontario Department of Education and the Ontario Fire Marshall's Department have approved sketch plans for the proposed addition to the Park Dale school and the board will approach council for financing approval.

The school project is already included in the city's capital works program for 1965 and now awaits formal action by city council.

Department grants for city construction this year will amount to $815,962 according to the board finance committee. This amount is $16,000 more than was placed in the estimates for the year.

Major items in the over-all amount are $546,606 in grants based on last year's operating costs, $184,177 in equalization grants to take into account re-assessment; a $33,614 grant in recognition of costs arising out of annexation, and $37,074 to assist in construction costs.

2,614 ENROLLED

School enrolment at the end of November stood at 5,014 with attendance efficiency for the month being 96.06 per cent. This attendance figure was stated to be very good for the season of the year.

Eight staff refirements effective at the end of December were recognized by the board with seven of the eight teachers having been replaced at the time of this week's meeting.

Teachers retiring with their respective schools are as follows:

Mrs. Lois Beich, Prince of Wales School, replaced by Mrs. Ann Lemmon; Mrs. Irene Burrill, Queen Elizabeth School, replaced by Mrs. Pat Coughlan; Mrs. Beatrice Smith, Park Dale School, replaced by Mrs. Lynne Allen; Mrs. Joan Cordell, Queen Elizabeth School, replaced by Mrs. Ann Crabb; Mrs. Carol Jeffs, Park Dale School, replaced by Mrs. Margaret Johnson; Mrs. Marilyn Rowe, Sir Winston Churchill School, replaced by Mrs. Lynda McDonald; Mrs. Marguerite Sawatsky, Queen Elizabeth School, replaced by Mrs. Maria Jonas; Mrs. Douglas Mather, Queen Mary School.

Mr. Mac Smith, member of the public school board for many years, was elected as the public schools representative on the Bay of Quinte High School Board.

17 BELLEVILLE CUBS

17th Belleville Cubs held their annual Christmas party at Eastminster United Church on Thursday, Dec. 17th. A process tal evening enjoyed with some 90 Cubs present and a good turnout of parents in attendance.

Akela Fraser opened the meeting by presenting a recital "What Makes a Cub" followed by a sing-song of Christmas songs. The Cubs presented toys that they had made or repaired for needy children to Mr. Bradley who accepted them on behalf of the Kiwanis Club. Slides of the trip which the 17th Belleville Scouts made through Algonquin Park during the summer were shown by former Scouter Keith Gamme.

Miss Cochrane then led the Cubs in the singing of Christmas carols thus closing out the evening's entertainment. The Cub mothers served a very enjoyable lunch for which they were sincerely thanked by Akela Rilee.

Letter Boxes Said Too Close To Corners

Postal letter boxes positioned on street corners are creating something of a traffic hazard in the city, members of city council agreed at this week.

Alderman Donald Williams said he had received many complaints from residents that the postal boxes were placed too close to the corners with result that it obstructed motorists' view.

Mayor Jack Ellis told the alderman the matter was strictly the problem of the federal post office department.

The alderman said he realized this but suggested the department might take the hint and do something about the boxes.

Special Bylaw Required by City Council

City ratepayers at the early December municipal election voted approximately three to two for fluoridation of city water supplies, but it will cost approximately $80,000 for building and equipment before it is brought into effect.

The figure was the figure suggested today by E. L. Burnham, manager of the city public utilities commission. A special by-law will have to be passed by city council.

Salvation Army Head Speaks To Kiwanians

The purpose of music during Salvation Army services was explained to Kiwanis members during a Christmas address by Brigadier Frederick Bernat, guest speaker, at their Tuesday meeting.

Anyone, even a child, can understand the emotions and feelings behind music. At Christ's birth angels sang and the shepherds understood.

"Let worship be simple and humble like unto that first visitor's night," he went on to say, "and we will find joy in worshipping at the Saviour's feet."

Gross sales totalling $10,000 were made by the Kiwanis Sheltered Workshop in 1964, Alexander Fedirka, workshop manager, told the members, while on a visit to Toronto John Baldwin, was moved to Toronto where he is taking a commercial course.

Both the shop workmen and the Salvation Army band were guests at the meeting.

A number of Christmas hymns were played by bandsmen Gordon Granger, Donald Bernat, Ted Lessele, Robert Granger, Al Austin and Leslie Price.

Primary Section Supervisor Plans to Retire

Mrs. Wanda Sine, staff member of the Bellville Public Schools Board since 1950 and supervisor of the primary department since 1960, will retire from teaching at the end of the school term in June, 1965.

The school board at its December meeting accepted the resignation with regret and on behalf of the children and teachers, expressed its debt to Mrs. Sine for her contribution during 14 years of service.

Mrs. Sine commenced teaching in Belleville at the Queen Alexandra School in September, 1950, and from the first gave leadership in the audio-visual program of the schools.

Robarts Sorry To See Rift In PC Party

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Tuesday a rift between the Conservative party and Quebec wing could have serious consequences for Canada.

Acknowledging that such a split exists, the Conservative premier told a press conference it is a matter of great concern to him.

Mr. Robarts said he is disappointed at statements by an old friend, Leon Balcer, leader of the Quebec wing of the party that he might leave the Conservatives and sit in the House of Commons as an independent.

"I've known him (Mr. Balcer) for many years," the premier said. "We were YPCs—Young Progressive Conservatives—together.

"Im very disappointed at being a rift in our party nationally. I think this can have very serious effects on our country and on the Conservative it's a matter of great concern to me."

WILL FLY FLAG

Mr. Robarts said Ontario naturally will fly the new maple leaf flag in as much as it had been accepted by Parliament. Ontario was considering "cutting its own emblem. However, he had no comment on whether it might be the Red Ensign.

Increase Intake Capacity At City Filtration Plant

Low bay water levels are affecting the intake capacity at the city water filtration plant, but the Belleville Utilities Commission is taking no chances on shortages capacity for next summer.

Top intake capacity at the Bayview intake pumping equipment is in the neighborhood of eight million gallons daily, but a new pump now on order and in the intake well will increase this to more than 10 million gallons.

Cost of the new pump will be about $12,500 with installation expected some time in February.

Mr. Burnham emphasized that the new water intake capacity should not be confused with the actual distribution of filtered water through city mains.

STORAGE TANK USED

During summer periods water use runs as much as seven and a half million gallons a day with brief periods running at a rate of as much as nine million gallons per day.

The difference is made up by the storage capacity of the elevated tank on the East Hill.

Decision to install the additional new pumping equipment was made to ensure against a possible prolonged peak usage next summer during the lawn watering season.

With normal bay levels the present raw water pumping capacity would be sufficient but as the bay level drops the pumping capacity also drops.

The new pump will be installed in the present raw water well inside the plant building. Raw water is drawn through a 30 inch pipe extending 1,430 feet out into the bay. The raw water passes through micro strainers which take out most of the algae and then goes through the filtration beds.

General Manager Food Firm Freed on Extortion Charge

CHATHAM (CP) — Gordon William McIllistrum, 49, of Tecumseh, was acquitted Tuesday by a county court jury of a charge of extortion.

McIllistrum had been charged with obtaining $2,200 in cash and a receipt cancelling $1,800 debt from Orrill Van De Wynckel, co-owner of Merlin Frozen Foods Limited, by promising to return a number of valuable records of the company, including $100,000 in postdated cheques, he and his boys had been the company's general manager.

Van De Wynckel testified he received a telephone call after a June 30 break-in at his home by McIllistrum's son, Gary, a friend of McIllistrum. The caller told him that if he settled McIllistrum's claim against the company, the missing documents and cheques would be returned.

Mr. Van De Wynckel said he later spoke to McIllistrum on this telephone and, soon afterwards, gave him $2,200 in cash as well as a receipt for $1,800 debt. McIllistrum said he got $1,800 from the company in food supplies and travelling expenses while serving as general manager.

The caller then phoned Van De Wynckel and told him the missing property could be found in a Toronto alley. Police recovered them in Toronto two days later.

FIRED OVER EXPENSES

Van De Wynckel said he had fired McIllistrum in February for charging $200 against the company's account as expenses after being told not to do so. Company records produced at the trial showed the amount to be only $40.

McIllistrum told the court he worked 100 hours a week as manager of the company for three years, and helped bring it out of debt. He said the owners, Merlin Foods Inc., are in business and did not pay him overtime or bonuses.

He said he had mentioned to friends that he had got a bad deal with the firm but said he did not know anything about the robbery before it took place.

However, when he learned some friends had broken into the plant, he said he decided to take advantage of the opportunity to get the money he felt was coming to him.

David Humphrey of Toronto, McIllistrum's lawyer, said that the $2,200 plus $1,800 charged to the company was a legitimate claim.

"If the accused had wanted $10,000, he probably could have gotten it," Mr. Humphrey said.

Crown Attorney Blake Ward said McIllistrum was the brains behind the fraud and breaking and contended that he had been well treated by his employers.

Half of Money Taken in Robbery Found

OTTERVILLE, Ont. (CP) — More than half the stolen cash of $6,000 taken in a bank robbery here Sept. 18 has been found by three boys who found the loot and returned to the bank.

Provincial Police Supt. A. E. Ayers said Wednesday the three boys found about $3,900 in a hollow tree in a swamp near Ingersoll, Ont. The wrapped and serial numbers indicate it was the money taken in the Royal Bank of Canada branch.

The swamp, about eight miles southeast of Wood Creek, is where Ernest Caron of Montreal was captured almost two days after the bank was robbed. He later pleaded guilty to the robbery and was sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary.

W. J. Norrie of Ingersoll said his sons Robert, 18, and David, 13, James Fingarson, 18, and Roger Anstee, 16, found the money.

Sadly missed by son and daughter.

Sadly, in the same old way
To hear your voice, see your smile,
To feel your hand in mine awhile,
So you, who have a father,
Love him dear,
For you never know the heartache
Year after year.

Lovingly remembered by son, Fred, daughter-in-law Gladys and grandchildren.

KING — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frederick King, who passed away December 23, 1957.

He's gone a year and a little more,
His memory will never grow old.
He endured his share of pain and sorrow,
He smiled his heart of pure gold.
He needed a new star in heaven,
So beautiful, bright and fair.
So out of this old world of sorrow,
God took him to answer a prayer.
— mine.

Sadly missed and remembered by Mona, Shirley, Larry, Timothy and Sonny Lee.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Hamilton's Chiropractic Service, Dr. Briggs, Dr. Williamson, Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Hall, the nurses and staff of first floor Bridge, for the great care I received while in Belleville General Hospital following my accident of October 15th. Also Rev. Chapel for the lovely flowers, all who sent cards, friends and personal calls, the friends and neighbors who did all the Fall blowing, or who offered help in any other way. Also all who prayed for my recovery. A special thank you to all. God answered prayer.

Everett Lake.

DOLLS AND TOYS for Christmas delivery to needy boys and girls in the Belleville area are seen piled ceiling high at the Moira Street firehall. Today and tomorrow firemen will deliver over 300 dolls, as many hockey sticks and 400 pounds of candies and nuts.

CITY FIREMEN Ralph Thompson, Reg Christopher and Gene McGrath, ready toys and bags of candy for Christmas distribution to kiddies of needy families.

600 Kiddies to Receive Toys, Candy From Santa, Being Delivered by Firemen

With a big assist from the Belleville Kiwanis Club members and from various local organizations and other volunteers, the Belleville Fire Department again this year is playing Santa Claus for more than 600 underprivileged kiddies in Belleville and immediate area.

The project has been underway for weeks at the Kiwanis Centre and at the firehall and today and tomorrow firemen are conducting "Operation Distribution".

On the two days more than 300 dollies, as many hockey sticks and pucks, together with boots and mittens and hundreds of new and repaired toys are being distributed by the fire laddies.

To make the presents sweeter the Christmas gifts will be accompanied by a bag of candies and nuts. More than 250 pounds of candy and 150 pounds of nuts are all bagged ready for distribution.

ANNUAL EFFORT

The Christmas toy project has an annual effort on the part of city firemen for many years.

First firemen did toy repairs at the firehall, then it was taken over by the local Kiwanis Club who set up a workshop in the basement of the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street.

Over the years thousands of broken toys have been mended and repaired and then sporting a shiny new coat of paint have gone to gladden the hearts of local underprivileged kiddies on Christmas Morn.

This year has been no exception, and the army of toys for 1964 Christmas distribution is the biggest ever, according to Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

GNP Hits New High In Period

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Higher consumer spending and a build-up of inventories, especially by manufacturers, powered a moderate advance by the Canadian economy in the third quarter of this year.

The bureau of statistics said Tuesday that the gross national product, the value of all goods and services produced, was estimated at a seasonally - adjusted annual rate of $46,700,000,000 in the quarter, the July-September period.

This is a gain of 1.4 per cent from the $46,100,000,000 level of the second quarter. Most of the gain was in real terms, in volume; prices are estimated to have increased during the quarter by about one-half of one per cent.

The latest GNP estimate puts it ahead 30 per cent by value and 22 per cent by volume from the starting point of the current economic expansion, in the early part of 1961.

DBS said that if there is nothing except the usual seasonal change in output in the current fourth quarter, the year 1964 will close with a 7½-per-cent increase in the total value of Canadian production.

GIVES POSSIBLE RISE

However, most economists have forecast rising activity in the current quarter and DBS said that if the advance is 2½ per cent over the third quarter, the year's total increase will be about eight per cent.

These were the outstanding third-quarter developments:

Personal spending jumped ahead by two per cent in the quarter, thus rising at about the same rate as last winter.

Expenditure on durable goods — notably new and used cars — advanced by nine per cent, one of the biggest quarterly increases in recent years, after a minor slump in the second quarter.

Purchases of new and used cars rose by more than 15 per cent. Buying of household durable goods, such as furniture and appliances, showed increases ranging up to two per cent.

SPENDING DOWN

Business c a p i t a l spending, meanwhile, was running at an annual rate, seasonally - adjusted, of $8,220,000,000 in the third quarter, down about two per cent from the previous quarter.

This was due almost entirely to a five-per-cent drop in outlays on machinery and equipment. Spending on non-residential construction was somewhat higher. Housing outlays were virtually unchanged.

The annual rate of business-stock-building was estimated by DBS at $816,000,000 in the third quarter, compared with $600,000,000 in the previous three months.

More than two-thirds of this inventory accumulation was in manufacturing, DBS said. The rest of it was at the wholesale level. Stocks in the retail business were unchanged.

Wages and salaries advanced almost three per cent in the third quarter, on top of the biggest gains since 1956. The rise was similar to those in the first quarter of 1963 and the first quarter of this year.

PROFITS DECLINE

Corporation profits declined by about two per cent between the second and third quarters. However, they still were relatively high—22 per cent above the profit levels of early 1961, the last low point in the business cycle.

Included in the quarter-to-quarter profits reduction was a seven-per-cent decline in profits in the manufacturing group of industries. This was partly offset by gains in mining and retail trade.

For the first three-quarters of this year, corporate profits are 13 per cent ahead of a year earlier.

This includes gains of 18 per cent in the transportation, communications and storage industries; 19 per cent in the mines, quarries and oil wells; 13 per cent in manufacturing; 25 per cent in petroleum and coal; 15 per cent in metal industries; and 12 per cent in chemicals.

Some classes made cash donations and the fund was increased with the proceeds of a challenge basketball match between the male staff members and the boys' team (the staff won). Additional cash was provided from the Keyetle club's own funds.

The result is that the two needy families— one in Belleville and the other out of town - - looking forward to Santa Claus, will have an unexpectedly happier Christmas this year.

Man Remanded Out of Custody For Sentence

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton on Tuesday, Gerald John Wellman, 36, of 44½ Edwards St., in Trenton, pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent assault against a 3-year-old girl and was remanded, out of custody, for one week, for sentence, by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The court heard evidence on December 8 that the young child had been assaulted by Wellman on November 24, while he was baby sitting with her.

Wellman pleaded guilty to the charge on December 8, but his plea was rejected by the magistrate at that time and he was sent to Kingston to undergo psychiatric examination

The verdict was that he was fit to stand trial and Wellman renewed his plea of guilty yesterday.

The case was enlarged for one week while arrangements to send Wellman to Toronto were discussed. Probation officer Dennis Atkins suggested that Wellman might be placed in the charge of a Salvation Army officer in that city. Magistrate Wills said he thought Wellman should have constant supervision, whatever arrangements were made, primarily for his own benefit.

Benefit of Doubt Given Accused In HTA Case

TRENTON — The possible tendency of plexiglass to shatter with the cold—the inability of the Trenton police department's typewriter to register letter "d"—and the advisability of reading over carefully all printed matter before affixing one's signature — were all brought up in magistrate's court yesterday during the hearing of a Crown case against a Trenton youth, George Rigby, 20. . Rigby pleaded not guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He was represented by Trenton lawyer William G. Weston.

The charge arose out of $34 worth of damage, sustained by a car owned by Ambrose O'Neill of Wilkins St., and parked on the evening of Nov. 6, outside a friend's home on Charles St. Rigby, who was driving a friend's car that evening, told police later he must have been the driver of the car which damaged the O'Neill vehicle, but claimed in court yesterday he hadn't heard or felt the impact. In a signed statement, Rigby was reported to have answered "I don't know," when asked why he didn't report the accident to police. Yesterday, Mr. Weston suggested the typewriter might have been at fault, and what Rigby might have said was "I didn't know," meaning that he didn't know he had struck the O'Neill car. The owner of the car Rigby was driving, Eric Lockwood, who had been riding in the passenger seat, also said he heard and felt nothing.

Mr. Weston suggested the plexiglass tail-light on the Lockwood car might have shattered with any slight bump due to the low temperature of the evening. Radio in the Lockwood car had been on at the time, Mr. Weston told the court, and this might explain why the occupants heard no noise. Furthermore, said Mr. Weston, Mr. O'Neill had caused some of the $34 damage himself when he drew back the door of his car, following the accident. A strip of chrome had been pushed up, and was pushed back when the door was opened.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills dismissed the case saying he would give Rigby the benefit of the doubt.

Theatre Group Presents Land of Sugar Plum Tree

TRENTON — Christmas is a time for caroling and special church services, Christmas concerts and Tiny Tim and Scrooge and Punch and Judy and pantomime. As a gift to the children of the town, the Eastern Ontario Theatre Company last night presented The Land of the Sugar Plum Tree in the high school auditorium to a capacity crowd.

An entranced audience saw elves and witches, rabbits and blackbirds and fairies and villains.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Rhoda Bain and the story was written by Mrs. Kaye Cunliffe.

At the end of the program, Santa Claus (Rod Barnes of Colborne) invited the children in the cast and the audience to the stage and listened to "what I want for Christmas". Each child went home with a candy cane from Santa.

Santa Claus brought along his little boy . . Bruce Barnes . . . who sang two solos and "grown up" roles were handled by two members of the company, Ross Cameron and Marjorie Parker, (the black cat).

Girl, 17, Is Injured When Struck by Car

TRENTON— Seventeen-year-old Louise Easton of 7 McEwen Drive, Middleton Park, was treated in the emergency ward at Trenton Hospital shortly after 7.30 p.m. last night for injuries suffered in an accident at the corner of Byron St. at Dixon Drive. Miss Easton received scrapes to her right leg, scrapes to her hip, and a bump on the back of her head. Her injuries will be X-rayed today. Police say Miss Easton stepped into the path of the car driven by 47-year-old John McCullough of 20 McEwen Drive, Middleton Park. The driver told police the detour sign at Byron and Dixon St. obscured his vision. It was raining at the time of the accident.

Santa Visits Children at Retarded School

TRENTON—All the children are singing Christmas carols this blessed season, but the very sweetest carols were sung by children from the Trenton-Brighton and District School for the Retarded last night when they entertained their parents and friends at the annual Christmas meeting at the school.

For their efforts, the children were rewarded with a visit from St. Nicholas himself and each and every one went to their home with a gift and enough candy to last him through until New Year's.

Accused Given Month For Carrying Knife

TRENTON —In magistrate's court at Trenton on Tuesday, Clifford Renoff of no fixed address, found out he would have to go without his "head warmer," a Beatle wig, for one month, when he was sentenced for that period to the county jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Renoff was charged with carrying a concealed weapon — a hunting knife. When he was arrested by Trenton police on December 8, Renoff was carrying a wig and ladies' underwear in his luggage. He told police he used the wig to cover his head warm and slept in the "unmentionables."

When he was picked up back of Carr's Electric store on Front Street, with the hunting knife on his person, Renoff told police he had been looking for work and sleeping out until the knife for protection. However, he later admitted to police he had meant to use the knife to pry open a back door at Carr's.

A lengthy record of convictions for break, enter and theft was read out in court yesterday by Crown Attorney John A. Pringle. The charges had been brought by police departments fairly well across Canada and the terms included one 'stretch' at Kingston penitentiary.

A Little Late

Hindsight is always easier than foresight, and so should be suspect. But hindsight twenty years after the event is doubly so.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower is now on record as believing the Second Great War policy of requiring Germany's unconditional surrender was a mistake.

He is not the first to say so, but most of the critics voiced this opinion right after the end of the war, or even during its dying stages. They did not wait for two decades before revealing their opposition to this policy.

Eisenhower was asked why he had not given this opinion before.

"Nobody ever asked me," he replied.

If no generals or politicians ever proffered an opinion on anything until they were asked for it, this world would be a different place.

But the record, in view of the fact that many who today read Eisenhower's opinion have no memories of the circumstances under which the "unconditional surrender" policy was formulated, let us review them.

Eisenhower ascribes the policy to Roosevelt. It was, however, a policy in which Churchill and Stalin concurred. It served several purposes. It helped allay Russia's fear that the Western allies might accept a truce which would not compensate Russia for its enormous losses. It was primarily designed to make it plain that the allies would have no dealings with Hitler and the Nazis under any circumstances. As such, it was in harmony with the temper of the British people. It is quite possible it prolonged the war for a few months, as Eisenhower speculates, but one of the gravest criticisms against the 1918 Armistice was that it enabled Germany to escape the horrors of war. There were many who thought the Germans should not, twice in a generation, be permitted to fight in other people's countries and then tamely surrender, on terms acceptable to them, at the point at the tide of battle ebbed into the Fatherland.

All these arguments may have been wrong. The critics of "unconditional surrender" were perhaps correct in their opposition. Somehow, though, we should have thought more of Eisenhower if he had expressed his opposition when he was commander-in-chief of the allied forces in Europe twenty years ago. There is no indication that we know of, in any of the books on the war including Eisenhower's own, that he did so.

Too Close to the Trigger

West Germany's Defence Minister, Kai-uwe von Hassel, has suggested that atomic land mines might be sown along West Germany's border with the communist world.

These mines would not go off automatically when touched, like conventional land mines, but would have to be exploded by the defenders. They would be elaborate safety devices.

Still, from their very nature, buried beneath routes which enemy troops might take, it would seem that they would have to be buried "armed."

Observers are reported to believe sowing these mines "would tend to increase West Germany's feeling of security."

That may be, but there is no guarantee that the presence of armed land mines lying around buried in German soil would enhance anybody else's feeling of security. It allows the German finger to edge too close to the nuclear trigger.

Yule Puzzle

What happened to the Japanese orange crop this year?

Did Japan have a cold snap like those which occasionally ruin the citrus crop in Florida and Texas?

For the past few years, one of the more pleasant additions to Christmas fare in this area has been the mandarin orange.

Around the beginning of December, these have appeared in our food stores, neatly packed in little boxes, marked "produce of Japan."

The mandarins are back again this year and the boxes bear a Japanese name. But in one store at least, this firm's address is in California —and the oranges the boxes contain were grown in Spain.

Sort of evens the score for those Japanese-made statues of Mounties.

I can't help but wonder sometimes whether many of our industries would do better by devoting more of their energy to solving some of their own problems and a little less to organizing pressures to get governments to do for them what they could probably do better for themselves.—Agriculture Minister Harry Hays.

Image of Siberia Changing

BBC London Letter

The image of Siberia as a barren region of frozen soils is changing, as indeed this vast territory—half as large again as the entire United States—is changing under the impact of modern science and technology. Visitors from the West are comparatively rare, but three men who have just returned there discussed their impressions in a recent broadcast in a BBC series of programmes called "National Observer." They were Kyril Tidmarsh of the London Observer, Alan Van der Post, author of "Journey Into Russia", and Peter Fleming, the writer on Chinese affairs who made his first journey to Siberia over 30 years ago.

The speakers suggested that expansion into Siberia, started 200 or 300 years ago for economic reasons, has been accelerated for strategic reasons in the nineteen-thirties when growing German power presented a possible threat to traditional industrial areas in the west of Russia. But reports from geologists on the economic potential of Siberia were probably the prime reason.

"For instance," said Van der Post, "they discovered in the Kimerovo basin enough coal to supply the whole world for the next thousand years if they still wanted to go on coal; they discovered enormous deposits of iron ore; of gold, and diamonds." Near Bratsk in the centre of Siberia, site of an enormous hydro-electric scheme, they had discovered what they called the "Magnetic Mountain", because it was pure iron ore.

Discussing the highly organised government drive to attract people to Siberia—where the present population is a mere 23 million—the speakers commented on the youthfulness of the pioneers. America has appeal to the spirit of adventure which took young people East as once the youth of America has been drawn to the Far West of their country. But Siberia differed from the American concept of the "outback." Tidmarsh pointed out, in having centres of culture. The city of Omsk with universities in Russia existed in Tomsk. In Irkutsk he had been taken to an art gallery to see a show of recent paintings and in each city had been astounded to find a library of two million volumes. He had been interested also to see that old wooden houses were being modernized and linked up with the modern systems of the big, up-to-date industrial centre, instead of being pulled down, as had been done in some western parts of the Soviet Union, with little benefit to the housing problems.

The immensity of the horizon and the scene of sheer space had made a profound impact on all three speakers as they crossed the Siberian Plain. After travelling for days after hour through an unchanging countryside, said Van der Post, "suddenly you hit a town with great steamers going up and down it, and an immense town." Every example, Fleming said, sometimes called the "Chicago of Siberia", was the first sight of enormous grain elevators lining the river bank had looked like an ideal Canadian scene.

Fleming recalled the Novosibirsk of thirty years ago as "an awful dump" with only one hotel—a building the hotel. Having come by the railway through Siberia, he had had to have his clothes baked to kill the lice before checking into his room. Today, just outside was a big scientific centre for the development of Siberia, Academic City, with laboratories, flats, schools and so on for the scientists and their families. But with a predominantly young population the birthrate was five times as high as elsewhere in the Soviet Union, and this overloaded schools, and caused considerable drain of population back to the west.

All agreed that the trans-Siberian railway, now completely electrified, was a yardstick of change. Fleming described the primitive, filthy and unhygienic conditions of station waiting-rooms and railway carriages in 1924, and the constant delays, with the cleanliness, good order and regularity of schedules today.

Siberia's great rivers, the Ob, the Yenisei, the Lena and others—are used extensively for transporting the wealth of timber. Although frozen in the north for a large part of the year, great efforts are being made by the coastal workers to keep shipping with ice-breakers. Van der Post described the great "ocean" of timber, each displacing about 5,000 tons, being towed down the River Amur and out to sea on the way to Japan. In winter, the frozen river was used as a highway. The exploitation of forestry was highly developed; but in agriculture — one of the great problems in a region where there was a very short season and not much arable land — he had seen no evidence of new methods of speeding up the slow and painful process of de-foresting the land for agricultural use. He had been depressed by the "factory approach" to the major problem of the production of food, in all the collective farms he had visited, the chairman invariably knew little of the land, while the second in command looked sad because he obviously knew about the land, but was invariably a Ukrainian, and a power found a Ukrainian in a position of command."

The great distances and the solitude, yet the "coziness" in these far-flung communities, where people seemed to find complete satisfaction in what they were doing, were impressions that remained with the speakers.

Strictly Personal
Homosexuals Should Be Recognized

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The most interesting aspect of that squalid Jenkins case during the recent election was never discussed, or even raised. It had nothing to do, of course, with politics, but with the organized klicey of the social order.

The chief objection to Jenkins was that he posed a possible "security risk" by being a homosexual in a sensitive government position. Why did he pose a security risk? Because homosexuals are notoriously susceptible to blackmail.

Why are homosexuals notoriously susceptible to blackmail? Because the blackmailer threatens them with public exposure of their deviation, which could cost them their careers, at the very least.

Why should this threat affect them? Very simply, because our social order does not accept their deviation, and makes many of them to lead wretched double lives. In a sense, the homosexuals are "driven in corner" by the attitude of society.

Obviously, the way to remove the "security risk" that attaches to homosexuals in government service is to accept their deviation openly, as a condition as old as history, and thus to remove the pressure that makes them easy prey to blackmailers.

But this is not the rational way in which a social organism works. Instead, we must pretend to ourselves either that the problem hardly exists, or that by ostracizing and punishing these people we are somehow solving the problem and reducing the consequences.

Both the opposite are true. Our codified hypocrisy simply intensifies the problem in all areas, and makes the homosexual more apprehensive and more furtive, forcing them into shameful and "illegal" activities; and at the same time, it strengthens the hold that sinister and subversive elements can exert upon them.

Moreover, society's attitude channels them into an "underground" movement of their own, and cuts them off from the mainstream of normal society. Like all persecuted minority groups, they strike back by forming cabals, by "taking over" certain spheres of activity (in the arts, for instance), and by purposely provocative behavior.

If our society were mature enough to ignore or accept their deviation, much of their unattractive social behavior would disappear, since most of it is based on an over-reaction to public opprobrium. It is we who make them not only "security risks," but who give them an extra layer of neurosis on top of their own internal conflicts. The Jenkins case was more illustrative of our irrationality than of his.

High Risk

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

A psychologist from the University of Illinois claimed at a recent meeting of his fellows in New York that newspapermen had the highest anxiety level of any American occupational group which he had studied so far. They were even more anxious, he said, than navy frogmen, pilots in training, and business executives. The fear of drowning, flaming death in an air crash, and bankruptcy is less than that of sounding like an idiot in print—just as we had always thought.

Indian Gives Folk Advice

Hamilton Spectator

Gilbert Clarence Monture, a director of Queen's University, has urged Canada's Indians to unite and accept their responsibilities in Canadian society.

There are few people better qualified to give this advice, for Mr. Monture was born into the Mohawk tribe on the Six Nations Reserve and received his early education at nearby Hagersville. He went on to become a mining-mineral expert, has been a Canadian Government representative to numerous international conferences and has served on committees and economic missions throughout the world.

I, effect, Mr. Monture knows what he is talking about when he urges Indians to improve their relationship with the rest of Canada. "The solution, to a large extent, rests in your own hands" he said the other day.

However, most Indians have continually resisted falling in with such pleas, ignorance and superstition are still rife on many reserves and tend to blind the Indians to the advantages of life beyon' their boundaries.

They fear their culture and way of life will be swallowed up in the Canadian jungle, the melting pot of dozens of nationalities.

Yet Europeans, and those of other continents, come here and adapt to Canada's society without losing sight of their own cultures and customs. Why shouldn't the Indian do it the same?

The record of Canada's attitude towards the Indians is a shameful one, and few would blame them for hesitating to take a white man's word. But when one of their own race speaks out, it seems illogical that there are those who still refuse to listen.

Cancer Considered Cured After Five Year Period

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I wish you could answer my problem soon, as I am worrying a great deal.

After an operation for cancer and a follow-up test which was negative, can one consider herself cured? How often should a test be made? And is it possible for cancer to spread to another area without being known? — Mrs. A. N.

From the little you tell me, I would say that you are worrying needlessly. Perhaps the following explanation will help you.

Almost all cancers do start in a single spot. In the early stages they are of microscopic size. They grow gradually until they are big enough to create symptoms: lumps, painless sores, bleeding, etc.

Eventually, if allowed to keep growing, a cancer will reach an invasive stage, meaning that it spreads into adjoining tissue.

And finally, some of the cells break loose and begin to range through the body indiscriminately. Sometimes these cells are disposed of by the body without doing damage. But a few of them may lodge in another organ and a new cancer begins to grow.

This process of moving to another area is called metastasis, and such cancers then are called metastatic cancers.

Thus if a cancer is detected in the early or intermediate stages, and is entirely removed, the result is a cure. That is why so much emphasis is made on early diagnosis and having your doctor examine, at once, any sign that even remotely might mean cancer.

If, in the operation, not quite all the cancer is removed, then the remainder can keep on growing. To prevent this danger, segments of healthy tissue are removed from all sides of the original cancer.

Once the process of metastasis — or indiscriminate spreading has begun, it may be too late. Some of the wandering cells can be expected to start new cancers in one place or another.

Now let's apply this to your case. You had surgery, a follow up study and no sign of cancer was found. You do not say how long ago this took place, nor where the original cancer was, and those factors would have some bearing on my answer. Therefore, your best course is to consult your surgeon.

For statistical purposes, a patient is "cured" if there is no sign of the disease after five years.

Many, many thousands have been cured of cancer and have passed this "five-year requirement." But actually, of course, it didn't take five years to cure them; they were cured as soon as the operation was over. The five-year wait is just a means of being statistically positive that the whole cancer was removed, and that no metastasis had gone unrecognized.

Yes, I think you can consider yourself cured, but the disease is so dangerous that every reasonable precaution should be taken. Have a checkup as long as your doctor indicates that you should do so.

Dear Dr. Molner: My friends claim that caffein-free coffee is just as hard on the nerves as the ordinary type. Is this true? — J. E.

Let your friends' advice go in one ear and out of the other. They are misinformed. The caffein coffee bothers the nerves of some people is because the caffein, a powerful stimulant, is at work. Remove the caffein and you avoid this extra stimulation.

Something in Wind

London Free Press

Several trial balloons on revamping municipal and county government have recently floated out from Queen's Park. Although there is variance in the programs enunciated, each suggests that the century-old lower governmental operation of the system is outmoded, that the winds of change must strike soon.

Today in History

Dec. 23, 1964 . . .

Mother Marie Marguerite d'Youville, founder of the Grey Nuns, died 183 years ago today—in 1771. Born in 1701 near Montreal, she was educated at the Ursuline Convent, Quebec. She married and went to live in Montreal, where the couple's two sons became ill. At the death of her husband in 1730 she began to devote herself to charity. In 1737 she was joined by three other Montreal widows, and together they began to wear grey garments which later became a mark of respect. Mother d'Youville founded the order of the Grey Nuns in 1753. She was declared venerable in 1890 and first steps in her beatification were taken in 1959.

1732 — George Washington gave up his commission as general and commander-in-chief of the American Continental Army.

1852 — Russia announced the firing-squad executions of Lavrenty Beria and six of his police aides.

No Recount Will Be Held In Township

PICTON (Staff) — No recount will be held in connection with the election result in North Marysburgh township, and thus the election of Mrs. Yvonne Barron is confirmed.

However, the council as a whole, if it wished, could still ask for a recount. However, this is considered unlikely.

Mrs. Barron won by one vote over Roy Storms, who had up until Monday to ask for a recount.

Mrs. Barron will be the first woman councillor to serve in North Marysburgh township.

I own a wine cellar
(And we live in an apartment!)

No matter what I whip up for an evening meal, I've a wine on hand to make it mean something. Slow will do—if there's chilled DuBarry Sparkling Vin Rosé on the table. And just taste what Manor Claret can do for hamburgers, Manor Sauterne for fish and chips! And my whole cellar hardly cost the price of a box of good beerbeforehers.

74 Sherry An appetizer wine, most popular in Canada. Serve with hors d'oeuvres, and the soup course.

74 Port A delightful dessert wine. After dinner, with snacks, with cheese ...perfect!

Manor St. Davids Sauterne Chilled, it does wonders for white meat of any kind—fish, fowl or pork—and salads.

Manor St. Davids Claret Canada's most distinctive "wine of the country", ideal with steaks, hamburgers, red meat of any kind.

Manor Tew A rich "kosher" wine. Delicious—appeals to everyone.

DuBarry Sparkling Vin Rosé An "anytime" wine that's light and tingling on the tongue. Serve before, during and after any meal at all.

Pleasant Gift Idea

What more pleasant or welcome gift than a cellar of Brights fine Canadian wines? You'll never get a warmer "thank you !".

Successful Living

College Boy Needs to Be Given Some House Rules

DEAR DORIS — My youngest son is going to college. He is out every Friday and Saturday night until all hours. Last Saturday it was 6:45 in the morning. I think this is ridiculous. He also has the family car so anything could happen.

I couldn't sleep so got up at five o'clock. My husband was angry as I had the hall light on; says he couldn't sleep with it on. He says he can't see why I worry so much.

My son has a girl friend; as soon as he walks in from college she's phoning him. This is every night. He wasn't like this until he met this girl. — WORRIED MOTHER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR MOTHER—As long as your technically grown-up son lives at home there are certain things you can do:

1. Turn all lights out after midnight.

2. Make the use of the family car hinge on a set time for arrival home. College Boy to ask for it each time. Father should set the curfew time, in the interest of his son. (Show Pop this letter.)

3. Make your home open house for you son's friends and encourage association with girls who value their reputation.

DEAR DORIS — I am a girl of 17. My problem is I like a boy very much. I don't want to chase George but he tells me to phone him. He never phones to ask for a date but does it in person.

Doris, I like him as a friend but don't want to chase him. He is 19. Is this friendship or is he just fooling around with me? — FRIEND OR ENEMY.

DEAR F. OR E. — He is hardly showing enmity. But if there is any telephoning to be done — let George do it!

DEAR DORIS — I've been considering writing to you for quite a long time. First of all, we are grandparents. My husband has been two-timing me ever since our marriage, which is a long time ago. I have proof of this.

I stuck with him, forgave him time and time again. But now I've got enough. I'm through. I stayed because of our children. Now they are married it's his parents; they are with us, old and with no one to do for them.

I am just living for the day when I'll have no ties. What the poor fool he's going with now does not realize is that she isn't the first and won't be the last one. What do you advise me to do? — MRS. R.N.

DEAR MRS. R.N. — It took a long, long time for that worm to turn! You'd give him the shock of his life if you left him now — and I wouldn't blame you. It is actually being unfaithful to you, you can separate and ask for support. His parents are his worry. Talk it over with the counsellor at your nearest family counselling service.

Confidential to VERY DISCOURAGED — The woman you described by "Torn Apart" could not possibly be your unkind and gossipy neighbor, since she lives many miles away from your town. Has it occurred to you that you have been the doctor who is treating your ulcers when you fail to tell him about the human Acid Tongue who is causing them?

Unloosing would release those damaging tensions. Get on the phone for an appointment!

DEAR DORIS — I am the youngest in the family and since I am the only girl I'm quite by myself. My two brothers beat me up all the time. They punch me, slap me around and torment me while I do all their cooking every weekday since my parents work. I have told my parents but they don't seem to do anything. All they say is "Leave me alone." It's come to a point where I am so slapped around I cry so long I ache all over.

I'm very lucky in one respect. I have many friends, one very close one, and I get along nicely with boys. Of course I never show my home life when I'm with my friends.

I don't know who to turn to for help. I'm sick and tired of being a "Cinderella." I'm 15 and from all the beatings I get I'm going to look like a beaten up person very soon. Please help me. — CINDERELLA.

DEAR CINDERELLA — When a mother abdicates her responsibility to the extent of leaving undisciplined sons to bully their younger sister, I see red!

Both your father and your mother are responsible for seeing that you are not physically abused. Try again for a conference with them, and if they still want to be left alone, seek protection and guidance from the child agency for your area. In Belleville this is the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 West Moira Street.

Confidential to A DEVOTED READER D.L.F. — Next time send your complete name and address on a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and enclose ten cents. I will send you my leaflet on the career of air stewardess and give you the other information you want.

Confidential to TROUBLED L.W.B.; PROBLEM CHILD AND GIMLI — I have some suggestions for you and will give them to you if you will write in again, repeating your questions and enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

CHRISTMAS DINNER MENU:

Roast Turkey with Sausage Stuffing (see below)
Giblet Gravy (see below)
Peas with Sauteed Mushrooms (see tomorrow)
Glazed Carrots (see tomorrow)
Mashed Potatoes
Cranberry Salad Mould (see tomorrow)
Royal Steamed Pudding (Dec. 10th)
Hard Sauce (Dec. 10th)
Pastel Mints
Coffee
Bowl of Nuts in the Shell

TOMATO BISQUE:

Blend together in top of double boiler I can (10-oz.) condensed tomato soup and 1 can (10-oz.) condensed cream of celery soup. Gradually blend in 1 soup-can milk and 1 soup-can light cream. Add a few grains grated nutmeg. Heat thoroughly. Serve with a garnish of croutons or unsweetened whipped cream.

ROAST TURKEY WITH SAUSAGE STUFFING:

Stuffing (for 15-lb. bird): Note: The general rule is to allow 1 cup stuffing for each 1 lb. of turkey. If your bird is smaller or larger, decrease or increase amount of stuffing proportionately.

1 lb. pork sausage meat, 12 cups fresh coarse bread crumbs, ¼ cup finely chopped onion, 1½ cups finely chopped celery, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon (or less) sage or rosemary, ¼ cup melted butter, ¼ cup hot water (approximately) one 15-lb. ready-to-cook turkey, nutmeg, lemon juice.

Crumble pork sausage meat and panfry until brown. Pour off fat and discard. Combine browned meat, breadcrumbs, onion, celery, salt, pepper and sage or rosemary. Toss together lightly with a fork. Add melted butter to breadcrumb mixture and toss together gently. Sprinkle enough hot water over dressing to moisten crumbs. Makes approximately 12 cups.

Clean, wash and dry turkey. Rub cavity with salt and a little nutmeg and lemon juice, if desired. Stuff bird, but do not pack too tightly. Truss. Place turkey on rack in shallow roasting pan. Do not cover and do not add water. Rub with butter. To avoid frequent basting, cover loosely with aluminum foil. If not foil-covered, baste every 30 minutes. Roast at 300 or 325 deg. Fahr., allowing 20 to 25 minutes per lb. Turkey over 20 lbs. will require 3 hours. Turkey is done when the drumstick moves up and down easily and when juice no longer shows a reddish tinge when skewer is plunged into thigh and drawn out.

GIBLET GRAVY:

Giblets and neck from turkey, 4¼ cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 onion, sliced fine, ¼ cup chopped celery leaves, ¼ cup drippings from roasting pan, ½ cup flour. Wash giblets and neck, place all but liver in saucepan; add water, salt, onion and celery. Cover and bring to boil, then simmer until gizzard is tender —about 2 hours, adding liver 10 minutes ahead of this. Remove giblets, and neck. Strain broth — there should be 4 cups. Chop giblets and neck meat — discarding the grisly bits of gizzard. Blend drippings and flour together, stir in broth until thick, add giblets and heat through stirrings. Serve piping hot.

NOTE:

Tomorrow I will give you the recipes for Peas with Sauteed Mushrooms, Glazed Carrots and Cranberry Salad Mould.

The Experts Say
The Rules for Purchasing Foundation Garments

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you're not quite certain what you're doing when you buy a brassiere or girdle, don't worry. You aren't alone.

And, says Alma Klowak, the recent profusion of new sizes, shapes and fabrics has made it even more difficult.

Miss Klowak, supervisor of the foundation garment buying department for Simpsons-Sears, says there are a few rules that should help women decide what will fit them.

For example, you can figure out your own brassiere size with just two measurements.

"Measure the circumference of your chest well above the bust, then the fullest part of your bust and compare the two. If there's an inch difference there's an A cup. If the difference is two inches you're a B. If you're between you're wiser to go to the next size up. That's why they have the two-inch difference adjustment."

Miss Klowak suggests that if you're trying something new, you should buy a garment designed for low-cut dresses, try it on to be sure it gives the shape you want and is comfortable.

For a girdle, measure your waist and the fullest part of your hip. An eight-inch difference is ideal. If it's more than 10 you have a full hip. And if you have a full hip, don't worry.

"There is a trend to larger and larger hip development, especially in younger women," Miss Klowak says.

MORE FLEXIBLE

When deciding what length you need in a girdle or pantie-girdle, it's important to know how long it will be cut. That flat length will tell you little about how it will fit.

Girdles and long bras now are being made in proportioned lengths. "We've made proportioned midriffs, mostly to control the spare tire for sheaths and feel it's great," she said.

Miss Klowak says long bras and corselets used to be made like a shakedown quilt.

"You'd have to cut off the elastic because it wouldn't give. Now practically everything in a brassiere will stretch but the cups. That's the reason for stretch. Sometimes in old corselets the straps took all the pull and cut into your shoulders."

Don't use small, medium or large as the basis for buying a girdle or corselet, Miss Klowak says. Look at the panel inserts —they'll tell you whether the garment will suit you.

Panels are set in for both restraint and shaping. Side strips which stretch only vertically improve a hip line. Vertical - stretch or bon - yielding panels with carrying degrees of reinforcement are set into abdomen and back.

When you buy, decide first what your biggest problem is, what you want to de about it, then look for reinforcement where you need it most.

The nativity scene and red candles burning formed a background setting for the Christmas story.

Mrs. Dean had a thought provoking paper for each member to answer for the program.

Several donations were made to the Penny Fund. It was noted that World Day of Prayer is March 5th and an invitation is to be sent to Centenary to attend and the secretary is also to send for prayer cards.

IT'S CHRISTMAS

It's that time of year again. When you are a child it is an eternity between one Christmas and another. To the parents it seems like last month that they put away the Christmas decorations and now it is time to get them out again. And to the grandparents it seems like the day before yesterday, so fast does time accelerate with the years.

It seems such a short time ago, that Christmas Eve was the most exciting night of the whole year. Memory goes back through the years to a little girl of six or seven — myself — lying in bed for what was surely the longest night of the year — sweating — (because she had removed only her dress and shoes so she could get a fast start in the morning) and wide awake listening for the sound of reindeer hooves on the roof. The time seemed endless. About ten o'clock (p.m., that it) she would call downstairs, "Is it time to get up yet?"

At last she could stand it no longer and got out of bed to look out the window. The night was snapping cold and bright with stars. One star, brighter than the rest she was sure was the "Star of the East," and that it stood over a stable with a newborn babe in it. (It was probably Polaris she was looking at.)

She searched the sky for any sign of Santa Claus and his sleigh. She knew this was forbidden because Santa never never came before everyone was asleep. She was sure he would come because she had written him a letter telling him she had been a good girl (with some misgivings, because she knew Santa kept a record of behavior, but she hoped with so many children to keep track of, he might not recall all her lapses.)

She had put the letter in the fireplace, and watched as the flames nibbled at it, and the ashes went up the chimney to reach Santa somewhere in the sky. The sky was also where heaven and the angels were, and at this point mythology and theology got somewhat mixed up in her mind.

Surely that was the heavenly choir singing, that faint music! (It was probably the Salvation Army band at the other end of town).

And what was this intense excitement about? With eight children in the family, four boys and four girls, she did not expect or get very much. One toy, (perhaps a stuffed doll with a face painted on), a book, (there was always a book), and a stocking hanging by the fireplace to unpack. It usually contained a package of figs, some nuts, hard candies, and down in the toe, an orange. (Probably the only orange she would see all winter.)

But in this village there were no Santas on the street corners, no radios or television to build up excitement months ahead, or to play Christmas carols to the point, at bedtime, of nausea. Excitement was not diffused over weeks of preparation, but concentrated into a few days.

It was a time never to be recaptured but always treasured in memory. It was the simple joy of childhood which makes Christmas so poignant, and regardless of the many elaborations that are added each year, it remains a season for reconciliation, for family, friendships, giving, sharing and goodwill towards all people. These things I wish for you.

A British Opinion

Bilingualism Solution To Present Difficulties

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Barbara Ward, noted British economist and commentator on international affairs, says Canadians should start trying to make their children bilingual as soon as possible.

In an interview here during a Canadian "lecture tour, Miss Ward said: "I think the thing that would solve the French-Canadian nationalism problem best would be to set up bilingual schools all over Canada.

"In the modern world, people who cannot speak at least two languages are obsolete."

Miss Ward said Canada is "a very creditable" middle power in the world but could gain even more status if all its people were bilingual.

"My parents compelled me to go to Paris and learn to speak French and now I'm very glad I did."

The British lecturer said it is most encouraging that English-Canadians are at last beginning to realize the problems of the French minority.

IT SHOCKS HER

During earlier visits to Canada, Miss Ward has been "shocked" to see how little French influence there was at Ottawa. Still shocked to find herself "right in the heart of a French-Canadian city".

Travel and greatly extended language training could help the cause of peace all over the world, said Miss Ward.

In private life the wife of Commander Robert Jackson, Miss Ward, 50, has one son at school in England.

She told reporters she is planning to write a book about the emerging nations in Africa "but things are changing there so quickly that I keep having to revise my material."

The current picture in Africa is certainly not a bright one, if things keep on going the way they are now, we shall certainly see more outright war between the nations and the Europeans."

Miss Ward was in Ottawa to deliver two lectures on international affairs at Carleton University.

Various Topics Discussed at Nurses' Assoc.

The December meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter, (District No. 6) of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, was held in the Trenton Memorial Hospital, last Wednesday evening.

The president, Mrs. Shirley Ackerman, opened the business meeting. Mrs. C. Mason, chairman of the membership committee, reported that telephoning members prior to each meeting has shown some beneficial results.

Mrs. M. McQueen, chairman of the finance committee, reported the bursary fund is increasing. Suggestions for raising money for the 1969 bursary will be considered, and a recommendation will be made at the next meeting. Mrs. A. Hart, chairman of the program and public relations committee, reported that the January meeting will be held in Belleville. It was suggested that one meeting be held in Madoc or in Picton if the members in these areas wish it.

The administrator of Trenton Memorial Hospital, Miss Hazel Neudorf, Reg. N., gave intro. and Miss Leslie Anderson. Miss Naudett presented some interesting facts about the differential for nurses, from the viewpoint of administration. She said that some hospitals don't take a closer look at all aspects of nursing practice. Nurses' salaries had increased considerably in the last few years and working conditions have improved. Many nurses prefer to work evening and nights. A differential for weekends and holidays as well as shift could be asked for. Nurses are doing an exceptionally good job, even in areas of where a staff shortage exists. It is the aim of administration to increase salaries generally.

Miss Anderson asked the nurses to divide into small discussion groups to consider several different aspects of shift differential. Topics under discussion were:

"Do you want the R.N.A.O. to accept this policy? If so, how will it be paid the differential?" "Would relief staff receive this, or just permanent staff?" "Will the differential help overcome the shortage of nurses willing to work evenings and nights?" "Should the differential be paid only to those nurses who are willing to rotate in all three shifts?"

At the close of the discussion period, Miss Anderson asked the recorder for each group to present their findings at the next general membership. Many constructive suggestions were made but no definite policy was decided on.

The January meeting will be held in Edmonton Hotel, Belleville, on Wednesday, January 20th. Mrs. Shirley Ackerman, chairman of the collective bargaining committee on collective bargaining, will speak about the work of this committee. She will discuss the aims of collective bargaining and some of the problems and difficulties connected with it.

Christmas Concerts

TABERNACLE CHURCH

"Festival of Christmas," a delight in music, drama and colour, was presented on Friday evening last in Tabernacle United Church auditorium. The choir and chorus were members of the junior, intermediate and senior classes of the church school and of the BI-C group.

The program opened with the chorus singing three selections: "Along the Road to Christmas" (Part 1), "Have You Ever Seen a Star?" and "Shepherds Shake Off Your Drowsy Sleep."

"The Littlest Angel" in a setting of choral and stars was performed by the following cast:

Conniance, guardian of the heavenly realms, Karen Priest; Faith, guardian of the Star Polishers, Debby Christopher; Hope, guardian of the flower gardens, Heather Grant; Love, guardian of the tree gardeners, Brenda Lott; Peace, the messenger Angel, Gay McFarlane; Gloria, guardian of orchestra and choir Angels, Elizabeth McLaughlin; Herald angel, Paul Knox; Debby Christopher, Mary and to Bethlehem, Douglas O'Kara; Michael (the littlest angel), Kathy Christopher; Graham; Peter, a star polisher, Tommy Stenson; John, a star polisher, Kerry Priest; usher; first flower gardener, Gail Ferguson. second flower gardener, Carol Lewis; third flower gardener, Dian Lewis; tree gardener, Mary Ann O'Hara.

The chorus sang "Little Son of Mary" and "The Story That Never Grows Old." A member of the chorus, Morley Shaw sang a solo "Lately We Watched."

Following a brief intermission, the evening was climaxed by an unusual and colorful three-act drama entitled "The Cradle". The setting was the home of a wealthy Eden in Bethlehem. A strange old man had left a beautiful cradle in Eden's home and had told him that it is for 'a manchild whose name will never be forgotten' Eden is a seven year old boy who has been waiting for the great Messiah, and he is positive that the cradle is meant for the long-awaited one. Eden's wife and sister do not believe that the cradle has had a strange effect upon the household. Eden has become proud and dishonest. It is the eve of Christ's birth, strange things begin to happen. There are exciting rumors. A man and woman from Galilee have sought shelter in Eden's stable. They are lowly Nazarenes who can pay only a small amount.

The mystery of the cradle is solved when Timaeus, the humble, devout stable boy, throws the cradle out and lays the baby in a manger.

Two beautiful solos, "Hark, the Glad Sound" and the jubilant "Birthday of a King" were rendered by Eden's wife, Shelah in the third act, but she is grieved because they are not ready for this great King. Eden cannot believe that the Messiah could be born to a Nazarene mother in a stable. Shelah is assured by Leah, a wise and kind old lady that "when the music returns to Eden's heart, God will return with it."

Eden is finally convinced, his old self returns, and his singing resounds even in the stables."

The performance by these young people in a remarkable play has brought many requests to see it performed again.

Cast of "The Cradle" included Murdock McFarlane as Eden ben Jonah; Kim Pearson as Shelah, Eden's wife; Heather Grant as Rissah, Shelah's sister; Brian Bishop as Timaeus, the stable boy; Jane McFarlane as Leah; David Lott and Elizabeth Slavin as Micah and Keren, the grandchildren of Leah.

"Along the Road to Christmas" part 2 was then given by the chorus as a finale to "Festival of Christmas."

Ann Landers

Obesity No Longer Sign of Good Health

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am writing this letter in the hope that it will be read by my neighbor, the mother of a two year-old child.

The little girl weighs 60 pounds and wears size 14 panties. This summer that child, in her sed striped bathing suit, looked like a beach ball with legs.

I've watched the mother feed her and the second of potatoes on the girl's plate looks like Mt. Wilson. When she stops eating, the mother shovels in more food.

This is an unhappy youngster if I ever saw one. She cries over nothing and rarely smiles. She was a very slow walker — probably because she couldn't drag her fat bottom around.

I've hinted that the youngster should be taken to a doctor for a check-up but the mother laughs and says, "Lord love her, she is just chubby."

Will you comment, please? — CONCERNED.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR CONCERNED — In the old days a fat child was thought to be a healthy child. We know now that this is not necessarily true.

Every child fat or thin, should be taken to a pediatrician for a check-up annually. Routine check-ups have turned up diabetes, rheumatic heart disease and other illnesses which, when diagnosed early, are far less dangerous.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 17-year-old son, Jack, is a poor student because he refuses to apply himself. He is one year behind in school but it doesn't bother him.

Last year the girl with whom Jack has been going steady for over a year, is also a poor student. To listen to her talk you'd think she was in the sixth grade although she is a high school senior.

My husband and I were praying that these two would break up before they got into trouble. Well, three weeks ago when Lucy thought she was pregnant Jack told us what had been going on. When it turned out she was not pregnant we thought the scare would teach them a lesson, but it didn't. They are still together every evening.

Lucy's parents are brainless. They give her the family car when we won't give Jack our car. They give him money and invite him on trips. He doesn't even ask us, he just goes. These people are making a bum out of our son and we don't know what to do about it. Can you help? — G.H.I.

DEAR G.H.I. — Why blame Lucy's parents for making a bum out of your son? They didn't raise him. You did.

Jack has been intimidating you and getting his own way for years. Now you must seek outside help. The first step is to get counselling for yourselves. Your counsellor will take it from there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I can't believe it. I just can't believe it. Not you, Ann Landers!

When Kansas Grandpaw wrote and complained because his wife had a habit of appearing at the breakfast table wearing a housecoat over her nightgown — and asked if you approved — you said, "I not only approve of it, I do it."

What does your husband think about having such a lazy wife? — MR. DAWNBUSTER.

DEAR BUSTER — Yup. It's true. Li'l Ole' me at the breakfast table in a housecoat over my nightgown. I asked my husband what he thought about it 25 years ago and he said, "Why should I object if you wear a housecoat over a nightgown when I'm sitting here in a bathrobe over my pyjamas!"

P.S. — 365 columns a year. This is lazy?

Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," gives sound and solid rules for teen-age dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

POINSETTIA CARE

Dear Susanna: Every Yuletide a dear, kind uncle sends me a lovely traditional Christmas plant, a poinsettia. It is always so beautiful that I worry over not knowing how to take care of it properly. Are there any special little things I could do Susanna, to keep it fresh and blooming over the holidays? — Constance G.

For this special bit of fine-handy information, I turn directly to my friends at the Department of Agriculture. Here is what I hear — right from the horse's mouth!

Poinsettia plants thrive best in a well-lighted location at a temperature of about 65 degrees F., but they should never be exposed to cold draughts. It is suggested that you place the plant in a window where it will be fairly cool, where there is no draught, and where it will receive as much sun as possible. In addition, it should never be allowed to dry out.

For those who wish to carry these lovely plants over to the following year, it can be done nicely: "After flowering, treat them in a cool location for 8 to ten weeks and let the soil dry out. However, do not let the stems become so dry that the bark shrivels. After the rest period, cut the plants back part way, place in a larger pot and supply water. They should then be exposed to good light at a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees F. These plants can then be grown on for next Christmas."

Bobby Hull Has No Goalie Favorite

By The Canadian Press

Everyone agrees Bobby Hull is a hard one to discuss, but no one can accuse him of playing favorites—at least, not this season.

The muscular left winger has scored 33 times in 30 games, but not at the expense of any particular goaltender. He has netted one goal a game against each of his team's five opponents in the National Hockey League.

An official breakdown issued Tuesday by the NHL shows the Chicago All - Star has seven goals in seven games against Boston Bruins; six goals in six games against Montreal Canadiens; and five goals in five games against Detroit Red Wings, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Many high scorers of the NHL in the past made games easier to score against than others, and this used to be true for Bobby.

Detroit Red Wings were the patsies for Maurice (Rocket) Richard, the retired Canadiens star, when he set the season record of 50 goals in 1944-45. He got 12 of his 50 goals against the Wings that season.

For Gordie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, another former Montreal standout who tied The Rocket's record in 1960-61, it was the Rangers. Sixteen of his 30 were scored against New York.

Bobby became the third co-holder of the 50-goal record in the 1961-62 season, and Boston Bruins were his favorite targets that year. They gave up 14 goals to Hull.

This season he's giving everyone trouble. Some of his opponents say Bobby has matured and improved his style as a team player.

"He used to rely on power and strength," says Montreal goalie Charlie Hodge, who gave up Hull's 38th and 37th goals last Saturday night.

"Now he's handling the puck and shooting more."

"I used to have pretty good success in checking him," says Claude Provost, the hard-checking Montreal right winger who is assigned to shadow Bobby most of the time.

"Then I got caught twice and he scored two goals. What am I supposed to do, sit on him? He makes moves you never expect."

However he does it, Hull is scoring goals in quick succession. He is 21 games ahead of the pace set by both Geoffrion and himself in their 50-goal seasons.

Only two NHL teams are in action tonight—New York at Montreal—but the game will give fans their first opportunity to see how Dick Duff performs for Montreal and Bill Hicks for New York, against their former teammates.

Canadiens acquired Duff and Rangers got Hicks in a four-player swap Monday which involved two minor leaguers.

Montreal coach Toe Blake already has plans for Duff.

"It looks very much like Duff will start at left wing on the line with Jean Beliveau and Bobby Rousseau," he said. "But we will see how he adapts to our style of play."

Duff, 28, had nine fine seasons in eight years with Toronto before being traded to the Rangers last February.

Rangers' coach Red Sullivan hasn't disclosed how he will use Hicks, 26, who will be New York from Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, where the Canadiens sent him two weeks ago.

Minor Hockey

Goals were plentiful in most of the BMHA's games last night although one tilt ended in a scoreless tie. Games were played in the novice, midget and juvenile divisions.

NOVICE

Maroons and Leafs settled for a split in point by battling to a 0-0 deadlock.

Tony Dumas thumped the Canadiens 8-3, sparked by Murray Dales' four-goal eruption. John Vesnilk added two more with one each for Billy Coughlin and Paul Williams. Peter McKeown and Cliff Allen tallied the Canadiens' goals.

Hawks nipped the Rangers 3-2. Dennis Hanger was the home-ice hero, getting the game winner and Gary Moore got the other one. Ranger goals were by Murray Burtey and Andrew Ricketts.

JUVENILE

Belleville's ACT "Travellers" downed the Peterborough Petes by a 6-3 score. J. Smith and O. Dickey potted two goals each with J. Macnab and J. Farrell adding singletons. Farrell and S. Ethier picked up two assists each while Lapenskie, Cash, D. Chesnut both Tiger goals, unassisted.

MIDGETS

Actions downed the Ethey Hawks 7-5. A. Rea and C. Scott scored twice each. M. Nicholson, T. Dorge and K. McFarland one apiece for the winners. Dorge and McFarland got two helpers each and Rea had one. J. Cole scored for the Hawks and assisted on two others for the Hawks. T. Wellesley also scored twice while D. Middleton got a goal and assist and B. Gibbons one helper.

Leafs upended Red Wings 3-1. W. Storms, R. Gean and J. Dafoe scored Leaf goals. R. Ellis and Gean had assists. The Wing goal was scored by B. Fuller with D. McCormick and S. Tebworth assisting.

Settles Claim for $100,000

DETROIT (AP) — Former sportscaster and professional football figure Harry Wismer Monday settled a $280,000 claim to 1,120 shares of Detroit Lions stock, formerly held by his onetime father-in-law, for $100,000.

The settlement was agreed to by attorneys for Wismer and auto dealer Edgar La Roy Bryant of Dearborn, Mich., before Wayne County circuit judge James N. Cobbam.

The stock was sold by Bryant last January to present Lions owner William Clay Ford for $280,000. Ford bought all Lions stock for $5,000,000. Bryant was awarded the remainder of the purchase price.

Wismer contended Bryant's stock should have been sold to him first.

Bryant testified in court that he signed, but did not read, an agreement to give Wismer the stock purchase option. He said he did not read it because Wismer "was my son-in-law."

Bryant said he purchased the stock because Wismer could not afford it himself.

Bryant's daughter, Mrs. Betty Potter, was divorced from Wismer in 1955. She is married to former U.S. Senator Charles E. Potter of Michigan.

Target For Chargers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — It may have started some American Football League fans when Cookie Gilchrist hit the headlines as a booster last August but it was no surprise to his AFL acquaintances in Canada.

The big fullback, who was generally supposed to earn his pay by breaking AFL rushing records, helped the Buffalo Bills win the Eastern Division title Sunday when his robust intervention kept Boston Patriots' offensive line from interrupting quarterback Jack Kemp's passing.

His performance evoked nostalgia among Toronto Argonaut supporters who remembered happier days when Cookie did everything but carry the water bucket for the Toronto football Conference club. The Argos just haven't been out of the EFI basement since he travelled south in 1962.

Sunday's AFL final between the Bills and San Diego Chargers at Buffalo will be a homecoming of 30 miles removed, for Toronto alumni. Eight of the players involved "have telled for the Argonauts. Gilchrist and halfback Wray Carlton of the Bills and San Diego quarterback Jacky Kemp and halfback Gerry McDougall.

SERVED THREE YEARS

Gilchrist and Rote served three-year tenures with the Argos, Rote joining them in 1960 and leaving at the end of the 1962 while Cookie arrived and departed a year earlier. McDougall came to them from Hamilton Tiger-Cats for the 1962 season before accompanying Rote to San Diego and Carlton had a short stay with Argos in 1959.

Of his four, only Gilchrist, the AFL's rushing leader, has had an outstanding 1964 campaign. Carlton, out with injuries for most of the year, returned to become an effective groundgainer in reserve duties and Rote had an in-and-out season, alternating with young Jim Ninowski at quarterback for San Diego. McDougall has been used infrequently.

But all four may see action Sunday. Coach Sid Gilman, who coached Canada as an established star, topped the EFC in pass completions and yardage every year after his arrival as four-time Green Bay Packers of the National League.

In his three years, he completed for 1,183 passes for a 53.8 per cent record, 8,872 yards and 66 touchdowns. His 28 completions in a single game against Montreal Alouettes in 1960 stands as an all-Canadian record. He also holds conference marks for most passes thrown, 450, and most touchdown passes, 36, in a single season, set the same year.

Gilchrist's eight - year Canadian career began when he was cut by Cleveland Browns of the NFL in 1954 and caught on with Sarnia Golden Bears of the semi - professional Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By Gordie Howe

Generally speaking, the backward pass is a very bad one. I tried three of them the other night in a game and none of them worked. You'd think I'd give up but I didn't.

The first time was my own fault. Doug Barkley was playing on my point. Alex Delvecchio skated over before the faceoff which happened to be near their blue line.

He told Barkley that if I got possession, for Doug to go down the right side. I didn't know this. So when I got possession and two men circled with me, I made a move to the left drawing them over with me and just dropped the puck behind me, figuring Doug was there.

But Doug had swung ahead when I veered to the left. So one of their men immediately was driving the other way as I swung towards the net, looking for a rebound or a chance to deflect the shot past the goalie.

I was in the wrong. I should have had at least a little look to make sure Barkley was there.

The backward pass is a good manoeuvre when the whole tide of play is sweeping in one direction. Invariably your chances of getting through this congestion are slim.

That's when a quick pass backwards, or across the rink to a man moving up, will pay off. With the tide all going on the other side, he's got a good chance of carrying the puck in unhindered.

When we have a man advantage, in such a situation we have an understanding that one man goes in to screen the goalie and pulls out. That will give you from one to three plays.

For instance, if I get the puck at the point and my three teammates were tied up in front of the net, all I can do is shoot or make a cross rink pass to Delvecchio at the other point.

But if you pull a man out and put him in one of the corners, then you can either pass to him in the corner, across to Delvecchio or take a shot. Or you can dump it into the corner, move into the hole between the defensemen and get the shot away yourself. Thus you can see your chances of getting a clear shot are much improved.

Vancouver Sure of Franchise

SEATTLE (CP)—A deal was completed Tuesday which assured Vancouver of a baseball franchise in the Pacific Coast League.

Los Angeles Angels and the Rainier Brewing Company agreed on terms for a one-year lease of Seattle Stadium, insuring continuation of the PCL in Seattle.

Vancouver had been "promised a place in the 12-team circuit if Seattle continued as a league member.

The Angels took over the Seattle franchise when Boston Red Sox decided to move their triple-A farm operation to Toronto.

Hull Beats Arnprior 5-4

By The Canadian Press

Hull Hawks snapped a three-game losing streak with a 5-4 victory over Arnprior Kenwoods in the Central Junior A Hockey League Tuesday night, and the Hawks couldn't have picked a better night to get back on the right track.

The Hawks, who have lost only four games all season, went into the game tied for first place with Smiths Falls Bears, and the Bears kept pace with a 6-1 win at home over Ottawa Capitals.

Buckingham Beavers moved into a third - place tie with the idle Cornwall Royals by downing Ottawa Primrose 7-5 and Brockville Braves nipped Pembroke Little Lumber Kings 6-5 at Brockville in other league action.

Hull seemed to have little to worry about in the game against Arnprior, going into the third period with a 5-1 lead. But the visiting Kenwoods rallied with three goals and had the Hawks on the ropes as the game ended.

Colts Will Ride Herd On Jim Brown

Big Problem

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Colts will try to play the game's all here in order to squelch Cleveland Browns' offensive in their National Football League championship game Sunday.

"Jimmy Brown, of course, is a big problem and we're going to have to contain him," says Colt's coach Don Shula. "He's probably the best offensive player in pro football and he can bust a game wide open."

What will Shula do about it?

"We'll emphasize the things Brown does best and try to alert our defence to them," he said.

"We can't leave it up to one-man coverage because he'll break away from one tackler."

Linebacker Don Shinnick had a way to describe it: "We have to surround him."

Shinnick recalled the Colts did it after one lesson.

In a 1959 game, won by Cleveland 38-31, Brown ran the ball 32 times for 128 yards and five touchdowns. However, in their next meeting three years later, won 36-14 by the Colts, Brown carried for 11 yards in 14 carries.

In neither game were the Browns able to slow down quarterback John Unitas of the Colts. He passed for four touchdowns the first time and three the next.

Against the Browns' passing Sunday, Shula extinguished the idea of a classic individual duel between offensive back Lenny Lyles and Paul Warfield, the classy pass target for Cleveland.

"We'll try to get help in Lyles in covering Warfield," Shula revealed. "The same goes for Bob Boyd against Gary Collins on the other side."

In addition, the Colt gang theme includes the linemen putting a strong rush on the throwing passer, quarterback Frank Ryan.

"This is what has helped us all the season," Shula said. "The rush makes the passer get the ball away quickly and the linebackers also help the receivers at the line of scrimmage.

"The receivers don't have the time then to make a lot of manouvres."

If it does come down to single coverage, Lyles feels he can keep up with Warfield. "Paul has straight speed goes, "but I'll have to get close to him soon and stay with him. Don't give room to make two or three moves, you're in real trouble."

Three-Year Contract For Collier

CLEVELAND (AP) —Soft-spoken Blanton Collier, in his second year as Cleveland Browns' coach, has been signed to a new three - year contract, Art Modell, club president announced today.

Collier leads the Browns into Municipal Stadium Sunday for the National Football League championship against Baltimore Colts.

Collier, 58, was signed to a three - year contract early in 1963 when Modell fired Paul Brown as head coach. The Browns' 7-6-1 record in 1962 was the second worst in the club's history.

The Browns finished with a 10-4 record last season under Collier, second in the eastern division to New York Giants. This year they won the division title with a 10-3-1 record.

Australian Swimmers Slipping?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Howard Firby, the Alabama - born coach who took Canada's swimmers to the 1964 Olympic games, says Australia is slipping as a swimming power.

Firby, who fought paralytic polio in a Regina hospital to become a top coach, said in an interview he believes Canada could win one - quarter of the 30 medals available to swimmers at the 1966 British Empire Games in Jamaica.

He said Canada has passed Britain in swimming and is rapidly catching up with Australia.

Firby said Canada has the material to become a world swimming power but "we're too parochial in our thinking."

"Canadians want instant success and it won't come."

He picks Vancouver's Jane Hughes and Miss Jacki Jackson, Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., and Dan Sberry of Toronto, to shine for Canada in the 1966 games.

A step in the right direction to develop talent, Firby said, is the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association's plan to send a team of about 30 to Europe next summer. Details are still tentative but proposed are trips to Spain, Portugal, France, Italy, Germany, The Netherlands and Britain.

The Leafs, who had a partial working agreement previously with the Washington Senators, made the transfers in view of prospects that they may have a working agreement with Boston Red Sox of the American League.

Hawaii is in the new Triple-A farm team of the Senators.

The transfer reduces the Leaf roster to two players. They are second baseman Bob Sadowski and pitcher John Anderson. They were placed with York of the Class A Eastern League before the minor league draft in November, but will likely be sold before spring training in Florida.

NAMED COACH

HOUSTON (AP) — Hugh (Bones) Taylor, former pass receiver for Washington Redskins, today was named head football coach for Houston Oilers of the American Football League. Taylor, 41, replaces Sammy Baugh, a former Washington teammate who resigned unexpected Friday saying he wanted to spend more time on his west Texas ranch.

Copenhagen Coverage
Hockey in Denmark!

(Ed. note:- Following is the coverage of a hockey game as seen by a Danish sportswriter. The two Canadians mentioned are the coach Gerry Eaglaka, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald DeLong, Herchimer Avenue and George Musgrove, son of Principal Jim Musgrove of Moira S.S. Both are associated with the Canadian Department of External Affairs in Copenhagen, Denmark.)

"The capable ice-hockey players from West Jutland did their very best to keep everybody in suspense in the Danish tournament and won 16-5. (periods were 2-0, 4-1, 2-4). They are now second with nine points after only five games up till now. Esbjerg is now level with the top team KSF, which has eleven points, but this is for size games and they has so many lost points as Esbjerg, that is three.

"At one time visiting team's victory, watched by a numerous and eager audience at the artificial rink, would not have been so large if the home team's goal-keeper had not been so helpful when the visitors scored. He was very nervous, not able to face an attack standing up, but threw himself down time after time for no reason and thereby deprived himself of the chance to defend against high pucks.

"That will be Redovre's otherwise very capable coach Gerry Eastlaka's most important task to cure the goal-keeper of his "stage-fright." The attacking team worked themselves impressingly up after a rocky start. To make five goals in Esbjerg's very effective and resourceful defence has not been done by an other team in this tournament.

"In the third period the temperamental were boiling. Seven players were ordered off the rink, three from Jutland and 4 from Copenhagen.

"At one time two players from Copenhagen were sent off the rink at the same time, but Redovre managed these critical moments very well just the same and won the third period.

"Two players were fighting at one time and were ordered off the rink — it was the Canadian player Musgrove and Jens Chr. Lauritsen. Musgrove was ordered off the rink three times in all".

Clay-Liston
Brawl Set For June

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cassius Clay - Sonny Liston heavyweight title return bout will be held in June in Boston, Clay's manager said Tuesday.

"The exact date hasn't been set yet but it will be in June," said Angelo Dundee, trainer and manager of Clay. "Cassius is feeling fine and rarin' to go."

In Boston there had been reports that the postponed fight would be held April 18.

"That's too soon," said Dundee.

The fight had been set for Boston on Nov. 15 but was postponed when Clay had to undergo an emergency hernia operation the Tuesday night before the Monday date.

The World Boxing Association does not recognize the Clay - Liston bout, having stripped Clay of his title because of a return - bout arrangement he made with Liston prior to their first championship clash. The WBA opposes return - bout contracts.

It has set up a four - man elimination series for the heavyweight championship, in which George Chuvalo of Toronto is participating.

Too Much Obligatory Giving Says Van Dyke Show Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Everyone talks about having an old-fashioned Christmas, but few ever do anything about it: exception: The Dick Van Dyke family.

For a guy who is as hep as any star in show business Dick is remarkably old-fashioned. He believes in such ideas as morality in movies, loyalty and—the spirit of Christmas.

"I think the wrong emphasis has been placed on Christmas," he said during a break in The Dick Van Dyke Show. "Now there is entirely too much obligatory giving. Christmas should be a time of giving to your family and close friends—the people you love. But in business, you're compelled to give to your customers, your employees, etc.

"I'm sure the average business man hates to see Christmas come around."

He added that there is entirely too much building of anticipation for children at Christmastime. "The solution would be to train our kids not to expect gifts," he said. But he knows how impossible that would be.

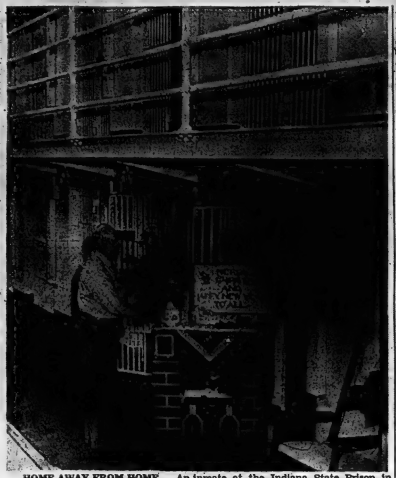
PICK A TREE

The Van Dyke Christmas starts with picking out a tree. That's an all-family affair.

"Everybody goes along to the lot to make the choice, including the maid," Dick said. "We look at every tree until we find the one that suits everyone. Then we bring it home and everyone has a job to do in the decoration.

"The big kids (Chris, 14; Barry, 13) handle the breakable ornaments, the younger ones (Stacy, 10; Carrie, 3) take care of the less fragile things.

"Me, I take care of stringing the lights and hanging the angel on the top of the tree, which is usually a 12-footer."



The Van Dykes attend the early Christmas Eve service at their church, the Brentwood Presbyterian. When they come home, Dick reads the St. Luke version of Jesus' birth. The children hang up their stockings, and Dick and wife Margie exchange gifts to each other. Christmas morning is for the kids.

"We've got it fixed now so they will wait until 7 a.m.," Dick remarked. "Everyone has to line up to enter the room at the same time. Each child goes to the place where he or she has been stacking his presents in the room. Then they start opening. All I have to do is keep separating the wrapping paper."

Friends drop in during the day, and the family sits down to a dinner in the afternoon.

HIS NINE LIVES

Morrisburg Shades Kingston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Morrisburg Combines held on to first place in the St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League with a 5-3 victory over fourth place Kingston Aces Tuesday night, but second - place Hull Volants stayed right at their heels with a 6-5 triumph over Ottawa Junior Montagnards.

Wayne Brown, B. Casselman, Brian Wilkinson, Bob Gillard, and Floyd Crawford shared the Combines' scoring at Morrisburg, while Wally Travis, with two, and Dave Jones tallied for Kingston.

At Ottawa, the Volants had a tough time holding off the last place Junior Monties as the Ottawa club lifted their goalie in favor of an extra attacker and had a couple of good scoring chances in the final minutes of this game.

Bob and Gil Seguin each scored twice for the Volants, with Bob Tilley and Jack Valiquette adding one each. Murray Kunzz had two goals for Ottawa, with others going to Jim Chiarelli, Dave Little and Dan Tremblay.

Christmas Story Brings Flood Of Callers to Assist Poor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's warmest Christmas story this season comes from the viewers.

Monday night, CBS news showed what Christmas — and every other day, for that matter — is like in Appalachia, where people are desperately poor and many are without hope.

Immediately after the program, CBS affiliate stations all over the country were flooded with calls from people who wanted to know what they could do to help, and where with Gwen Verdon.

they could send that help.

Neither the network nor its affiliates could handle such a situation. CBS quickly made arrangements with Salvation Army headquarters in New York City to set up a special "Appalachia Fund."

And the Salvation Army will see that the contributions help to brighten the lives of those unfortunate men, women and, particularly, children.

Most interesting mystery of Tuesday night's network schedule was how CBS's Red Skelton in his tramp role of Freddie the Freeloader could insert elegant Greer Garson into the show.

It was a clash for both Red and Greer—and they managed to toss in a lot of other things as well. The Hillcrest Drive Elementary School Choir (the credits gave no further identification of the delightful children); Miss Garson dressed as an elderly Covent Garden flower girl; Miss Garson in gorgeous evening gown reading the famous letter about Santa Claus written to a young girl 67 years ago by Frank Church of the New York Sun saying "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

It was a charming program and that Skelston is a wonderful ingratiating clown.

Outlook Bright for '65

A Surge of Power in Gasoline Industry

By BOB TRIBBEE

EDMONTON (CP)—Canada's petroleum industry moved boldly northward in 1964, a year that saw exploration proceed at an energetic pace. And there's promise of continued high development in 1965.

Most of the northern activity took place in Alberta. Together with more attractive Saskatchewan, exploration regulations, it produced a generally buoyant atmosphere in the industry.

Key centres of Alberta interest were the Slave Lake-Mitsue Lake-Hondo region, 125 miles northwest of Edmonton, and the vast Athabasca oil sands, 290 miles northeast of Edmonton.

When Alberta completes its 1964 petroleum industry tally, it is expected to show record government revenues of $140,000,000 from royalties, rentals and sales of Crown leases and reservations.

Sales in the Mitsue region alone accounted for $30,000,000 of the $60,000,000 the government realized from leases and reservations.

At the year's fourth and last major lease sale in Alberta, interest in the Mitsue Lake-Hondo region prompted oil companies to pour a record $33,764,000 into provincial coffers, surpassing the single-sale record set in 1958. That was also the year the old 12-month standard of $72,660,000 from Crown reserve and lease sales was established.

INDEPENDENTS PAY

It's significant that independent producers paid more than $5,000,000 for reserves in the region. Only a few weeks earlier, spokesmen for independents had warned that a new system of dividing markets among Alberta producers might prompt them to look elsewhere.

The independents contend that a new proration system, to be introduced over a four-year period starting May 1, 1965, favors the major integrated firms.

Until now production limits for each company have been related to the number of producing wells it has. The new system will base maximum production on reserves of any given field.

Alberta has been mildly fearful that the Independent producers might show signs of pulling out but this now seems unlikely.

The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board, which drew up the new proration system, made two other significant announcements during the year.

One involved rearrangement of terms for development of the Athabasca oil sands. The other approved bids by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Co. and Alberta and Southern Gas Ltd. for permits to export an additional 4,700,000 million cubic feet of natural gas from Alberta in the next 25 years. At today's price the additional exports are worth $975,000,000.

Trans-Canada also proposed a new $200,000,000 gas pipeline from the West into the United States and back into Canada at Sarnia, Ont.

The oil sands order involved raising the allowable production there to 47,000 barrels a day from 31,500. Production from the sands, which contain estimated reserves of 626,000 million barrels of oil, is scheduled to start in 1970. Total cost of the venture by Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. and Sun Oil Co. will be $190,000,000.

Natural gas officials said the increased exports will spark wide exploration and development programs to bolster Alberta reserves. Utility companies have asked, however, that the government take steps to ensure Alberta users are protected against future high prices because of the export demand.

During the year exploration also focused on offshore reserves in Hudson Bay by Richfield Oil Corp. and a continued effort by companies to bring about a solution to a provincial-federal dispute over ownership of offshore reserves.

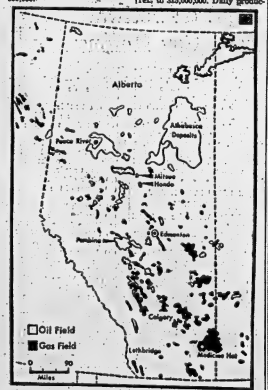
The companies are not concerned about immediate problems but rather the legal complications that would arise if a significant petroleum discovery were made.

OUTPUT UP

Production of all forms of crude increased about seven per cent in 1964 to about 850,000 barrels daily, 568,000 in Alberta, 225,000 in Saskatchewan, 37,000 in British Columbia and 12,000 in Manitoba.

Natural gas sales climbed about eight per cent to more than 2,300 million cubic feet daily.

Market demand, which outstripped production of crude by about 12,000 barrels daily sparked increased activity in Saskatchewan. This has also been aided by relaxation of regulations in the province.



In 1963 the CCF government initiated the first easement, primarily involving land regulations. The new Liberal administration followed with changes designed to encourage more drilling through offers of tax-free and royalty-free periods.

Saskatchewan now figures on revenues for 1964 of three to five million more than the $27,000,000 it received in 1963.

The heightened interest in riches oil sands in the north west, oil-bearing shale in the northeast and deep-well projects in the south.

Significant, too, is completion of a $10,000,000 waterflood project in the Weyburn field in the southeast. Largest of its kind in Canada, the project uses water to augment natural pressures that force oil to the surface.

Officials suggest it will extend the life of the field 20 years by boosting potential recoverable crude 178,000,000 barrels, to 315,000,000. Daily production in the field—with 44 companies involved in 44,000 acres—is expected to rise to 53,000 barrels in 1965 from 37,000, 1.4 million barrels in 1963 and 1.1 million in 1962.

GAS AND OIL FIELDS — Canada's petroleum industry moved northward in 1964, with most of the activity taking place in Alberta. Key centres of Alberta interest were the Slave Lake-Mitsue Lake-Hondo region, 125 miles northwest of Edmonton, and the Athabasca deposit. Production of all forms of crude oil in Canada increased about seven per cent in 1964 to about 850,000 barrels daily with 568,000 in Alberta. Natural gas sales climbed about eight per cent to more than 2,300 million cubic feet daily.

UN Assembly Debate Creates Scarcely a Spark

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United Nations General Assembly, almost forgotten in the glow of Congo and cold war fireworks, has plodded through three weeks of its annual policy debate, generating scarcely a spark.

The debate—which is not a debate at all but a series of often tedious policy statements—seldom produces the drama of Security Council cut-and-thrust or even of a committee meeting.

But this year it is generally conceded to be even drier and more repetitious than usual.

Only one or two speeches have been exciting enough to cause corridor comment.

Ireland's External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken delivered one of them, combining a cutting attack on Communist China with a plan for seating that country as a permanent member of the Security Council.

Polands Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, one of the few Communists listened to with respect in the West, came up with a proposal for a European security conference bringing in the Russians and Americans.

ADDS COLOR

Cubas Che Guevara, every inch the revolutionary in beard and black polished boots, added a note of color to the debate that even his detractors seemed to appreciate.

But in the main, the speech sounded like something that could have been produced with scissors and paste from all the other statements of this and other years.

One reason is that the speeches — and in private the diplomats are the first to admit it — are designed to a great extent for home consumption. Thus every sacred cow from each governments stable has to be paraded at length.

There are 35 countries in the African group alone, and each runs through a lexicon of anti-colonial charges.

There are 77 countries sclassed as "lesser - developed," and almost to a man their representatives chide the great powers' "restrictive" trade policies.

ATTACK ISRAEL

Each Arab speaker lacerates Israel and discusses the problem of Palestine refugees. Each Communist speaker goes over the United States for its policies on Cuba and Viet Nam.

All 115 countries, seemingly, are in favor of disarmament and say so at length.

The UN's constitutional crisis receives a lot of attention, with most of the small non - Communist countries arguing for retention by the assembly of "residual rights" in the peace-keeping field. France and the Soviet Union are leading the other side of the fight, for exclusive Security Council control.

Several of the smaller members, however, have treated the problem as essentially a U.S.-Soviet issue and expressed resentment that the big - power squabble is holding up other Assembly business.

Hungary's Foreign Minister Janos Peter even suggested facetiously — that the U.S. should cover travel expenses for delegates forced to return to the UN after Christmas because the Americans had held up the assembly's work.

"I TOLD Herbert they weren't our kind of people!"

Mulder's wife was shot and killed while sitting in a shack near her home.

Mulder was also taken to hospital and was reported improving. He is under police guard.

CANADIANS ON PATROL—Canadian Troops patrol a section of the Kyrenia Road on Cyprus. Canada sent a 1,130-man contingent to Cyprus in March when fighting broke out between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots and bore the full costs of its own contingent in Cyprus and by Christmas this amount had reached $3,915,000 excluding pay. Pay Peace More Than Lip Service

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada in 1964 mounted a persistent and pervasive diplomatic offensive in support of United Nations peace-keeping operations.

And it did more than talk. It sent a 1,126-man contingent to Cyprus in March for UN service when the communal strife between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots threatened to become island-wide butchery.

So concerned was the government over the necessity for a UN police force in Cyprus that it formed its avowed principle that the costs of peace-keeping should be a collective responsibility of UN members. Canada bore the full costs of its own contingent in Cyprus and by Christmas this amount had reached $3,915,000, excluding pay.

Most of the other contingents in the UN Cyprus force were paid for out of a voluntary fund which, however, was inadequately supported by UN members.

At the UN in December, External Affairs Minister Martin was a participant in the private negotiations concerning the financial crisis brought by the bitter dispute over peace-keeping costs.

Russia and some other countries have refused to pay their assessed share of UN peace-keeping operations in The Congo and Egypt and have thus risked loss of their votes in the General Assembly under Article 19 of the UN charter.

Canada has said that the application of Article 19 should be automatic in such cases but at the same time has tried to work out some method whereby Russia could make a payment without admitting any backing down on its refusal to pay in The Congo and Egypt operations.

In early November, a UN-Canada-sponsored, 23-nation conference met here to discuss in private the technical aspects of improving peace-keeping operations.

CRITICIZED BY MOSCOW

This meeting grew out of suggestions by Prime Minister Pearson for a pooling of ideas on peace-keeping and the formation of more national standby units for UN service. It did not discuss any political aspects such as financing.

Even so, the meeting drew a public blast from Russia that Canada and other countries, mainly NATO members, were trying to create a military apparatus for Western imperialism under the cover of the UN flag.

Mr. Martin declared there was no foundation whatever for the charge and at year's end there was no pooling nor some kind of follow-up meeting in 1965 in another capital.

The long peace-keeping road that still must be travelled was indicated by UN Secretary-General U Thant in his annual report.

Referring to offers by Canada and other countries of standby units for UN service, he said:

"I have welcomed the offers but have been in a position to do much more than this in the absence of any authorizing action by an appropriate organ of the UN, even though no expense to the organization would be involved until a contingent was called into actual UN service."

Mr. Martin apparently was undismayed. He said Canada would again be prepared to pay its own way on UN duty as in Cyprus.

In June, the UN force in The Congo was withdrawn and Canadian soldiers were among the last to leave.

Also in the summer, the UN observer mission in Yemen, to which Canada also contributed, was dissolved after two years.

Canada doubled its contribution to the 15-year-old UN mission in Kashmir to 16 men and maintained its UN contingents for observing in Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Korea.

Mr. Martin indicated Canada has become weary of its membership on the International Supervisory Commissions in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia but said it would continue as long as the nations that established them at Geneva in 1954 felt they were of any use at all.

Military aid in the form of instruction was continued for Nigeria and Ghana and consideration was being given to similar help for Tanzania and Malaysia.

Another worrisome matter for the government was the split in NATO between the United States and France on defense strategy. It criticized both the American and French positions and was trying to bring the two countries together for, as Mr. Martin put it, a real dialogue."

The government during the year gave deep consideration to the possible recognition of Communist China.

It indicated it is prepared to grant recognition and vote in favor of Red China's membership in the UN—provided something is done to preserve the independence of the Formosan people.

The government also kept under consideration the possibility of joining the Organization of American States.

NUCLEAR PLANT FOR INDIA — Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, crown company responsible for the federal government's nuclear research programs, is designing the nuclear portion of a 200,000-kilowatt nuclear power station being built by the Indian Department of Atomic Energy at Rana Pratap Sagar in the State of Rajasthan. The project will cost about $70 million and the Canadian government is making available credit facilities for the purchase of services, material and equipment from Canada to the amount of $35 million. The station will be a near duplicate of the Douglas Point Nuclear Power Station. (CP Photo)

SCHEDULED FOR COMPLETION IN 1965 — A construction crew fit the coolant tubes and end fittings on the end face of the reactor at the Douglas Point Nuclear Power Station, 130 miles northwest of Toronto. The $81,500,000 station, scheduled for completion in mid-1965, will produce nearly 700 million watts of heat. The 306 coolant tubes pass through the reactor vessel and hold the uranium fuel. Heavy water is passed through these tubes and picks up heat from the fuel. (CP Photo)

Two Mystery

the RCMP was conducted in French without notes being taken. It was "absolutely unfair" that the report of the interview should have been written in English because meanings could be changed.

Francois Even, counsel for the Creditistes, asked whether the Rivards were the type of people who would offer a bribe.

Chief Justice Dorion disallowed the question.

WAS 'FURIOUS'

At another point, Mr. Daoust said Rivard was "absolutely furious" when he found out about the alleged influence peddling by "Monsieur X" and Masson.

Mr. Daoust said he had agreed to the RCMP request that he make a written statement but that he had later changed his mind and submitted none.

He said he had not given the name Gingras to the RCMP as the police report had it.

Andre Desjardins, counsel for the commission, referred to a July 22 meeting in the Chez Son Pere restaurant between Mr. Daoust and Mr. Lamontagne.

He asked whether Mr. Lamontagne had said that he had been approached not to object to bail.

Mr. Daoust said this was possible.

OFFER MENTIONED?

Had Mr. Lamontagne mentioned a bribe offer?

Mr. Daoust said he couldn't remember. It might have been mentioned. He was tired out from two months of work on the case of Joe (Bananas) Bonanno and the weather was very hot.

Mr. Daoust said he was in Ottawa July 15 to discuss the Bonanno case with Mr. Tremblay and Mr. Denis. Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard and then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, had been present.

Mr. Drouin asked whether Mr. Daoust had received a telephone call July 20 from a certain Gingras.

DIDN'T KNOW HIM

Mr. Daoust said no, he didn't know any Gingras.

Mr. Drouin asked whether he knew a man named Gignac.

Mr. Daoust said he has learned a Gignac is charged with capital murder in Montreal and that Mr. Blais is representing a co-defendant of Gignac's.

Canadians Should Study Ways Eskimos Celebrate Christmas Says Teacher

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — School teacher Richard Fyfe says Canadians in the provinces could add to their Christmas spirit by studying the way Eskimos celebrate the holiday.

Now a curriculum expert with the education branch of the northern affairs department, Fyfe, 29, says the happiest Christmas he and his family have known were spent in remote Arctic settlements where he taught for three years.

There was no Santa Claus, few brightly-decorated Christmas trees and little exchanging of presents. But the community approach to the day made Christmas more meaningful and joyous, he said in an interview.

Fyfe, a native of Kindersley, Sask., took his wife and three small children to Coral Harbor on Southampton Island in 1961 and there they attended their first midnight church service on Christmas Eve. Afterwards they ate their fill of beans and took part in the square dancing at a community celebration put on by the missionaries.

On Christmas Day the Fyfes were introduced to the eastern Arctic custom of Eskimos visiting every white family in the settlement. Then came the traditional dogsled races, the igloo-building contests and other games that made almost every person a participant.

HOLD ANNUAL PARTY

The Fyfes had another taste of a northern Christmas at Great Whale River in northern Quebec where the RCAF holds an annual Christmas party for all of the settlement's 700 residents. But here too the Eskimo traditions are carried on with great community feasts and drum dancing.

Customs vary greatly in the eastern Arctic but all are centred in the community. At Pelly Bay or Baffinland Inlet great snow houses are erected and the drummer goes to the middle of a stage where he bangs his stick against the edge of a skin drum and dances at the same time.

When one drummer tires, others take his place.

Drum dances in the western Arctic are performed by three or four men. They sing as they dance.

But the old traditions are dying in the western Arctic as more and more whites move in. Christmas celebrations from Fort Smith on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border all the way up to Inuvik, near the Arctic coast, are much like those in Nova Scotia, Ontario or British Columbia.

Forty Armed Indonesians Land in Malaya

From AP-Reuters

KUALA LUMPUR (CP)—Police and troops today headed for the Pontian area, 150 miles southwest of here, after report of new landings by armed Indonesians in Malaysia.

Military sources said about 40 Indonesians carrying sten guns landed from two boats. It said villagers saw at least 20 of them.

An official military communique said the Indonesians captured two villagers but a third escaped and led security forces to the scene.

Pontian was the scene of the first Indonesian landing in the Malaysian Federation last August.

Indonesian President Sukarno has declared a policy of confrontation against the federation which links the former British colonies of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo).

Sukarno has labelled Malaysia an extension of neo-colonialism in Asia and has sworn to crush it.

Today's raid was the seventh raid on south Malaya and Singapore since August. At least 300 Indonesians were known to have been involved in the previous landings.

Lord Walston, Britain's foreign undersecretary, told the House of Lords Tuesday night there was no great hope of Indonesia easing its confrontation of Malaysia.

Speaking during a debate on foreign affairs, Lord Walston said that though it would not be right to say that confrontation was "hotting up," there were certainly no signs of its easing up or of its easing in the future.

Pigeon (Joliette - L'Assomption-Montcalm) said he wouldn't leave the party.

RESPECT VIEW

"I respect Mr. Balcer's view but he has his opinion and I have mine. There is no question of me leaving the Conservatives."

Remi Paul (Berthier - Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) was continuing to get the views of his electorate. "Of those I have spoken to so far, no one reproached me for wishing, possibly, to dissociate myself from the leader of the Conservative party."

But Howard Graffrey (Bronsc-Missisquoi) said: "I have never considered, I am not now considering, and I never shall consider running as an independent. I'll never entertain the thought."

And Theogene Ricard (St. Hyacinthe - Bagot) said: "I've been elected as a Conservative four times and I am still a Conservative.

Sharp differences between Mr. Diefenbaker and his Quebec leader erupted over the flag issue. The new maple leaf flag was supported by the eight Quebec Conservatives who were in the chamber for the final vote.

DENIES OBSTRUCTION

The opposition leader said the Conservative flag fight was not obstruction, as suggested by Mr. Balcer.

"... I represented the view point of the Conservative party. The caucus gave me the instructions and I carried them out.

"Certainly in a political party as in any organization one can't always get ones own way."

Meanwhile, the open split between Mr. Diefenbaker and his Quebec lieutenant—who he described last year as a French-Canadian leader with a national stature comparable to Sir George - Etienne Cartier — has reopened other older cracks in the party.

Former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness, who quit his cabinet in February, 1963, said the blame for the current rift rests with Mr. Diefenbaker.

"There is no question that Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership is the basic reason Leon Balcer and other Quebec MPs are so dissatisfied they are talking of leaving the party."

If unity is to be restored in the party, he said, Mr. Diefenbaker must be replaced as leader.

In Peaceful Nuclear Power

1965: Big Year for Canada

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Six significant developments will make 1965 perhaps the most important year in Canada's 14-year drive to build large-scale nuclear power plants that will produce economic electricity.

It will be the year in which the Canadian program changes from one of research and development to the actual construction of nuclear stations producing power more cheaply than coal-fired thermal plants.

The first major event will be the completion in mid-1965 of Canada's first large-scale nuclear station by Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, Crown company responsible for the federal government's nuclear research program.

This $81,500,000 station, located on Lake Huron at Douglas Point, Ont., some 130 miles northwest of Toronto, will develop 200,000 kilowatts of electricity. The cost will be between five and six mills a kilowatt hour, compared with about 4½ for a modern coal plant.

However, experience gained from construction of this plant and its operation over a one- or two-year period are expected to enable scientists to build stations which will produce power below four mills a kilowatt hour.

This information will be used in the design and construction of a $288,000,000 nuclear power station to be located east of Toronto. This station will produce 1,000,000 kilowatts from two 500,000-kilowatt units.

READY IN 1970

Scientists with Atomic Energy of Canada are confident this Canadian-designed plant, using natural uranium and heavy water, will produce power well below four mills a kilowatt hour.

The two 500,000-kilowatt units will be the first stage of a nuclear power project for the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario with an eventual output of 2,000,000 kilowatts. The station later may be expanded to six units producing 3,000,000 kilowatts.

Construction of the two 500,000 - kilowatt units will start early in 1965 after the station's site has been approved by the Atomic Energy Control Board. The site is expected to be at Fairport, on Lake Ontario four miles east of Metropolitan Toronto.

The third significant development of 1965 will be completion of a new type of nuclear research reactor at the Whiteshell Nuclear Research Establishment, 60 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

EXPECT OVERSEAS SALE

Present Canadian research reactors and power plants use natural uranium as a fuel. In power plants heavy water is used as a moderator to make the atomic fission process possible and to remove heat from the reactor to turn ordinary water into steam to drive electric turbines.

In the Whiteshell reactor, tests will be made on the use of an organic liquid instead of heavy water to remove heat from the reactor. This would reduce the capital costs of power plants because organic liquids are considerably cheaper than heavy water.

The fourth development is the likely sale to Pakistan by Canadian General Electric Company Limited of a Canadian-designed nuclear power plant. This 350,000,000 plant would produce some 132,000 kilowatts, slightly less than the 270,000,000-kilowatt plant Canada sold to India in late 1963.

In the field of research Atomic Energy of Canada may decide early in 1965 to embark on a new multi-million-dollar development program to bring one new being built at Glace Bay, N.S., will not produce enough heavy water to meet increasing Canadian requirements.

A new concept for raising steam in nuclear power plants. Natural uranium still would be used as a fuel and heavy water as the moderator. However, ordinary water would be used as the coolant or heat transfer medium.

A decision is expected to be made by the end of January. If it's favorable, a 200,000-kilowatt plant will be built by 1972, preceded by a 20,000-kilowatt experimental plant four years earlier.

The sixth significant development in 1965 will be the acceptance by Atomic Energy of Canada of an industry proposal to build a second heavy water plant in Canada.

Industry has been invited to submit proposals for construction of a second plant because one now being built at Glace Bay, N.S., will not produce enough heavy water to meet increasing Canadian requirements.

Robarts Proposes Modified Ensign As Ontario Flag

Immediately Accepted By Liberal Leader

TORONTO (CP)—A distinctive flag for Ontario was proposed Wednesday by Premier Robarts.

His choice: The Red Ensign, but containing Ontario's coat of arms.

The idea was immediately accepted by Liberal Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson.

"I think with the Red Ensign as a background it makes a most appropriate design for an Ontario flag," he said.

But Donald C. MacDonald, the New Democratic Party leader, was quick to criticize the proposal.

It would be interpreted as meaning "well, the Tories lost out in Ottawa, but they're jolly well going to have their way here," he said.

An expert on heraldry suggested the legislature will probably make some changes in Mr. Robarts's recommended flag.

Putting the full Ontario coat of arms on the Ensign would give it a highly cluttered appearance, this source said.

The coat of arms includes a shield, a bear, a deer, a moose, and a motto.

The expert suggested that the legislature might whittle the coat of arms down to the shield alone.

Mr. Robarts said the government had decided to go ahead with a provincial flag in view of the adoption by the federal Parliament of the maple leaf emblem as Canada's national flag.

He said he would discuss the proposal with Mr. Thompson and Mr. MacDonald. If necessary, the flag question could be submitted to an all-party committee of the legislature.

However, Mr. Robarts said he wanted to make clear that the decision to adopt a provincial flag would in no way detract from the official Canadian flag.

"When and where the new provincial flag will be flown will be determined by usage and custom, and rules as to use may be established in the years to come," he said.

The Red Ensign would signify clearly Ontario's connection with the Crown and symbolize its attachment to the traditions of common law and the parliamentary system inherited from the United Kingdom, he said.

Russia Rejects Proposal

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Hopes for a pre-Christmas settlement of the UN crisis over peace - keeping debts disappeared Wednesday as hectic negotiations failed to win over the Soviet Union to a generally accepted settlement plan.

The Russians rejected key points in the plan in a surprise move early Wednesday and stood by their positions in meetings later in the day.

Alex Quaison - Sackey of Ghana, president of the General Assembly, announced that an assembly meeting planned for today had been put off until next Tuesday.

Quaison - Sackey had made a last - ditch attempt to get agreement by calling in representatives from the big four powers and the various regional groupings for a meeting late in the day.

But Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko told a reporter afterward that the Russian position remains unchanged.

Western diplomats conceded that the new turn of events had sharply increased the possibility of a damaging showdown over Russia's voting right in the assembly.

ARMISTICE ONLY

"Let's say there has been an armistice, but no peace treaty," U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson commented after Wednesday's meeting.

Canadian Ambassador Paul Tremblay said only that he was "very disappointed" by the Russian attitude.

The settlement plan, worked out by Quaison - Sackey and Secretary - General U Thant in co-operation with the Afro-Asian group, would have provided for a fund into which debtor countries could make indirect payments in lieu of assessments they consider illegal.

Thant knows he must report about mid-January on the extent of the contributions. If the amount given by the Russians, French and other debtors were acceptable, the question of their voting rights under the charter's Article 19 would be dropped.

But the Russians insisted the Article 19 issue be dropped immediately and that the assembly go ahead on a normal basis.

"We are ready to proceed with the normal work of the assembly at any time," Fedorenko said.

The United States rejected such a procedure.

Nasser Ready to Cut Aid

CAIRO (CP) — Relations between the United States and the United Arab Republic deteriorated further today in the wake of a speech by President Nasser telling the Americans in effect to take their foreign aid and "go to hell."

Speaking in Port Said Wednesday, Nasser accused U.S. Ambassador Lucius Battle of trying to put economic pressure on the U.A.R. and said:

"Anyone who does not like our attitude can drink from the sea. And if the Mediterranean is not big enough, we will give him the Red Sea to drink, too."

To "drink from the sea" is Egyptian slang equivalent of to "go to the devil" or "go to hell."

Nasser said Ambassador Battle had refused to discuss renewing the supply of American surplus food because of recent U.A.R. conduct.

No official U.S. comment was available immediately in Washington, but U.S. officials indicated that a request by Nasser for $35,000,000 worth of surplus food will be denied without further consideration because of his help to the Congolese rebels.

Nasser's challenge to cut off aid at a time when the U.A.R. faces a serious economic difficulties and shortages of foods came in a fiery speech marking the eighth anniversary of the withdrawal of British and French troops from the Suez Canal area in 1956.

Nasser said the U.A.R. had been sending aid to the rebels in The Congo and would continue to do so. He said Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe was a "murderer" and an "imperialist agent" of the U.S. and Belgium.

"We do not accept any words against us and we will cut off the tongue of anyone who uses them. We do not need their money."

The U.S. has been supplying the U.A.R. about $140,000,000 a year under a three-year agreement that expires next June 30. Nasser's government had asked for an additional $35,000,000 worth for the coming year.

Nasser also accused Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, the Shah of Iran, of being "a stooge of imperialism and Zionism."

Soviet Deputy Premier Alexander Shelepin was begged Wednesday to "please" hold the peace.

But the Soviet people will always stand by your side under all conditions, and let everybody rest assured of this."

Most of Canada Can Expect Traditional White Christmas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A traditional white Christmas is expected for most of Canada Friday, but in southern Ontario it may be more of a wet Christmas.

Southern Ontario, fog - bound Wednesday night, can look forward to colder weather for Christmas Day with little hope of a snowfall to replace the rain.

The Maritimes will also have rain and temperatures will be unseasonably mild, says the weather office. But snow that has fallen heavily will probably be around for the holiday. The rest of Canada can expect varying thicknesses of snow.

Toronto City was bombarded with a storm Wednesday that left a foot of snow and a host of accidents behind. Near Montreal, 15 persons were injured in a three - way collision between a car, truck and a bus on a slippery highway.

The storm and the rush of Christmas week has resulted in 19 deaths in traffic and fires in

No Signs Of Yielding In Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — Neither of the United States nor South Vietnamese military leaders showed signs of yielding today in their showdown over military interference in South Viet Nam's government.

On the U.S. side, informed sources said that the United States probably would withhold important new aid expected in Saigon for the South Vietnamese war effort in about a month unless the crisis is settled within a few days.

4,800 Canadians Expected to Lose Lives Next Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Highway Safety Council forecast Wednesday that 4,800 Canadians will lose their lives on the country's highways next year—300 more than in 1964—with 140,000 injured and an economic loss of $500,000,000.

Although figures for 1964 are not complete, the council estimates that 4,900 Canadians will have been killed and more than 130,000 injured on the roads by the end of the year.

Rivard Case Never Discussed With Lamontagne Says Tremblay

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dorion inquiry heard Wednesday that bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides to Lucien Cardin breathed new life after a 50-minute appearance in the witness box by Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay Wednesday.

The testimony by Mr. Tremblay, first cabinet minister summoned by the commission headed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court, was mainly confined to his July 14 meeting in Montreal with Conservative MP and real lawyer Pierre Lamontagne.

Mr. Lamontagne has testified that Raymond Denis, Then executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay, offered him a $20,000 bribe in the minister's office July 14 —with Mr. Tremblay absent—to agree to bail for Lucien Rivard, wanted in the U.S. for smuggling heroin for the Mafia criminal syndicate.

Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins said Mr. Tremblay will be called again to testify on other aspects of the case.

The list of witnesses for next week's hearings Monday and Wednesday only—includes Guy Lord, former executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau; Ronald Crevier, former RCMP sergeant in charge of the Montreal narcotics squad; an RCMP constable Poisson; an unidentified Guy Masson; Robert Gignac, charged with capital murder in Montreal; Eddie Lechasseur, charged with fraud in Montreal; and Mrs. Rivard, whose husband is in Bordeaux Jail in Montreal.

Mr. Tremblay said he was introduced by Mr. Denis to Mr. Lamontagne after the Commons adjourned on the evening of July 14.

He said he had spoken briefly with Mr. Lamontagne about the case in the Commons lobby. Bob Lamontagne, a Mafia figure who left Canada July 30 after valnly trying to obtain Canadian citizenship by saying he was a businessman from Arizona.

Mr. Lamontagne then was acting for the federal government, but later was working for the U.S. government, which is trying to have Rivard extradited to Laredo, Tex., to face dope smuggling charges.

Mr. Tremblay said he and Mr. Lamontagne "at no time" discussed the Rivard case which, he said, was not an immigration or extradition matter. He had never met Mr. Lamontagne before.

Norman Mathews, RCMP counsel, said Mr. Tremblay had made no statement to the RCMP and hadn't been asked for one.

Mr. Matthews asked whether the minister on or before July 14 had instructed Mr. Denis to request Mr. Lamontagne to come to Ottawa to discuss the Bonanno case with himself or with Mr. Denis.

"No," said Mr. Tremblay.

Lawyers then dealt at some length with the Bonanno case, though Mr. Tremblay said he couldn't see its relationship with the Rivard case.

Raymond Daoust, a lawyer for Bonanno, Rivard and Lechasseur, had testified earlier he had a meeting in Ottawa July 15 on the Bonnano case with Mr. Denis and Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard who resigned as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister

Bullets Whine Over Jerusalem On Eve of Annual Peace Gesture

JERUSALEM (AP)—The Jerusalem wall was opened today in an annual gesture of peace between Arabs from Israel and Christmas reunion with families in Jordan.

Thirty-mph wind blew a grey drizzle across the Holy City at 6:30 a.m. as the first of an expected 4,000 Christian Arabs trudged through the Mandelbaum Gate.

They came despite a new clash in continuing Arab - Israeli strife which brought bullets whistling between Jordanian and Israeli positions Wednesday and a Jordanian complaint to the United Nations truce supervisory organization.

Gunfire from rifles and automatic weapons broke out around Israeli-held Mount Scopus, surrounded by Jordan, and echoed in the hills for 75 minutes before UN observers brought about a truce.

Stretcher bearers under white UN flags could be seen evacuating men from the Israeli side. Reports at the scene said three Israelis were wounded, but an official Jordan statement made no mention of casualties.

28 Persons Die, Officials Stop Estimating Loss

Savage Pacific Storm Now Covers Six States

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thousands of victims in five flood-stricken western states were homeless on this Christmas Eve, and more joined in the exodus to escape new flooding as rain pounded the afflicted areas for the third consecutive day.

The savage Pacific storm sent dozens of mountain rivers spilling into scores of cities and towns in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho.

At least 28 persons have died and more than 5,000 left homeless. Damage has been so great that officials have stopped estimating.

Parts of every state have been declared disaster areas. Air force, navy, national guard, Red Cross, coast guard, and civil defence units were working around the clock with local officials to rescue thousands stranded by high water, slides and snow.

Rain and winds slackened briefly Wednesday but another low pressure system moved in from the Pacific and the heavy downpour resumed. The weather bureau forecast rain and strong winds from northern California to Washington through Friday.

In California's rugged north, hundreds of persons were trapped, without food or medicine, clinging to rooftops or perched in islands awaiting rescue.

Every town along the Eel River in northwestern California was inundated. In the hamlet of Rio Dell, town officials ordered police and power poles toppled to convert the main street into an emergency landing strip. About 2,000 refugees waited for helicopters to rescue them.

TOWN IS GONE

Pepperwood, population 300, is gone—nothing visible but a few tree tops above the sea of water, air observers reported.

Civil defence officials have written off the flooded communities of South Forty, Myers Flat, Stafford and Weott, whose residents fled Tuesday.

Further north, near the coastal city of Eureka, about 1,000 refugees, including women and small children, stood on high sections of U.S. 101 waving to helicopters that came with relief supplies.

California's 14 flood - stricken counties, with their total population of 838,200, cover 37,802 square miles—much of it wooded, mountainous terrain that makes rescue operations and communications almost impossible.

The aircraft carrier Bennington steamed toward Eureka today to add its 20 helicopters to those of the coast guard.

A large food store in Oakland opened 40,000 pounds of canned goods and produce items stranded in San Francisco to Eureka and promised unlimited credit to victims.

A 20 - man search party plowed through dense underbrush 20 miles north of Eureka toward the wreckage of a coast

Financially Shaky Britain Enjoys Biggest Spending Spree Since War

LONDON (CP) — Pushing a financial crisis into the backs of their minds, Britons are preparing to indulge themselves in their richest, most free-spending Christmas since the end of the Second World War.

Westherners hold out few hopes for a white Christmas, but the way Londoners are spending money it could well end up as a red Christmas as far as their bank balances are concerned.

Every major West End shop reports the crowds have been thicker, their wallets fatter and their tastes more expensive than ever before.

Jewellers report a brisk demand for ₤400 gold watches and wine merchants say single orders for Christmas spirits worth ₤1,000 are not unusual.

One store specializing in handmade rocking horses at ₤45 each have sold out. There has been a tremendous demand for gaudily-powered kiddiecars at more than ₤100.

Travel agents and cruise directors report increasing numbers of Britons are forsaking domestic Yuletide hearths for holiday camps or the sunny Mediterranean.

The spending spree is not always voluntary. During the last 10 weeks more than 2,000 common commodities have increased in price. Recent tax boosts account for part of the higher cost o. living.

But manufacturers blame the higher gasoline tax and the 15 - per - cent import surcharge for the price increases.

With prospects of an abundance of Christmas cheer, police, motoring organizations and the transport ministry have gone all out to cut down on drunken driving during the four - day Christmas holiday. Last Christmas, 145 people were killed on British roads.

A national poster campaign, featuring gruesome scenes of car crashes, has succeeded in sparking a country-wide catch phrase with the legend: "Don't ask a man to drink and drive."

Bomb Blast Injures 66 In Saigon

SAIGON (Reuters) — A 100-pound plastic bomb exploded in the biggest U.S. officers' quarters in Saigon today, injuring 66 persons but no one American was reported severely hurt.

A U.S. military spokesman said the blast injured 52 Americans, one Australia nand 13 South Vietnamese.

The blast damaged one half of the six-storey building so badly that officials said it might have to be torn down. Firemen used ladders to evacuate people from the upper floors and the rooftop restaurant.

Wounded Americans and South Vietnamese women and children were seen being taken to hospital in ambulances and taxis.

Shattered glass littered the front of the luxury Caravelle and Continental hotels and the sidewalk of fashionable Catinat Street.

Bars on some windows at the National Assembly Building near the American quarters were bent by the blast.

The Christmas Eve explosion occurred just before six p.m. while shoppers still strolled in the streets.

Streets around the billet known as The Brink were littered with debris including tinsel and pine tree branches from Christmas trees in the American quarters.

Police cordoned away two South Vietnamese women staggering through the crowd with badly cut, blood-smeared faces.

Belleville city council will meet in special session Monday afternoon to consider a report from the joint city-county hospital committee regarding the new increased estimated costs for the Belleville General Hospital extension expected to be started next year.

Council will be asked to approve of an estimated overall figure of $7,940,000 which would be reduced by government grants leaving a net estimated figure of $5,063,000.

Under the joint ownership agreement, hospital capital costs are shared 65 per cent by the city and 35 per cent by the county.

Hasting county council at its December session approved of the new estimated hospital cost figure.

Following Monday's special session, city council will go into caucus to consider committee and board appointments for 1965.

Train Traffic Through City Very Heavy

All trains filled with at least four sections of fast trains No. 6 and No. 13 on Thursday.

That's the Canadian National passenger traffic picture for trains passing through Belleville during the pre-Christmas holiday rush.

Rideau Area passenger sales manager Kenneth Fleming said today that the Christmas holiday rush actually began last Friday when extra sections were put on to handle homegoing university students. The extra train sections have been continued all this week with peak traffic expected today and this evening.

"At the moment we can see all trains filled," said Mr. Fleming, "but it is something we have to play by ear. The weather actually plays a big part."

Reservations of train accommodation is playing a big part this year in helping to reduce train time schedules.

And to help handle the big holiday train crowds, additional personnel are riding on all trains.

Albert College Students Help Needy Families

Before leaving for an extended Christmas holiday last week, Albert College students selected four needy families from the Belleville Fire Department list, in order to provide them with Christmas goodies including turkey with all the trimmings, clothing and gifts for children.

While this is a regular annual Christmas project of the Students' Council, this year's quota of families was the largest yet.

Allowances, pocket money and personal contributions from the students swelled the fund to over $180 before President Gwyn Pentabach and committee set out to make the purchases. Hampers of groceries and gifts were delivered yesterday by College representatives.

Santa Visits Public School

DESERONTO — With sirens blowing and dear old Santa waving merrily from the rear, the Deseronto fire truck ushered Santa into the Deseronto Public School on Tuesday, December 22nd.

Excitement and utter amazement shone on the faces of the 250 children who witnessed this unbelievable event. With the capable assistance of Fire Chief Al Fraser, and his two assistants Don Kimmett, Ralph Lawlor and Don Whitton, Santa presented each child in pre-Christmas delightful treat. With his good deed accomplished Santa hustled on his merry way.

The staff and students of the Deseronto Public School wish to extend their thanks to the Deseronto Fire Department for their thoughtful and generous act.

In former years the Deseronto Home and School Association provided the Christmas treat. This organization is not active this year.

Phone Traffic Will Break All Records

Once again telephone traffic during Christmas and New Year promises to break all previous records.

For Belleville and vicinity, a 20 per cent increase over last year is anticipated for both long distance and local seasonal messages, according to D. C. Curry local manager of the Bell Telephone Company. Furthermore an 18 per cent increase in Canadian calls overseas is being forecast for the holiday season, an increase of 2,700 calls over last year. Most of the 17,000 expected calls will be handled by the Bell Telephone Overseas Exchange in Montreal. On the other hand, some 17,000 calls from overseas are expected in Canada. Locally, many will be peak Christmas and New Year's eve, especially between midnight and noon.Over and above the 300 local calls during each peak period, many of the 19,000 local customers can expect approximately 8,500 long distance calls.

The tremendous increase in long distance calling will require duty staff to be on duty during peak periods. Nevertheless, said Mr. Curry, customers will benefit from reduced rates from 8.00 p.m. Dec. 24 to 4.30 p.m. Dec. 26 and from 8.00 p.m. Dec. 31 to 4.30 p.m. Jan. 2.

By planning their long distance calls ahead, customers will find the telephone their most convenient and personal messenger of Season's greetings.

Firing Squad San Salvador's Cure for Drinking Drivers, In China They Are Home Free

TORONTO — Police throughout the world will, no doubt, be somewhat less than Christian (i.s. charitable and forgiving) towards drinking drivers this Christmas!

With some few exceptions, they will clobber the drinking driver with season's greetings and best wishes made up of quotas of families was the largest yet.

Morality, of course, because they happen to have our own safety at heart!

Police attitudes over Christmas and New Year's, in various countries, were checked by the public service division of the British Motor Corporation of Canada Limited.

These were the findings:

Red China, oddly enough, where Mao, not Santa, wears the fur-trimmed red suits suit, is the only country where there positively won't be drunk and or drunk driving charges laid!

Since Red China assumes that all drivers are drunk, it has no such charges as impaired or drunk driving!

PENALTY . . . DEATH

At the other extreme is San Salvador, which has one simple, sobering solution to the problem of the drinking driver, whether it's Christmas, New Year's, or any other time of the year:

Execution by a firing squad!

BMC's world-wide survey revealed that the drinking driver at Christmas and New Year's is primarily a U.K., Scandinavian and North American problem. In most countries, the festive season is primarily a religious holiday — a time for comparatively quiet observance among family and friends. Any wining up is done at New Year's, and the police in those countries treat drinking driver just as they would at any other time of the year.

Which means they throw the book at them!

The same applies in the U.K. Norway, Sweden, Denmark, the U.S., and Canada, where Christmas—and especially New Year's —is often apt to be more rollicking than religious.

CALGARY SOFT SPOT

In only one city — Calgary, Alberta — did the survey reveal any attempt on the part of the police to make special allowances for the New Year's drinking driver.

A special "Courtesy Squad" in Calgary, mobilized on lightweight motor-scooters, answers calls from motorists, bundles the scooter into their car-trunk, and chauffeurs them home.

In some other cities throughout Canada and the U.S., service and other public-spirited clubs offer chauffeurs as a New Year's public service — and in still others, enterprising individuals and companies offer "safe-home" services, at a price!

In Vancouver, a co-operative allows party-hopping motorists three calls for $10, and in Toronto, a leading firm clamps an Austin Mini to your bumper and drives you safely home for $1.75, plus 25 cents for each mile after the first three!

DRINKING YARDSTICK

Whatever the local arrangements, or lack of them, in your town this festive season, BMC offers you the scientific "rule-of-arm" for elbow-bending drivers:

Based on alcohol content in the blood, providing you have eaten and rested recently, it suggests that a man or woman of 100 pounds is impaired after having consumed four normal-sized drinks, four bottles of beer, or four glasses of wine in any one hour.

If you weigh 120 pounds: five drinks; 140 pounds: roughly the same; 150 pounds: six drinks; 160 pounds: roughly the same; 170 pounds: roughly the same; 180 pounds: seven drinks; 200 pounds and over: eight drinks.

If these drinks were not taken within one hour, simply deduct one drink from the total number of drinks for each hour that elapsed before the first and last drink.

And remember: This consumption-scale means that you are impaired, by law—and incapable of the proper control of your car!

Pearson when Mr. Lamontagne's charges became public in the Commons last month.

Mr. Dacost said he was trying to have the expulsion order against Bonanno lifted but had been informed July 9 that his request had been rejected.

Mr. Dacost also said he had suggested $20,000 bail for Bonanno's lawyer.

DIDNT RECALL

He didn't recall whether Mr. Rouleau had suggested such an interview to him, but the meeting had taken place in Mr. Rouleau's office, though he didn't know whether Mr. Rouleau was present.

Ross Drouin, Conservative Party counsel, added that a copy of the letter which Mr. Pearson has had sent concerning a Bonanno case interview be filed with the commission.

Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, suggested that there is no letter from Mr. Dacost, seeking an interview in the Bonanno case, dated before July 16 in the records of the immigration department.

He said it has been taken for granted that such a letter exists. If one didn't, he wanted to see it, Mr. Tremblay at one the point.

Mr. Fortier said the first letter was dated July 16, two days before Mr. Denis met Mr. Lamontagne and one day before Mr. Dacost has said he discussed Bonanno with Mr. Denis.

Mr. Tremblay agreed and Chief Justice Dorion ordered Jules Deschenes, government counsel, to enter it as an exhibit.

Mr. Deschenes protested, saying the minister had agreed to produce the letter and that it was unfair to suggest it didn't exist.

Mr. Tremblay said he would be very surprised if the letter doesn't exist.

Mr. Fortier suggested that the minister had seen an accident free Christmas.

The cooperation of all drivers in observing all rules of the road will be greatly appreciated," the Inspector said.

The Inspector said that accident records prove that inattention on the part of the driver is the No. 1 cause of highway mishaps.

It will be Christmas at work for police highway patrols. All personnel will be on patrol in an effort to keep accidents as low as possible.

"Keep your eyes on the road and observe all traffic regulations," the Inspector urged drivers.

The one we lost and loved so well,
But do we forget you Bill?
No Bill
In our hearts you are always here,
We made the sunny days so dear

High Standings In Studies for Two Principals

Two city public school principals, D. J. Lockyer, Prince of Wales School, and R. D. Horwood, Sir Mackenzie Bowell School, have received high standing in studies toward their master in education degrees.

Mr. Lockyer has completed requirements for his degree from the University of Toronto, while Mr. Horwood has received first class honors on the first two subjects leading to his degree.

Studies for their masters degree are being taken by the two local principals by way of summer classes with winter reading courses.

Police Appeal For Accident Free Christmas

An appeal for motorist cooperation in all holiday driving was voiced today by Provincial Police Inspector A. McDougall, who has undertaken an accident free Christmas.

"The cooperation of all drivers in observing all rules of the road will be greatly appreciated," the Inspector said.

The Inspector said that accident records prove that inattention on the part of the driver is the No. 1 cause of highway mishaps.

It will be Christmas at work for police highway patrols. All personnel will be on patrol in an effort to keep accidents as low as possible.

"Keep your eyes on the road and observe all traffic regulations," the Inspector urged drivers.

PEACE ON EARTH is the traditional Yuletide wish expressed by this huge spotlighted Christmas card shining from the lawn of a Campbell Street residence. Outside Christmas decorations are gaining in favor each year, with this year's lighting display being the greatest ever.

Two CN Trains Get New Cars

MONTREAL—Two new types of passenger cars will go into service between now and early January on Canadian National Railways' Montreal - Maritime trains. "Skyview" cars, which combine sleeping and lounge accommodation with the lounge section featuring a partially glassed roof at the rear, will be added today to the Montreal-Campbellton passenger train, the Chaleur. The skyview cars are unique in Canada. Six were acquired earlier this year by the railway and their interiors have been completely redecorated to meet CN standards. The first two of the series go on the Chaleur today, but on Jan. 9 when another unit will be ready the three will be transferred to the Scotian, running between Halifax and Montreal.

When the interior design work is completed on the other Skyview cars, about the end of January, they will be put on the Scotian's twin train, the Ocean Limited. Designed to be the last unit on a passenger train, the Skyview car has a rounded end. There are eight double bedrooms in the car and a lounge which accommodates 14 passengers. The walls and ceiling of the car's rear lounge section are glass-enclosed to provide unobstructed viewing.

Also in January another new type of skyview car will go on the Scotian and Ocean Limited. These will be redesigned bedroom-buffet-lounge cars with a lounge section similar to the club-lounge cars on the Montreal-Vancouver trains, the Panorama and the Super Continental. Proven from CN's existing passenger fleet, and refurnished then have been refurnished throughout and have a smooth-appointed lounge complete with modern art work.

Early in the new year these both the Scotian and the Ocean Limited will feature cars from the two new series.

Dies in Collision

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—One person was killed and four others were injured in a two-car head-on collision just west of here Wednesday night.

Dead is Robert Arnold Boswell, 39, of Port Credit, Ont. The four others were taken to hospital in serious condition but police withheld names pending notification of next of kin.

Museum Attracts Visitors

The Christmas display at the Hastings County Museum continues to attract record attendances.

Last weekend about 100 persons visited the display and several groups of young people and teachers have toured the exhibits.

Commencing Saturday the museum will be open every day during the holidays, weekdays from 2 to 9 and Sundays from 2 to 5.

These longer hours are an experiment for the local museum and museum officials have their fingers crossed. They are hoping that many persons visiting Belleville and district as well as local residents will take this opportunity to visit the museum.

All visitors receive a reproduction of an 1880 puzzle card and museum officials point out that these cards have created considerable interest.

In fact, a local music teacher purchased 45 sets of the cards recently as gifts for her pupils.

PLANES GROUNDED

In southern Ontario, the fog grounded all flights at Toronto International Airport at the height of the holiday crush. Many passengers took to trains before the fog lifted.

Temperatures across Canada Wednesday ranged from an arctic 41 degrees below zero at Snag in the Yukon to a balmy 42 above in Victoria, Windsor, Ont., and Toronto, and 40 above in Halifax.

The forecast for Christmas Day in the Maritimes is for dull, damp and mild weather. A storm from the United States mid-west was expected to move into northern Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, keeping skies gloomy Friday.

Quebec City can count on milder weather, but it will continue cloudy. Montreal and the Laurentians face the possibility of occasional drizzles. No further onslaught of snow is predicted.

Central Ontario may have wet snow or rain, but Northern Ontario is in the path of a storm from the U.S. which could drop snow in the area.

No signs of a warmer day are in store for the Prairie Provinces. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have been hit by heavy snowfall and below - zero temperatures.

In British Columbia, the weather office is predicting a white Christmas for the first time since 1951 in the lower Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island.

The Christmas Feast

Christmas is a feast, first celebrated in the fourth century after Christ's death on the Cross and His Resurrection.

There could be no Christmas without Christ, but even after Christ's birth there was no Christmas for hundreds of years, because the world still clung to an old custom. It celebrated the anniversaries of deaths instead of births, ends instead of beginnings.

Christmas, then, represents the first recognition that it is beginnings, not endings, which give occasion for joy.

If it were not so, there would be no occasion for celebration, for what started that starlit night in Bethlehem is not yet ended. The Brotherhood of Man has yet to be achieved.

Yet is there cause for rejoicing. For the Fatherhood of God has provided a Guide, the life amongst men of His Son.

Down through the centuries, Christmas has gathered unto itself a mixed bag of customs. Most of them, though, because they spring out of man's need for companionship with his fellow men, his hopes for a better future, his trust in a loving Father, do no insult to the Birthday of the gentle Jesus.

Christmas is the Christ in a manger, but it is also the laughing eyes of a child before the Christmas tree which dates back to the Romans. It is the Wise Men, following a star, but it is also the man of the house, carving the turkey and nourishing the bodies of his offspring. It is the Virgin cradling the Holy Child, and the tired mother tucking her little ones into bed before filling their stockings. It is the angels singing to Shepherds in the field, the priest performing the ancient ritual at midnight and children's voices blending in carols before a blazing fire. It is gifts from the stores and gifts from the heart and the Gift of the centuries.

It is new beginnings, dreaming their promise from the New Beginning. It is God's love and man's need, man's old hates, too, and his new hopes, his awful past and his future woes, out of the mists of time's beginning into the mists of Eternity, all he has been and known, all he hopes to be and to know, illumined for a season by blessed hope, by joy and the urge to express it, a feast-time for all men of good will.

Will Pope Visit America?

Pope Paul's recent visit to India where he met the Oriental people and their religious leaders was an excellent way of dispelling prejudice and promoting understanding. The question is when will he visit North America?

In North America exist all the major religious sects of the western world—Anglicans, Presbyterians, United Church, and Lutherans to name just a few, plus over 50 million Roman Catholics.

In India, Paul overcame prejudice and promoted understanding by treating the country's religious leaders as equals and by mingling with the people. The respect he showed for their religions gained respect for his in return.

Pope Paul's creating international understanding of Catholicism and asking his people to understand the other religions of the world serves a purpose.

His wish is that the religions of the world realize they have a number of similar beliefs. This he publicly announced last year.

Towards this end, visiting North America to discuss these similarities with the leaders of the major western religious sects would be an excellent move.

It would prove to the western groups that he is truly interested in their teachings and desirous of establishing what the common beliefs are.

Once Pope Paul has met these leaders face to face as he did in India, some understanding might be reached in due course.

By discussion they may discover that the religions of the West, as do the religions of the Orient, search for the same thing—truth and God.

You and I know that there is a correlation between the creative and the screwball. So we must suffer the screwball gladly.—Kingman Brewster Jr., President of Yale University, to a group of newspaper editors.

Multilateral Christmas Party

To Your Good Health
TB Continues as Dangerous North American Disease

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Did you happen to see or to notice TB seals on your Christmas mail?

The public has been using these seals for 60 years. The idea started in Denmark in 1904 and spread to the United States in 1907.

Some people now collect the seals, just as postage stamps are collected, and a difference in perfection, or a modification in design, make a few of the old ones quite rare, with a price as high as $50 each.

So much for philately. But what about the purpose behind the seals? We pay only a trifle for each seal. But the total bulks up to $25 million a year and more, all devoted to fighting tuberculosis and related lung diseases. Besides this, millions of hours of time are given free by volunteers. Bless 'em!

Are winning this battle for better health? Up to recently we were. Tuberculosis, once called "the great white plague," has been gradually subsiding. Medicines (such as streptomycin and "PAS") have been vastly effective in the last couple of decades. Then came the niazids, even better in some ways. Along with these, surgery has accomplished things long thought to be impossible — removing portions of a lung to help a cure.

Never before in all history have we known so much about stopping tuberculosis once a case is discovered in time.

And the TB rate has been declining, as should be expected. Yet, what happened last year? The rate has gone up!

In 1963, as compared to 1962, we had the first increase in years in the overall prevalence of tuberculosis. Treatment is still effective. That isn't the problem. The question is why the number of increases?

There is no clear answer. As a nation we have gotten into our heads the false notion that the disease is "licked." We forget that TB is an implacable enemy. The moment we stop taking our guard, the disease takes advantage of us. We should remember the lesson of the little Dutch boy who stuck his thumb in the hole in the dyke. Stop the leak when it starts, and you win. Ignore it, and the ever-pressing enemy (whether the sea or TB) pushes through.

We don't have holes in all of our dykes. In many parts of the country we are holding our own, or even gaining. Yet in others we are losing.

Denver, Honolulu, Chicago, Cleveland, Portland, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and other cities are cutting their rates. San Diego, New York, Oklahoma City, Nashville, Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston are having more TB — up to 46 percent more.

We have become too confident. We've stopped having free chest X-rays, as frequently as in the past. We've ignored the chronic cough and loss of weight.

We haven't stuck our thumbs in the dykes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can pernicious anemia be cured? I am taking shots. Must I take them the rest of my life? If I don't what could be the outcome? — A. L.

There is no known cure for pernicious anemia. But until 30-odd years ago there was nothing we could do except watch sufferers of it die. Today, with injections every couple of weeks or so, such patients live out their normal life span. Stop the injections? No! The anemia would reappear.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will shock therapy injure the brain or impair memory in any way? — L. B.

Such treatments will not damage the brain. They can cause loss of memory concerning remote events, but not of recent events.

Acne is one of the most terrible problems of growing up. If you are afflicted with this aggravation, or if you have children who are, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Ontario Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of his helpful and comforting booklet, Acne — The Teenage Problem Please enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Strictly Personal
Would Christ Be Crucified Once Again?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

(Reprinted by Request)

If there should be, on Christmas night, a second coming — would there not be soon a second crucifixion? And this time, not by the Romans or the Jews, but by those who proudly call themselves Christians?

I wonder. I wonder how we today would regard and treat this man with His strange and frightening and "impractical" doctrines of human behavior and relationships. Would we believe and follow, any more than the masses of people in His day believed and followed?

Would not the militarists among us assail Him as a cowardly pacifist because He urges us not to resist evil?

Would not the nationalists among us attack Him as a dangerous internationalist because He tells us we are all of one flesh?

Would not the wealthy among us castigate Him as a troublemaking radical because He bars the rich from entering the kingdom of Heaven?

Would not the liberals among us dismiss Him as a dreamy pagan because He advises us to take no thought for the morrow, to lay up no treasures on earth?

Would not the ecclesiastics among us denounce Him as a rabble rouser because He eats with publicans and sinners, preferring the company of winebibbers and harlots to that of "respectable" church members?

Would not the sensual among us scorn Him because He fasts for 40 days in the desert, neglecting the needs of the body?

Would not the proud and important among us laugh at Him when He instructs the 12 disciple that he who would be "first" should be the one to take the role of the least and serve all?

Would not the worldly wise and educated among us be aghast to hear that we cannot be saved except we become as children, and that a little child shall lead us?

Would not each of us — in his own way — find some part of this many-sayings and doing to be so threatening to our ways of life, so much at odds with our rooted beliefs, that we could not tolerate Him for long?

I wonder. I wonder if we are any more prepared for the second coming than we would have been for the first.

Jolly old Saint Nicholas,
Needed much this year,

Santa Claus from you I'd like Noise-removing gear;
So we'll hear no more rumbles

Unless you've other Members
You'd like our way to steer.

When Real departed hence
And left me in the lurch,
I wondered where I'd find more help,
Where on earth I'd search.
Then went to Africa for Paul;
Couldn't ask for more.
No need to call this Christmas,
That's what I waited for.

Social Credit Leader

Try to help this troubled world
And watch the Essex folk;
Learn to be more relaxed,

Santa Claus, I'm just a guy
From prairie Sask.
Went to China pushing wheat,
Useful, pleasant task.

Lots of people wonder why

Those from not out West?
We Horners and our friends allow
They're only second best.

Tory cause, that is.

Good Saint Nick, I need to lose
A name that's plaguing me.
I'm stuck with "Judo Judy"
Since pictures from "Big T."
But guess I shouldn't moan and groan;
Pension Plan's near flower,
Seldom feel like smoking now
And have my private tower.
— Judy La Marsh
Minister Health and Welfare

This Service integration bit
Has its ups and downs.
On the whole I think, perhaps,
The ups outweigh the downs.
I'm asking for the works, Saint Nick,
Need anything you've got.
Ships and planes and arms and men;
Defence is going to pot.
— Paul Hellyer
Defence Minister

Pere Noel, it's been a mess
For Justice latterly.
The actions of some men I know
Have been upsetting me.
The perfect gift this year would be,
I might suggest to you,
Solutions to these crazy things,
Please tell me what to do.

I took my stand about the flag,
On this I wasn't shy.
I guess that even at The Pole
You know the reasons why.
When you get out your sleigh tonight
To fly around the world,
Please let an Ensign marked
Ralph Cowan
From dashboard be unfurled.

Santa Claus, you surely know
What this Session's been.
It's long, it's loud, fatigued, confused,
Sometimes even mean.
The best that I could ask from you,
As speaker for this mob,
The great Good Will of Christmas time,
To better do the job.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 24th, 1944

Saint Nicholas is the patron saint of New York as well as of children, navigators, virgins and wax chandlers. Probably no saint in history was ever credited with more good gifts and good works than Saint Nicholas. He is also the patron saint of Russia, and while there seems to be some obscurity about his origin, he was undoubtedly a bishop of Myra, Asia Minor, about 300 A.D. The early Dutch in New Netherland, and the Pennsylvania Germans gradually corrupted his name to Santa Claus.

Owing to the custom of bestowing gifts on Saint Nicholas Day, December 6, and Christmas Day, December 25th, the days became confused and the names likewise.

Today in History

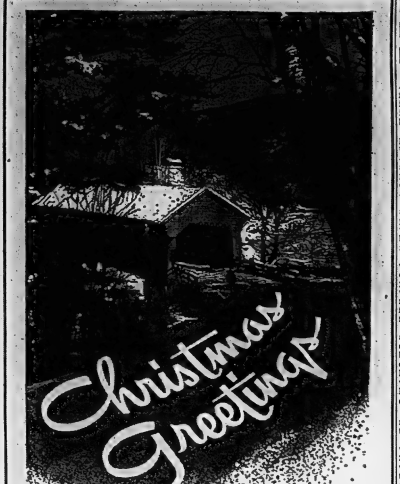
Dec. 24, 1964 . . .



The Treaty of Ghent, ending the War of 1812 between Britain and U.S., was signed at Ghent 150 years ago today—in 1814. The Americans declared war on June 18, 1812, accusing British vessels of violating American neutrality and territorial waters during the First Napoleonic War. After Napoleon's defeat, Britain took the offensive in the American campaign but another country was anxious to continue hostilities and the peace was signed.

1928 — Tenor Enrico Caruso gave his final performance at New York's Metropolitan Opera House.

1943—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower became commander-in-chief of Allied invasion forces in Europe during the Second World War.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—the first air raid on England took place, a German bomb-exploding harmlessly in a Dover garden; French artillery silenced German batteries on the Western Front; Allied troops in Belgium made slight advances towards Ostend.

Christmas is a tranquil snowy scene and brightly-wrapped gifts . . . it is a time of hope and rejoicing for the many things it is our privilege to possess. We wish you an "old-fashioned" Christmas, filled with love and good cheer, and the deep satisfaction of friendships renewed. Happy Holidays!

New Marriage Bill Drafted In Denmark

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) Adultery will no longer be sufficient reason to obtain immediate divorce under a new Danish marriage bill drafted here by a government committee.

The bill, contained in a report sent to the minister of justice by the committee, puts adultery on the same footing as separation in general, with the prospect of a final divorce decree only after 12 months separation.

It would mean an end to the almost immediate divorce at present obtainable in Denmark where adultery is admitted and both parties agree to end their marriage.

This usually takes about two weeks. But the bill would also cut six years off the present 10 years necessary to get a divorce if the offended partner refuses to agree to one. A refusal cannot be considered after four years under the new bill.

The committee's proposals are the result of seven years of deliberation by the five members. They also aim at eliminating differences in Danish marriage legislation, compared with Norway, Sweden, Finland and Iceland.

COMMON RULES

The ultimate target is a common Nordic marriage legislation for all five countries.

The committee's proposals would allow men to marry at 20 (at present 21 years) and women at 18 (unchanged), with the consent of parents necessary to the 21st year in both cases.

Reading of church banns, still necessary in Denmark, would no longer be compulsory, but could be arranged for those who want it for religious reasons.

Access to children—always a difficult point in divorce cases —will as in the past have considerable influence on divorce proceedings.

The new proposals provide for tougher treatment in cases where maintenance payments for children of divorced parents are not made on time.

LANGUAGE ENRICHED

Oil-rich Saudi Arabia has a new word in its language—kadilleck - the Arabic way of saying Cadillac.

Going Places
Joy Still Savored in India Despite Lack of Food, Money

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOAN

NEW DELHI, India — The most famous restaurant in Delhi, and probably the most famous Indian restaurant in the world, is a place in the old city known as Moti Mahal.

Like so many popular restaurants the world over, it started as a hole in the wall in a smelly tourist section surrounded by street stalls and pushcarts. The tourists discovered it, then the local folk, and it began to burst its bonds, spreading its wooden tables through all the adjoining buildings its owner — a turbaned Pakistani with a fierce mustache — could lay his rupees on.

But it has never gone posh and western. India is one of the last countries on earth drawing primarily on its past for its culture, remaining unimpressed by the modern world. As a result, what goes on under Moti Mahal's panoply of Kashmiri carpets is very Indian indeed, its world a kaleidescopic microcosm of middle class India.

The pale tourists look out of place here. Most of its patrons are fat, sleek Sikhs in their turbans, business men in fingertip nightshirts, government officials in Nehru coats, and the inevitable ladies in the colors of Indian sunsets. Forks have yet to replace the fingers of the right hand with which even the most civilized Indians feed themselves.

We struggled single-handedly with Chicken Tandoori, chicken in butter and tomato sauce, curried mutton, pulses (like blackeyed peas), salad, and flat pizza-like rolls for slopping it all up, while our Indian hosts, hurrying cordially in the accepted Oriental fashion, tried to explain the entertainment.

MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT

The Punjabi musicians were wailing in Urdu to the accompaniment of a harmonium, tamburs, and an assortment of ungainly string instruments out of the Arabian Nights. The poetic lyrics, we were told, were parodies, mostly on love themes, and our hosts were breaking up with laughter all over the place. There was a bit about the miseries of drinking in solitude — a crack at Delhi's prohibition laws — as well as a paean of praise for home brew in preference to rum.

Our hosts pounded the table in a paroxysm of merriment over "A peroxide in love is beneath pity." We must have looked as if we didn't get it. "It's a little hard to translate," they confided between cries of "That's a good one!" and "The wording is really inspiring!" The music all sounded alike.

The spicy food was delicious, but we'd felt as if we'd had it when the final rice course arrived. "It's only a little hot," they promised. "And you must try it; it's a specialty."

We tried it. Vesuvius erupted. Monsoons came to our eyes. We had bit into whole chili peppers. We poured water down our flaming gullets and pleaded for Cokes.

"Would you like it in a glass or in the bottle?" In our mouths, we choked.

Finally dessert came, cool kulfi, a fudge-like ice cream covered, like all Indian delicacies, with a thin coat of beaten silver. Strange India; two-thirds of her people undernourished, and others eat silver.

Afterwards at a sidewalk stall we neutralized our vitalized oral tissues with pan, an Indian after dinner chew compounded of betel nut and lime paste wrapped in a leaf.

MOVIES GO BIG

On a night out such as this, most Indians would have gone to the movies. All Indians go to the movies; it is still the great mass entertainment. Television has arrived, but lately Mrs. Indira Gandhi, minister of communications, has been talking direly of confining it to educational matter.

So at last count, 4 percent of all Indians were in the movie houses every day, paying anywhere from seven to 84 cents to watch a three-hour melodrama or musical on religious, historical or romantic themes.

Movies are so popular that major productions play in several theatres at once, three times a day, sometimes for months, reservations are necessary for most showings, and are often impossible to get weekends, that seats are sold on the black market.

Some 300 pictures are produced annually, mostly in Bombay but also in Calcutta and Madras. Actors are as in demand they often work in 20 or 30 pictures at a time. Top stars have been paid up to $250,000 per picture (but only for two a year), while lesser ones — except women — get $40,000 to $125.00 each. Until the internal revenue people cracked down, they often were paid in "black money" (under the table.

Pictures are produced in all of India's 14 major dialects, plus a few in English. But all are pretty much the same, as were American movies 30 years ago.

With little variation, they deal largely in the nagging and obsolete social restrictions against romance that result in most Indian marriages still being arranged at home, not in heaven. Boy meets girl, they fall in love, parents — inevitably of different castes — interfere, a lot of singing and dancing, and love finally finds a way.

NO KISSING

There is some hugging, lots of emotion, but no kissing in Indian movies. The big colorful billboards all over town only hint at sex as they advertise "Music, Love and Laffs all in one; Braver Chivalry and Thrills at the Peak in . . . 'Appli Fool' " Or, Dev Anand in his all time greatest hit, the ever-green TAXI Driver!"

From the lantern-and-candle lit bazaars of Chandni Chowk this night, we wandered to the modern shopping street of Ajmel Khan Road, all done up in overhead flowers and colored lights for Divaldi, India's combination Christmas and Fourth of July. Sidewalk stands sold everything from colored prints of Vishnu, Siva and Krishna (the Hindu Trinity) to fireworks, savory fried cakes, pinchable nuts and water chestnuts. Beards and turbans and saris and bare brown feet flashed by in the street, and record shops blared the wailing flute and string sounds of India.

Then we stopped at a corner to scribble notes, a cross-legged bundle of brown bones and bedsheets looked up from the curb and smiled, "Sah'b-memsah'b happy?"

With little to eat and less money, India still manages to perceive and partake of joy.

Seven Nursing Mothers Are Donating Milk

WINNIPEG (CP) — Seven nursing mothers in Winnipeg are donating milk every day to keep alive a Brandon baby who can't drink cow's milk or formula.

The unique milk bank was established by Winnipeg Children's Hospital, which appealed Wednesday for more donors because four-month-old Alexander Pappas' appetite is growing.

The mothers were contributing about 16 ounces of milk to the hospital bank, which stretches it and sends to Brandon every evening by bus.

"But we still desperately need mothers," says C. E. Semple, assistant hospital superintendent.

Doctors say the infant now can handle about 40 ounces a day and 10 to 18 more mothers are needed.

Alexander's mother cannot feed him and he so far has rejected cow's milk, synthetic milk, soybean extracts and meat formulas. All make him sick.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers Sends Her Annual Christmas Message

Editor's Note — Nine years ago, Ann Landers wrote a special column for Christmas Day. Reader response was overwhelming and she has repeated the column annually, with some topical modifications. This is her Christmas special for 1964.

Tomorrow is Christmas. All about us we hear talk of peace on earth and good will toward men. Yet we know that in many parts of the world there is no peace and in the hearts of many men there is no good will.

ANN LANDERS

A defeatist philosophy has threatened to capture many of our young people. They complain that civilization is out of joint and threaten to resign from the human race. They resent having to live in a dangerous and untidy world they never made. But what generation ever made the world it had to live in?

And who of us, at one time or another, has not felt like resigning from the human race? What kind of a world spends billions of dollars on missiles and permits children to go to bed hungry?

These are difficult times in which to live despite "advances" on every side. Everything is pasteurized, homogenized, pressurized, and psychoanalyzed. Although each area has presented its specific problems . . . diseases, wars, floods, famine and depression . . . never before has civilization been faced with annihilation.

Thermonuclear and biological war threatens to hunt down man wherever he is . . . to suffocate him, incinerate him, infect him or drive him into a radioactive world. Peace is the only answer to the supersweapons.

And assuming war is avoided, how safe is this American republic when, in the name of patriotism, groups which encourage suspicion and distrust of our neighbors find growing support? We are concerned because the Russians may place swords at the end on the moon. Should we not instead be concerned about our failure to live like brothers here on earth?

It is fashionable to be "well-adjusted." People are searching in bottles and pills for ammunition with which to fight the daily battle of living. They anesthetize their brains, hoping flight from the problem will banish the problem. Merchants of gloom and doom blame the sorry state of the world for their anxieties and failures, and their trouble is within. In the words of the late and great David Neiswanger, chairman of the executive committee of the Menninger Foundation:

"If each of us helped by science to live a hundred years, what will it profit us if our hates and fears, our loneliness and our remorse will not permit us to enjoy them? What use is an extra year or two to the man who kills what time he has?"

Trouble is the common denominator of living. The aching heart dwells in the mansion as well as the hovel. Sorrow is an inevitable part of living. No magic elixir or miracle pill can protect us against reality forever. Tomorrow always comes.

The way we decide the direction in which our life will move by selecting one course or another . . . by making a series of small decisions. No one can make the right decision every time. To fail is no disgrace. The disgrace lies in not getting up to try again.

Since this is a problem column, I hear about trouble of every imaginable type. People often ask if this work is depressing. No — It is not depressing. It is rewarding and gratifying. Many who write to me don't want advice. They do want someone to listen. I am indeed fortunate to have been given this opportunity to listen and to help. For there is no greater reward than to serve. And with God's help I will continue to do my best.

Former Countrymen Will Entertain Crews Off Ships

TORONTO (CP)—Crews of three foreign-registered cargo-ships stranded in Toronto harbor by the closing of the St. Lawrence Seaway for the winter will spend Christmas with former countrymen now living here.

The Christmas arrangements were announced by Rev. Richard Newsham, an Anglican priest attached to the Toronto harbor commission.

Greek crew members of the Orient Merchant will be given a traditional Greek dinner at St. George's Cathedral by the Greek Ladies' Philanthropic Society.

There are only about half a dozen crew members still aboard the Danish ship Olau Gorm and they will celebrate Christmas with residents of Toronto's Danish community.

The Chinese crew aboard the Formosa vessel Vanlu will get a Canadian turkey buffet dinner at the home of Mrs. Jean Lumb. She said she doesn't know whether the crew is used to Canadian cooking, "but there's always a first time for everyone."

SHE'S HOPEFUL

The Chinese-Canadian housewife said: "I hope they'll like it. It's going to be just awful if they come up expecting rice."

She will entertain 30 sailors.

Mrs. Lumb's husband, J. D. Lumb, owns a Chinese restaurant in Toronto. The family of eight normally eats at least one Chinese meal a day, but Christmas has always been a day for turkey.

Another worry for the Lumbs is language. They speak Cantonese, and they understand the crew speaks Taiwanese.

"Were a little worried about that because Cantonese and Taiwanese aren't like French and Quebec French," said Mrs. Lumb. "They're not a bit like French and English.

'It would be awful if they got to the house and we couldn't talk to each other."

UN COOKING

Christmas For A Four-Year Old

(The following verses were written by an anonymous contributor for his two grandchildren, sons, Michael and John.—Editor.

Santa Claus at the North Pole stays
And all year long he spends his days
Making beautiful presents and beautiful toys
For good little girls and good little boys.

On Christmas Eve he packs his sack,
Throws it merrily on his back,
Calls to his reindeer, jumps
in his sleigh,
With a Ho! Ho! Ho! he rides away—

His reindeer gallop across the sky
The little stars wave as he goes by —
The old moon laughs and shouts "Hooray!
"There goes Santa in his sleigh!"

Now where's Santa going?
Well it's understood,
He'll come to your house if you've been good
On your roof top he'll stop his sleigh, Say to his reindeer, "Don't go away."

Out he'll get, and by jumping jiminy
He will climb right down your chimney
Come out the fireplace, look at the tree,
Say Ho! Ho! Ho! They're all ready for me.

He'll open his sack and get out the toys
He always brings to good girls and boys.
His places them carefully
under the tree
Then up the chimney he'll climb with glee,

Shout to his reindeer, jump
in his sleigh
And across the roof tops they'll dash away.
But he'll come back next year if you've been good
And I sometimes think if you could, you would.

Add the boiling water to the raw cranberries in a saucepan and cook until cranberry skins break and cranberries are tender. Remove from heat. (If desired strain cranberries through sieve now, but salad is prettier if "cranberries are left in.) Soak gelatine in water 5 minutes until dissolved, then add sugar and salt, stirring. Personal Christmas News from Enesm: When you read this I will be in Germany with my daughter Marianne and son-in-law Herbie and four grandchildren I wish you an equally happy Christmas.

This Christmas eve the thrilling plan is to walk over cobbled streets to downtown Soest and watch all the lights go on the Christmas carol singing pageant in 1957 I saw and heard this. The scene is spine-tingling. After dark white-surplice-clad little choir boys wearing lighted candles follow their priest up an outside spiral ramp circling their ancient round church, standing in the top while they sing German Christmas carols. All the townspeople gather in the square below, hushed, while they watch and listen to the awe soaring choristers as they sing the most beautiful of all carols Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht.

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: Since this is the season to be jolly, to entertain, and be entertained, here are my two suggestions for holiday achievement that hand-box look.

If my hair is nicely set in my favorite style for the evening's activities, but I still have some cooking or dishes to do, time to take care of one last load of washing, or a child to bathe, I pop a large, thin, plastic shower cap over my hairdo.

Any one of these steamy chores is enough to make my hair go limp, but by covering it up tightly this way I emerge with every hair in place.

My other favorite must is to wear kid gloves for putting on my stockings — especially in the cold weather when the skin around fingernails tends to be particularly rough. I have an old pair in my dresser drawer just for this purpose. They are only prevent snagging, but are ideal for pulling up and adjusting my stockings for straightening, out the wrinkles, as the nylon clings beautifully to the leather. — Mrs. Betty Johnston.

BETTER BANANAS

Dear Susanna: The next time you are shopping, pick up one of those frozen food bags the store supplies — the kind they give you to keep your ice - cream from melting while you bring it home. Then, use it for keeping bananas. They will stay in good condition far longer if you store them in one of these bags. — Carol McCreight.

DEAR COLUMNIST DORIS — You were kind and very encouraging, once upon a time, in replying to a letter of mine, enclosing one of my "Sounds in Silence" in your unique and soundly studied, beautifully written column.

It is now that season of the year when the Light and Hope of mankind was born, so I am wishing you joy, heart's desire and the blessing of God for not only Christmas 1964 and New Year 1965, but for all succeeding days of your life.

LIVING

There is no time in our brief life for vain
regretting,
So little time is there in our short span
for fretting,
The crime of joy is full, awaiting our dispensing.
Give of it freely, nor count the cost, this day commencing.

Like ships we pass in the night, only a signal showing,
A breath of time to live and laugh and love, but knowing
Perhaps the joyous rapture of our soul's best giving,
The thought of having shared life's fleeting hour of living.
Sincerely and gratefully yours — MAY CROFT-PRESTON.

DEAR MISS C-P — Please break the "silence" often. Your thoughts are worth sharing. And thanks for your encouragement, which returns to me as bread on the waters!

(And to my readers — I pass on Miss Croft-Preston's thought on "Living" as my gift to you.)

Sunday School Lesson

Who Are the Wise Men?

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

In his painting, "The Star Of Bethlehem," the English artist, Burne-Jones, pictures the visit of the wise men to the Christ Child. He depicts one as a scholar, one a warrior, and one as a wealthy ruler. In this way, he prompts us to ask the question, Who are the wise men of the world? What makes them wise? Where should the search for wisdom lead us?

If we were to ask the question, Who are the wise men of our day?" many would answer, "The scientists." They are the ones who probe the secrets of the universe. They have released the power of the atom. They have penetrated outer space. Surely they are the wise men of the twentieth century.

Others would say that certain writers are the wise men of our day. They probe beneath the surface of life where most people are too smug or afraid to look. They shock us by what they reveal about ourselves. They may not know the answers but they are certainly adept at sensing the questions.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 27: "The Visit of The Wise Men," Matthew 2.

No one would discount the importance of these groups. But wisdom does not stop at the test-tube or the philosophical question. So many people today for all their brilliance, are like the author who wrote, "I cannot find the way. There is no star." Men need a star to follow. They need a faith that can lead them darkness into light, from despair to hope, from hate to love.

WISE MEN

FROM THE EAST

The Christmas story tells about certain "wise men from the East" who came seeking the Christ Child. (Matthew 2:1-12) Were they kings come to pay homage at the birth of a fellow monarch? If so, they must have been shocked at the poverty of His surroundings. Were they magi, or priests of an Eastern religion seeking one whose birth would have divine significance? If so, they must have wondered thatGod's greatest would be revealed in such humble beginnings.

Whoever they were, they were supernational in spirit. They refused to let national boundaries limit them in their quest. Some things cannot be contained in a national mould. Truth is universal. Man's hunger for peace is world-wide. God's love is not limited to those who hold a particular political or creedal position. Wise men seek truth wherever it leads them. They seek the benefits of truth for all.

The quest of the wise men brought them into conflict with political powers. Herod wanted no competition in controlling the lives of his subjects. Though he claimed to be sympathetic in their quest, he was determined that no one should ever be able to challenge his power over the people. He demanded that the wise men should place all their information at his disposal.

We are told, however, that the wise men "warned in a dream" not to return to Herod. Through the centuries God has tried to warn us against the dangers of injustice and hate. He has planted in their minds the dream of freedom to arouse them to the perils of tyranny and exploitation. Too often men have ignored the dream of freedom, and have ended up with the nightmare of slavery.

The wise men showed their wisdom by defying Herod, and returning "to their own country by another way." For many people there come times when obedience to God comes ahead of obedience to life state. It does for Russian Christians every time they worship. It did for men like Martin Niemoller and Dietrich Bonhoeffer in Germany during the Nazi regime. Hitler demanded one kind of life, Christian faith called for another. Hitler demanded hatred of the Jews. Christianity taught universal brotherhood and love. When the test came, both men were imprisoned. Bonhoeffer was killed. But their witness during those dark days continues to inspire the world.

HEROD'S DEATH A BLESSING

Not until Herod's death was Joseph free to return with Mary and Jesus from exile. The world is better because some men have lived. It is also better because some men are dead. It is better because Mogen, and Jesus and their followers have lived. It is also better because Herod, and Hitler, and Stalin and some of their imitators are dead.

Unfortunately, not all tyrants are dead. Some still try to rule the world. But God still calls for men who will follow another way than violence and hate. Still He calls for the gifts of scholarship, and science, and industry be placed at the disposal of the forces of love and goodwill. Men will truly be wise when political rulers and scientists, and industrialists, and all workers everywhere come to the One who gave us the Sermon on the Mount to learn from Him how God wants men to live together.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

Many of the world's most distinguished poets have written religious poems which have found their way into twentieth century hymnals of all churches.

The church universal will be forever grateful to English poets like John Milton and Alfred Lord Tennyson and such American poets as John Greenleaf Whittier, William Cullen Bryant, James Russell Lowell, and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow for their contributions to the world's treasury of sacred song.

The Longfellow name bobs up frequently in hymn collections but usually it is the name of Rev. Samuel Longfellow, a minister brother of the famous poet. Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, however, will always be known and loved for the words of his beautiful Christmas hymn, "I Heard The Bells On Christmas Day." They were written a century ago, in 1864, and the bells-like music to which they are sung today was created for them in 1902 by the composer, Frederick F. Bullard.

The Longfellow study in the poet's home in Cambridge, Massachusetts has been preserved and is visited by many pilgrims each year. When they enter the old home they use "the three doors left unguarded" through which the poet's three little daughters used to rush in upon him at the close of day. Many of the articles which adorned the restful study while Mr. Longfellow lived and used it as his literary workshop remain there today. Among these is a chair made from the wood of the famous "spreading chestnut tree" mentioned in Mr. Longfellow's poem "The Village Blacksmith." Elsewhere in the home is the old clock on the stairs which is dear to all familiar with his writings.

I HEARD THE BELLS

I heard the bells on Christmas Day,
Their old, familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet the words repeat,
"Peace on earth, goodwill to men."

And thought how, as the day had come,
The belfries of all Christendom
Had rolled along the unbroken song,
"Peace on earth, goodwill to men."

Till ringing, singing on its way,
The earth revolved, from night to day
A voice, a chime, a chant sublime,
"Peace on earth, goodwill to men."

Low in despair I bowed my head:
"There is no peace on earth," I said:
"For hate is strong and mocks the song
"Peace on earth, goodwill to men."

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep;
"God is not dead: nor doth He sleep;
The Wrong shall fall, the Right prevail,
"Peace on earth, goodwill to men."

A Lift for Living

'May Christmas Time Be His Time'

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that, although many centuries have come and gone since Christ was born among us, the story of His coming has never been lost. It is always new, untarnished by the telling, undimmed by the passing years.

We rejoice in the glad remembrances of that first Christmas: gentle Mary, her eyes and cheeks aglow with gladness; Joseph, calm, proud, standing guard among the friendly shadows of the cattle stall; awestruck shepherds listening to angel songs coming from a host in heaven where a star peeps through; Wise Men, faithfully following the light of the star to that quiet manger-place, apart from the thronging world; and amidst it all, centre of it all, the meaning of it all, the Christ Child, born to be the Savior.

We thank Thee, our Father, for this holy season when our souls travel the road to Bethlehem. We confess our need to go there. It is peaceful in the cattle stall, and our clamorous spirits crave to rest awhile in such a sacred silence. It is worshipful there where Christ is found, where shepherds and Wise Men kneel in holy wonder. We need to worship, to regain the heavenly perspective, to rediscover what is truly best and highest in They world. While on our knees at the manger we find the Best Gift Thou hast sent us, God of ancient Bethlehem, Lord of modern city streets, best our confession. For hearts have often been busy inns, too full of thronging guests, so that when Thy Holy One has come, seeking room, He has found no resting place in us. Forgive our excessive busyness. Forgive our preoccupation with little things. Keep us ever mindful that Thy truth, grace and goodness are always looking for a home. Grant us the insight to recognize Thy holy ones when we see them, to know they are Thine, to welcome them joyfully so to make our hearts their dwelling places.

Forgive, O God, our self-imposed poverty of spirit. Like shepherds on Judean hills, we have our work to do, our possessions to watch over and care for, but unlike those shepherds we live amidst Thy presence without sensing them.

Forgive us for our meagre awareness of Thy dealings with us, for the dullness of soul that permits us to go about earth's business while angel voices softly sing "Joy to the world! The Lord has come!" and we do not hear the song, or the rustle of angel wings, or thrill to the excitement that fills the air.

Let us not miss the Christmas clues Thou hast given concerning Thy divine intentions. Let us see that Thy light is meant to shine upon this humble earth of ours and touch every common thing with holiness. May we remember that there is nothing so small and nothing so poor but that it becomes sacred when brought as a gift to Christ. Let us dare to believe that He who forgives a cattle stall's dirt floor and pardons the pitiful plainness of a manger bed, may bless our shabby hearts with His presence and fill our sorry days to overflowing with His love, joy and peace.

O Thou who didst bless Bethlehem on that far-off starlit night, bless all the cities of earth and all the homes of the world at this Christmastide. Regard among the hungry the hungry people of all nations; those hungry for food, for friendship, for a love free from fear, for love, for joy, for peace, for God. Let the rungry be filled.

Let those whose lives are too full of Christmas celebrations to be mindful of Christ. Let not the Christ Child be lost amidst commemorations of His birth, hidden beneath holly wreaths and evergreen trees, or suffocated under mounds of gifts and heaps of Christmas wrappings. May Christmas time be big time, Christmas Day His day, when Christ gets a new chance to live in us.

Father, Thou hast made one season especially glad and one night incomparably bright with the memory of Christ's birth. Now, once more, amid cavities of hope flicker on the windowsills of our hearts be bid Christ welcome here.

Let Him come again.
Let Him stay.
Amen.

What's in a Name? Shakespeare Called Play 'Twelfth Night,' But He Chose Different Subject

"After dinner to the Duke's House, and there saw 'Twelfth Night' acted well, though it be a silly play and not related at all to the name."

So wrote the English diarist, Samuel Pepys, in recording the events of January 6, 1663.

Later critics have, taken a more enthusiastic view of William Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" than did Mr. Pepys, but they have to agree that the comic gambol bears no relationship to its title. Apparently the play was so named because it had been written to be performed on Twelfth Night.

Had Shakespeare chosen to do it, he had ample materials at hand to create a play that was really about "Twelfth Night."

Epiphany, the Twelfth Night or Christmas, traditionally the night when the Magi brought gifts to the Christ Child, was a most important festival in Shakespeare's time, and many customs surrounded it.

Characters ready for Shakespeare's pen were such traditional folk as "Patrick O'Tater" "Lady Bluestocking," "Captain Blunderbuss," and others. At Twelfth Night frolics, the young people especially dressed themselves in costumes to suggest these characters.

Shakespeare, however preferred to write of Sir Toby Belch, Malvolio, Olivia and others, and critics can only speculate upon what might have been if he had taken "Twelfth Night" for his theme as well as its title.

Candles Glow At Christmas

Many traditional candle customs brighten today's Christmas celebrations.

From Ireland comes the custom of putting a lighted candle in the window on Christmas Eve to light the Holy Family's way. The candles denote a house where the Holy Family would have been welcomed, not turned away as they were at the inns in Bethlehem.

In Germany, too, candles are placed in windows to provide a glowing welcome for the Virgin Mary and a host of angels who the Germans believe pass over the countryside each Christmas.

In many countries, such as Germany, beautifully decorated candles are an important part of Christmas celebrations. Enhanced with religious and other figures, they add an artistic and reverent touch to holiday festivities.

Similarly, many still celebrate the medieval custom of lighting a giant Christmas candle that burns brightly until Twelfth Night.

Youngsters Told Where Santa Is "Right At Home"

Along with "Why is the sky blue?" and "Why can't I see the wind?," the favorite question of children everywhere is very often, "Where does Santa Claus live when Christmas is all over?"

Parents faced with this perennial question can find it an explanations of just what and where is the North Pole. They can answer, with a straight face and a map to back them up, "Why, Santa Claus, Indiana, of course!"

Or how about Bells, Tennessee; Edmonds, Alaska; Holly, Washington; or Noel, Missouri, as suitable quarters for Santa?

These are just a sample of the many towns and villages all over the country that are named in the spirit of Christmas, in the hope of preserving the good will and cheer of that happy season all year.

There's only one disadvantage to living in one of these towns. Local parents, faced with the question, "Where does Santa live?" certainly can't say, "Why, right here in Christmas, Arizona, son," as the next logical question would be, much to Dad's consternation, "Yippee! Why don't we go visit him!"

Holy Tree Blooms Every Christmas

Every Christmas, the phenomenon of the blossoming Holy Thorn Tree occurs in England and Washington, D.C.

Faithfully on December 25th, a tree called the Holy Thorn or Glastonbury Thorn blooms in the ancient English town of Glastonbury. Sometime during the same month, or often on the same tree burst into bloom in Washington's Cathedral of the Incarnation.

According to legend, two days before Christmas 63 years after the birth of Christ, St. Joseph of Arimathea neared Glastonbury, carrying, with him the Holy Grail used at the Last Supper.

While pausing to rest at the top of a hill overlooking the town, he drove his staff in the ground, where it immediately took root. The next day, Christmas Eve, it had turned into a thorn tree covered with blossoms.

Modern Day Golden Calf Demands Self-Destruction

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

The test of a virile religion is the spirit of sacrifice it can evoke in the lives of its adherents.

No great idea can survive in hearts that are only tepid. Men who are easily reduced to the lowest common denominator remain fractions of what they could have been. To have value we must know when to give. To keep, we have to know when to lose.

SPIRITUAL WILL

But sacrifice, of itself, is a neutral agent or the spiritual will. It can be abused, and often is. The biblical story of the golden calf is an eloquent reminder of this truth. The people were willing to give up their most precious possession that they might worship a god of their own making.

You know men who are sacrificing their health, their family life, their love, for their own calf of gold. Their god is a jealous, demanding god. Its name is "More." It promises more and more if the sacrifices are greater and greater. Yet it is never satisfied or propitiated. And its worshippers consume themselves in their own sacrifice. They may think they have gained everything, but they have lost themselves.

GOLDEN CALF

One of the reasons the people wanted a golden calf was because all the other nations worshipped in this fashion. They were misled into the popular and fashionable delusion that the thing to do is what everybody does.

But we are mocked by our mocking. We are willing to give and live and die for a good purpose, in return for what seems "the thing to do." We are led into a kind of self - sacrifice that amounts to self-destruction.

In the mad race to keep up with the other fellow, we keep running long after the race has been lost. The real tragedy for some is that they are never aware of the loss, because they cannot see what does not glitter.

Every man has some religion. Every man has the power to sacrifice. The acute question remains. To grow up spiritually we need to know what to give up physically.

Unto Us A Child Is Born

Good news circles the planet again.
A Child is born.
Shepherds heard of it and came to worship.
Wise Men learned of it and came to ponder.
The common people heard
Him gladly.
Rulers there were who found new meaning for life.

So Christ is born for our moment.
Christmas is meant for this year.
This is no time to despair.
This is no hour for lament.
Nor can we remain, unmoved, unchanged.
For—unto us—
a Child is born
And life can never be the same again!

We're Buying More Foreign Goods

Rising Imports Threaten Canada's Trade Balance

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—A rising tide of imports is submerging some of the benefits of Canada's energetic export drive.

Purchases abroad may continue to increase in 1965 and here are some of the reasons:

—A repeat of 1964's heavy business spending on new production facilities will almost automatically mean higher imports of foreign-made machinery and equipment.

—Canadian incomes are still climbing. Firm demand has been predicted for 1965. To the extent that it cannot be met by domestic output, imports will certainly rise.

—The further the country moves from the mid-1962 dollar devaluation, the less become its benefits in terms of expanding exports and the ability of home-made products to replace imported goods in the domestic market.

There are bright prospects for Canadian exports to major foreign markets in the United States and Western Europe. Sustained growth is forecast in both areas and, though perhaps to a lesser extent, in Japan.

Nevertheless, the total result could well be another swelling of Canada's perennial deficit in world-wide buying and selling of both merchandise and services, plus net payments abroad of such things as interest and dividends, tourism and shipping costs.

DEFICIT CUT

In 1963 this deficit, which must be covered by importing foreign capital, was pared to $521,000,000 after a gradual year-by-year decline from the peak of $1,504,000,000 in 1959.

But this year it will go back up. Estimates that it will reach $650,000,000 for 1964 as a whole already have been questioned by some economists as possibly too low. Final figures will not be available for several months.

This is despite the fact that if the trend in trade for the first nine months (exports of $6,159,500,000 and imports at a preliminary estimate of $5,522,700,000) were to be reflected in the last three months, there would be a surplus of about $600,000,000.

The bugs wheat sale to the Soviet Union, with most of the $500,000,000 in wheat and flour delivered in the 1964 calendar year, spared Canada from an even more embarrassing increase in the payments deficit.

With this wheat excluded, one of the bright spots this year was manufactured goods. While in the first nine months of this year total Canadian exports rose 22.4 per cent from a year earlier, the gain in manufactured exports was 44 per cent.

These so-called "end products" accounted for 13.4 per cent of Canada's total exports in that period compared with 11.5 per cent in the same period of 1963.

200,000 NEW JOBS

In fact the manufacturing industries have been a boon to the whole economy. They provided about half the 200,000 new jobs created in Canada over the last year. Their stepped-up production has accounted for roughly 35 per cent of the overall gains in Canadian output since the current expansion began after the first quarter of 1961.

John J. Deutsch, chairman of the new Economic Council of Canada, said in a recent speech the increase since 1961-in sales abroad of Canadian manufactured goods may indicate a turning point in the composition of Canadian exports.

"Whether this new development can be sustained in future years will be a matter of vital importance to Canada's overall position in international trade."

But the fact remained that Canadian imports still equal about 40 per cent of the total goods produced in Canada and the proportion of exports made up by manufactured goods is only slightly higher than it was in 1926.

And Canada's share of all world trade, far from increasing, has actually declined somewhat during the last 10 years.

Government policy so far has been fixed on capturing a larger share of the United States market for Canadian goods, especially manufactured products. The importance of this is underlined by figures showing a nine-month deficit of $578,000,000 in trade with the U.S. in 1964 compared with a 12-month deficit of $332,000,000 in 1963.

FOREIGN CONTROL

One notable embodiment of the Canadian government's policy has been the recent effort to negotiate a Canada-U.S. "free trade" deal for auto parts. Ottawa's objective is to win for Canada a larger share of the total North American automotive market. The talks are still in progress.

However, one big hurdle for this policy is the fact that, by last official count in 1960, foreigners — mostly Americans — owned outright 56 per cent of the Canadian manufacturing industry. Foreign control is even higher, at 59 per cent.

Narrowing it down to the manufacturing industries with a $25,000,000 - plus investment, Americans owned 44 per cent of the total investment in these at the end of 1960. The British had another 14 per cent, others three per cent. Canada had 39 per cent.

The difficulty is to persuade the U.S. - controlled firms to compete actively with their parent companies in the American market. This lies behind the government's efforts to get a bigger Canadian participation in these firms. So far these efforts, using preferred rates of withholding tax on dividends, have had only limited success.

In a broader sense, Canadian trade hopes are pinned to a large extent on what is going on in the 18th century villa Le Bocage on the lake shore in Geneva. That is the site of the Kennedy Round negotiations.

Regardless of the general outcome—still much in doubt—the Canadian target is clear: a better access to the U.S. market.

WATCH FOR BIRDS

Some 15,000 bird watchers participate in the annual National Audubon Society's Christmas bird count in North America.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JCT. — Mrs. H. Ashley spent the past weekend in Belleville at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Miller and children.

Mrs. Seaborn Prest returned home on Tuesday after being a patient for some weeks in Belleville General Hospital.

Several young people in the community serenaded the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. James Tuerstra with a melodious charivari on Wednesday night.

WHITE GIFT SERVICE

On Sunday evening a combined church and Sunday school White Gift service was held at Eggleton United Church, with a good number present. The service opened with soft music played by Mrs. Bruce Stapley, and the superintendent, Mr. Forde Stapley presiding.

Taking part in the service were Lin Stapley, Keith McMullen, Wayne McMullen and Lloyd Clancy. Brian Kovacs read a Bible selection; the choir of Mrs. B. Stapley's girls' Sunday school class and Mrs. Maurice Clancy's boys' class rendered an anthem.

Miss Diane Prest's class of juniors sang a carol and also took part in a Christmas acrostic.

The minister, Mr. A. Smith, delivered an inspiring Christmas message and voiced appreciation for the pulpit light presented to the church by Mrs. Harlow in memory of her husband.

At the front of the church was a floodlit large white cross with a silver star suspended above. At the base of the cross was a poinsettia and evergreen arrangement. This made a beautiful setting for this special Christmas service. The church windows were also decorated with silver bells in keeping with the setting.

Appreciation was expressed to the Sunday school classes who did the decorating and to the men who provided the lighting.

A church family buffet dinner was served. Miss Isabelle Prest spoke a few words of welcome and Miss Audrey Stapley said grace.

A long table centred with a red candelabrum had been set up and held the tempting viands provided.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE

"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Three Factors Govern

We have received hundreds of letters asking us why, how, and whether real estate prices and values change when new groups enter a neighborhood.

We have been reluctant to answer these questions because an adequate treatment of this complex subject requires far more space than is available in a column.

The following answer reduces treatment of the subject to its most important economic components.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am the instructor for a university seminar in social psychology. We have been discussing the effects and changes in neighborhoods when one ethnic group replaces another. During a session in which many authorities and sources were cited, and every one was more confused and uncertain than ever, one student piped up with, "Why don't we just write Meltzer for the answer?" Since I also follow your excellent column, I concurred with his logic.

What has been your experience in this area — especially in regard to property values? — Prof. T. E. E.

ANSWER: This is an extremely complex question, but in the most simplified terms, when a portion of a neighborhood's population is replaced by another, market value changes are primarily governed by these factors:

1. The income level of families moving in compared to those moving out.

2. The percentage of income the new families will or can pay relative to those moving.

3. The mortgage financing arrangements available to the new group.

Thus, if the new families have lower incomes, or get less favorable financing terms than those they are replacing, or if they are willing to pay a higher percent of their income on housing, it is still likely that prices must drop.

If incomes and financing terms are about the same for the new families, and they are of one of the minority groups traditionally spending a higher percentage of income on housing, prices will rise.

There are many factors that can result in falling, stable or rising prices and values — each in response to a specific set of circumstances. The three factors I enumerated, however, largely control the extent of price changes.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Is real estate immune to the laws of arithmetic? I own a 300 foot deep residential lot in an area where 150 foot deep lots are selling for $3,000. I asked my realtor to sell mine for $6,000, as it is twice as big. He insists I am asking too high a price. Should I get a new realtor — or is he right? — E. K.

ANSWER: Keep your realtor. He may be even better at arithmetic than you. He is aware that the additional depth of your lot is just a bigger back yard. It is valuable, but not as valuable as the front half of the lot.

Under normal circumstances your lot would be worth only about 25 percent more. This general rule does not apply to commercial and industrial land in the same way.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am having a $32,000 house built under a contract arrangement with a builder. Our state sales tax on the building materials being used in my house is quite substantial. Can I claim the amount paid in these taxes as a deduction on my Federal income Tax? — A. T. H.

ANSWER: I'm afraid not. A recent tax court decision ruled that the builder, as an independent contractor, uses these materials as part of his work, and the taxes paid on them are part of the job costs. The buyer, therefore, cannot claim such state sales tax as an income tax deduction.

This rule probably will apply to materials used by builders or contractors in renovation and remodelling work. It is always advisable to check with your tax attorney or local Internal Revenue Service office.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A woman we are all very fond of is retiring and our office has taken up a sizeable fund for a going away present. She is unmarried but has bo. own home and takes great pride in it. We thought you could suggest a labor saving sort of present that would be most appropriate for her home. — M. A. F.

ANSWER: The most popular labor saving device that I know of for a home is a husband. The best model is one with money. Why don't you buy her a ticket for a cruise where she can find a wide selection and choose her own.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Montreal Canadiens increased their National Hockey League leadership to four points Wednesday night and goalie Charlie Hodge chalked up his second shutout of the season against Canadiens' perennial victims, New York Rangers.

Little Charlie, a five-foot-six acrobat, had to make only 25 saves as his teammates bombarded the visitors with 36 shots, scoring twice in the second period to win 2-0.

The Rangers, who have picked up only one tie in their last seven games, must be getting accustomed to such treatment from the Canadiens.

Five of Montreal's 15 victories this season have come at New York's expense, as did Hodge's first shutout in New York Oct. 13.

Goals by Dave Balon and rookie Ted Taylor Snider were high points of Wednesday's lacklustre contest. Bobby Rousseau assisted on both.

Balon got the first from a scramble at the four - minute mark and Cournoyer provided insurance when his 40-foot blueline shot beat Rangers goalie Jacques Plante at 7:46.

Plante's former teammates gave him a tough time in his first appearance this season on Montreal ice. He made at least 10 outstanding saves, particularly in the third period when Canadiens turned on the pressure.

Two players who figured in a four-player trade Monday between the two clubs made debuts in their new uniforms.

Dick Duff played a strong game for Canadiens but seemed to tire near the end.

Duff, whom the Rangers acquired from Toronto Maple Leafs, started the game on a line with Jean Beliveau and Rousseau. When Beliveau strained ligaments in his left knee early in the game, Duff worked at different times with Cournoyer, Rousseau and Jim Roberts.

Bill Hicke made an inauspicious debut with Rangers on a line with Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield, getting only one clear shot on goal.

All six NHL teams get a breather today in preparation for a busy weekend of eight games.

On Friday, Christmas night, Montreal plays at Detroit, New York at Boston and Toronto at Chicago. Saturday, Detroit visits Montreal, Chicago is at Toronto and Boston at New York.

The Canadian teams get a rest Sunday when only two games are scheduled — New York at Detroit and Boston at Chicago.

Bob Hayes To Start Football

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Hayes, the Olympic double gold medallist, gets his first crack at major competition on the football field Friday.

Hayes won the 100 metre dash at the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo last October in a record time of 10 seconds and was leadoff man on the U.S. team that won the 400-metre relay in a record 39 seconds.

He teams up with Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Roger Staubach and Tulsa's Jerry Rhome in the North-South all-star college game at Miami Friday afternoon.

Coached by Wayne Hardin, the South meets a star-studded squad coached by Ara Parseghian and including quarterback John Huarte, the Heisman Trophy winner in the North.

The game will be nationally televised over ABC beginning at 3 p.m. EST.

The contest is one of three post - season college contests scheduled for the Christmas holiday weekend.

Georgia and Texas Tech clash in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., Saturday while the Blue and the Gray all-star teams meet at Montgomery, Ala.

Turn Back Western All-Stars
Unbeaten Russ End Tour With 9-7 Win

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — They have a real good hockey club, let's not kid ourselves," said coach Bobby Kromm after his Western International Hockey League all-star club went down 9-7 before the touring Russian national team here Wednesday night.

But it was far from a one-sided affair as the crowd of 3,500 who filled the arena had plenty to scream about as the all-stars had the Russians tied up 4-4 at the end of the first and 6-6 at the end of the second.

Victory meant a clean record for the powerful, well - conditioned Russians who travelled here after a 14-hour bus trip from Calgary through snow-clogged mountain passes. It also gave them a record of seven wins — including three over Canada's national team — and one tie on their eight - game Canadian tour.

Seth Martin turned back 36 shots on the all-stars' net said this is the greatest Russian team yet. He was the netminder for Canada's national team when they were beaten by the Russians last year. He said this year's version of the world champions is 100 per cent better than the club Canada faced in 1963.

HOT SHOTS

"They are especially hot on their shooting," he added. "I feel this is their strongest point this year."

Boris Mayorov and Anatoli Firsov led the Russian scorers with two apiece. Konstantin Loktev, Vladimir Yurzinov, Alexander Alidov, Yevgeni Mayorov and Alexander Ragulin got the others.

For the all-stars it was Norman Lenardon and Gerry Penner, a couple of fast - skating forwards from the once world champion Trail Smoke Eaters, who led the way with two goals each. Walt Peacosh and Ken McTeer, both from Kimberley, and Carl Chwachka of Nelson got the other goals for the Canadian squad.

The Russians are due to leave Trail today for Spokane, Wash., where they likely will spend Christmas. From there they go to Boise, Idaho, and on to Denver, to play a tournament Dec. 27 with the touring Czechoslovakian, team; Canada's national team and the United States team.

The Russians used two goal-tenders — Viktor Tomachev for the first two periods and Viktor Konovalenko for the third—as they became the first touring European hockey club ever to defeat a WIHL aggregation. Tomachev turned back 14 shots and Konovalenko seven.

Weather Big Factor
Colts Favorites Over Browns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weather looms large over the two United States pro football title games this weekend, which wound up by coincidence in a pair of stadiums on the Great Lakes where winter usually hits harder than Jimmy Brown, of Cleveland Browns.

The American League settles its championship first, with defending champion San Diego Chargers visiting Buffalo Bills Saturday.

Sunday, Johnny Unitas leads Baltimore Colts, Western Division champions, against Cleveland Browns, the Eastern winners, in the National League's equivalent to Canada's Grey Cup classic.

A full house of about 41,000 is due at Buffalo Saturday, with 52,000 expected in the big Cleveland stadium Sunday.

Despite the fact that temperatures in the 30s are about the best that can be hoped for in either city, both games could have sold out twice.

The NFL's title game has been played in a deep freeze for the last three years—Green Bay, New York and Chicago.

ROTE RETIRING

San Diego took the AFL title last year in California, 51-10, over Boston Patriots. Veteran Tobin Rote was the quarterback in that game and will be playing his last game for the Chargers Saturday.

This year John Hadl may be at quarterback. If Hadl runs the club and wins he will be the first championship quarterback the AFL has ever had who did not play in the older NFL first.

Jackie Kemp, the Buffalo quarterback, has an NFL background and also played for San Diego before the Chargers let him get away to Buffalo for $100.

Unitas and the Colts are the favorites in the NFL game, despite the crunching rushing of Brown.

"I'm worried about the weather," Brown says. "A runner has to have the right conditions. It's a shame that weather plays such an important part in such a big game."

This is the first NFL title game for the Colts since they won a pair in 1958-59.

The Browns, once perennial title contenders, have not played for the championship since 1957, when they were bombed by Detroit Lions.

WILL MANAGE/MOUNTIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Mounties will be managed next season by Haywood Cooper Sullivan, 34, former major league catcher who guided Birmingham to second place in double A ball this year. Sullivan's appointment was announced Wednesday, one day after Vancouver was assured a place in the Pacific Coast League.

Helmets Ordered For Aces

QUEBEC (CP)—For what is believed to be the first time in professional hockey, a team has required its players to wear helmets during games.

Robert Marthenet, general-manager of the American Hockey League Quebec Aces, said Wednesday this long-considered decision was taken after injuries to two players.

Defenceman Jimmy Morrison fractured his skull in a fall to the ice in a game against Cleveland Barons Dec. 10. Another rearguard, John Hanna, suffered a concussion Sunday in a game at Providence.

Marthenet said the protective helmets have been ordered and should be available for the Aces' next game.

The headgear has been made compulsory in most Canadian amateur leagues.

Had Year To Go
Coach Resigns After 5 Fired

DETROIT (AP)—Head coach George Wilson of Detroit Lions resigned Wednesday less than 48 hours after his five assistant coaches were fired by owner William Clay Ford.

Ford said a mutually satisfactory agreement on the remaining portion of Wilson's contract was reached.

Ford said he accepted Wilson's decision with regret and added that a search for a replacement would not begin until after the first of the year.

Wilson has been head coach of Detroit since 1957.

Ford Monday fired all five of Wilson's assistants, including longtime aides Aldo Forte and Bob Nussbaumer. Also ousted were Lea Bingaman, Don Doll and Sonny Grandelius.

Many observers considered the action a direct slap at Wilson's authority and there were rumors that he planned to resign.

HAS NO COMMENT

Wilson left the building after his resignation without comment. He is reported $47,000-a-year contract still had another year to run.

But Ford announced that the 51-year-old veteran would be retained "indefinitely."

Wilson took over as head coach of the Lions when Buddy Parker, now head coach at Pittsburgh, quit suddenly just before the 1957 season. Wilson took over a club Parker said he could no longer handle and won the National Football League title.

Wilson's teams finished second in the NFL's western division in 1960, 1961 and 1962 but never won another title. The Lions were fourth this year with a 7-5-2 record.

Wilson, a former Chicago Bears end, came to the Lions in 1949 as an assistant coach.

Kingston Redendals Hawks thumped this city's Oddfellows bantams 8-2.

Peterborough Canadian Legion whipped Belleville Rollins peewees by an 8-2 score.

In the midget tilt, Belleville led 2-1 going into the third heat after a scoreless first frame. D. Beecher triggered both Oddfellow goals, D. Mohr, J. Ling and T. Boulter earned assists.

F. Heuslis potted Kingston's initial goal and J. MacFarland got the tying marker in the third. Harvey, Rawson, Gilmour and Brown had assists.

Kingston bantams led 3-0 and 5-2 by periods. Dennis MacCormack and Bill Royea fired the Oddfellow goals in the middle period. Mark Aquafredde and Ted Waite got the assists.

Barry Toner scored twice for Kingston with L. Clement, H. Stymest, K. Harvey and R. Westlake scoring once apiece. Assists went to H. Harvey and R. Seale, with two each, Stymest, Toner and P. Hannah.

Rollins peewees fell behind 3-0 in the first frame and Peterborough had a 5-1 margin going into the third.

Terry Meagher scored both Belleville goals, unassisted. The second one came on a penalty shot late in the game.

Tom Forestell starred for Peterborough, with four goals Clifford Haddens scored two and helped on another pair. Kemp also scored. B. Roode while Mike Condon and Rick dre wtwo helpers with one each for D. McGilis, Forestell, Condon and J. McWilliams.

Says Trade Was Happy Surprise

MONTREAL (CP) — Left-winger Dick Duff says his trade this week to Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League was a "happy surprise."

"I never thought it would happen," said Duff Wednesday. "I hope I do well here."

Duff arrived in the city Tuesday night from New York and played his first game for the Canadiens Wednesday night on a line with Jean Beliveau and Bobby Rousseau.

The opponents were the New York Rangers, the team that traded him to Canadiens in a four - player deal. Duff went to New York last year after several seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Duff said Canadiens' approach to hockey always coincided with his own views of the game.

"Even when I was with the Toronto Maple Leafs and played as hard as I could against Canadiens, I always felt that the Canadiens played hockey the way it should be played. They move the puck to the head man. They pass a lot."

Duff had been in a slump with the Rangers.

"I seemed to do all right on the road, but I couldn't get going in New York. I'm hoping it will be different in Montreal."

Montreal got Duff and a minor league player for promising goalie Jean - Guy Morrissette and Billy Hicke, a seasoned veteran who fell short of expectations with the team this year.

Bill Crothers Named 1964 Top Athlete

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

It's a happy birthday and a Merry Christmas today to Bill Crothers from the country's sports editors and sportscasters. They named him Canada's outstanding male athlete of 1964 with a whopping vote of confidence.

The award was made on the bespectacled young man's 24th birthday and is recognition of his outstanding successes on tracks in North America and Britain, capped by a great second-place silver-medal performance in the Summer Olympic Games at Tokyo in October.

There, against the best field the world has known in the 800 metres, he was picked to finish no better than fourth. But he sent the experts scurrying for cover with a placing behind gold medallist Peter Snell, the all-time great at distances ranging from 800 to 1,500 metres.

Crothers was clocked in 1:45.6, the second fastest of all time. And he was the first Canadian to reach the final in this event since Alex Wilson of Montreal won the silver in the 1932 Games at Los Angeles.

The 148 voters in the 30th annual Canadian Press year-end poll, asked to name the three individual athletes in order of preference, gave Olympic competitors a clean sweep.

Crothers, a pharmacist in the Toronto suburb of Markham, topped the list with comparative ease. Compiled on a 3-2-1 basis, he received 318 points, was mentioned by 122 voters and given 85 first-place votes, 21 seconds and 16 thirds.

Second with 107 points was Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who had undergone surgery for a damaged thigh muscle after a disappointing showing in the 1962 British Empire Games at where he finished last in the 100-yard final. Jerome came back to win a third - place bronze in the Olympic 100 metres, missing the silver by inches.

Doug Rogers, the strapping Toronto factory worker who was born in Truro, N.S., and whose father lives in Vancouver, was third with 86 points. He brought new popularity to judo by finishing second in the heavyweight division at Tokyo.

Two professionals—Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks, National Hockey League scoring champion last season, and Tommy Grant of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, named earlier this year as outstanding Canadian in the nine-team Canadian Football League—were fourth and fifth, each with 80 points.

George Chuvalo of Toronto, who outpointed Doug Jones to earn a shot at former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in an elimination bout for the World Boxing Association's version of the title, was next with 65 points.

Twenty-six athletes representing such sports as golf, equestrian, bobsledding, football and bronco - busting got only minor attention from the voters. And Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wing super-star and 1963 poll winner, didn't receive a mention.

Crothers, who placed third in the ballotting a year ago behind Howe and quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders, had run in the shadow of his friend and teammate Bruce Kidd for years until 1963 when he suddenly burst into international prominence.

The shy, soft-spoken young man topped the world list in the 800 metres that year with a time of 1:46.1.

He was installed as winter-book favorite for a gold medal at Tokyo but the experts suddenly went sour on him. He had the unhappy facility of being bored in during big races and they thought his best of 1964 of 1:47.1 against the clock in Toronto was enough to give him a ranking at the Olympics.

He welcomed his also - ran status because the pressure would be off at Tokyo. He practically walked to a heat-win in 1:49.5, followed with a 1:47.3 clocking in a semi-final.

He had learned his lessons well in the art of competing for a place with experienced strategists and was right up there in the final until Snell made his move about 250 metres from home.

"I didn't respond fast enough when Snell made his move," Crothers said of the race.

The silver medal, something no other Canadian had been able to do since before the Second World War, wasn't bad for a six-footer whose father tried to discourage him from track years ago because he felt Bill was "too small."

Jerome, recuperated from his thigh injury, ran his heart out at Tokyo, just missed out on the silver medal in the 100 and then reached the final of the 200 metres and again was slipped at the wire for a third-place bronze. He finished fourth.

Rogers, who took up judo as a schoolboy when other kids picked on him, blossomed into a six-foot-four 265-pounder and went to Japan for three years to study the sport. He won three preliminary bouts before losing out in the final.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

It's a cardinal sin, when a team is fortunate enough to get a three - n - one way breakway, for the puck carrier to shoot as soon as he gets over the blue line.

This is strictly a matter of inexperience and over-eagerness to get the shot away.

When three players get such a breakaway, they should try to stagger their positions in order to confuse the goalie. If they can get him to commit himself in one direction, they've got a chance for a clean shot.

Or by passing the puck around they can get a man in the clear after forcing the goalie to move, for an almost certain goal.

By shooting the puck too soon, the experienced player kills a wonderful chance. Maybe he will miss the net with his shot but by the time you retrieve the puck, your opponents have had a chance to come back into the play and tie you up.

Boston was having trouble scoring goals this season until it unloaded on Chicago for six goals.

When Boston played us, Sid Abel told us in our pre-game meeting that they would be taking a lot of long shots. Which they did.

Half of their shots were from the point, or from the centre ice zone. This is because they were fighting the puck. When you're fighting it, you haven't got confidence.

When you're having trouble getting your combination play working smoothly, you have two alternatives.

You can flip the puck through and try to put a man in the clear or you can take the long shot. Invariably the long shot will be the answer.

Then it is a matter of hustle to try to get the puck back. You've given them control of it. The more you hustle, the more chances you have of hurry, ing or intercepting their passes, forcing them into errors that will give you the puck.

Mere $81.13 Separated Top Looters

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — A mere $81.13 made the difference in Jack Nicklaus beating out Arnold Palmer for the Professional Golfers Association's money title of 1964.

The PGA final official computation of earnings showed Tuesday that Nicklaus and Palmer were the only ones to break the $100,000 mark this season.

Nicklaus earned $113,284.50, Palmer $113,203.37. Both played in 34 PGA - sponsored events.

However, winnings from non-PGA - sanctioned events put Palmer ahead in unofficial total earnings by $118,417 to Nicklaus' $118,079.

Palmer came out of the season the winner of the Vardon Trophy, playing 6,721 strokes for 60 rounds for an average of 70.019 for 117 rounds. Billy Casper was second with an average of 70.359 for 117 rounds.

Palmer also headed the Ryder Cup point standings with 748.55 points. Casper again was runner-up with 694.88.

In regular play, Nicklaus won four of the tournaments and placed among the top five 17 times. Palmer won two events and ran in the top five finishers 15 times.

Czechs Arrive Jan. 1st

MELVILL, Sask. (CP)—Revamped after its third - place finish in the Olympic hockey tournament last spring, the Czechoslovakian national team will arrive in Winnipeg on New Year's Day to play four exhibition games.

Gordon Juckes, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association secretary - manager, confirmed Wednesday the 28 - member team will play two games against the Canadian national team and one each against all star junior and senior clubs.

The tourists will meet the Canadian nationals in Winnipeg Jan. 3 and Toronto Jan. 10. They play the juniors at Montreal Jan. 5 and the unnamed senior club at London, Ont., Jan. 7.

The Czechs will arrive at Winnipeg from Colorado Springs, Colo., where they meet Russian and Canadian national teams in an international tournament.

This marks the second tour of Canada in two seasons for the Czechs, who won five, lost three and tied three on an all-game junket last year.

Jiri Anton, coach of the club last season, has been replaced by two men, Vladimir Kostka and Vladimir Bouzek.

Kostka is ice hockey head at the Physical Education Institute at Charles University in Prague. Bouzek is coach of the Brno club which has won nine Czechoslovakian championships.

'Wish Harry Had Won It'

Crothers Impressed With Trophy

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers, Canada's outstanding male athlete of 1964 in the 30th annual Canadian Press poll announced Wednesday night, said: "I've been impressed at all by awards but this one is an honor to receive."

The world - ranking half-mile track star, who celebrates his 24th birthday Christmas Eve, added: "I wish Harry had won it."

His reference was to sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver, runner-up in the balloting by sports editors and sportscasters in 1960 Olympic Games at Rome and the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

Jerome, who has thigh muscle trouble during big races and they thought his best of 1964 of 1:47.1 against the clock in Toronto was enough to give him a ranking at the Olympics.

He welcomed his also - ran status because the pressure

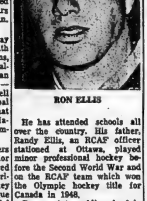
Has Top Star Potential

Leafs' Ron Ellis Impressive



TORONTO (CP)—At 19, Ron Ellis is the only teen - ager on the Toronto Maple Leafs and a strong candidate for the National Hockey League Rookie-of-the-Year award.

And, for obvious reasons, such as his goal production so far, comparisons have been made with Bobby Hull and Frank Mahovlich and their rookie seasons. They turned out to be NHL super - stars and Ellis, who will turn 20 Jan. 8, could be just as good.

Approaching the half - way mark in his first season with the Stanley Cup champions, Ron is the Leafs' leading goal-scorer with 11—one more than the veteran Andy Bathgate and has five assists. He's well up among the league's top goal scorers, keeping in mind that Hull tallied 13 goals and Mahovlich 20 in their first campaign.

Ron is one of a few players who has stepped from junior ranks into the NHL. He played last season for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League and led them to the Memorial Cup title. He was the team's top marksman with 46 goals and 38 assists.

As time permits, he is working towards an arts degree at York University here, but if he doesn't establish himself in the NHL during his two - year Leaf contract, he intends to return to university full-time to study for an engineering degree.

RON ELLIS

He has attended schools all over the country. His father, Randy Ellis, an RCAF officer stationed at Ottawa, played minor professional hockey before the Second World War and on the RCAF team which won the Olympic hockey title for Canada in 1948.

Ron went to public school in Toronto suburb for four years, played peewee hockey at 10 for a North Bay team, attended public and high school in Ottawa and starred with Allied Rockets, a Leaf - sponsored team in the capital.

Then the Leafs brought him to Toronto to play with Weston Dukes, a Junior B club, and he attended high school in the Toronto suburb. From the Weston club he stepped up to the Marlboros and the pro ranks.

"Where we lived," said Ron, "there always seemed to be a skating rink either just across the street or not too far away."

Teen-Age Canada Pen Pal Has Letters From Over 40 Countries

By JACK HUTTON

The king of all pen pal correspondents in Canada lives anonymously today in Simcoe, Ontario, surrounded by letters, gifts and newspapers from more than 40 countries.

His vast correspondence, which started with a desire to swap coins, recently became too much and he had to cut back or risk losing time for anything else.

But, for those of you just starting out in our Project Pen Pal, here's his advice on a hobby that is possibly the fastest growing form of international communication today. (I've promised to keep his name a secret.)

COIN COLLECTING

"My real hobby was collecting coins. One day I was reading a news item that had a name and address in India, so I thought why not try swapping coins by mail. So I wrote to India and any other place I could see a name or address in the newspapers.

"One day Chedi Jagan was in Canada from British Guiana so I wrote to him personally and a later found my request had been placed in their political newspaper. In a few weeks I knew more about that country's internal troubles and forthcoming riots than the wire service.

"In my letters I said I collected coins and stamps and would be willing to send most anything especially papers and magazines that would show our way of life. Printed matter travels quite cheaply by sea — eight, 10 or 15 cents for a good-sized roll of papers.

MANY COUNTRIES

"I took out a six-month subscription with the South China Post (Hong Kong). When the first copy arrived I found they had a very large pen pal column with names from Macao, Singapore, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Malaya, British North Borneo, the Philippines, Korea, Japan, etc.

"This really got me going on that side of the world and as my South China Post arrived from week to week I was amazed to find European names and addresses; so I gradually spread farther and farther and in such an indirect way.

"Perhaps I should tell you about the newspapers and magazines. The fun starts after you have been sending them back and forth for a few weeks with several different parties. As the weeks rolled on, I could hardly wait to get home. Hardly a day passed that I did not have a newspaper, letters, parcels or post cards from all over the world.

"My first pen pal Christmas was one of my happiest. In early December I started to get beautiful cards from all over the world. I had to rush out and send mine air mail to be sure of not letting any of my new friends down.

TROPICAL GIFTS

"One parcel came from the island of Grenada in the British West Indies. A friend had sent me nutmegs, cloves, cinammon, cocos, casova native candy and many other things. When someone you've never seen does this, Christmas takes on a new meaning.

"This same pen pal could make me almost feel I was swimming with him in the tropics. One day he said he'd cut the long whip-like tail of a manta ray off and was sending it in a roll of newspapers (illegal, of course). I've still got it.

"During the winter months I have spent many evenings carried away to far-off places. I have read new mountain a paper from Ceylon, then glanced through a paper from the Fiji Islands, then on a letter from my Chinese friend in North Borneo.

"After you read a few copies of these newspapers you get to feel you know the local problems as well as your own. You see the prices, the articles for sale, the recent weather. By bedtime I would feel I'd been in all of the different places.

TRAVELLING

"At one time, for example, I was helping a friend in Ireland write a book. When he took his holidays in Spain and he sent post cards and letters, I felt that I'd travelled in Spain too.

"I've talked about learning French as a second language in Canada. Many of the so-called backward countries I've written to take two or three languages for granted. Many of their newspapers have two sections — one for English and one for the native language."

End of the letter — a remarkable experience in getting to know people in different parts of the world and becoming involved in their day-to-day life. That's the only way I can sum up our friend's letter.

I'm so glad to hear so many of you are taking advantage of the names we've been offering. And very soon I'm going to devote a column to letters coming back the other way. Some are very heartwarming.

There will be a list available sometime in January carrying all the names I've received so far — more than 200 from several corners of the globe. But wait for the announcement in this column.

Today's list is from a group of girls in Jamaica who would like boy pen pals: Ruth Scott (boy over 18 with interest in French and literature); Ann Reid (boy over 18 with interest in coin-collecting, science and photography); Beverley Wright (boy or girl); Phillippa Mellad (boy or girl). Address for all is Clarendon College, Chapelton, Jamaica.

TOP TWENTY HITS

1 Lonely, Bobby Vinton; 2 Ringo, Lorne Greene; 3 Hello Something Good, Herman's Hermits; 4 So Many Other Boys, Esquires; 5 My Love Forgive Me, Bob Goulet; 6 Going Out Of My Head, Little Anthony; 7 Come See About Me, Supremes; 8 Walk Away, Matt Monro; 9 I'm Going To Be Strong, Gene Pitney; 10 Dance Dance Dance, Beach Boys; 11 The Jerk, Larks; 12 I Feel Fine, Beatles; 13 Anyway You Want It, Dave Clark Five; 14 Leader of The Pack, Shangra Las; 15 Then Is On My Side, Rolling Stones; 16 Saturday Night At Movies, Drifters; 17 The Wedding, Julie Rogers; 18 Big Man In Town, Four Seasons; 19 Willow Weep For Me, Chad Jerome; 20 She Understood Me, J. Jaycee Driving Tips

A few weeks ago, I had a minor accident. My index finger got caught by closing the car door. I learned a lot out of it—It hurts! Can you imagine how much it must hurt when you get in a real accident with every bone broken? Many accidents could be avoided could have been, avoided if we would not act so much by instinct. We are doing things we don't, even know we are doing.

Do you reach for the door handle without looking at it? Do you close the door before you are really settled in the car? There are immeasurable little things to be considered while you are operating a motor vehicle.

The only driving tips I can really give for this week is to be extra careful over the holiday season — do not drink before or while you are driving and have a merry Christmas among the ones close to you.

SPREADS ACROSS CANADA — Girls in Montreal dance the frug in a discotheque, a club or hall where up-tempo records play continuously and customers dance variations of the twist. A fluttering slightly fitted shift dress, called the discotheque style, designed for modern dances is being worn by these girls. The craze started in Paris and is spreading across Canda. (CP Photo)

Discotheque Craze Began In Paris, Moved to N.Y., Now Has Invaded Canada

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It may be a hole in the wall or a posh club. It may cater to students or to the expense-account crowd. If it has a stack of up-tempo records and customers who like to dance the frug, watusi, chicken, swim or monkey, it's a discotheque.

The discotheque craze began in Paris, moved to New York and now has invaded Canada. There are clubs in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Victoria and several due to open in Vancouver.

Whatever the individual setup, the principle is the same—the music is by record, the dances are variations of the twist.

"The secret to running an operation like this is to keep the music going, never let it stop," says Rene Gagne, owner of the discotheque in Ottawa's Riverside Hotel.

"The room must be kept very dark and the music must be very loud. The dancers get dazed; they don't stop dancing all night."

At the Inn on the Park, a motor hotel that opened Toronto's first discotheque, a live orchestra playing conventional music alternates with the records.

At at some other discotheques, the one at the Inn on the Park has a hostess who shows the customers how the dances are done. Several also have a disc jockey—a disc-ar—to talk it up.

Jacks Amoch, owner of Jacques' Place in Toronto, scorns such refinements as gimmicks. He says his combination of intimate coffee house and unadorned music is true to the idea of the discotheque as Europe first knew it.

One New York club is reported to have a membership fee of $1,000 and dinner tabs of as much as $125. By way of contrast, Uncle Jake's in Victoria which is popular with teenagers charges 25 cents an hour. Owner Tony Elsa says it had 10,000 patrons in the first four weeks. Punch cards are used to determine how long a dancer has been in the place.

Montreal and Toronto have about half a dozen clubs each, with more opening. They are graced with such names as Whisky a Go Go, Le Cafe Go Go, Le Cachot, Loupgarou and La Licorne. Montreal's oldest is La Licorne, about two years ago.

Each club attracts its own type and vintage of customer, but collectively they draw people of all ages whose idea of dance attire ranges from turtle neck jerseys to cocktail dresses.

The dancer who is really with it, however, wears the discotheque dress which was imported along with the clubs. It seems designed for doing the frug, being basically a short, slightly fitted shift affair with tiers, ruffles or panels that wag with the dancer.

In its original Paris style it had ruffles around a low neckline but the ruffles slipped on the transatlantic crossing and now are mostly around the hem.

One group that is unhappy about the discotheque boom is the American Federation of Musicians. Its general policy is that union musicians may not play in a club featuring canned music.

Mrs. Hope Always Faces Christmas Without Bob

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's our life, and I'm used to it. I think a lot of people try to fight against the kind of life they have, and they end up making themselves miserable. It's much easier to accept the life you have, and enjoy it."

This was the philosophy of Dolores Hope as she faced another Christmas without her husband Bob. While he is entertaining American soldiers in South Viet Nam, she will be spending Christmas at their home in north Hollywood.

"Our holiday has pretty much fallen into a routine," Mrs. Hope said. "It's not like other people's, but it has its compensations."

The routine is this: Before his departure overseas, Bob spends a half-day selecting gifts of fruit to send to friends all over the United States. About 15 days before Christmas, he leaves with his troupe. Mrs. Hope completes the shopping, has Christmas Eve dinner with the children. In recent years, eldest son Tony has accompanied Bob.

The stay-at-home Hopes attend midnight mass and in the morning open a few of their gifts. Then they have Christmas dinner with close friends.

VISITED CROSBYS

"Last year it was the Crosbys," Mrs. Hope said. "They wanted us to come up to their house at Springiana this year, but it was too far for us."

Bob often calls home during his trips, but seldom on Christmas Day. "That's his busiest day; he does three or four shows in widely separated places," his wife said. "And the time difference also makes it difficult."

Hope returns a few days after Christmas and then the celebration really begins. Assorted Hopes come out from Cleveland to join the festivities. Last year the crowd for dinner numbered 32, only two of them non-Hopes. The family celebration continues until the Epiphany, Jan. 3.

Wednesday Night Viewers Going to Miss Old Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS may be helping its Wednesday night ratings by substituting Mr. Ed and My Living Doll for its old CBS Reports and news specials, but viewers who enjoy some meaty programs in the early evening are going to miss the old shows.

Mr. Ed is a comedy series which features a lovable talking horse and one of the loudest laugh tracks in television. Wednesday night's episode had this remarkable animal ordering Christmas gifts over the telephone and getting his owner in all sorts of trouble with his wife. There was also a dream sequence in which Mr. Ed played Santa's helper at the North Pole.

Somehow this sort of thing seemed much better when it went on the air in its former early Sunday evening spot.

It is followed by My Living Doll which features a lovable talking robot, a computer who looks like a beautiful girl, and last night this man - made beauty was about to be left $100,000 by an eccentric old fellow. It also features a noisy, ghostly laugh track.

CBS apparently is serious about one cloak - and - dagger series next season, the one starring Polly Bergen as a glamorous foreign agent.

It may prove the most gorgeous cloak in history — Yves St. Laurent, the Paris couturier, has been retained to whip up Miss Bergen's wardrobe.

Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, in one of their rare TV appearances, will play in the Jan. 23 Hall of Fame production of The Magnificent Yankee on NBC. The following month, Trevor Howard will play Napoleon in an original drama, Eagle In a Cage.

The Golden Years

You Can Be Retired, Lovable And This Will Tell You How

By THOMAS COLLINS

The coming of a new year is a time for sentiment. For resolutions, programs of self-betterment, and that sort of thing.

I seems fitting that the gray-haired segment of the population get in on this act. So, as a starter — for those already retired or about to be retired — these follow-me's are a 1965 set of rules on:

"HOW TO BE LOVABLE, THOUGH RETIRED"

Rule 1 — You've moved to the suburbs, developed a fine lawn and a precious petunia bed. But the brats from the young family next door keep trampling, everything as they run over for their balls, while their dog regards your emergences as fire plugs. Don't yell at the kids, hate their parents, or call the police. Instead, hire the toughest kid in the neighborhood to guard your yard for 25 cents a week.

Rule 2 — Stop riding the bus or train downtown between 7 and 9 a.m., and back home between 4 and 6 p.m. That's when all the pathetic working people are getting to and from work, or what is known as "The Rush Hour." You scrimp their seats or gouge them with your packages, and they don't think that's nice.

GIVE A LITTLE

Rule 3 — you have adult children and some grandchildren. You have some savings you're going to leave them in your will because you'll not need the money. Start fascinating your children with a clever distribution of some of the savings now . . . up to about a third of what you have, no more. Give them a little, but always unexpectedly, when never they invite you to visit them. Give them a little on the 10th of any month, when their bills must be paid, or three weeks after Christmas, and there's no need to be dull about it by giving them a cheque . . . give them a bag of 50-cent pieces, or a small roll of $2 bills.

Rule 4 — Stop buying your groceries on Friday and Saturday when every working housewife in the county is struggling to get through the check - out counter. Try Monday.

Rule 5 — When you feel a desire coming on to go back to the company and visit a while with your old friends, squelch it. Send a postcard for the bulletin board instead.

Rule 6 — Stop telling people how wonderful you were back in the days when you were working. Let them discover for themselves how wonderful you were. If they want to. They won't.

Rule 7 — Don't buy a new organ for your church and thereby win appointment as chairman of the Board of Deacons. Go on and buy the organ, but let some struggling younger man who needs the status to help him at the company be chairman. You be vice-chairman.

Rule 8 — You have more than one child. You are never absolutely sure they love you for what you are or what you've got. Keep books on your treatment of them, record each visit back and forth, each money gift to each, and making sure all get the same treatment. Then keep advertising to all of them the fact that each of them is equally dear to you.

RUSH HOUR" AGAIN

Rule 9 — Stop taking trips in July and August, when a million working people do and need the motel room and the highway space you're occupying. It's "The Rush Hour" thing again.

Rule 10 — Make wills that provide for the distribution of your wealth primarily to your children — in equal parts. Tell your children you have made wills that you "hope" there will be something left to give them, that you "intend" to have most of it to the children. If you will do this, never telling the children how much you have a net neve. telling them for sure they will get your mysterious fortune, you will become to them very lovable indeed.

Rule 11 — Acquire a stopwatch and train yourself never to keep your mouth open for more than 45 seconds at one stretch. After that let somebody else say something.

Rule 12 — Stop complaining about things. You've been complaining since you were born in 1900 — or else you're a freak — and that's long enough.

Marmora

MARMORA — Friends here received a letter from Mrs. L. Curtiss of Lindsay, in which she relates the highlights of a trip she and Dr. Curtiss took to the Orient and Hawaii, Japan and Hong Kong. In Hong Kong they visited the British cemetery where they found it well kept and a beautiful memorial. On this they found engraved the name of J. W. Linn, Royal Canadian Infantry Co., Royal Rifles of Canada. This is the first information that relatives of the late "Jim" Linn have received other than the government notice and greatly appreciate it. Pte. Linn was a Marmora boy, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Linn and brother of Mrs. H. P. Naylar. Dr. L. and Mrs. Curtiss were former residents of Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Belanger received word on Saturday of the sudden death of his brother, Mr. E. Belanger, of Hull, and left immediately.

Mr. Donald Bagley is recuperating at his home following surgery in Belleville hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jones left by plane from Malton for a three weeks' holiday with Mr. Jones' sisters and other relatives at Laguna Beach, California.

Mrs. Annie Jones of Marmora celebrated her 84th birthday on December 15th. She received many cards and friends and relatives wish her another happy year.

Mrs. Howard Hamilton is a patient in Civic Hospital, Peterborough.

Mrs. Robert Southworth has returned home after spending a week in Toronto.

Marmora Public Library served candy to all children on Saturday afternoon.

The minister Mr. J. F. Cooper brought a timely message and the white gifts were presented.

YULE PARTY

The sixth line community held a Christmas party in Scott's United Church hall on Saturday evening under the supervision of Mrs. K. Piwowarski and Mrs. Maurice Dafoe.

Mrs. Kingsley Doolittle acted as master of ceremonies for an interesting evening of Christmas carols; a candleligh service and the legend of Father Christmas. Mr. Piwowarski had chalked in for a background, an outline of the city of Bethlehem which was most appropriate for the program. Santa Claus arrived with a treat for the children.

"Do you mind, Mother—this is just between us."

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Highlight versatility. If you are too rigid, you lose. Sense of humor gains much. Stress flexibility. Listen . . . analyze. Realize there are now various methods.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): What appears an attractive offer may have loophole. Keep guard up where money is concerned. Be aware. Check with trusted friend associate. Be safe rather than sorry.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Cycle high. Spotlight on way you react to personal events. People due to express interest. You can advance original views, plans. Doors previously closed now due to open.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Join forces with those who have faith in your ability. Don't minimize your worth. Speak up for your own interests. It would be mistake today to turn other cheek.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Spotlight on hopes, wishes. If have questions— ask them. Also, there is pressure. Know there is no justification for "self-doubt." Key is to tackle one problem at a time.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Make sure you adhere to principles. Then proceed in resolute manner. Time to act on what is in your heart. Let chips fall where they may! Then you can make real advances.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Finish projects. Let others know what you feel, think. Fulfil ambitions. Take steps in right direction . . . make long-range plans. Good to study your paper. Analyze. Think!

If today is your birthday . . . you have original spark, you are dynamic — willing to fight for what you think is right.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Cancer: Expose true feelings. Then your attitude can be regarded as "healthy."

Inspiration From a Poet-Novelist

"Man and His World" Expo Theme

MONTREAL (CP) — On the 33rd floor of a Montreal skyscraper there hangs on an office wall a photograph of a human skull with six bats flying around inside it.

The gimmick shot is designed to spur the men engaged in producing ideas for the 1967 Montreal World's Fair.

"I have shown it publicly a couple of times, but some people don't like it," said Commodore O. C. S. Robertson, a tall, retired seafarer whose job is to turn the fair's theme—Man and his World—from airy ideas into concrete reality.

"But you have to have bats in the belfry for this kind of work."

Puzzled above the bats on his Place Ville Marie office wall is a cartoon and the caption says:

"What we need around here are brand new ideas that have been thoroughly tested."

The two cartoons, Commodore Robertson says, "sum up the work we do around here."

Ideas have come thick and fast from about 150 advisers in many fields and nations to the point where the concepts of 12 of 15 exhibits being prepared by the fair itself have been drafted.

At the same time, grading and filling of the site is about 90 per cent finished and construction is to begin in the spring.

BASED ON BOOK TITLE

The theme Man and His World is an approximate translation of Terre des Hommes, title of a book written in 1939 by Antoine de Saint-Exupery, a French poet-novelist killed in action during the Second World War.

Commodore Robertson, a native of Victoria who retired from the Canadian navy three years ago, summed up Saint-Exupery's book this way:

"He said the greatest contribution a man can make is to mankind as a whole."

This contribution is what the world's fair will attempt to show, both in its own pavilions and in those put up by participating nations and businesses.

But, while the fair authorities hope individual exhibitors will design a pavilion in line with the general theme, they are using the soft-sell, Commodore Robertson said.

The theme Man and His World is sub-divided into four sections, Man the Creator, Man the Explorer, Man the Producer and Man and the Community. These in turn are broken down into many smaller themes.

For instance, under the Man the Creator theme will come a fine arts gallery showing about 150 masterpieces of sculpture and painting from around the world. Negotiations for the loan of the pieces are under way. The masterpieces will be grouped in 10 different rooms, each devoted to a particular idea.

In the Creator theme there will also be exhibits of fine photography and industrial design.

SHOW LIFE AT POLES

One of the Man the Explorer exhibitions will be on the polar regions, a subject close to Commodore Robertson because of his trips through the Arctic, both as commander of the Canadian research vessel Labrador and as an adviser aboard United States nuclear submarines.

The polar exhibits, through films and mechanical moderators—in the persons of a penguin and a polar bear—will show life in the Arctic and Antarctic as it was and as it may be in the future. Visitors will also have a chance to ride a model nuclear submarine, coming ashore at an exhibition of polar wildlife, plants and transportation methods.

Man and the Oceans, also under the Explorer theme, will show how man can use the seas for food and minerals, and how the ocean affects his daily life.

Man's battle with machines is another sub-theme under the Man the Producer classification. It will show how man shaped machines for the children with swings and seesaws designed to show the principles of simple machines.

Another exhibit is the communications pavilion in which a visitor may stand above a huge globe on which the world's communications lines are etched. The visitor will be able to send an imaginary message from one point on the globe to another and watch its route, by radio, by telephone, by submarine cables, traced in lights.

Work on the buildings to house these exhibits and others will begin in the early spring.

IDEA PRODUCER — This gimmick shot was designed to spur the men engaged in producing ideas for the 1967 Montreal World's Fair. A cartoon alongside the photo says: "What we need around here are brand new ideas that have been thoroughly tested." The picture and cartoon appear in the office of Commodore O. C. S. Robertson, in charge of developing the fair's theme—"Man and His World". (CP Photo)

Commodore Robertson says: "We could have started this fall but it would have cost too much."

Then, almost nonchalantly, he added: "We have time in hand."

"We have," says Robert Shaw, deputy - commissioner-general, "long since passed the stage where we have to assure people that it will really take place."

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED

Here are some of the major chores taken care of during the last 18 months:

—Contracts to supply a mass transit system capable of moving 30,000 persons an hour to and through the site have been let.

—About 90 per cent of the grading and shaping of the island site has been completed and a new bridge leading to it is partly completed.

—Contracts have been let for sanitary and storm sewer systems on the site, which are to be in before construction starts.

By early December, 26 foreign governments had joined the fair and, officials say, another 16 have given informal notice that they will participate. Mr. Shaw and Commissioner-General Pierre Dupuy, former Canadian ambassador to Paris who tours the world to line up participants, say 30 countries may take part.

Until the fair is dismantled in 1968, unions agree that no strike or other action will be taken that could block the fair. If disputes arise, they will be referred to an arbitration board composed of union, Expo and exhibitor representatives.

Viet Cong Suffers Reverse

Free-lance photographer James Pickerell, wounded by the Viet Cong in November, was assigned by The Associated Press to accompany Vietnamese troops who over-ran a major Viet Cong guerrilla position Sunday. Here is his report.

By JAMES PICKERELL

DAI NGAI, Viet Nam (AP)—Government forces over-ran a major Viet Cong position Sunday, killing at least 67 guerrillas and capturing 10 others as well as a large stock of weapons.

It was one of the most significant government successes in the last year.

The government forces suffered 11 dead and 42 wounded. Among the wounded were seven U.S. Army helicopter crew members hit by small arms fire.

(Two other Americans were reported wounded in other actions in the Mekong Delta Sunday. Two were reported in serious condition.)

The attack began when millitiamen in the ricefand hamlet beside the Mekong River called for help after exchanging fire with the guerrillas.

Thirty - six helicopters, half armed with rockets and heavy machine-guns, dropped on the Viet Cong position, discharging two battalions in seven quick waves. Air force planes poured

Snow and Winds Adding To Hardships of Hundreds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Heavy mountain snows and gusty coastal winds lashed the northern California flood area Sunday at the end of a week of unprecedented rain and rainina, adding to the suffering of hundreds still marooned and hampering relief and rescue work.

But the colder weather has put a brake on rivers that had rampaged from the mountains to the Pacific Ocean in the hardest hit area—Oregon and northern California.

More snow in the mountains and wind and rain below were forecast for today.

The Columbia dropped enough in Washington to permit start of clean-up work. The flood threat appeared over in Idaho but the little town of St. Joe, population 75, in the Panhandle, still was without electricity, in touch with the Rocky River withdrew its threat to Reno.

California counted 19 flood dead with the confirmation Sunday that four had drowned when a helicopter plunged into the Eel River 40 miles south of Eureka Saturday. Seven died in another California logger crash last Tuesday north of Eureka.

A 27-man party Saturday reached the site of the Tuesday crash and reported no survivors.

The crew members included RCN Sub-Lieut. Allen L. Allen of West Vancouver.

Oregon reported 18 deaths from flood action.

The Red Cross listed 16,300 families as suffering major losses to homes, businesses or farms in Oregon, California, Idaho and Washington.

No official estimate of damage was available, but rough guesses by leaders of relief and rescue operations put it at close to $1,000,000,000.

Five hundred persons—miners, loggers and their families —were marooned in several communities along the Klamath and Salmon rivers at the northern tip of California.

"Helicopters beginning to run short of food," reported William Sowle, civil defence director at Treka. Late Friday dropped two feet of snow on Yreka Summit, day halted helicopter flights for the day. The prediction was for continued snow today.

Food shortage was the problem throughout the northwestern corner of California.

Six C-119 cargo planes were to fly today from McClellan Air Force Base near Sacramento to Arcata near Eureka with 21,000 pounds of telephone repair equipment, three fire trucks and four utility vehicles.

Pacific Telephone said its facilities in northern California were damaged to the extent of almost $1,000,000 during the Christmas week storm.

FIGHT IS FATAL

PARIS (AP) — Two Paris businessmen exchanged blows in a parking place in front of a department store Saturday and one of them fell dead of a heart attack. Police said Roger Trousseau, 44, financial adviser of a large shipping firm, was trying to save the parking spot for his wife who was coming around the block.

Congenital Malformations In Animals Produced by Drugs Taken by Humans

MONTREAL (CP) — A U.S. government scientist reported Sunday that several widely used antihistamine drugs recommended for motion sickness and the nausea of pregnancy have caused congenital malformations in animals.

Dr. C. T. G. King of the U.S. Public Health Service, after reporting this to an international scientific meeting here, said in an interview that "it's up to the (U.S.) Food and Drug Administration and the companies (selling the drugs) . . . to evaluate what it means" in terms of possible hazards to humans.

He told the American Association for the Advancement of Science that the drugs, when given to rats at specific days of pregnancy, produced an array of congenital deformities "all in the animals' offspring."

These included cleft palate, fusion of the fingers to the palate, undeveloped jaw and small mouth. Skeletal deformities also occurred.

"I want to emphasize," he told the scientists, "that although all the experiments done so far cannot translate animal experimental congenital malformations to conditions of human experience, we still cannot, and should not, ignore the results obtained in the animals."

He identified the drugs as meclizine (trade name Bonine) in cyclizine (Marezine) and chlorcyclizine (Perazil).

King said in his formal report that late in 1962 meclizine hydrochloride was withdrawn from the market in Sweden "because of its suspected teratological (congenital malformation) potential." He said in the interview he did not know if the drug is still banned from the market in Sweden.

He also told a reporter that at one time, French authorities were "seriously considering" withdrawing cyclizine from the market for the same reason.

The researcher said his investigations also had:

1. Identified a specific chemical breakdown product — a common denominator of all three of the drugs —as the fraction responsible for producing the animal deformities.

2. Further dispelled the myth that in pregnancy, the placenta membrane provides an "impenetrable barrier" to chemicals being transferred from the mother to the embryo.

King emphasized in his report that the antihistaminic property of the drugs is not responsible for the defects produced in the animals. He said other antihistamines, some of which were even higher in antihistamine activity, were tested and produced no adverse effects in the offspring.

Viet Nam War All But Lost

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—Leaders of the Viet Cong claim the guerrillas fighting the government of South Viet Nam control three-fourths of the country and more than half its 15,000,000 people as the year nears an end.

Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho made the claim in a statement to the ruling politburo of the Viet Cong central committee.

The statement would be difficult to challenge.

He said the balance of forces is shifting in favor of the Viet Cong, and this, too, coincides with available information on the Saigon side.

On Dec. 20, 1960, when the Viet Cong formally organized itself, the guerrillas had at most 2,000 men under arms, opposing government armed forces of some 400,000. Today, Viet Cong strength is estimated at around 120,000 against a government force of some 615,000 men under arms, including police.

Each line during the last four years that the government has sought to wipe out the guerrillas, it soon was given area, Saigon has bitten off more than it could chew. The mobility provided by troop-carrying helicopters has helped, but not enough.

Saigon and the Washington ally spent tens of millions of dollars in 1962 on a project called Operation Sunrise, aimed at cleaning out a key Viet Cong base 30 miles north of here.

NEARLY A FAILURE

The operation was nearly a complete failure and the Viet Cong now is stronger in the area than ever.

Later in 1962 and 1963, the government and U.S. officers launched the "strategic hamlet program," aimed at bringing one community after another under government control.

Until President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown in a military coup Nov. 1, 1963, the statistics from this program looked encouraging. But U.S. officials found at that point that only a small fraction of the hamlets

Police Hunt Man Who Slew Manager of Brewers' Store

KINGSTON (CP) — Police hunted their search during the night for a man who, according to the girl-friend of a slain brewers' retail store in an attempted holdup Christmas Eve.

Before Paul Lawrence, 52, died, Christmas Day following surgery, he described the gunman and whispered a description of his assailant to police.

Lawrence described as between 18 and 21 years old, slim and wearing a three-quarter length leather jacket. He lay in wait for Mr. Lawrence in the store manager's car and shot him at close range.

Man Thinks He Has Located Thirty-Million Pirate Hoard

HAMILTON (CP) — Robert Restall, a former motorcycle stuntman, says only 20 feet of water now separate him from a $30,000,000 treasure trove believed buried in Oak Island off the Nova Scotia coast.

After five years of drilling, he says he has located the treasure sought by others for almost 200 years.

He is making arrangements to buy the island" owned by M. R. Chappell, a Sydney N.S., businessman.

"The price is considerable and Mr. Chappell still will get 10 per cent of the treasure," he said.

He sked in Halifax to comment on Mr. Restall's statement that he was within 20 feet of treasure. Mr. Chappell said:

"I don't believe a word of it." Mr. Restall left on a stopover on a flight from Toronto to Sydney, said he talked with Mr. Restall a week ago and there was "no indication" then that Mr. Restall had located the treasure.

He said Mr. Restall's search lease on the island expires Dec. 31 and it is unlikely it will be renewed.

Oak Island was an anchorage for pirates who preyed on the treasure galleons of the Spanish Main. Captain Kidd is said to have buried his booty on Oak Island before he was hanged in 1701.

Canadians Completed Christmas Celebrations in Varied Weather

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A bowling blizzard across southern Saskatchewan and flooding in parts of Quebec Sunday capped the four - day Christmas holiday, marked by unusual winter weather which left a memorable holiday travel across Canada.

Especially hard hit were the airlines, forced to ground flights because of rain and fog in Toronto and Montreal Wednesday and Saturday and Saint John, N.B., and Halifax on Christmas Day.

Flooding in Quebec forced residents of St. Raymond, 30 miles west of Quebec City, to take their homes as the icejammed Ste. Anne River overflowed its banks.

A weekend storm in Saskatchewan was the fourth December blizzard in the province. It had subsided by late Sunday night causing only slight delays in trains, bus and air traffic.

Four stranded Weyburn, Sask., youths were rescued unharmed earlier in the day after spending seven hours in a stalled car.

Alice Roy, 37, of Leoville, Sask., 75 miles north of Prince Albert, was found dead of exposure Sunday, and William Tomkins, 20, of Calgary, died of asphyxiation Christmas night when a car in which he was riding slipped off a highway 200 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Fire and winds up to 35 miles an hour damaged the substructure and ground floor of the main building at the construction site of the new Grace Hospital in St. James, Man., Sunday night. Heavy snow hampered the firefighters.

Airlines said flights were filled to capacity with home-bound travellers, but said the heavy traffic would not compensate for business lost on the first two days of the holiday. One Air Canada official described the losses as "fantastic."

The airline tie-up turned out to be a bonus for bus and railway transportation. A Canadian Pacific Railway official said this year promised to be the best Christmas season since the early 1940's.

Thousands turned to trains when they learned flights had been cancelled. And on CPR and Canadian National Railways ran extra trains to Montreal and Ottawa from Toronto. One CPR train on Saturday had to unscramble at Montreal and the Maritimes aboard 12 coaches.

Ralph Bryce, assistant secretary of the Toronto Transit Commission, said Gray Coach Lines, a TTC subsidiary, carried heavier - than - usual traffic into Toronto. About 200 buses handled the rush.

Montreal had its warmest Christmas on record with the temperature reaching 37.4 degrees Friday. The Ottawa area had its warmest Christmas since 1932 with a high of 48.

Many parts of Ontario also had a green Christmas with temperatures in the 40s and 50s over the holidays. But they dropped down to lows of below zero and blizzard near St Godfrey, his wife and five children.

Governor-General and Mme. Vanier were also at home Christmas and were hosts Christmas Day to eight students representing seven Commonwealth countries. All are attending Ottawa's universities. The traditional Christmas party for persons unable to be home for the holidays was held at Halifax where welfare organizations and the immigration department provided turkey dinner for about 65 persons in department detention headquarters.

Temperatures dropped to 27 below in Winnipeg Boxing Day. A 39-year-old woman froze to death early Christmas morning at Rolling River, Indian reserve, 150 miles northwest of Winnipeg, and a 54-year-old man was taken to hospital in Winnipeg with frostbite to hands, kneecap and foot after being found lying in a parking lot.

In British Columbia, snowfalls stopped at most points and it was slowly thawing on the province's south coast, making driving conditions in some areas hazardous.

UN Negotiators At Critical Stage In Session

Trying to Head Off Soviet-U. S. Showdown

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Negotiators at the United Nations reached a crucial stage today in their efforts to head off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over the Russians' refusal to pay peace-keeping assessments.

The negotiators hoped to work out some agreement before the assembly's next meeting, scheduled for Tuesday morning. The Security Council can't function after Thursday — New Year's Eve — unless agreement is reached on the basic issue or unless two disputed council seats are filled without a vote so as to avoid a challenge of the Soviets' right to vote.

The Soviet Union will not pay assembly assessments to finance the Congo and Middle East peace-keeping operations because it contends the Security Council alone has the right to start and finance such operations. So it is more than two years behind in its total assessments.

The United States says that if a vote on anything is called in the assembly, the Soviet Union must suffer the penalty set out in Article 19 of the UN charter, which states that any member two years behind in its assessments shall have no vote in the assembly.

HAVENT VOTED

To avoid a showdown, there has been no voting since the assembly convened Dec. 1, and all necessary business has been done by general consent. But diplomatic sources said Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana had failed to get agreement to elect Security Council members the same way.

There is no problem concerning two of the four seats that become vacant at the end of the year on the Russian-and-neutral Uruguay and The Netherlands are unopposed candidates for the two seats at stake for Norway.

Delegates were hopeful some way would be found to get around Indonesia's demand to be allowed to vote against Malaysia, which is otherwise unopposed to replace Czechoslovakia.

But they said Quaison-Sackey had failed to resolve a contest between Ivory Coast and Morocco's seat. They said Mali had rejected his suggestions

Accidental Deaths In Canada, 76

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There were at least 76 accidental deaths across Canada in the 84-hour Christmas holiday period which ended Sunday night. Of the total, 57 persons died in traffic mishaps, seven more than the number predicted by the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

The death toll fell far short of the 130 recorded in a five-day Christmas holiday in 1963 and was below the 84 registered in a four-day period in 1961. Road deaths in the two years totalled 96 and 53 respectively.

During last year's two - day holiday there were 31 deaths, 22 in traffic.

This year's total, compiled by Canadian Press survey from noon Thursday to midnight Sunday local times, included 22 drownings, three fire deaths and seven miscellaneous deaths.

The breakdown by provinces, with road deaths in brackets, was: Ontario 34 (27); Quebec 25 (20); Prince Edward Island 3 (0); Alberta 2 (1); Newfoundland 2 (0); Nova Scotia 2 (2); New Brunswick 1 (3); Manitoba 2 (0); British Columbia, 5 (5); Saskatchewan 1 (0).

In addition to the 27 highway deaths in Ontario, there were three drownings, two fire deaths, one accidental shooting and one person died when he fell down a flight of stairs.

In Quebec, a girl died from injuries suffered when she fell while dancing.

Three men were drowned in P.E.I. when their car crashed through ice as they attempted to cross to a coastal island. Two men were drowned when their car plunged off a wharf at Port aux Basques, Nfld.

Alberta's other death included a baby who suffocated on a plastic bag and a fire fatality. B.C. had one drowning before its traffic death and Manitoba reported a boy who bled to death from a leg cut and a

California Priest 'Exiles' Self As Silence on Racism Ordered

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest says he is going into "self-imposed exile" from the Los Angeles archdiocese "as the strongest protest I can make" . . . because "I was ordered to maintain a silence on racism."

Rev. John V. Corfield, 49, Sunday called his departure "a solution to an impasse between my cardinal (James Francis Cardinal McIntyre) and myself."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A ridge of high pressure moving slowly eastward across the Great Lakes area has brought an end to the rain and fog of last week. As the high pressure ridge moves slowly eastward winds over the area will shift to the southeast this Tuesday. This will result in increasing cloudiness and a gradual moderation in temperature.

Today's Chuckle

Prospective employer to beautiful blonde: "You're hired, Miss Brooks — now let's see if we can find a job for you!"

Father Corfield said in his farewell statement to his parishioners that he was ordered to take a five - month "enforced vacation" from California earlier this year because he had spoken out against controversial Proposition 14.

The proposition, upheld by voters last November, amended the state constitution to prohibit any abridgement of an individual's choice to whom he might sell or rent a home or apartment. Its effect, it said, nullified state anti - discrimination housing laws.

Reached anyone knew of the shocking way I was ordered out of California after I had spoken out against Proposition 14," Father Corfield said in his statement.

"I was ordered out on June 22 and was not allowed back until Nov. 15," he said. "I was hopeful that silent acceptance of the injustice to me and my parishioners would help defeat the proposition. I was so wrong. I should have fought it openly.

"I want to have no part in the continuing silence and lack of repentance which is daily driving away many excellent people.

"On Saturday, Nov. 14, I was ordered- to maintain a silence on racism. I chose instead a self-imposed exile from the diocese as a gesture of protest against, and rather than be a part of, the continuing evil of silence."

Emil Seliga, a layman and spokesman for the priest, said he would go to Chicago for a period of three to six years to do missionary work, particularly among Latin-Americans.

Father Corfield was pastor in Los Angeles since his ordination 24 years ago, has been assigned to the Anaheim Catholic Church for the last three years.

The public protest was the second by a priest in the Los Angeles archdiocese this year. Father Wm. William H. Du-Bay made a public request to Pope Paul VI to remove Cardinal McIntyre citing what he said was his inability to speak out on civil rights matters. The priest was transferred from a predominantly Negro to a predominantly white parish within the archdiocese.

In his letter to the Pope, Father DuBay asked for Cardinal McIntyre's removal for "gross malfeasance in office" in "failing to exercise moral leadership" on racial issues.

Revive Man Frozen Solid In Block of Ice 12 Hours

DURHAM, England (AP)—A man frozen solid in a block of ice for almost 12 hours was being thawed out at a hospital Sunday night.

Alan Ann, Leslie Ritson, 40-year-old former sailor, was apparently knocked unconscious when he stumbled into an ornamental pond two feet deep.

Later he came to sufficiently to drag himself clear. A caretaker found him unconscious nearly 12 hours later. The incident was reported to police by Harry Birks, superintendent of Durham County Hall, where the accident happened.

A police official said: "Birks told us a man had been found in a solid block of ice. When we got to the hall he was still completely frozen up. It was a fantastic sight."

Doctors regarded consciousness as doctors slowly brought his body temperature back to normal. A hospital spokesman said Sunday night "he is still thawing out, but he appears to be getting over his ordeal."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dowsett Suffer Heart Attacks, Die

A double funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at Christ Church for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dowsett of 23 Alexander St., both of whom died of heart attacks following the Christmas holiday.

Mr. Dowsett, accountant at Smith's Hardware for the past 40 years, died shortly after admission to Belleville General Hospital on Saturday morning.

Mrs. Dowsett made funeral arrangements for her husband, then Monday morning was taken to hospital with a heart attack where she died an hour after admission.

Mr. Dowsett was in his 70th year, while his wife would have been 66 on her next birthday.

Born in Slough, England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Dowsett, Mr. Dowsett came to Canada in 1913 and had lived in Belleville for 44 years.

He enlisted with the 37th. Regiment in 1914 and served overseas, receiving his discharge in 1919.

GRADUATE NURSE

Mrs. Dowsett was the former Emma Treasur. She was born at Colborne, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Treasur.

She was a 1922 graduate of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing and for many years has been a valued member of the hospital nursing staff. She worked on Thursday, the day before Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Dowsett were both active members of Christ Church. He was past church warden and Sunday school secretary for 13 years, while Mrs. Dowsett was active in many phases of women's church work.

Fraternally Mr. Dowsett was a member of The Belleville Lodge No. 6 A.M., No. 122, while his wife was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Belleville Chapter, No. 55.

20th Ballot Fails to Elect Pres. of Italy

ROME (Reuters)—The Italian parliament today failed to elect a new president of the republic on its 20th ballot in 13 days as the political parties were unable to break an unprecedented deadlock.

Failure on the latest vote followed intensive inter - party consultations after Sunday's 19th vote.

A 21st ballot was scheduled for 5 p.m. (11 a.m. EST).

Today's first vote was again an inconclusive duel between Giuseppe Saragat, 66-year-old Social Democrat foreign minister, and Pietro Nenni, 73-year-old Socialist deputy premier.

Nenni polled 281 votes, his highest mark so far and a gain of eight over Sunday's ballot. He was the candidate of his own party, the pro-Communist Socialists of Proletarian Unity, and the Communists.

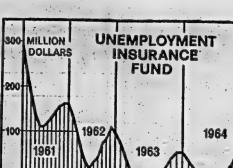
Saragat obtained 323 votes, a loss of 30 compared with Sunday. His own party and a majority of the Christian Democrats voted for him.

NEED 481 VOTES

Blank ballot papers increased to 100 from 86 Sunday. Most of the remainder were cast by Christian Democrats who refused to back Saragat.

A total of 481 votes of the 963 electors of both houses of parliament is needed to elect a president for a nine-year term.

The deadlock has brought discredit to Italian parliamentary democracy and a risk that the four-party coalition government of Premier Aldo Moro might be shattered.



The coalition is made up of the Christian Democrats, the strife-ridden largest party in the country, the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans.

The election was forced by the resignation of Giuseppe Segni, 72, who suffered a stroke in August, 2½ years after being elected.

Two Fires Over Weekend Cause Damage of $21,000

Fire struck twice in Belleville over the Christmas holiday, causing an estimated $21,000 loss.

Christmas night Kemp's groceteria on Station Street was gutted when flames — believed sparked by a short circuit in a compression unit — swept the building.

The blaze had a firm hold when firefighting units arrived, and spread beyond control. Loss was estimated at $15,000.

Boxing Day morning a passerby turned in an alarm that likely saved a Front Street bank building.

A general alarm at 10:15 a.m. sent city firemen rushing to the Toronto-Dominion Bank building at the Four-Corners where smoke had been spotted.

Investigating officials, credited fast action by firemen in containing the results of the blaze to smoke and water damage.

Even so, an adjuster's estimate placed the damage at $10,000.

Cause of the blaze was believed a fault in an outside signs's electric transformer which started a fire in the building's switchboard.

The blazes moved upward to the law offices of Arnott and Bateman, over the bank building — one of Front Street's newer commercial structures.

Five Babies Born in BGH Christmas Day

Christmas bundles of joy were welcomed by five Belleville district families on Christmas Day with as many new babies being born at Belleville General Hospital on the holiday.

Biggest Christmas baby at the hospital was a boy born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin, R. R. 4 Belleville, who weighed in at 10 pounds.

Other new arrivals were to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mills, Northbrook, a son; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fisher, Tweed, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hogan, Lime Street, Belleville, a girl, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Walker, Moira Street, West, a girl.

Charge Youths With Break-in

City police last night arrested two youths on a used car lot — scene of a break-in.

Charged with break, entry and theft at Kennedy's car lot, North Front Street, are Roy John Hoskins and Stirling Edward Sager, both 17, of Belleville.

Police say the lot office had been entered and the keys of an automobile taken.

Meantime, detectives are still investigating three service station breakins in the city over the Christmas holiday.

Small amounts of cash were taken from soft drink machines at Ashley's (301 Coleman), Hatfield's (35 North Front) and Moorman's (Pinnacle) service stations.

Fire Destroys Large Frame House at Stoco

TWEED — Fire Sunday afternoon erupted in a large frame house at Stoco, gutting it before firefighters from here could bring it under control.

Its lone occupant, Thomas Cassidy, escaped uninjured to turn in the alarm from a neighbor's house.

Mr. Cassidy was reported to have purchased the house only a few weeks ago.

Malaysian Police Open Fire on Indonesian Boats

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) Malaysian police Sunday night opened fire with sten guns at what were believed to be two Indonesian boats near Muar, 100 miles south of this capital city.

The incident came only a few hours after official reports said last Wednesday's Indonesian landing in Malaysia has been crushed, with all but one of 23 commando infiltrators killed or captured.

The presumed Indonesian boats were about 200 yards offshore when police opened fire Sunday night after a challenge was ignored. The Muar area was the scene of an Indonesian landing Oct. 29.

An official spokesman said Sunday that three of the boats landed last Wednesday near Pontian, 180 miles southwest of here, had been killed, and 24 captured.

President Sukarno of Indonesia has vowed to crush Malaysia by sunrise Jan. 1.

Royal Air Force fighters and bombers strafed the mangrove swamps and plantations around Pontian in efforts to drive the Indonesians out. Malaysian infantry and field police continued the ground operations.

The British warship Ajax captured 22 armed Indonesians aboard boats heading for Kuala Selangor, 30 miles north of here, on Christmas Eve.

SHEFFLER — In loving memory of my dear father Harvey Sheffler, who passed away December 26, 1962.
I seem to see in the soft dim light,
A face I always knew,
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far off west,
And when the day is done,
Then I sit on the day, of your passing.
For silence can never close the door of my heart.
And memory and love is still
Your heart was the truest in all the world
Your love the best to recall,
For no one on earth could take your place,
You are still the dearest of all.
—Always remembered by son Clifford and family.

REID — In loving memory of a dear father, Harvey Wesley Reid, who passed away December 27th, 1957.
The vacant home without you, dad,
And the weary way,
But life is not the same to me,
Since you were called away.
Memories are sweet and fleeting ones,
Those sacred hours we spent,
Together as a family once,
Before we were bereft.
In bygone happy days,
Sadly missed and ever remembered by son Stewart and daughter-in-law Ruby, friends, Allan and Mary and grandchild Sandra.

The Year Realism Caught Up With Defence

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The year 1964 may go down in military history as a significant date because of a Canadian initiative.

It was the year the government integrated the top command structure of the armed forces.

In 1965, this integration will begin to percolate down to the commands of forces in the field. A single uniform is years away, however, and there is no intention of unifying all military units simply because, as an example, an infantry soldier can't fly a jet plane.

Integration brought many problems, chief among them, perhaps, the one of morale. Hundreds of personnel are being compulsorily retired and some of these complained that they were being treated like so many cyphers and without the defence department lifting a finger to help them find jobs in civvy street.

One of the aims of integration was a more flexible and faster-acting top command in which the warring of the services for financial attention would be eliminated.

NO BUDGET CUTS YET

Another was a reduction in administration—money and personnel—to release more funds for needed weapons and equipment.

There are signs that the first objective is being reached but it will probably be a few years before cuts in operations and maintenance costs are reflected significantly in the $1,525,000,000 annual defence budget.

Defence Minister Hellyer's stated aim is to reduce the armed forces by some 50,000 personnel to 110,000. This will require the compulsory retirement of some 2,000 officers and men. The others will leave as they reach normal retirement age.

Personnel problems were most acute in the navy. Six warships had to be tied up at Halifax because of shortage of technicians to man them. It was freely predicted that more ships will have to stay alongside for the same reason.

While his department wrestled with integration, Mr. Hellyer wrestled with the cabinet in an apparently successful campaign to save his defence program.

WANTS CHEAPER PLANE

Mr. Hellyer opposed purchase of the American Phantom jet fighter-bomber on the grounds that such a heavy expense—some $400,000,000 for 108 planes —would knock his whole weapons program into a cocked hat and that air support of the army field force could be carried out by a much less expensive aircraft.

Some cabinet ministers favored the Phantom on the grounds that the heavy expense for Canadian production would spread more benefits through the Canadian aircraft industry than acquisition of a much cheaper plane. The aircraft industry relies heavily on defence contracts.

With a cheaper plane, Mr Hellyer would still have funds for a $175,000,000 shipbuilding program — four helicopter-carrying destroyers and two fleet support ships like HMCS Provider, now in service.

Equipment programs announced during 1964 included nearly 1,000 American M-113 armored troop carriers for the army and 16 more American Hercules transport planes for the RCAF.

More emphasis was placed on tri-service exercises in keeping with the government's stated aim in a white paper on defence in March that the forces must be able to act in concert and quickly, especially in the field of United Nations peace-keeping operations.

The 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, went to Cyprus in March as part of the UN force there and was relieved in September by the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards.

The 1st Battalion, The Black Watch, was designated as part of NATO's special airborne force for guarding the alliance flanks—that is, Norway, Turkey and Greece.

Both the navy and RCAF assisted in the Cyprus operation.

The Canadian Infantry Brigade in Europe was strengthened by the addition of new personnel and new equipment.

WARHEADS FOR RCAF

The RCAF Air Division in Europe got nuclear bombs for its CF-104 low-level jet strike planes, making it the fourth most powerful nuclear force in the world—after the U.S., Russia and Britain.

The RCAF base at Grostenquin, France, was closed because France wouldn't permit American nuclear warheads to be stored there and the CF-104s at Marville, France, were converted to a photo - reconnaissance role.

The 56 Bomare anti-aircraft missiles at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., got their nuclear noses in early 1964 but the Voodoo jet interceptors at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, Que., Val d'Or, Que., and Comox, B.C., were still without any nuclear rockets.

Storage dumps for these rockets had been scheduled to be completed by Oct. 1, 1964, but they now apparently won't be finished until spring.

In November, Mr. Hellyer announced a reduction to 30,000 from 45,000 in the strength of the militia. Fifty-eight major reserve army units and 15 minor ones disappeared in the most sweeping reorganization of the militia in the post-war years.

MORE FUNDS FOR WEAPONS — Canada's spending on military equipment will rise in proportion during 1965 as cuts in administration and personnel release more funds for needed weapons. The defence department started cutting military manpower in 1964. Graph traces Canada's defence expenditures from 1951 with projection to the end of 1965. (CP Newsmap)

Former Kingston Fire Chief Wins Recount

KINGSTON (CP) — Victor Brightman, former Kingston fire chief, was elected alderman in Frontenac ward today after the completion of a recount.

The final count after today's recount was 863 votes for Mr. Brightman to 861 for Herbert Hunter.

On election night Dec. 7, Mr. Brightman had 858 votes compared with 860 for Mr. Hunter.

When a recount began before Christmas, it was discovered that a deputy returning officer had neglected to initial about 20 ballots as required by the Municipal Act. These ballots were at first thrown out but Mr. Hunter's lawyer turned up legal precedent to have the votes counted.

However, other rejected ballots also were counted and Mr. Hunter ended up two votes behind his opponent.

Separate Air Crashes Take Lives of Four

DETROIT (AP) — Separate air crashes during the weekend claimed the lives of a vacationing California family of four and left a Michigan family of five in hospital.

The two accidents, both involving single engine planes, occurred 13 hours apart.

The first, at Detroit City Airport Saturday night, killed airman Arl Jerome Oldre Anderson, 26; his wife, Donna Irene, 28, and their children, Miles, 6, and Pamela, 4. Anderson was stationed at Norton Air Force Base, San Bernardino, Calif.

The second, early Sunday, injured the Robert C. Hollenback family of suburban Bloomfield Hills. The aircraft went down in a Waterford Township back yard, 20 miles north of Detroit, shortly after taking off from Pontiac Airport four miles south.

Hollenback, 35, was in hospital with chest injuries. His wife, Joan, 34, and their children, James, 14, Catherine, 12, and Robert Jr., 10, suffered minor injuries and were kept at the hospital for observation.

The bodies of the Andersons were found in the charred wreckage of a four-seat Stinson. The plane nosed over the runway when Anderson, the pilot, attempted to take off. It burst into flames. Firemen arrived immediately and extinguished the blaze, but too late to save lives.

Anderson had planned to fly his family to Flint, 60 miles away, and then return to California.

Flood Waters Begin Receding At St. Raymond

ST. RAYMOND, Que. (CP)—Flood waters began receding Sunday and the weather turned cooler and townspeople began returning to their homes in St. Raymond, 20 miles west of Quebec City.

Dozens of families had fled to higher ground Saturday when the ice-choked Ste. Anne River spilled over its banks, flooding basements and streets and even invading the ground floor of the town hall.

Unusually high temperatures and rain that melted snow and ice were blamed for the sudden rise in the level of the river.

Andre Girard, civil defence co-ordinator, said about 10 homes were still partially under water Sunday but the crisis had passed and the river level was dropping.

The town, which normally experiences floods once or twice a year, is situated on the side of a hill and most of its homes were out of danger.

St. Raymond's civil defence unit formed a 15-man emergency squad Saturday that helped move affected residents and their belongings to higher ground.

BONAVENTURE, Que. (CP) Part of a bridge on the Bonaventure River used by trucks in logging operations was swept away by rising waters Sunday.

The bridge is on a county road linking St. Elzear and Bonaventure, 250 miles northeast of Quebec City.

A highway linking Matane and Amqui was closed for a time Saturday when the Matane River overflowed its banks. The bridge was reopened when the water receded.

The Montmorency River overflowed its banks near Quebec City Saturday, flooding summer cottages on Enchanteresse Island. Residents used dynamite to break up ice floes and the water receded.

Fire Causes $3,000 Damage In Closed Store

TRENTON — Fire Saturday night broke out in a recently-vacated fish-and-chip store at Bay and Hawley Streets.

Damage was estimated at $3,000 and cause of the fire is still unknown.

The store, still with its cooking equipment, is owned by Arthur LeClair and has been closed since November.

Norwood Man Drowns in Stoney Lake

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Leaman Haddlesey, 40, of Norwood, Ont., drowned Sunday afternoon in Stoney Lake, 15 miles north of here, when the snowmobile he was driving across ice broke through and went under water in the centre of the lake.

Two other men in the vehicle, Frederick Craig of Rouge Hills, Ont., and William Payne of Norwood, both 43, were rescued by two Toronto area youths who witnessed the accident.

Roger Davidson, 16, and Donald Lush, 19, hauled the two men to safety with a hockey stick and a length of electrical cord. Haddlesey slipped beneath the surface just as Davidson reached the far side of the open water where the father of three had been hanging on.

Davidson said the vehicle skimmed over the water for about 10 feet before it sank. He said his mother had shouted at the men as they passed the Davidson cottage but they apparently did not hear.

Capricious 'Tides' in Air May Affect World's Weather

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

MONTREAL (AP)—New evidence was reported today that a capricious "tides" in the atmosphere—caused by the same moon and sun that produce oceanic tides—may affect the world's weather.

Meteorologist Glenn W. Brier of the U.S. weather bureau told about it in a report to the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He and meteorologist Max A. Woodbury of New York University stressed that their concept —even if definitely proved — could not be expected to act as a reliable predictor of day-to-day rainfall.

But the scientists said the concept could well offer a means of forecasting periods of exceptionally heavy rainfall, at least in the United States.

Brier indicated that all the evidence suggests that, in the atmosphere, there are tides-within - tides. Each of three listed by him depends on the relative positions of the sun, moon and earth in a given month of slightly over 29 days.

ARE WEAK

The atmospheric tides are caused principally by gravitational forces, but relative pinpricks in energy when compared with oceanic tidal forces —shape up something like this:

1. A main one that apparently peaks near the middle of the first and third weeks of the lunar month—especially on the third to fifth days after both the "new" and "full" moons, when the energy when earth are lined up on a straight line.

(The studies showed there is a marked tendency for extreme precipitation to occur in North America at those times.)

2. A lesser force that apparently acts when the moon's individual tidal forces are at a maximum at the particular time in a "solar day" most favorable for precipitation on earth.

(The most favorable time for rainfall for the United States as a whole is about 3 a.m. solar time, with 5 p.m. as runner - up, so, if the moon is in the right position, rain would be even more likely.)

3. Still another lunar - solar tidal relationship that appears to be associated especially with relatively - rare, exceptionally heavy rainfall.

SNOW FALL

Snow crystals fall individually when the temperature is far below freezing, and only collide to form large flakes when warmer air is met.

His Facts are Twisted

Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the armed forces of South Viet Nam, has publicly assailed the United States in a radio address.

The armed forces, he says, will not "carry out the policy of any foreign country."

Adding insult to injury, he has linked communism and colonialism in one breath as "common enemies."

After the heavy price which the U.S. has paid in money and in lives to assist South Viet Nam to resist the communists, this may sound like base ingratitude.

But Khanh has the right spirit.

"Better to live poor but proud as free citizens of an independent country rather than in ease and shame as slaves of the foreigners and communists," he says.

Americans will recognize those sentiments.

It is a pity that Khanh does not in his turn recognize that the choice he pictures is precisely what he and his countrymen do not have.

Without U.S. aid, and the strings attached to it, they would be poor, but not free, for the communists would soon rule them. If it were not for that fact the U.S. would not be so eager, (perhaps we should say so insistent), upon helping them.

Khanh's heart is in the right place; but his grasp of facts is faulty.

He and his countrymen cannot enjoy the luxury of calling down a plague on the houses of both the communists and "the foreigners." They have to make a choice.

Under the Umbrella

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, the little pleiban who succeeded the patrician Nehru as Prime Minister of India, has had another problem added to the multitude which plagued his predecessor.

Since Nehru's death a fundamental change has occurred in East Asia—China has exploded a nuclear device.

Shastri shares Nehru's aversion for a world in which all nations hold the power of complete destruction over the heads of their neighbors. He wants nothing to do with a nuclear arms race with India's gigantic neighbor. But he is being subjected to pressure to turn the nuclear facilities into peaceful purposes, plants designed for the peaceful use of atomic power, into plants capable of manufacturing A-bombs. His best chance of resisting such pressure appears to be to arrange for some other power already possessing nuclear arms to pledge itself to defend India if that country is subjected to nuclear attack by China. To this end he has asked the U.S. and Soviet Russia to provide such protection. Can nations without nuclear weapons of their own.

It is easy for us Canadians to smile at the naivete implicit in this request for a pledge which would commit the great powers to unleash their rockets if any nation became the target for an atomic attack. We might not think the request so strange if we were in India's shoes. Nestled as they are under the protective umbrella of the nuclear power of the U.S., we are apt to forget how different is the lot of many other nations in today's world.

Did He Get That Raise?

Queen Elizabeth has complained to the British Press Council about press photographers who intruded on her privacy and that of Princess Margaret.

Robert Haswell, a Daily Express photographer, and a freelance photographer by the name of Wilmot were discovered in undergrowth at Sunning Hall Park. They were escorted from the property. Later, the Sunday Express ran pictures of the Queen and Princess, the latter in water-skiing costume.

We are told that Robert Edwards, editor of the Daily Express, expressed regret that there had been need to complain about the conduct of the paper's photographer, Robert Haswell. He described Haswell as "over-zealous."

There is just one thing we would like to know. Did Haswell get that raise, (pardon us, "rise"), for which he almost certainly asked after his exploit?

Don't give your children too much spending money and what you do give them, make them account for. We teach children everything else —how to dance, how to drive, etc., but we fail to teach them the one thing that is more important to their future happiness than any of these things, and that is how to handle money.—Edmund de Rothschild.

Ottawa Offbeat
Foot-in-Mouth Disease Plagues Liberal Party

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — While most members of Parliament have headed home to relax and enjoy a holiday (a good one they gave themselves), there is one who has his worries.

Prime Minister Pearson is spending the current recess determining whether or not — and if he does, how — to alter his Cabinet.

It seems unlikely that many people would be surprised if he did this after the round of troubles his ministers have suffered through (and often are) in recent months.

The troubles one bit is to determine what changes should be made and to whom.

In alphabetical order there are Favreau, Lamontagne and Tremblay (Justice, State and Citizenship, in order) who have been big targets for the sharp-eyed Conservative opposition, with assists from the NDP.

They have had more than the usual amount of trouble with their troubles because of what has been called political ineptitude — they are probably quite capable administrators but have an unhappy propensity for foot-in-mouth disease, personally thought to belong exclusively to Agriculture Minister Hays.

Although Mr. Lamontagne and Mr. Tremblay seemed to have cleared up their home-furnishing difficulties the last day before the House adjourned, several Tories are determined that they shall not have heard the last of them.

JUSTICE

Mr. Favreau's case, of course still has some way to go. The judicial hearings before Quebec's Chief Justice Dorion have a long way to go — the list of witnesses is almost as long as the list of lawyers representing various interested parties (18, at last count.)

Mr. Pearson is truly caught in the case of Miss Lang's time.

None is really old enough, nor useless enough, to be sent to the Senate — besides, all three are from Quebec, where there is only one vacancy.

There is only one truly intelligent and capable of good work in government planning and legislative programming.

Furthermore, putting them in less sensitive ministries would mean apparent demotion and this might not sit well in Quebec.

To add to the worries of the prime minister, rumors stirred somewhere that he should also deal with Benedictson, Deslandets and Laing (Mines, Public Works and Northern Affairs, in order.)

He denied the rumors, but no member of the Liberal caucus turned a hair at the suggestions. Probably because, in addition, many of the current backbenchers are hope to be heirs to ministries, but to a man, none of there was no surprise in the rumors.

WHERE THE PROD?

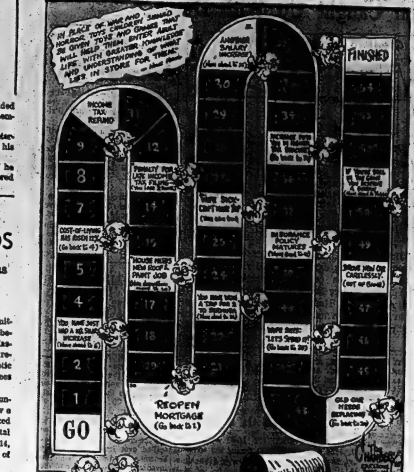
Many of those back-benchers will admit privately that the government backbench is sadly lacking in what are known as political professionals.

One prominent minister, they lament, is too much the gentleman and diplomat and too little the politician (although he is learning).

Drury (Industry) and Hellyer (Defence) are still the rule not and at times can be downright antagonistic. There are others not even distinguished for their tempers. And there is Pickersgill (Transport).

On the plus side is the firm, but polished, Miss LaMarsh (Health and Welfare); oddly enough, the two-edged Benson (Revenue), and the old-smoothie Martin (External Affairs).

Oh, how the backbenchers would love to have Mr. Martin out of the front bench and into one where he could daily deal with the political problems of the country. Then came that neat the smoothing tongue.



But that is not likely to be — Mr. Martin likes his present post and has more than enough to say about it that he won't be shifted.

So the whole problem is left to Mr. Pearson to ruminate upon as he tries to enjoy his Christmas and New Year layoff.

Better Than Cartoons

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

The CBC missed a good bet when it scheduled the National Film Board film The Last Voyage of Henry Hudson, as late as 10:30 p.m. It would have been a service to school children to show it in the early evening, instead of repeating cartoons for the umpteenth time. History is too often a dull subject in schools and when a good film brings a phase of it to life, full advantage should be taken of the opportunity.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 28th, 1944

Activities of several committees during 1944 were aired before the morning session of Hastings County Council with reports of the Finance Patriotic and House Refuge Committees being adopted as read.

The Finance Committee under chairmanship of Reeve George McDonald, authorized payment of indigent hospital accounts amounting to $9,221.14, a decrease, the report stated, of $5,000 from last year.

The hospital raised indigent rates from $1.75 to $2.00 due to the higher costs of food, help, etc. The committee felt this was a reasonable and justifiable increase as ten years ago the rate was $1.75 when costs of commodities and help were 25 per cent lower.

Dilemma

The United Nations has installed a mechanical voting machine. Delegates, instead of voting by raising their hands, will push a green button to signify yes, a red to signify no and a yellow to abstain. One can safely predict that the Soviet Union and its satellites will be partial to the color of Communist solidarity. The question now is: will Mr. Adlai Stevenson ever have to vote red?

The Trustees and the SIU

—Montreal Gazette—

The House of Commons was unanimous when it appointed the trustees to control the affairs of the Seafarers' International Union. It is no longer unanimous, now that Mr. Leonard J. McLaughlin has become president of the SIU, in elections held under the trustees' supervision. The argument raised by the Opposition is that the trustees, having taken action to eject Hal Banks as the union's president, have allowed Hal Banks' henchmen to take his place. In the report on his investigation of the SIU, Mr. Justice Norris had had words for Mr. McLaughlin.

The emergence of Mr. McLaughlin as the elected president has created such a storm in the House of Commons that the Minister of Labor, Mr. Macdonald, has agreed to set up a Commons committee, with powers to summon the trustees to appear and testify.

The trustees have held their office for a little over a year. On the night they were appointed, they held a press conference in Ottawa and outlined their aims and policies. They were (1) to get Canadian ships moving again in the Great Lakes; (2) to put an end to labor strife on the Great Lakes; and (3) to rehabilitate the contending unions.

The first objective was realized almost immediately. The second objective has been attained, at least so far. There has been peace for a year now on the Lakes. It is the third objective that will provide the controversy.

The trustees are faced with the fact that the only union within the SIU with any experience in administration were officials of the era of Hal Banks. The election just held — which appears to have been thoroughly supervised — was not between the Banks' men and the non-Banks' men; it was mostly between two sets of Banks' men. There was no one else who had sufficient experience seriously to stand for office.

But conditions within the SIU have not been static during the past year. The old DNS (Do Not Ship) List is gone: the list that Banks drew up to keep his enemies off the ships. The initiation fee has been reduced from $240 to $100. The $100 fee for becoming a "book", or full-fledged member is down from $100 to $50. The time needed to qualify for full membership has been cut from 3 to 12 months.

The Appeals Board — where members may take their grievances — was set up by Banks to give some appearance of legality to his last stage. This board has been expanded. Its members, in addition to Commander Robertson of the Royal Canadian Navy, are Judge Montpetit of Quebec and Dean Woods of the School of Industrial Relations of McGill. Eighteen men who were dismissed have appealed to the Board and 15 have been reinstated. The ships' officers are arranging to separate from the union of unlicensed ships' personnel, and form a separate union: a move that is believed to favor discipline.

A revision of the SIU's constitution is to take place, with the advice of Dean C. H. Carruthers of the University of Western Ontario — an expert in the field. An attempt is being made by the trustees to bring the shipping companies together, to form a management group, and to bring about better management-union relations. A research department has been set up, under the former chief statistician of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

What members of a Commons committee may call into question is how real are these changes? Are they part of a forward show of compliance with the trustees? How deeply will they change the SIU in Canada?

The investigation by the Commons committee, if rightly conducted, could lead to a better understanding on both sides. It will allow for questioning, and it will allow for examination. But the committee's hearing should not become a means of simply exploiting the difficulties of the trustees, without suggesting constructive and feasible alternatives.

The trustees, it should be noted, have never believed in sudden changes. The "reconstruction of the SIU" is something they do "not see as a short-term undertaking". The question before the committee is whether the trustees are working along the right lines; it is not whether they have transformed the SIU in one year.

Provinces And Senate

Edmonton Journal

Mr. Leon Balcer, the deputy leader of the Conservative Party, thinks senators ought to be appointed by the provinces.

Why not?

One of the Senate's original functions was protection of provincial rights. Surely provinces ought to have a voice in choosing their protectors. Now, of course, they have none.

Alberta provides a classic case of senators consistently being out of step with political sentiment in the provinces they "represent."

For Alberta hasn't had a senator in political harmony with the provincial Government since just after the First World War. And it has had far too many Liberal senators.

Though Social Credit has governed this province for nearly 30 years and B.C. for 12, there has yet to be a Social Credit senator in Ottawa.

Nobody contends, but there has been an openly socialist senator even though socialist peers are nothing new in the British House of Lords, on which the Canadian Senate was loosely patterned.

There have been incumbents with no intention of living in or genuinely representing the province for which they were chosen.

The provinces probably would expect better performance of their nominees, which could produce a livelier, more effective and more independent Senate.

While we believe there still is a place for an appointed upper chamber of "sober second thought" (and for prolonged committee work), we doubt Canadians will stomach hypocrisy over the Senate much longer.

Women's Fear Of Snakes Dates to Eve

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I once heard a woman say that she rejected the story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden because the snake was in the picture. "No woman," she said, "would ever have listened to a snake. She would have screamed and run!"

Whatever the value of her unique contribution to Old Testament exegesis, it does seem to be true that (at least since the first encounter) women and snakes do not make a chummy combination. There is, shall we say, a certain warmth lacking in the relationship.

A 9-year-old boy I know brought home a garter snake a few days ago — a pleasant, harmless creature of impeccable habits, not one-hundredth the trouble of the amiably idiotic dog the family has harbored for a lifetime.

Well, the women in the house reacted as if a battalion of puff adders had invaded a nursery. All the kid wanted to do was stick the snake in his terrarium and feed it live tadpoles every few days — a fine testimony to his wholesome scientific spirit of inquiry.

Not to go into the squalid details, it took hours of pleading, promises, arguments, and even a few not-so-veiled threats ("Perhaps a tarantula would be more acceptable!") to obtain permission for the snake's temporary — very temporary — residence in the terrarium.

Sad to relate, the snake escaped the following day, while the boy was at school, and slithered around the floors, looking only for good fellowship and a little bit of innocent fun. But the household was immediately mobilized for a few hours, until the boy arrived home and calmly picked it up and carried it back into the terrarium.

Then we, of course, the end. Nothing helped — logic, tears, solemn vows. The snake had to go. At one point, the boy held it out to his mother, saying "Just hold it for a minute, Ma. It's not going to make a fuss and not even slimy. I'm sure you'll get to like it."

Get to like it? A woman would no more get to like a snake than the B'Nai B'Rith would award a humanitarian medal of Merit to Adolph Hitler. Generally speaking, the boy was right — the snake is shy, clean, and non-belligerent. But most women seem to be symbolism of the snake, not its reality — a subject best left to the clinical files of the Freudians.

At any rate, the whole point of this little excursion into herpetology is that the 9-year-old is now a sadder but wiser little man today. He knows that nothing will avail against the forces of a woman's instincts and reservices, and has learned his first lesson in philosophy: a snake in the house is worth two in the terrarium.

Yonge Street, the road from York, now Toronto, to Lake Simcoe was begun 169 years ago today, in 1795. One of the earliest highways in Canada, it is still one of the most important roads in Ontario and is used by Toronto to cottage belt between east and west sections of the city. The road was ordered by Governor Simcoe and was completed in April of 1796 along its 50-mile length. It was named for Sir George Yonge, then secretary of state for war in the British Government.

Mom Whyte Back in Canada To Get Money

TORONTO (CP) — Bertha (Mom) Whyte, whose home for needy and unwanted children caused a controversy a few years ago, is back in Ontario again seeking workings and money for her youth training centre in Nigeria.

Mom Whyte operated her refuge, Whytehaven, for unwanted and needy children at her farm at Bowmanville for 11 years, working under no licence. Finally, Ontario's deputy health minister had the institution closed because of her failure to put herself under provincial legislation which requires certain minimum standards.

After Whytehaven was closed, Mom Whyte and her husband went to British Columbia where they were refused licences to operate as old persons' or children's home.

For the last three years, they have been at Aiyetoro in Nigeria's Kappa province. The last six months they spent in North America looking for money and workers for the youth training centre.

Mrs. Whyte has been given 1,000 acres by the Nigerian government and has been promised as much as she and her staff can cultivate. Besides an orphanage, she directs a youth centre for training farmers.

She spent the weekend near Schoggerg, Ont., on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Don Johnston. She plans to return to Nigeria early in 1965 and expects to take eight or 10 volunteers from Canada and the U.S. with her.

Pope Paul Considers Visit to West

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul is reported to be considering a visit to the Dominican Republic and perhaps other areas of the Western Hemisphere.

The other areas were not specified, but a Dominican diplomatic source quoted Saturday that the United States and Brazil were geographically well situated for a papal stopover should he go to the Dominican Republic.

Vatican sources said an invitation to visit the Dominican Republic was handed to Pope Paul by a special ambassador from the Dominican government. The Pope was invited to attend the international Marian congress to be held next March 18 through 25 in the Dominican Republic.

The sources said that the special ambassador, Pedro Troncoso Sanchez, gave the Pope the Dominican government invitation during a private audience. Troncoso said on a stopover in Madrid he was "very hopeful" the Pope would attend the Marian congress.

Christmas Rain Welcomed By Many District Farmers

It may have dampened the spirits of Christmas revellers, but the nearly one inch of rain received in the Belleville area over the holiday will have been welcomed by district farmers with dry wells.

Pumphouse officials today reported .95 inch of rain fell from mid-week until Saturday last week.

The rain started on Tuesday with just a trace; then the showers became more frequent until Thursday when there was nearly one third of an inch. On Christmas Day there was .24 inch and on Saturday .21 inch of rain.

The mild weather served to ruin the skating and also the sliking as the river is open and the hills are bare.

But the weatherman says cold-er weather is in the offing.

Violent Death Blights Holiday For Two Quinte Area Families

Violent death blighted the Christmas holiday for two families in the Quinte district.

Highway mishaps — near Belleville and Trenton — took the lives of a teenage Belleville boy and a Smithfield man.

Fatally injured when knocked from his bicycle on Highway 2 on the eastern outskirts of Belleville was Norman Taylor, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, R. R. 4, Belleville.

He was cycling with friend Brian Cleary about 7:15 p.m. Boxing Day when his bicycle was struck by an automobile near Norm Hall's canteen, on Highway 2.

Rushed to Belleville General Hospital, he was later transferred to hospital at Kingston for treatment of grave head injuries.

He died Sunday afternoon.

FREAK ACCIDENT

A freak accident brought tragedy the night before Christmas to a district family.

Daniel King, 34, of Smithfield, was travelling west on Highway 2 with his wife, Marilyn, following in a second car.

His small automobile hit a pothole and flipped over crossways on the highway, about three miles west of Trenton.

Mrs. King parked her car behind the rolled automobile and went to her husband's rescue.

Two other motorists also halted and rushed to her aid.

They were trying to extricate King from his vehicle when an approaching car, driven by Elwell Phinney, 21, of Trenton, hit it instantly killing King.

Funeral services for the Taylor boy will be held Wednesday at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. A Mofra Secondary School student, and a Boy Scout with the city's Pack 20, he had a brother and sister, Roger and Louise.

WEDDING

HULL — McCOY

MARMORA — A lovely winter wedding was held in Marmora Presbyterian Church when Joanne Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall McCoy, became the bride of Desmond Hull, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hull also of Marmora, on Saturday, December 19.

The ceremony was performed by Reverend James Dunlop, assisted by Rev. Harold Dawson. The wedding music was by Rev. Marvin Saunders, who also accompanied Rev. Kenneth Wheeler, who sang two selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was elegant in white peau de sole sheer dress. Alencon lace bodice appliqued with lace medallions, and seed pearls, featuring portait neckline and elbow length sleeves. The long, slim skirt and detachable chapel length train were similarly appliqued. Her elbow length veil of French chantilly lace in Mantilla style was held in place with a peau de sole sheer bow accented with a rose centred with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of Yuletide roses and ivy.

Attending the bride were Miss Joan Snyder, Toronto, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Patricia Staples, Toronto, and Mrs. Helen Saunders of Ottawa. The flower girl was Miss Kathy Wheaton of Toronto.

Attendants were similarly attired in long raspberry-red French velvet gowns with long sleeves slim skirts, with bell and bow trim. A single strand of pearls enhanced the picturesque outfits as did a single bow of red velvet trimmed with a fabric rose as headdresses. All wore white shoes. The flower girl wore a long white dress with red velvet jacket and headdress similar to other attendants.

They carried semi-cascade bouquets of large white 'mums and feathered 'mums accented with white nylon leaves and green glass bells and tiny frosted bells. The flower girl carried a white basket of red gerbinette roses and tiny white bells and 'mums petals which were strewn down the aisle.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Cecil Pringle of Whitby and ushers were Mr. Beverly McCoy, brother of the bride, and Mr. Bill Joffrey, cousin of the bride.

The reception was held at St. Andrews United Church hall.

The mother of the bride was wearing a rust velvet suit with gold brocaded blouse, matching hat, beige gloves, black shoes and purse corsage, pastel yellow 'mums, matching ribbon.

The bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece jacket dress of antique gold brocade, brown gloves, purse and shoes, gold hat and corsage of bronze 'mums and Talisman ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull left for their wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride wearing a gold brocade two-piece jacket dress with black for trim, black hat, gloves, purse and shoes. Her corsage was of pink cymbidium orchids. On their return they will reside at Oshawa.

Out-of-town guests were from Listowel, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Godfrey, Whitby, Peterborough, Stouffville, Norwood, Havelock, Queensboro.

Mrs. Hull is teaching at Bay Ridges and a shower was given her by the staff at Bay Ridges school and also one by classmates at the home of Mrs. H. G. Parkin in Marmora.

Predict More Beef Will Be Eaten in '65

OTTAWA (CP)—The agriculture department predicts Canadians will eat more beef in 1965.

A food forecast issued by the consumer section says per capita consumption of beef is expected to reach 80 pounds, an increase of six pounds over 1964. However, prices are expected to remain about the same.

There is an increasing supply of chicken broilers and fryers on the market. Light and heavy turkeys will also be plentiful but there will be little change in price, the section's economists say.

They predict higher prices for potatoes as a result of an expected smaller crop. But there will be an increase in the supply of processed potato products, especially frozen French fries and instant potato products will be relatively good buys.

Egg prices are expected to be lower than 1964 during the early part of the new year but should rise later.

Canadians ate an average of 19 pounds of butter in 1964 and consumption is expected to rise slightly in 1965, with supplies plentiful.

An increase in consumption of cheese is also forecast, especially specialty cheeses. Canadians averaged about eight pound in 1964.

The second largest crop ever will provide plenty of apples and processed apple products such as juice and sauce.

More processed fruit and vegetables will be available, especially canned beans, corn, peas and sour cherries. Frozen strawberries and raspberries will be plentiful.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"How sweet of you to drop in unexpectedly . . . I must apologize for the house being so clean."

Ann Landers

University Student Plans To Take Job as Postman

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a sociology major in our state university. My fiance is getting a degree in business administration. We will both graduate in June and we plan to be married in July.

Larry's father is a highly successful businessman. Although he has built a financial empire he has not taken a vacation since 1955. Larry's father still puts in 12 hours a day at his office in spite of an ulcer operation and a coronary.

ANN LANDERS

Last night Larry gave me some shocking news. He said that years of observing his father had persuaded him that wealth does not bring contentment or fulfillment. He wants no part of the sweat, blood and agony of business. Larry announced that he is going to be a postman.

He outlined the benefits of a civil service job — no pressure, lots of fresh air and walking, a good pension, and plenty of time for reading and contemplating his navel.

At first I thought he was out of his mind. Now I am not sure. What do you think of a college graduate who would settle for a career as a postman? — PICK-A-DILLY.

DEAR DILL — To each his zone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently I read your advice to the wife who said she felt like an "unpaid housekeeper."

The woman described her spotless home, beautiful meals — and she even shined her husband's shoes. Yet he showed no appreciation whatever. Your reply was interesting. You said "A man doesn't love a woman because she's a fine cook, an expert housekeeper or a first-rate shoeshine girl — he can hire those services." You added, "the woman who can make her husband feel that he is her hero has it made."

I would give anything in the world if I could do just that. How does a woman make her husband feel like "her hero?" Please answer in the paper. I could use the advice, and I know others who could use it, as well. — ALSO UNAPPRECIATED.

DEAR ALSO — How did you treat the fellows you dated when you wanted to make a wonderful impression? Test your memory, Kiddo, and replay the tape.

You laughed at his jokes, built him up when he was down and made him feel special and important. You treated him with courtesy and respect, and you waited until you were alone if you had some criticism you just had to get out.

A successful marriage is not a gift, it is an achievement. The effort and energy that a woman puts into her marriage is like money in the bank. It begets interest in the form of strength, confidence and stability. When the going gets rough you have something to draw from.

A marriage licence is not a guarantee that the marriage is going to work, any more than a fishing licence assures you that you'll catch fish. It merely gives you the legal right to try.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A friend has sent me a cheque for $50 every Christmas for the last ten years. This year I wrote to her in November and asked her not to send the cheque as I now have a good job.

She sent the cheque anyway, but it was not cashable because she did not sign it. Now I need your advice on what to do. Shall I tear the cheque up and write to her and tell what I have done — and why — and ask her not to send another one? Shall I ask the bank to send the cheque back to her? Or would it be best to do nothing and let her discover that I did not cash the cheque?

She's a very fine woman and I would not offend her for the world. — QUANDRY.

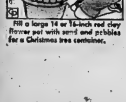
DEAR QUANDRY — This is a toughie because a gift calls for a thank you note and it would be senseless to say thank you for a cheque that is not cashable. So — my advice is to return the cheque, explain how you feel, and ask her not to send you another.



* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Christmas Concerts

JOHNSTOWN U.C.

JOHNSTOWN — On Saturday evening the Johnstown United Church Sunday school held their Christmas party and entertainment at the Johnstown school. They have 77 members enrolled and 63 were present, as well as their parents, and resulted in a good attendance, which was most encouraging for the superintendent and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence MacDonald, who were in charge.

The minister, Mr. Brien Thrasher, welcomed everyone and opened the concert with the singing of Christmas carols.

A play was put on by the junior girls, called "Heart Gifts." Those taking part were: Marina Moore, Emma Galloway, Judy Hart, Sharon MacDonald, Dianne and Debby Deford, and Sandra Huffman.

A scene was portrayed, "Away in a Manger," with Catherine Hartry as Mary; Glen McLean as Joseph. The Wise Men were Bradley Tripp, Paul Gooding and John Harry. Several of the larger boys carried staffs with a star on the top. The pupils of the kindergarten and nursery were grouped around the Baby Jesus and Mary and Joseph, and sang "Away in a Manger."

In the skit, "The Two Boys of Bethlehem" were Ralph Vandervoort and Dexter Harder.

A candle drill and a star drill were put on by the primary class after which they joined in singing "Holy Jesus."

The Christmas Story was given by Victor McLean, Ralph Harder and Cecil McLean.

All the Sunday school joined in singing "Silent Night" and "I Wish You a Merry Christmas."

Three films were shown: "The Christmas Dream," "How the Animals Discovered Christmas" and "Merry Christmas." Some of the children sang "Here Comes Santa Claus," at which time he arrived and presented each child with a bag of candy, nuts and a tangerine.

Lunch was served at the close which enabled the newcomers of Johnstown United Church and Sunday school to get better acquainted.

BAPTISMAL RITES

A fine crowd attended the Johnstown United Church and Sunday school "White Gift" service held at the church on Sunday morning.

Rev. A. W. Lockwood of Trenton assisted by the minister, Mr. Brien Thrasher, held a baptismal service. Sheri Yvonne and Craig Hudson Andersen, and Carrol Denning, the former two are a son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Anderson and the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Gooding. Mrs. Eric Anderson joined Johnstown church by letter.

The White Gift offering was collected by Dexter Harder and Brenda Harder.

Mr. Thrasher spoke on "The Church."

Santa arrived with gifts.

Now It's the C of E With Angry Young Men!

LONDON (AP) —A ginger group of frustrated clergy and laity—the angry young men—are fighting to restore a cutting edge to the old, stodge-bedabbled Church of England.

Right now, they say, some laugh at the Church, some resent it, some use it only to baptize their babies, get married or bury their dead, and some get along without it all their lives. Practicing Christians number no more than 1 per cent of the population in Britain today.

To those angry young men the Church of England seems saddled with an outdated system, trying desperately to catch up with shifting populations and changes in society. They are not, they say, against authority —though some have criticized the Archbishop of Canterbury as being slow about reforms. In fact they claim 26 Anglican bishops among their honorary vice-presidents.

The ginger group, called Parish and People started out some 15 years ago with the idea of spreading new ideas about the liturgical movement sweeping Europe.

Rev. Eric James, a young vicar with a crowded parish in Camberwell, south London, gave up his job there to become Parish and People's first full-time director. For nine months he has been stumping the country, getting small groups organized in every diocese.

"The whole idea is to get the Church to think and survive out in the world," he says. "People must know what it means to be dedicated in the world today."

STRESSES LAITY

Parish and People is committed to government of the Church by a single synod instead of the three-tier Church Assembly. It also wants the laity to have a much larger role in running things.

Some radicals among both clergy and laity are not too happy about the slow pace of reform set by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey.

He has been criticized for his attitude in the Honest to God controversy, when he rebuked Dr. John Robinson, the Bishop of Woolwich, who wrote a best-selling paperback suggesting that maybe the old idea of a personalized God was out of date and some new thinking on theology was needed.

"There is no reason why the archbishop (or anyone else) should accept John Robinson's theology," wrote Peter Whiteley, an influential lay member of the Church Assembly, in the Anglican review Prism. "But was any widespread Canterbury-must-go movement in the Church but he referred to "a groundswell of unease and disillusionment developing among the younger clergy and laity."

Whiteley denied that there

Hold White Gift Service

CENTENARY — On December 20th, Centenary Sunday School held a white gift and candlelight service in the church.

The white gift service was led by Mr. Elwin Hart assistant superintendent, assisted by Merle Christopher and Diane Hardee. Mrs. Keith Sills and Mrs. C. Dafoe received the gifts which were placed under a Christmas tree later to be placed in Christmas hampers.

A most beautiful and impressive candlight service was conducted by Mr. John Best, superintendent, and several members of the Sunday School. The junior choir under the leadership of Mrs. Harold Hancock rendered several selections during the service. Carol singing was enjoyed after the service.

Child Born While Plane Circles Airport

VANCOUVER (CP)—It was a 'jet-set' delivery Saturday aboard Air Canada flight 305.

Mrs. Kenneth Adams, a pretty Paris - born blonde, gave birth to a six-pound, five-ounce baby girl as the aircraft circled Vancouver International Airport with 99 passengers on a flight from Montreal via Edmonton.

Dr. M. Cridlig, a member of the University of California's medical faculty, took charge of a makeshift delivery room and said later Mrs. Adams "did just what I told her."

Stewardess Louise LaPointe rigged up curtains in a first class area and purser Paul Gendreau boiled hot water and fetched towels.

Mrs. Adams was accompanied by her husband, a Vancouver City police constable. They had been visiting a relative in Edmonton.

Mother and daughter, to be named Brigitte, are all fine.

Cranberry Banana Tasty Quick Bread

By MARY MOORE

The mail teems with requests for quick breads. We have given here recipes for Glazed Lemon Loaf (July 23/62), Date and Nut Bread (September 8/64), Banana Bread (November 7/63), Apricot Loaf (February 8/64). Now we have come up with Cranberry Banana Loaf that is full of flavor and fruits and nuts. It is a moist loaf too, and slices neatly.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Shepherd's Pie; Crumbed Fried Parsnips; Spinach and Shredded Cauliflower Salad with French Dressing; Spanish Cream; Coffee.

I suggest that you make one of these loaves and slice it to add to your serving plate when you are offering your precious fruit cake. It will extend your expensive fruit cake and some folks will be grateful to you for giving them a choice.

I should add that when the loaf is baked the cranberries darken a little. Their bright color is subdued by the baking. The flavor is its outstanding feature. One advantage is that you may have leftover from your Christmas dinner, enough cranberry sauce to measure the required one cup.

CRANBERRY BANANA LOAF:

1/3 cup shortening (room temperature), 2/3 cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons single-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon baking soda, ½ cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup mashed ripe bananas (3 medium), 1 cup cranberry sauce (use the thick part).

In large mixing bowl cream the shortening and sugar together until light. Beat in the eggs, one at a time. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, salt and baking soda. Mix the nuts into the dry ingredients. Add the flour mixture and nuts to the creamed mixture, alternately with the mashed bananas, one-third of each at a time, mixing well. Fold in the thick cranberry sauce.

Have ready a buttered waxpaper-lined loaf pan 9 x 5 x 2" or 8½ x 4½ x 2½". Turn batter in and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 70 to 80 minutes.

Let rest in loaf pan 5 minutes, then turn out on cake rack to cool.

This slices best after 24 hours. Store well-wrapped in refrigerator (not freezer).

Susanna's Family Fare

DON'T DISCARD THOSE LOVELY CARDS

Dear Susanna: Now that it's all over, it just doesn't seem right to heartlessly discard all the lovely Christmas cards.

I know they are fun for children to play with, and they can use them as cutouts, for pasting and for their next years cards, but in a family of adults, can you possibly think of anything sensible that we could make out of them? — Cynthia

Just off hand, I can think of three rather pleasant, sophisticated and very grown-up items. Here they are:

You can make elegant place cards for dinner parties by, cutting out sections of silver, gold or solid color as the backs for your card. Make it large enough to fold so that it will stand up by itself. Using a small profile or figure of a boy or girl as a pattern, cut out some of each in contrasting colors and paste one on the front of each card.

Boy figures for men's cards and girl figures for ladies' cards. How's that for a start?

Christmas cards also make striking bridge tallies or score cards for other types of games. Cut them on that all writing is eliminated, punch a hole in the corner, thread a small piece of colored ribbon through, and tie it in a perky bow.

Or, simplest, and most fun of all, cut them up as gift cards for next year's Holiday packages.

For all of these operations, use pinking shears — they will give your products that professionally finished look — and heaven forbid that anyone should ever classify us homemakers as amateurs. Just ask anyone of us to conjure up the ghosts of daily experiences past present and those we know are still to come, and you'll see what we mean! — SUSANNA

Need Special Documents Before Body Is Cremated

DEAR DORIS — Please print in your column the name of the person you contact to make arrangements to cremate a body after death. — CURIOUS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CURIOUS — In most parts of Canada, before cremation can take place, the approved form, "Application for Cremation" with a statutory declaration and a coroner's certificate (the death certificate signed by the doctor), and a burial permit, must be presented to the crematorium.

Your local undertaker, coroner, or the Chief of Police could give you further information.

DEAR DORIS — Doris, would you please print in your column the danger of allowing a child of 18 months to drink pop, eat pickles whenever the mother is serving them (which is pretty often)?

These are new neighbors beside me and she boasts about what a strong stomach her little boy has; how he can eat like any adult. I don't like to interfere. However, she reads your column, (I dread to think what that little boy might suffer in later years) and I am sure you could advise her better than I on this subject. — A LOVER OF BABIES.

DEAR LOVER — Pickles and pop hardly seem the ideal diet for babies. But would even the most misguided mother serve them in more than very small amounts?

Even at birth our systems secrete all the digestive juices needed to handle a full diet. This is why physicians can safely recommend the early introduction of vegetables and meats into infant diets, in a form not needing the services of teeth.

What really concerns me is the baby diet which lacks love and affection. Without it, little ones on the most professionally balanced fare fail to flourish.

DEAR DORIS — My girl friend turned my cousin Jack against me. She's a girl that can wind you around her finger. Once I told her I thought he was good looking but a terrific flirt. Now she has told him.

That day I was so mad that I could have torn her head off. I didn't. When she sees me she acts so cheerful. — SMOKEY.

DEAR SMOKEY — If you know now that you don't say anything behind a person's back that you wouldn't say to him to his face, you've learned one lesson cheaply.

Lesson number two is that you get nowhere by tearing people's heads off.

Take a look at the nicest adult you know. Does he or she ever tear anybody's head off? We like the steady friends we can depend on.

Possible Showdown in Rate Of U.S. Business Expansion May Cause Jobless to Climb

WASHINGTON (AP)—A possible slowdown in the rate of business expansion in the second half of 1965 may cause the United States unemployment to begin climbing again, the National Planning Association predicted Sunday.

The year-end forecast also suggests that record output in 1965 will be accompanied by "a somewhat faster price rise than the 1.8 per cent expected for 1964." But the report sees no danger of rampaging inflation.

The NPA, a privately supported research and planning organization with membership from industry, labor and the professions, urges that the government institute development programs "in areas in which business alone cannot take the necessary risks," such as urban development, transportation and research. Its report says:

"The greatest danger for the future lies in overconfidence that the recovery which has been going so long and so well will continue for the foreseeable future, and that only measures to combat a possible boom and balance - of - payments difficulties will be needed.

"It is important to recognize that a desirable rate of economic growth cannot be taken for granted."

The study was made by Gerhard Colm, chief NPA economist, and Mrs. Carol S. Carson, his assistant.

NO DOWNTURN

They estimate that U.S. national output will total about $660,000,000,000 next year, compared with $623,800,000,000 in 1964. This forecast, right in line with most other official and unofficial guesses, assumes a slower advance—but no downturn—in the second half of the year.

It represents a growth rate of 3.8 per cent after adjusting for price increases. This would be substantially below the five per cent real growth achieved in the last year, which was sufficient to reduce joblessness somewhat.

The NPA economists say it would take a 4.5-per-cent gain in real output in 1965 merely to provide jobs for new workers entering the labor force and to compensate for gains in output per man-hour. The analysis adds:

Our forecast thus implies an increase in the unemployment rate above the estimated 1964 level of 5.3 per cent."

Rawdon

RAWDON — At noon last Sunday Bethel - Rawdon Sunday School held their annual Christmas dinner in the church hall at the close of the Sunday School session. Hugh Lyons, superintendent of the school, spoke briefly and extended Christmas greetings. The children received their gifts at this time. This has been an annual custom for the past few years as there aren't enough children in the community to hold a Christmas entertainment.

Mount Pleasant United Church was decorated on Sunday morning with evergreens, poinsettias and memorial flowers. The senior choir rendered a Christmas anthem with Mrs. Marguerite McMullen taking the solo part. Sally and Judith McAdam contributed a vocal duet. The pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, gave a special message and various Christmas carols were sung throughout the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson entertained a number of guests on Friday evening including Mrs. Jack Eckert of New York City; Miss Bessie McMullen, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McMullen and Miss Ruth McMullen of Halloway.

Miss Carol Sharpe spent the weekend with Miss Margaret Hommersen of Etobicoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams entertained her sister, Mrs. Frank Emerson and Mr. Emerson of Moira, recently.

Rev. W. G. Fletcher conducted a baptismal service at Wellman's United Church for Marsha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Clancy and Heather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pollock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed McIntyre of Consecon spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. John Grills at Carmel.

Nigerian Group Asks Election Be Postponed

LAGOS, Nigeria (Reuters)—The United Progressive Grand Alliance (UPGA), one of Nigeria's two major political groups, planned a demonstration today to demand postponement of Wednesday's general election.

The election, Nigeria's first since independence, is essentially a straight fight between the three - party UPGA and the seven-party Nigerian National Alliance (NNA). Dominating parties in the alliances are, respectively, the National Convention of Nigerian Citizens and the Northern People's Congress —two groups which were in coalition in the retiring federal government.

Both sides have claimed that attempts were made to prevent them from holding election meetings or nominating candidates. The campaign has been marked by violent clashes and several deaths have been reported.

Michael Okpara, the UPGA leader, has already asked President Nnamdi Azikiwe to delay the voting on the grounds that conditions for free and fair elections do not exist.

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa denied the UPGA allegations in a campaign broadcast.

Observers regard the vote as a major test of the federation's ability to hold together as a unified country.

UN Negotiators

that a preliminary informal poll outside the assembly decide which candidate would be elected by acclamation in the assembly.

Jordanian Chief Delegate Abdul Monem Rifa'i told a reporter that if no agreement could be reached on some informal method by Tuesday, he would demand in the assembly that the election be decided before Friday by the usual vote. That would bring on the big-power showdown.

As of New Year's Day, the Soviet Union will have to pay $26,534,236 to avoid being two years behind in its assessments. U.S. Chief Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson has said the United States would be satisfied with a voluntary contribution from the Soviets, even if it was not specifically earmarked for peace-keeping purposes.

Informed diplomats understand that the United States would agree to a Soviet pledge of about $17,000,000, covering its part of the larger amount that represents peace-keeping assessments. The other $9,500,000 covers regular budget assessments, which the Russians always pay.

Quaison-Sackey and an Asian-African committee have each devised proposals to pay off the $86,000,000 UN peace - keeping deficit with voluntary contributions from the UN members. But the Russians have rejected one of the proposals because it does not state specifically that Article 19 is to be suspended, and the American have rejected the other because it does.

IT FLIES — William Butts gets the feel of the gyro-glider he constructed in the cellar of his home in Saint John, N.B. The 59-year-old native of Glace Bay, N.S., hopes to fly the glider under the bridge which spans the world-famous reversing falls just to be first. (CP Photo)

He Hopes to Set Record In His Flying Machine

By DON LeBLANC

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Flying low may be for the birds but William Joseph Butts hopes to become the first man to fly under the world-famous Reversing Falls bridge, which links this port city with neighboring Lancaster.

He plans to attempt the feat if only for that reason—to be first.

The 59 - year - old jack-of-all-trades has taken a big step towards his goal. He has learned to pilot a home-made gyro-glider he built in the cellar of his Saint John home.

"That's my ambition," says the colorful native of Glace Bay, N.S., "to fly under the bridge before anyone else. But I guess I'd better do it before the idea gets around."

His $1,000 machine resembles an open-air helicopter without a motor.

But whenever the former miner, farmer and fisherman feels like going places he hitches up his gyro - glider trailer and drives to an open spot in the country.

He ties one end of a long rope to the contraption, the other to his car or a tree, puts on his flying helmet and goggles, buckles his safety belt and heads skyward in kite fashion.

"Of course, I need a 20-mile-an-hour wind to get it airborne," says Butts. He could fly in low but prefers the more stable method.

Butts operates his glider by regulating a lever which extends from a control box over his head, at the base of the 20-foot propeller. A movement of the lever tilts the plywood blade and, by keeping an eye on a small flag mounted in front of him, Butts directs the glider into the wind.

There were times when the former RCAF instrument technician had to act in a hurry. He shattered the glider's original blades when he purposely crash-landed to avoid hitting a man and his small son. He was blown to their direction as the wind changed course.

And there were other rough trips.

He recalls the day he tied 100 feet of nylon rope to 80 feet of new plastic rope. "I didn't realize the plastic was stretchy," he says, "and I bounced around like a yo-yo."

TOOK LESSONS

While farming in Oklahoma in the 1920s, Butts took instructions at the flying club. He never obtained a pilot's licence but he made one solo flight.

A man who has worked iron ore mines in Newfoundland and oil fields on the Texas Panhandle, Butts is the son of a Cape Breton coal miner killed in a 1917 mine explosion at New Waterford, N.S. He operates a fix-anything shop for six years after he moved here in 1934.

Butts intends to transform his glider into a 'copter by installing a motor or be towed by a boat when he makes his bridge attempt. "I hope to try it next summer," he says.

His wife and 17 - year - old daughter Sally Ann have never seen the glider in operation.

"It's not that we aren't interested," says Mrs. Butts. "We just don't want to go up in the thing."

Saskatchewan counted one man who died of exposure.

This year's total compares with 64 deaths (41 on the roads) and a record 98 deaths (47 on the roads) in four-day periods in 1960 and 1952 respectively. It's five-day Christmas holiday in 1958 the toll was 58, including 40 in traffic.

"WE TRADE GUNS"

Congo Fight Is War Without Mercy and With Communist Support

For months. The Congo has been wracked by a brutal rebellion which has Communist support. In late first of three articles on The Congo, an Associated Press special correspondent tells about this war without mercy and the mercenaries who fight it.

By SAUL PETT

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The thin young man in the swimming trunks wore a jewelled crucifix.

"Are you religious?"

"Not particularly," he said. Why the crucifix?"

Oh, that. I took it from a rebel who no longer needed it. He came at me from about 15 yards with a Nauser. I fired at his head with an automatic article. It was hard to miss. In a manner of speaking, you might say I ventilated his think box."

The young man gave his name as Leonard Woods, 22, of Johannesburg, South Africa. Former occupation: Pipefitter. Present occupation: White mercenary.

"When we were going into Stanleyville," said another young man with the scholarly look of a divinity student, "the major told us there would be no looting or rapine, that we could get shot for either.

"There was nothing worth raping."

The second young man gave his name as Lance Fin Mills, 27, also of Johannesburg, also a mercenary.

We were sitting at the side of a swimming pool at the Yacht Club in Leopoldville, during an incongruous pause in an incongruous war.

Some 700 miles to the east, in the equatorial rain forests of The Congo, the war was also going on, still borrowing a little from all the centuries of man.

GRIM WAR CONTINUES

It is a war where neither side takes prisoners for long, where both rebel and Congolese government troops torture captives, where thousands of b l a c k s caught up in a century they never made have been killed their bodies rotting in the tall elephant grass or left to the mercies of the crocodiles in the muddy rivers.

It is a war where rebels have practiced cannibalism beyond human comprehension, where they have marched down a town street with the organs and blood of their victims on their hands while a police band played. It is a war where old planes on loan from the United States, flown by Cuban pilots, attack with rockets and, down below, on the side of a dusty road, a rebel group counter-attacks by stirring up a hornets' nest, convinced that one winged creature can bring down another.

It is a war where the looting is prodigious on both sides, where there are no immutable realities, where Moise Tshombe now heads the central government he fought more than two years; where a government soldier deserts, joins the rebels, later rejoins the government army, demanding—and receiving—retroactive pay for his desertion time.

It is a war where Stanleyville, a city of 300,000, fell to 100 rebels in six trucks, where other towns fell at the report of a telephone call which scared off the defenders. It is a war where the rebels began with spears and knives, convinced their "magic" made them immune to bullets, where they now fight with captured government weapons and arms and rifles from Algeria and China.

It is a war where the black men on both sides know little of their weapons and fire rifles, it is said, with their eyes closed, a war where a handful of white mercenaries — 500 at peak strength—have made the differences so far and driven the rebels to the northeast. It is a war where human sensibilities, at best, relative, where handsome young white men, brutalized by life in a brutal continent, come from South Africa, Rhodesia and Kenya to fight in The Congo for money and adventure.

It is a war where young white men as pleasant-looking as those at the swimming club in Leopoldville have been known to take their sport and target practice by firing at and sinking scores of bloated black bodies drifting down the river.

It was Sunday at the Funa Club and rock 'n' roll music thundered from the loudspeakers. Men were playing tennis while their wives sipped drinks at the side of the pool with an eye on the children in the water. Only a few Congolese were here; only a few could afford the small admission price. The young mercenaries, in Leopoldville to recover from a touch of malaria, appeared relaxed although they were returning to the fighting front the next day.

"I joined up for the money and get away from my wife," Leonard Woods was saying. "And if she doesn't improve as a housekeeper and a mother for our kid, I'll sign up for another six months."

"I came for the money and the adventure," said a tall, attractive blonde boy from Lorobi, who is 20 and calls himself Ian without mentioning his last name.

A mercenary's salary ranges from about $450 to $1,500 a month, depending on his rank, dependents and combat time.

The mercenaries, who share their loot, receive a percent of the safes they blow or the shops they loot in the course of recapturing rebel territory. They regard this as the legitimate spoils of war. They said if they didn't loot it, the Congolese would.

The mercenaries I talked with, those named as well as others, said they themselves don't enjoy killing Africans, "although others might." They said they all come from good homes and are not ashamed of what they're doing in The Congo. They said many of the thugs and perverts who has joined originally have been weeded out through some mercenaries with police records remains.

"I know one South African called Frenchie," said Leonard Woods. "I'd say he enjoys the killing. I'll bet he killed 300 blacks himself. He just opens up with a machine-gun from an armored car. You can hear him laughing when he does it."

"I don't think because of the killing," said Allen Webster, another South African. Then he and his friends told this story:

They were drinking beer in a Stanleyville hotel room when they heard a thump overhead. It was a sniper who had fallen through the thin asbestos roof. They heard him running and followed the sounds from room to room until they finally got him with several machine - gun bursts.

He fell through the ceiling, dead at their feet, with six holes in him. They carried the body out of the hotel, dumped it in the bush, returned, washed the blood off their hands and resumed drinking beer.

Viet Nam

supposedly pacified were really under control.

Then came Premier Nguyen Khanh's "pacification plan" in February. It concentrated on only 13 provinces in the Mekong River delta. But even this concentration proved inadequate.

Three months ago the area was whittled down to five provinces, all suburbs of Saigon, to be pacified under the "hoc tap" (co-operation) plan. To help out, most of the 25th Division was pulled out of central Viet Nam for service in the area.

Since then, central Viet Nam —roughly the northern half of the Saigon republic—has deteriorated at an alarming rate, at least partly because of increased Communist infiltration in the area. The delta and suburbs of Saigon, the key targets of the new government program, show little if any sign of improvement.

While the Viet Cong apparently has had no difficulty maintaining a united drive against the government, Saigon has been beset with constant political upheavals and coups, leaving its base of military resistance in chaos much of the time.

By all appearances, the war is being lost.

The New China news agency in a broadcast year-end review supported the Viet Cong claims.

The agency gave some Chinese figures but it said "the number of enemies put out of action in the first 10 months of this year exceeded the total number for the last two years and was nearly twice as many as in the whole of last year.

"Fifty per cent more Americans were killed or wounded during this period than in the last two years, with the monthly average double that of 1963 and more than four times that of 1962 . . ."

The agency said that "the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam has extended from the highlands and the delta to the vicinities of trunk communications lines and enemy-occupied cities, including Saigon."

Tshombe Claims Open Aid Being Given Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Premier Moise Tshombe has complained to the United Nations Security Council that Egyptian and Algerian officers are commanding rebel forces all along The Congo's northeastern frontier.

He said the open aid being given to the Congolese rebels by the United Arab Republic and Algeria amounted to "a veritable declaration of war" against The Congo.

Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella and Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser have promised publicly to give military aid to the Communist-backed "Congolese People's Republic," Tshombe charged.

bombs and cannon fire into the area. About 450 government troops took part.

In the town of Mo Cai, capitus southwest of Saigon, a Viet Cong grenade exploded in a cafe, wounded four Americans and 15 Vietnamese and killed a 12-year-old Vietnamese girl.

Meanwhile, Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the Vietnamese forces, issued a holiday message of thanks to U.S. forces in South Viet Nam. The message warmed a little the chilly relations between Khanh and U.S. authorities in Saigon.

Khanh last week criticized U.S. ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor for demanding that the Vietnamese generals restore full power to the civilian government.

"On behalf of all the members of the Republic of Viet Nam's armed forces," Khanh said in his message, "I bring to our American comrades-in-arms our warmest season's greetings and our grateful appreciation for what they have been, are and will be doing to assist us in our struggle for the defence of freedom."

However, Khanh and his military colleagues showed no sign of acceding to American demands that they reinstate the legislative High National Council and release political prisoners they arrested in the purge of Dec. 20.

The Congo

An Implausible Farce Gone Berserk

By SAUL PETT

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — A Congolese woman emerges from a mud hut, a baby wrapped around her back, a pile of laundry balanced on her head, a facial cut covered by an antiseptic patch and a witch doctor's dirty charm.

On the road, a black man in a bombang roars past in a Mercedes. He is a cabinet member, whose only earlier office experience was as a postal clerk.

The car rolls toward the tall, glassy buildings of Leopoldville, rising incongruously from the bank of a muddy river packed with crocodiles. This is the capital of a country torn by civil war and bloodletting.

Outside the city, there is supposed to be an armed roadblock to keep out enemy infiltrators. But it is after five o'clock and there is no roadblock. The sentries have gone home, as they do on Saturdays and Sundays or any day it rains.

IS TRAGIC FARCE

The Congo is an implausible farce gone berserk with blood and tears, an overwhelming tangle of compressed time, internal chaos, riotous ineptitude and shocking genocide. And all of it is twisted into further shapelessness by the push and pull of world politics, by clashing ideologies in a country where people couldn't care less about any ideology. China is aiding the Congo's rebels and Western countries the central government.

The tragedy of The Congo is that of a people who became independent without any preparation in a world which gave it no time to learn to govern itself. Independence came four years ago, suddenly. It was like leaving a big house to untamed children, without a baby-sitter, with all the burners going in the oven, and the meat knives on the table and the car keys where they reach. Chaos was inevitable.

The problems of 1960 remain the problems of this country's one-quarter the size of Canada, with a population of 15,000,000, still has no sense of being a nation, no urge toward unity, no central government or army with can function without foreign help. It is plagued by ancient tribalism, with dozens of different languages, dialects and feuds. One-one 300-mile stretch of railway, the train crew must be changed seven times. Crews of alien tribes would be butchered.

The Congo became independent after 80 years of frequently harsh and always profitable rule by the Belgians. When it became independent it had not a single Congolese college graduate, not one Congolese doctor or lawyer, engineer or military officer or any individual trained for government.

Four years later, it has only a handful of each, and the results are frequently incredible slapstick.

PAY OR ELSE

Moise Tshombe, a relatively-well-educated Congolese, is premier. Because of bureaucratic confusion and red tape Tshombe and his whole government were in office four months before they got paid. They were paid only after the president gave the finance minister an ultimatum to issue cheques by noon or be fired.

Like primitive art, graft in The Congo avoids subtle abstractions. Last spring, the whole cabinet of the province of which Stanleyville is the capital casually voted themselves and drew in advance two years "severance pay" of 19,000,000 francs (about $136,000). Before they were fired, the 12 ministers also pocketed 56,000,000 francs (about $360,000) intended for police and teachers, who went unpaid for months.

From May to October, there was a Congo-wide strike of teachers. Many had not been paid for two years, although the central government had sent the money. Estimates of this embezzlement range from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000.

No one, not even its commander - in - chief, can tell the size of the National Congolese Army within 10 per cent, says a United States military expert. A local garrison force may exist only on paper while its commander pockets the payroll.

TURN AND RUN

The fighting qualities of the Congolese army, says the American officer, ranges from "poor to impossible." Early in the rebellion, the rebels were fighting only with spears, machetes and arrows. Against such opposition, an army column armed with rifles turned and ran so fast it left its commander to be killed while trying to catch the last truck.

When Stanleyville, the second city of The Congo with a population of 200,000, fell to the rebels last August, the total attacking force was 100 men in six trucks. Other towns have fallen as the result of a telephone call. The rebels simply shouted ahead and said they were coming.

Students of The Congo agree that four years of independence have meant only grim irony to the average Congolese. Patrice Lumumba and other demagogic politicians had told them they would inherit the white man's world—his car, his home, his shop. They haven't.

Only the tribal Congolese who have replaced the Belgians on the government payrolls are doing better. In The Congo, as elsewhere in black Africa, they have the new African aristocracy. They moved into the big colonial houses on the river. They drive the big cars. They eat in the few good restaurants.

HITS THEM HARD

For the rest, independence has meant less jobs, fewer goods, fewer medical facilities, galloping inflation, a Congolese franc that is worthless outside the country, public services and roads ruined by neglect, ineptitude and revolution.

In four years, the non-Congolese population has dropped to 40,000 from about 300,000. Those who remain still control the economy. The shops and small businesses are still owned by the Portuguese, the Greeks and Indians. The giant copper-mining combines like Union Miniere, the big palm oil, rubber and coffee plantations, are still profitable, still in the hands of Belgians and other Europeans.

The Congolese who works in the city as a manual laborer or shopkeeper earns about 900 francs a month, which at the official rate of exchange is about $28 but in the more realistic black market, is only $16. At 4,000 francs a month, he is not appreciably what he did before independence. In the bush, the small Congolese farmer now gets 50 francs a head of cheese for a kilo of peanuts. But the Congolese farmer and the city worker now have to pay 500 francs for the same shirt that used to cost 50.

CITY DEGENERATES

In Leopoldville where there used to be flowers and grass, there now are weeds. The streets reek with the stench of uncollected garbage and worse. The unemployed stand idle and sullen on street corners while black members of the Salvation Army sing stout songs of hope. There is little hope in The Congo.

All along in The Congo, there were genuine seeds of rebellion spurred by the political confusion, the disillusion of independence, the official graft and disorder. The revolts began as small scattered movements with recruits armed only with spears, machetes and arrows. They were hopped up on hemp and emboldened by a "magic" their leaders told them would make them immune to bullets. The national army caved in and the rebellion spread with the capture of government rifles and automatic weapons.

Europe and North America were shocked to learn that about 100 whites were killed. Little attention was given the fact that thousands of Congolese have died during rebel-government warfare. The minimum estimate one hears is 20,000.

MAY BE 100,000

Others think the rebels have slaughtered more than 100,000 fellow-Congolese, many bodies yet to be found in the thick bush and muddy rivers. For obscure reasons, the rebels relished killing Congolese "intellectuals," those with anything more than a rudimentary education — people without whom The Congo cannot survive regardless of who runs it.

The revolution became heavy with Communist slogans after Chinese weapons and money showed up. But few people think any real ideology is involved. In black Africa, civil wars are fought between those on the government payroll and those not. Politically, the rebels were always ready to swing in any direction.

The United Nations still has here a technical assistance force of 2,000 hurrying to teach the Congolese government mechanical skills. More Congolese are receiving a university education here and abroad. Army officers are being trained in Belgium and Israel. The one hope of The Congo, in the minds of Western diplomats, is that it can learn to govern itself before revolt splits it into irreparable parts.

Meanwhile, the confused black man asks pathetically: "When will this Independence end?"

Mao Tse-tung, 71, Last Great Figure of World Communism, May Retire

TOKYO (AP)—Mao Tse-tung, last great figure of world communism, became 71 Saturday amid talk that he soon may step down as chairman of the Red Chinese party.

A Peking broadcast said Mao had cordial talk with members of a five-man Algerian military delegation in Peking but otherwise was silent on his activities.

At 71, Mao is idolized by many Chinese who regard him as the father figure of modern China. He is reviled by others.

Internationally, the stubborn, unyielding policies of Chinese and revolution he advocates have earned him the fear and enmity of not only the United States and some Western powers but the Soviet Union.

Poet, historian, classical scholar, author of works on guerrilla warfare, Mao towers head and shoulders above any other individual in international communism now that his archrival, Nikita Khrushchev, has been toppled from power in the Soviet Union.

IN POOR HEALTH

He is described as in precarious health, although not all accounts agree on that. Should he step down as party chairman, his word still would carry great weight in the party Congress.

For, in the last analysis, whatever Mao has been known for is the handiwork of this hard-headed so. of a Hunan peasant.

In 1911, when Dr. Sun Yat-sen's revolutionaries had toppled the Manchus from the throne and proclaimed establishment a republic, the 18-year-old Mao celebrated by cutting off his pigtail.

But the republic that Sun founded faltered and the country was dominated under brief dictatorial and warlord rule until the 1920s.

The backbone that Sun's wavering revolutionaries lacked was provided by Mao and a successful Bolsheviks of the Soviet Union who sent them advisers and helped form the Kuomintang party along Communist lines.

At about the same time, also under Soviet patronage, Mao and a handful of intellectuals founded and directed Communist party on a riverboat in Shanghai.

These two vital young forces, fused, led a military march on Peking which resulted in the overthrow of the northern warlords and appeared to bring national unity within their grasp.

DUCK TO COVER

But in 1927, the Kuomintang and Communists fell out and the ensuing bloodbath Mao and his young revolutionaries went underground.

Mao, who led a "long march" retreat of the Communists from the Chinese coast to northwest China, became head of the party in 1935.

The Kuomintang, which had shied away from its Soviet mentors, turned towards the West for help.

The next event that contributed to the Communist victory was the Japanese invasion of China. This menace brought the warring Communists and Nationalists together in a brief but effective alliance.

When the Second World War ended, the Communists controlled a third of China and soon, thanks to the thoughtfulness of withdrawing Soviet armies which left behind large stores of Japanese arms, were to take over all of Manchuria.

Fifteen years after the proclamation of Mao's People's Republic, China is weak but united as it never has been before. It has an army of between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 men, and on Oct. 16 it exploded its first atom bomb.

Though it still is poor, it has placed its feet on the road to industrialization. As one trained observer recently said, if it can half-way lick its booming population problem, Red China's potential for industrial power could be swift.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

LONDON (Reuters) — An 18-year-old youth was charged on Sunday with the Christmas Day murder of newspaper reporter Michael Munnelly, 23. Munnelly, who worked for the mass-circulation Sunday newspaper, The People, died of stab wounds early Christmas morning after going to the aid of a 39-year-old man being beaten by a teen-age gang in north west London.

R.C., Jewish Boys to Attend As Observers

WATERLOO (CP)—The 46th annual Ontario Older Boys Parliament meeting here this week cleared the way Sunday to have Roman Catholic and Jewish boys attend next year's parliament as observers.

The 121 delegates, representing Protestant delegations from all over Ontario, urged spiritual leaders of their churches to discuss religious differences and church doctrine in an effort to understand and convey the full meaning and intent of the message of Jesus Christ.

The parliament, sponsored by the boys' work board of the Ontario Council of Christian Education, overwhelmingly passed a resolution that will permit the premier of the next parliament to invite several boys of the Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths to be official observers.

They also agreed to ask their Parliament committee to initiate an ecumenical encounter among boys from Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish backgrounds to discuss the foundations and problems of their religions.

The delegates are all between the ages of 16 and 20 and are active in the worship and social life of their congregations.

OFFICIALLY OPENED

The parliament was officially opened Saturday at Waterloo Lutheran University with the reading of a message from the throne by Lloyd W. Perry, a Toronto lawyer and lieutenant-governor of this year's parliament. He was premier of the 21st Older Boys Parliament in 1941.

Premier of this year's parliament is Paul Bolthy of Hamilton.

The speech said parliament will be asked to examine the current situation facing Canadian Confederation.

"You will consider possible ways responsible citizens can help temper emotion with reason, to turn disunity into unity and understanding to understanding is the great debate on Canada's future," the speech said.

It said parental instruction in sexual matters is too often inadequate, and churches and public schools have responsibility and opportunity to answer this need.

Noting the current division within the protestant tradition, the speech said:

"Despite the shame of this division you will be asked to look beyond it that we might seek inter - faith understanding within our own tradition and in the traditions of our Catholic and Jewish brethren."

600 Teachers In Toronto For Convention

TORONTO (CP)—The study of curriculum and teaching methods is expected to take up much of the time of some 600 delegates to two separate conventions representing more than 20,000 Ontario teachers which start here today.

Other topics that will be discussed by delegates from the 21,000-member Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation and the 15,000-member Ontario Public School Men Teachers Federation include salaries and the future of Grade 13 in the province.

An in-service training program, designed by the men teachers' federation to keep teachers abreast of developments in education, will be examined. There are plans to provide training to smaller groups of teachers at a local level rather than through a central summer school.

T. H. Pinkerton, assistant secretary of the men teachers' federation, said Sunday that revisions in salary policy are required to suit conditions brought about by the department of education program of consolidation among smaller school boards.

Juvenile Wounds Grimsby's Police Chief's Wife

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP)—Police said a 12-year-old juvenile offender shot the wife of this town's police chief Sunday because she was not let him leave the house.

Mrs. Alex Earle, 43, is in good condition in hospital in Hamilton with a gunshot wound in her chest.

For the last 18 months the Earles have had one or two juvenile stay in their house until disposal of their cases in court. Police said the boy had been in the Earle home for Christmas.

Chief William Johnston of Grimsby Township police said the boy left Mrs. Earle in the chest with Chief Earle's .38-calibre revolver.

He was alone with Mrs. Earle in the house after the chief and his five children had gone to church Sunday morning. Chief Johnston said Mrs. Earle had hidden the boy's shoes and sweater so he could not leave the house.

When she refused to give the clothes to him because he wanted to leave and see his parents in St. Catharines, he started to search the house and found the gun in the bottom drawer of a bureau in the bedroom.

DEMANDED CLOTHES

Confronting Mrs. Earle with the gun, he again demanded his clothes and the gun went off, hitting Mrs. Earle in the chest, Chief Johnston said.

The boy fled the house without his clothes, and ran over frozen fields for 20 degree weather to a neighboring farm owned by Kerlie Loja.

The Lojas found the boy hiding behind their barn when they heard a shot fire in the gun into the ground. They invited him into the house and gave him clothes.

During the meal he told John Loja, 17, he had shot a woman. Loja called police and the boy was held until they arrived.

Chief Johnston said the boy and his family live in Grimsby and was awaiting his scheduled court appearance Tuesday.

Evacuate 1,500

MADRAS (Reuters) — Indian rescue ships have evacuated about 1,500 people marooned since a cyclone and giant tidal wave hit the southern tip of India last Wednesday, according to reports reaching here Sunday.

The reports said evacuation work was almost complete.

A member of the Madras State legislative assembly said after visiting the island that at least 800 persons died in the destruction caused by a giant tidal wave. Official estimates put the death toll at more than 500.

You're Likely to Get Cancer In Devon and Sclerosis in Orkneys, Scientists Say

MONTREAL (CP)—Chances of getting cancer and assorted other diseases may well depend in part on the nature of the soil where you live, a panel of scientists reported today.

Specialists in geology, chemistry, medicine and pharmacy told the annual congress of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that mineral traces in soil, getting into the diets of humans and animals, hold important clues to the case and cure of such scourges as cancer, heart disease and sclerosis.

Studies in various parts of the world strengthen evidence that the prevalence of certain diseases in specific localities results from a mineral imbalance in the bodies of residents, said panel chairman Harry W. Warren, a geologist at the University of British Columbia who has studied the effect on plants and animals of metal traces in soil.

Dr. Arthur Furst, director of the Institute of Chemical Biology at the University of San Francisco, presented evidence that "metals, both essential and non-essential, may play a vital role in the cancer processes."

Geologist Helen Cannon of the United States Geological Survey in Denver, Colo., reported on U.S. studies showing that plants and soil in areas with a high incidence of cancer and heart disease have lower than normal levels of the diseases. Tuberculosis was more prevalent in the low-metal areas than in the high-metal localities.

Dr. J. F. P. Pinsent, medical researcher in Birmingham, England, reported on British studies indicating certain disease rates are related to mineral traces in the earth.

Health records show, for example, that the incidences of pernicious anemia increases from south to north in a population along a diagonal line from southeastern to northwestern England. The rate of anemia appears to be related to the pattern of iron deposits in England, he said.

Dr. Warren said many variables are involved in the relationship between mineral traces that get into diets and cause harmful surpluses, deficiencies or imbalances in human and animal tissues. Plants, animals and people differ in the degrees to which they are susceptible, he said.

In a British study of causes of death during 20 years in an old tin and lead mining area along the Devon - Cornwall border, cancer accounted for more than 45 per cent of all deaths in one hamlet. Mineral traces in the water supply were blamed.

Dr. Furst said it appears that the higher the atomic weight of an element, the more likely it is to be a cancer - causing agent in excess. Heavy elements like mercury, lead, arsenic, chromium, nickel, silver, tin and cadmium are proven or suspected cancer agents.

He said that by understanding the way minerals work in the cancer-making process "it may be possible to predict the structure and hence the design of new anti-cancer drugs effective in some cancers."

British Tories Must Decide Quickly on Party Leadership

LONDON (CP)—The job of deciding the British Conservative party's leadership quickly assumed new urgency during the Christmas weekend, apparently because of suspicions that a snap general election may be called.

Tory strategists were reported anxious to clarify whether and under what circumstances Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61, might remain as leader or step aside for a new chief.

Conservative newspapers have frequently reflected concern at the way they consider the ineffectiveness of the opposition under Douglas-Home. They raise the possibility that Prime Minister Harold Wilson will be tempted to go to the people in the hope of increasing the slim majority his Labor forces obtained in the Oct. 15 election.

The Sunday Citizen, a Labor newspaper, boasts that Wilson now would win a majority of 100 in the 630-member House of Commons, compared with the five he eked out in October.

Six byelections are scheduled for early in the new year, per haps all on the same day, with Jan. 21 a possibility, and informed sources believe a sharp drop in Tory representation could cause Wilson to risk a snap election.

Douglas-Home is being urged— reports say, to retire soon as party leader and then offer himself for re-election under a new "democratic" leadership procedure now being worked out by Lord Blakenham, party chairman.

Douglas-Home's supporters argue that a victory of this kind would put the former Scottish aristocrat's prestige beyond question and ensure Tory unity should Wilson act suddenly.

Until now Tory leaders have been selected by means of behind-the - scenes "soundings" but this resulted in some misgivings within the party when Douglas - Home succeeded former party leadership contests in October 1963. It was also seen as undemocratic in conduct of the election of a leadership by the party's members of Parliament.

Blakenham's proposals are expected to provide for the Tory Conservative group to choose future leaders by popular ballot, followed by assembly of all sections of the party to approve, or question, the choice.

The original idea was that the new system would come into play only after Douglas-Home decided to retire and some influential Tories see flaws in the proposed change.

They argue that, if any of the front-runners for the succession challenged Douglas - Home to would create an impression of Tory disunity that Wilson would be tempted to exploit.

Another Tory problem is that, although Douglas-Home's leadership has been criticized, no alternative leader has emerged as Russians are doing and seldom defends the U.S. position.

Eaton replies:

"I'm utterly frank when in Russia about the capitalistic system. I try hard to convince them that we don't hate them and want to live along.

"I believe in letting the other fellow make his own mistakes—philosophically, politically and economically.

"I think trade is one of the answers. If this country would lower certain trade barriers, it would have a tremendous effect on the rest of the world.

Special Blood Clinic Fills Hospital Bank

TORONTO (CP)—An emergency blood donors' clinic at a hotel here Boxing Day produced almost 400 pints more than the target of 1,500.

The clinic, sponsored by Mayor Philip Givens, collected a total of 2,281 pints of blood, which will go toward filling stocks which had been depleted because of the drain during the holidays.

However, a spokesman for three large Toronto hospitals said Sunday night their blood banks were still low and they were continuing to operate only on emergency cases.

One spokesman said blood from the mayor's clinic was still being processed and would probably be available in larger quantities today.

A similar clinic held last year at city hall attracted only 1,420 donors. Red Cross officials said they felt the hotel gave the clinic a carnival atmosphere.

"After all, when people go into the city hall, they're likely to remember the last time they were there was to pay a parking ticket," said Alan Watson, president of the Toronto branch of the Red Cross."

HAVE TO WAIT.

Normally, it takes about 30 minutes to handle a donor, said officials, but late Boxing Day as the clinic's facilities reached capacity the line began to swell, waits of 90 minutes were common for those waiting for the 32 beds.

While the donors waited, professional clowns and entertainers were on hand to help keep blood themselves, amused them in the hotel's banquet hall. Several a cappella groups regaled their captive audience with song and talk.

Baby - sitters tried to amuse children of the donors while their parents waited. Balloons, crayons, coloring books and a blaring television set kept most but several youngsters wailed for their mothers and fathers, adding to the general din.

The 2,281 donors is a record for a one-day collection in Metropolitan Toronto. About 100 donors were rejected because of various blood factors. Many businessmen and women could not afford the 90-minute wait and made appointments for another day.

Donors took advantage of a free taxi service and an Eng lish - style double bus, which cruised up Yonge Street, to get to the clinic.

Controversial Capitalist, Cyrus Eaton, Plans Visit With New Russian Leaders

Cyrus Eaton, controversial capitalist, discloses plans to visit Russia in spring in an exclusive Associated Press interview marking his 81st birthday. In his first public comments in many months, he talks about the new Russian leaders since his friend, Nikita Khrushchev, was ousted. He wants to talk with the new Soviet leaders, and repeats his contention that the U.S. should strive to work with instead of against the Soviet Union.

By JOHN SHEPPARD

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cyrus S. Eaton, 81 Sunday, plans to visit Russia next spring. He wants to talk to the new Soviet rulers. He believes they want to get along with the West.

Eaton granted one birthday interview to The Associated Press in his office on the 36th floor of Cleveland's Terminal Tower. It was his first public comment on Russia since his friend, Nikita Khrushchev, was ousted as Soviet premier last October.

The Nova Scotia-born industrialist said he thinks his influence in the Kremlin are ready to relax international tensions and want more trade with the United States.

Eaton said he was not surprised by the ouster in October of Khrushchev, now living outside Moscow, "but it happened a easier time than Goldwater."

Because the Russian leadership always hasn't completed and the government is still run by committee rule, Eaton feels there is little significance of any radical policy changes.

The controversial multi-millionaire is of the opinion that building up economic might has more survival value for the United States than building up military power. He urged expansion of U.S. trade with all countries as one solution to world problems.

MUST BE NOW

"It's now or never," the white-haired industrialist said. "If we continue in the cold war, nuclear destruction is inevitable —by accident or design. If the cold war stagtes, then we'll go through, because they can destroy us just as well as we can. We'll end up a floating planet like the moon.

"I think the place to start is to commerce and trade. It's the best because you're not concerned with the economic, political or religious views of those buying your product. The only thing that matters is profit and competitive advantage."

In addition to commenting on events in Russia since the removal of Premier Khrushchev, Eaton expressed concern for Britain's financial future. He also branded newsies a proposal to arm a few merchant-type ships in the Atlantic with nuclear missiles.

Except for a few more lines in his ruddy countenance, Eaton appears to have aged little in the last few years. His hands lack arthritic knots, his voice is good and he still skis, rides horseback and walks long distances daily. He takes exercise before going to work each day.

He has no plans for retirement. In the years ahead he wants to devote more time to energies to helping win the cold war on the economic battlefield, with trade as the major weapon.

Eaton has been a subject of criticism and controversy that he became openly friendly with the Russians in 1957.

ALWAYS ATTACKED

As one of the richest men in North America, he's been attacked for serving as go-between business with the Communist powers. Some critics say Eaton always apologizes for what the Russians are doing and seldom defends the U.S. position.

Eaton replies:

"I'm utterly frank when in Russia about the capitalistic system. I try hard to convince them that we don't hate them and want to live along.

"I believe in letting the other fellow make his own mistakes—philosophically, politically and economically.

"I think trade is one of the answers. If this country would lower certain trade barriers, it would have a tremendous effect on the rest of the world.

"By pumping in our products, we could raise their standard of living—making them want more things. There's not much chance of our getting them to adopt

Steal Store Receipts

TORONTO (CP)—Two youths, one armed with a bayonet, robbed the manager of a Toronto milk store of $600 Sunday night.

Joseph Richard, 40, said he had just left the store with the day's receipts when the two forced him into a lane and took the money.

Polaris Sub Cruises Seas Off China

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Navy Polaris submarine is plying the seas off the Asia mainland within rocket range of China.

The defence department has confirmed that the submarine Daniel Boone has been deployed in the far western Pacific.

The Boone's 16 nuclear - tipped missiles, which have a range of 1,800 miles, could reach half of China. The ship also has been outfitted with new 2,800-mile missiles.

Six other Polaris submarines are expected to cin ire Boone on regular assignment in Asian waters.

The deployment of the Boone three months after China's first nuclear explosion is coincidental, a navy spokesman said. He noted that plans for the deployment were announced early this year.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CANYON, Sports Editor

Perfection is a thing seldom reached as 8 team hands but if you missed that Cleveland Browns - Baltimore Colts hassle on Sunday you passed up football at its collective best.

It was a tense dramatic tussle for the first half, the distances of both squads refusing to give ground with the scoreboard showing a pair of duck eggs.

Then the Browns exploded. Led by the bulldozer rushes of big Jim Brown, the accurate arm of quarterback Frank Ryan and the clutching perfection of Gary Collins the Browns triggered a scoring blast that stunned the Colts' cereal and sent nearly 80,000 fans into a frenzy.

The Browns' defence was nothing short of superb. The Colts, the highest scoring club in the National League were more or less helpless before the tenacious driving and tackling of the Cleveland bulwarks.

Ryan was given outstanding perfection and got his passes away with unerring aim and accuracy. Gary Collins, the Mickey Mantle of the Browns, was hauling down the "long flies" on the dead gallop. His three touchdowns was something of a record.

Over in the American League some 40,000 Buffalo fans thrilled to the fine work of Cookie Gilchrist and company as the Bills unsaddled the San Diego Chargers for an outstanding victory and their first league title.

It was a wonderful, slightly wacky weekend on the sports rialtoes. In that North-South football game Ralp Hayes, the world's fastest humans, dazzled the spectators in his gridiron debut with a spectacular display of running and scoring. Hayes was pushing his interference out of the way with lightning sprints, one ending in a sensational 55-yard gallop for a touchdown.

Over on the hockey front our Canadian National club left a better taste this side of the border with a fine display against the unbeaten Russian squad. Our side came up with their best performances against the powerful Soviets with the issue in doubt until the end.

The wire reports say the Canadians are the toughest opposition the Russians have met thus far in the Colorado tournaments. Give 'em time, me hearties, and they might surpulse people when the chips-down world tournament gets under way next year.

And Chicago Black Hawks' fans were preening their feathers this morning with the word that the Windy City crew had stretched their unbeaten string to ten with weekend victories.

Bobby Hull added three points to his total getting his 29th goal in 31 games with that pair of records getting closer. Brother Dennis stole his thunder Sunday night, though, the younger Hull scoring a goal and setting up the winner against the Boston Bruins.

And Sonny Liston did not add to his popularity score by once again getting himself in the clutches of the law. The former world champion was picked up by the boys in blue and charged with drunken driving.

It was a good Christmas, one of those rare ones with no snow but plenty of other holiday goodies. Old Man Turkey with the chasers took a terrific beating but outside of waistline expension no serious damage was reported.

On the weekier side of the scene was the case of the citizen who gazed on the snowless scene Christmas morning and remarked that his lawn needed mowing.

Friends and neighbors thought nothing of it until some time later they gazed in surprise at an unusual Christmas morning sight.

The citizen had taken himself literally and gone home, donned summer trunks, sports shirt, straw hat, etc., and was giving the lawn mower a workout.

According to the squeaks and groans of the protesting mower the pre-Christmas lubrication had not been extended to the grass-cutting member of the family.

Sunday, Kowalchuk scored another two goals with Larry Zilotto, Earl Balfour, Pfaff and Lloyd Mercer getting the others. Bob Seager got Welland's only goal.

Oakville Oaks made their debuk, under new coach Cecil Morton Sunday and broke a three-game losing streak. Carl Hymers led the Oakville attack with two goals while Billy Ford, former player - coach, Norm Price and Frank Sibbick and Mike Milits scored. Jack McIntyre and Bob Pole scored for Guelph.

Hawks Run Unbeaten String to Ten

* * * Habs Tops By Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stopping one Hull is tough, but containing them all appears nearly impossible.

Boston Bruins kept Bobby Hull from scoring his 30th goal Sunday night but younger brother Dennis tallied once and helped set up the winner as the Black Hawks ran their unbeaten National Hockey League string to 10 games with a 6-3 victory in Chicago.

Fred Stanfield broke a 2-2 tie in the second period on a passing play with Eric Nesterenko and Dennis Hull. Four minutes later the younger Hull wrapped up the win with his third of the year.

Detroit Red Wings defeated New York Rangers 3-1 in the only other game played Sunday night and the league standings finally became untangled.

Montreal Canadiens lay with 39 points, Chicago has 37, Detroit 35, Toronto Maple Leafs 33, New York 27 and Boston 18.

The Canadiens bombed the Wings 5-0 Saturday night while the Hawks defeated the Leafs 5 - 3 in Toronto and Boston blanked New York 2-0, providing goalie Ed Johnston his first shutout this season.

Stan Mikita gave the Hawks a big jump, scoring his 11th and 12th goals in the first period Sunday. His second came while Chicago enjoyed a two-man power-play advantage, but Boston broke it up a minute later when Forbes Kennedy scored for the shorthanded Bruins.

GETS PENALTY GOAL

The Bruins tied the score early in the second as Dean Prentice beat goalie Denis Dejordy on a penalty shot after referee Frank Udrel ruled that Mikita had tripped Prentice on a clear breakaway.

Doug Robinson and John McKenzie added further Chicago goals.

Bobby Hull picked up three assists to run his league-leading point total to 50 on 29 goals and 21 assists in 31 games— 11 more points than Mikita.

The Wings scored once in each period against the Rangers in what would have been a rout but for the stellar goaltending of Jacques Plante, who made 41 stops.

Ron Murphy knocked in Norm Ullman's rebound to send Detroit ahead in the first frame but Vic Hadfield tied it midway through the second. A power-play goal by Floyd Smith decided the issue late in the period and Ullman added an insurance goal into an empty net with 31 seconds to play.

A strategy move by Detroit coach Sid Abel apparently backfired in Montreal, where the Wings used sub goalie Carl Wetzel to give Roger Crozier a rest and found themselves behind 4-0 early in the second period.

RALLY FALLS SHORT

Abel then removed Wetzel in favor of Crozier and the Wings rallied briefly, mainly Montreal's lead to 4-2. But the Habs regained control of the game in the third period and never enjoyed less than a two-goal cushion.

Henri Richard, Claude Larose and Claude Provost beat Wetzel in the first period and Dick Duff scored what proved to be the winner, his first goal for Montreal, at 7:09 of the second. Crozier then appeared and Detroit caught fire on markers by Ted Lindsay and Ullman.

Claude Provost, however, sent Montreal ahead 5-3 early in the finale. Ed Joyal added Detroit's third goal, but Larose's putaway closed out the Montreal scoring.

Toronto's largest crowd of the season, 14,780 fans gathered to see Bobby Hull in action Saturday night and weren't disappointed as he delivered goal No. 29. They had little else to cheer about as the Leafs took it on the chin.

Chico Maki, Phil Esposito, Bill Hay and Mikita also tallied for the Hawks. George Armstrong, Ron Stewart and Ed Shack scored for the Leafs The Bruins, blanked 3-0 by New York Friday night, bounced back the next evening on Johnston's faultless netminder and two goals by ex-Ranger Prentice.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull failed to score goal No. 30 Sunday night but added three more assists to his collection and opened up an 11-point lead in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Hull scored his 29th goal Saturday night and helped set up Sunday night's run his 50 point total for 31 games to go 20 points ahead of Mikita.

Closest to the Chicago Black Hawk tandem is Stan Mikita with 39 points.

Mikita scored three times during the weekend to maintain a solid grip on second place while Norm Ullman moved into third with 31 points after registering two goals and two assists for Detroit Red Wings.

Claude Provost, who produced a goal and an assist in Montreal's nine games, holds fifth spot with 30 points, one more than Bill Hay, Chicago, Phil Esposito, Toronto, Gordie Howe and Andy Bathgate are tied for sixth at 29 points.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	PTS.

Mikita, Chicago	12	27	39
Ullman, Detroit	14	17	31

Wig It In Third Period

Gananoque Defeats Juniors

Gananoque Islanders ripped home three unanswered goals in the third period to upend the first-place Belleville "B's" 7-6 in an OHA Eastern Junior league tilt played in Gananoque last night.

The Islanders, taking advantage of a sub-par effort by the "B's" moved to within one point of the losers by virtue of the victory.

For Belleville, only the superb work of goalie Bob Moon prevented a worse defeat.

Gananoque jumped ahead 2-0 in the opening heat and led 3-1 until Belleville caught fire briefly mid-way through the game. The "B's" zapped home three goals to go in front 4-3

The winners made it 4-4 in the dying seconds of the second and collected a quick trio half way through the final period to grab the win.

Stan Parker collected two goals and an assist and Andy Wilson also echoed twice for the Islanders. Bob Dickson and Pete Smail each had a goal and two helpers and Doug Higgins one of each. Murray Rountree earned three assists and Dwight Hall got one.

Pacing the Belleville attackers were Jim Rutherford and Bob Boyle, each scoring one goal and assisting on two others. Carl Boomhower and Jerry St. Dennis, playing his first game of the season, added the other markers. Grant Hagerman got a pair of assists and Steve White had one.

Most of the game's 14 penalties were assessed in the third period. All in all, Gananoque drew nine minor penalties while Belleville got six, plus a misconduct to Jim Woodcock. Rutherford and Smail tangled twice with high sticks in the third, drawing minors each time. Both teams were controlled without serious problems.

Parker and Dickerson at 13.57 and 17.17, looked after the first-frame scoring. Boomhower's goal made it 2-1 early in the second but Smail got that back seconds later.

That's the way it stayed until 12.15 when Boyle cut the margin with the first of the "B's" three quickies. St. Denis tied the game at 13.46 and two minutes later Rutherford put Belleville ahead for the first time in the game.

Wilson made it 4-4 at 19.54. Then came the final frame and goals by Wilson at 9.14, Parker at 11.10 and Higgins at 11.58.

Belleville does not play again now until Friday, January 8, when Trenton Apple Kings visit this city.

Browns Stun Colts With 27-0 Blast

Brown, Collins Stars

A PASS TO GLORY — Quarterback Frank Ryan (13) of Cleveland Browns lets go with a pass during 3rd period touchdown spree against Baltimore. Three of his passes resulted in touchdowns — won National League title in 27-0 style. Identifiable: Baltimore, end Gino Marchetti (89), tackle Fred Miller (76) Cleveland, centre John Morrow (56). By JACK HAND

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns ended the rule of the West in the National Football League by exploding the myth of Baltimore Colts' superteam on a grey, wintry Sunday afternoon.

When Frank Ryan, Gary Collins, Jim Brown and Co. finished rambling over the shocked Colts 27-0, they had exposed Johnny Unitas and Lenny Moore as ordinary mortals.

Because Baltimore rolled to 11 straight victories in the West and wound up with a brilliant 12-2 record, the Colts had been installed as solid seven-point favorites to chase the Browns into Lake Erie.

The Colts' supermen were supposed to rush Ryan off his feet and their well-balanced offence was expected to shatter the Browns' defence, poorest in the league in the season statistics, and expose their pass defenders as inept.

Ryan was thrown for a loss only once as he threw three touchdown passes.

Collins set a playoff record by grabbing all three scoring passes and Brown bulldozed the Colts' league-leading defence for 114 yards on 27 carries and caught three passes for 37 additional yards.

LOU RUBS IT IN

Just to rub it in, 40-year-old Lou Groza kicked two field goals and ran his point total to a record 49 in eight championship games.

In the final seconds the 79,544 fans demolished the goal posts at one end of the field while the officials let the final 26 seconds tick away.

The West had won 20 of 31 title games, including six of the last seven, and had humiliated the East by running up a 10-4 score in interconference play during the regular season.

The only Eastern championship triumph since 1956 had been Philadelphia Eagles 17-13 squeaker over Green Bay Packers in 1960.

Both coach Blanton Collier of the Browns and Don Shula of the Colts had based their game on ball control. Each tried to establish his ground game. Collier succeeded and Shula didn't. It was as simple as that.

After a scoreless first half, the Browns struck quickly for 17 points in the third quarter.

Gorza's 42-yard field goal was the first blow. Then came Ryan's 15- and 42-yard scoring losses to Collins.

DRIVE STOPPED

When the Colts dug in and stopped the Browns on the goal line early in the final period, Cleveland had to settle for a nine-yard field goal by Groza.

Ryan's 33-yard pitch to Collins in heavy traffic concluded the scoring.

It was the Browns' first title since 1955.

Ryan hit with 11 of 18 for 206 yards, Unitas with 12 of 26 for 85 yards.

"They just couldn't stop Jimmy Brown and that slowed up their rushing on me," he said. "If Jimmy wasn't human, I would have run him on every play."

"As I've said before, there's no team in the NFL that can defence Cleveland Browns. When we lose, we beat ourselves."

It was estimated that each winning share would be about $2,000 and each losing share share about $5,000.

Bold taste! Brawny flavour! Today's Dow Kingsbeer gives you both – because it's made from a special ALL-MALT recipe.

Most lager beers are made with some malt. Plus some wheat, rice, or corn flakes. Not Dow Kingsbeer. It's a pure all-malt lager beer.

Dow Kingsbeer is brewed only from the finest Canadian malt. No cereals added. That's why Kingsbeer has a bold taste. That's why Kingsbeer has body.

But there's more to Kingsbeer than just taste!

There's flavour. A brawny flavour that comes from costlier, selected hops being added to Kingsbeer's special ALL-MALT mash.

And what else? Satisfaction! Deep satisfaction because Kingsbeer's brewmaster uses a specially developed true lager yeast. It acts on the ALL-MALT brew in a way that makes Kingsbeer deeply satisfying.

The final touch! Natural aging. It smooths and mellows the bold taste and brawny flavour of Dow Kingsbeer. The result! ALL-MALT Kingsbeer is easy-drinking. Try it and see.

Former Leaf Bill Thoms Dies at 54

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Thoms, former star centre with Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, died in hospital Saturday after a heart attack. He was 54.

Thoms retired from the NHL in 1945 after an illness. At the time of his death, he worked in the advertising department of the Toronto Telegram.

Thoms joined the Leafs in 1932 after playing junior and senior hockey in his hometown of Newmarket, near Toronto.

Thoms, a five-foot-nine 170-pounder, had his best NHL season in 1935-36 when he scored 23 goals and 15 assists during a 48 - game schedule. He was named to the NHL's second all-star team for the first and only time in his career.

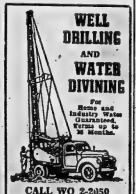
Thoms was with the Leafs for six seasons and was traded to Chicago during the 1938-39 season. He stayed with the Hawks until the end of the 1943 campaign.

With the Leafs and Hawks he had a career total of 129 goals and 196 assists over 12 seasons.

He is survived by his wife, Loretta, a daughter, and a son.

Manchester Shades Sheffield

LONDON (AP)—George Best scored for Manchester United in the first half Saturday and gave his team a 1-0 victory over Sheffield United—a goal that left Manchester at the top of the English Soccer League standings.



Chelsea defeated Blackpool 2-0 and Leeds United tied 1-1 against Blackburn Rovers, another team challenging for the title.

Manchester now leads the first division of the standings with 38 points followed by Chelsea and Leeds with 33. Tottenham Hotspur and Nottingham Forest are next with 28 points.

Alan Gilzean, the £72,000 star from Scotland, whipped in the winning goal for Tottenham Hotspurs' 2-1 win against Nottingham Forest.

FAN SHOT

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A spectator was shot fatally Sunday by another spectator who didn't like a referee's decision in a soccer match between the Mazraa and Safa teams of Beirut. The disgruntled spectator began firing a pistol. Members of the crowd tried to stop the shooting but the unidentified man shot into the crowd, killing one man and wounding another, police said.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—Russia's national hockey team, still unbeaten in North American starts, downed Canada 5-3 Sunday night to take the lead in the three-team Walter Brown Memorial International tournament.

The Russians, who had opened the double round-robin tournament with an easy 8-3 triumph over Czechoslovakia, got an argument from the Canadians this time, leading by only one goal until Yuri Volkov scored on a breakaway with barely six minutes remaining.

They had beaten Canada 4-0, 6-1 and 4-1 in three previous meetings during their tour, the first in Toronto and the next two in Winnipeg.

Canada meets Czechoslovakia tonight in the third game of the tournament, which continues until New Year's Eve. All three teams will be in Tampere, Finland, next March for the world amateur hockey championships.

The Canadians, a combination of Winnipeg Maroons, last year's Allen Cup champions, and the team that finished fourth behind Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden in the 1964 Olympics, was the strongest the Russians have faced on the current tour.

MAKES FIRST START

In the lineup for the first time was right-winger Grant Moore, a student at the University of Toronto who was unable to join the club previously. Several other players were prevented by their college studies from appearing in one or more of the earlier games.

The Russians, who had rested a few front-line players in earlier games, responded by playing their top lineup Sunday.

Veniamin Alexandrov and Volkov gave the defending world champions a two-goal lead in the first period but Gary Dineen cut the margin just after the intermission with the Russians two men short.

Vyacheslav Starshinov made it 3-1 three minutes later while Canadian defenceman Gary Begg was serving a penalty but Marshall Johnston reduced the gap again on a two-man break with Roger Bourbonnais while killing another Canadian penalty.

Volkov's second goal, on a breakaway with Stanislav Petukhov, turned out to be the clincher. Vladimir Yurzinov drove in a 12-footer to put the Russians three up but Ross Parke silllied it 24 seconds later.

It was the hardest - hitting game of the four between the two teams with each taking six penalties. Reg Abbott needed stitches when he was cut in a goalmouth scramble in the second period but returned to set up the final Canadian goal.

Both goaltenders made some brilliant saves, Ken Broderick stopping 30 shots for Canada to 20 for Victor Konovalenko at the other end.

The Russians romped to a 6-0 lead before the Czechs managed their first goal in the third period of Saturday's game. Konstantin Loktev and Alexander Almetov scored two goals apiece for the winners with Anatoli Firsov, Volkov, Alexander Ivanov and Yurzinov getting the others. Galri Holik and Rudolf Potsch tallied for the Czechs.

Georgia Defeats Texas Tech.

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Georgia's defence stayed off a fourth - quarter Texas Tech flurry and its ball control offence ground out a 7-0 victory in the Sun Bowl football game Saturday.

The defence limited Tech to just one first down—on a 15-yard holding penalty—in the first three quarters. Tech's All-American Donnie Anderson gained just 19 yards on seven carries.

Georgia grabbed its 7-0 margin in the second quarter.

The score was set up on a 38-yard swing pass from quarterback Preston Ridlehuber to halfback Fred Barber.

The 196-pound Barber pulled a haunting miracle on the scamper and hobbled to the Tech 41-yard line. Three plays later fullback Frank Lankford barrelled over from the two. Bobby Etter kicked the convert.

The Bulldog defence limited the Red Raider offence to 29 yards on 15 plays in the first half and 105 yards on 34 plays in the second.

Fights Feature Western

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Festive season fights helped run the penalty count to 64 Sunday night in Detroit Western Hockey League games.

Howie Young of Los Angeles and Eddie Panagabko of San Francisco Seals triggered a free-for-all when they squared off in Los Angeles during a game won 5-1 by the Blades.

Bill McNeill, a usually mild member of Vancouver Canucks, came out of two separate fights with 20 minutes in penalties as his club played the Buckaroos to a 3-3 tie in Portland.

Victoria Maple Leafs put a 4-1 victory over Seattle Totems together with a 3-2 win over Portland Saturday night to escape the league cellar for the first time this season. At Seattle, Leafs' Sandy Hucul and Eddie Masur protested a minor penalty so vigorously that Hucul drew a misconduct and Masur a match misconduct.

The results, together with a 2-2 Seattle - Vancouver tie in Saturday night's other game, tightened the standings. Totems have 44 points, Portland 36, Vancouver 32, Los Angeles 31, Victoria 34 and San Francisco 23.

Hull Hawks Take Over Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull Hawks moved into first place in the Central Junior A Hockey League Sunday with a 9-4 win over Brockville Braves at Hull.

It was the Hawks' second straight win after snapping a three-game losing streak last Tuesday.

Hawks take over the league leadership with 31 points, two ahead of Smiths Falls Bears who had been tied with Hull for first place. The Bears were idle during the weekend.

Top player for the Hawks was Bill Hollingsworth who scored five times. Gilles Roy scored three goals and Andre Bernieues got one.

The game was featured by 23 penalties, including six majors and one misconduct.

Buckingham Beavers moved from fourth to third place with a 6-4 win over Arnprior Kenwoods at Buckingham Sunday and a 4-3 victory over Smiths Falls Sajurday.

BUS CRASHES

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) A crowded bus went out of control Sunday after its brakes failed on a steep hill and crashed into five cars, killing six persons and injuring 48 others, some critically. Bolando Cabaza, whose wife was among those killed, said the bus came on his car like a battering ram on the main highway from Mexico City to Acapulco and piled his car on top of another car.

Trailing Barons Win Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie goaltender Ernie Wakely and freshmen forwards Bob Courcy and Doug Senior came of age during the week-end and combined to give the lowly Cleveland Barons two of their biggest wins of the season.

The Barons, who trail the American Hockey League's Buffalo Bisons by a bushled Rochester Americans 4-3 Saturday night, and defeated Hershey Bears 3-2 Sunday.

Wakely was a standout in both games, while Courcy and Senior fired three goals each.

In other action Saturday, the Bears, who have an 11-point hold on second place in the east, defeated Baltimore Clippers 4-3, Buffalo Bisons defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 5-2, and Quebec Aces beat Springfield Indians 5-2.

Sunday, the Bisons made it a perfect weekend by trouncing Pittsburgh 9-0, Providence Reds defeated the Clippers 4-3, and Rochester, the western division leaders, walloped the Aces 7-1.

Trenton Minors Tie, Defeat Bowmanville

TRENTON (Special) — Bowmanville minors lost and tied against Trenton in the weekly Sunday night twin-bill played here.

Trenton Legion Juveniles overcame a last-period deficit to down Bowmanville 10-8 in a free-scoring affair.

Bowmanville and Trenton Lions midgets battled to a 4-4 stalemate.

In the juvenile tilt, Bowmanville led 2-1 after one period and 5-3 going into the third. Then the Legion fought fire to outscore the visitors 5-2 in the final forty minutes.

Jim Bunn starred for Trenton with four goals. Al Ferguson and Andy Teeple triggered two apiece and Turner and Bale added singletons.

Williams and Burns scored two each, Cameron, Werry, Hughes and Perry one apiece for Bowmanville.

The midget tilt was even all the way. It was 1-1 and 3-3 by periods while each team managed another one in the third.

Hominick, Simpson, Oyler and Teeters scored for Bowmanville.

Trenton marksmen were Dixon, McCormick, Steenburg and McFaul.

Trenton Apple Kings, of the OHA Eastern Junior League, have announced that they will play their home game against Gananoque Islanders in Napanee this Wednesday night.

Stratton Was Standout

Bills Defeat Chargers For AFL Title

BUFFALO (AP)—Mike Stratton, 230-pound Buffalo linebacker, was the key man in two crucial plays that pointed the Bills to a 20-7 victory over San Diego Chargers and their first American Football League championship.

Both the losing coach and quarterback, Sid Gillman and Tobin Rote, named Stratton's play as decisive in their reviews of the championship game Saturday.

"If I hadn't understrown that pass in the second quarter, we might have got some kind of score and turned the game in a different direction" said Rote, 36, a veteran of three professional leagues who was playing his last game.

He referred to a first-down play in the closing minutes of the first half. Buffalo had a 13-7 lead, but the Chargers were driving from the Bills' 15. Stratton picked off a Rote pass to end the threat.

"If there was a turning point," Gillman said, "that pass interception was it.

The loss of Keith Lincoln also hurt us. His loss helped Buffalo a great deal—we lost a lot of our football team when Lincoln was injured."

Lincoln, who gained 339 yards in all manners of offence in San Diego's 51-10 rout of Boston Patriots in the title game last year, appeared to be on his way to another great game before the injury.

BROKE HIS RIB

In the first 6½ minutes he had picked up 47 yards rushing and had taken a pass for 11 more. Then Stratton nailed him with a crushing tackle and the 10 of 20 passes for 198 yards, San Diego fullback lay writhing on the ground. He eventually made his way to the sidelines and was through for the day—a right rib broken.

San Diego, sparked by Lincoln, swept 80 yards on a touchdown drive the first time the Chargers got their hands on the ball. Lincoln accounted for the first 54 yards, including a 33-yard run, and Rote hit Dave Kocourek with a 26-yard touchdown pass.

Pete Gogolak got the Bills back in strids with a 12-yard field goal, Wray Carlton slammed over for the go-ahead touchdown a few minutes later and the Bills were ahead to stay.

Jackie Kemp, who completed

sneaked over from the one for the other Buffalo touchdown and Gogolak added another field goal from the 11.

Buffalo fullback Cookie Gilchrist carried 16 times for 122 yards and took two passes for 22 more.

The victory was worth $3,068 to each of the Buffalo players and $1,738 to each Charger.

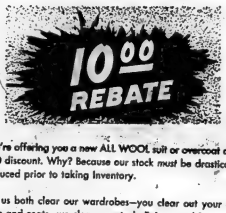
ITALIAN WINS

GENOA (AP)—Italian Salvatore Burruni, European flyweight boxing champion and No. 1 contender for the world title, won a 10-round non-title decision over Jose Vinagra Robledo of Spain here Saturday night. The Spaniard knocked Burruni down in the second round with a left to the chin,

Canadian Rugger Team Loses

TONYREFAIL, Wales (CP)—A combined Welsh team defeated the touring University of Toronto rugger Blues 9-3 in a fast, rough game Christmas Day in which four players were slightly injured.

An estimated 1,500 spectators, a large crowd for this small coal-mining town, turned out to see the game in which the Tonyrefail - Gilfach Goch combined team scored on three tries and the Canadians got their only points on a penalty goal.



A Welsh player suffered a shoulder injury and three Canadians, including captain Larry Johnson, got a "shaking up." All went to hospital for examination and were released.

GULLS IN WINTER

Throughout spring, summer, and autumn gulls of one kind or another are seen right across Canada, not only breeding near the oceans lying west, north and east of us, but beside every little inland lake—not to mention the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River. Then, about this time of year, when real winter weather has started and ice on many fresh-water lakes and streams are sealed in by the frost, the big majority of gulls disappear. Where do they go? Banding helps to tell us.

Most of us are especially familiar with the herring gull, that tramp which hangs around our harbors for the purpose of picking up garbage. As long as ships remain at our ports there the gulls stay, acting like scavengers. They follow the ships when they start off, but rarely go much beyond the continental shelf. In winter some remain near our harbors if garbage is still to be found there, and a few are thus supported throughout the freeze-up. However, most migrate, a number as far away as the West Indies and Panama.

LEAVE OUR PORTS

The ring-billed, a first cousin of the herring gull, also breeds inland from coast to coast. It too is a many fresh-water lakes and streams are sealed in by the frost, the big majority of gulls disappear. Where do they go? Banding helps to tell us.

However, most migrate, a number as far away as the West Indies and Panama.

LEAVE OUR PORTS

The ring-billed, a first cousin of the herring gull, also breeds inland from coast to coast. It too is a scavenger. Once the attractions of the shipping season are over, nearly all leave our ports, flying for the winter months to southern New England or farther south, and Mexico.

Although the great black-backed gull is not as common as these two, its habits are similar. Breeding on the shores of the Arctic and North Atlantic Oceans (many choosing small coastal islands for their homes) these big, predatory birds winter from southern Greenland down the coast of North America to North Carolina, and quite a few are to be found flying over the Great Lakes throughout the cold weather.

MOST MIGRATE

Gulls of various kinds that have been banded in southern Canada have been recovered when killed on airport runways by their collisions with planes, when found wounded by shot guns, when starved because they were overtaken by winter, and even when collected as scientific specimens. Banding has taught us that a few, with help from our fishing waste, sewage, and garbage, can survive a Canadian winter; but that the large majority seek a milder climate, preferring to spend the coldest months in the Atlantic coastal states, in those that border on the Gulf of Mexico, on the Yucatan Peninsula, in south-ern Mexico, and even in Peru and Chile in South America.

Check Up On Choke, Heat Valve

By EUGENE B. WILMOT

At this time of year, when the mercury tends to drop out of sight, the carburetion help provided by your automatic choke and heat-control valve becomes especially vital. Your engine depends on them for easier starting and faster warm-up.

With a cold engine, the choke valve should be closed a good portion, restricting air flow into the carburetor and thus allowing extra fuel to be drawn in. This provides the rich mixture needed for quicker starting and warm-up.

The manifold heat valve aids a cold engine by temporarily routing the hot exhaust gases around the intake manifold in order to pre-heat the fuel mixture during the warm-up period. As normal operating temperature is neared, both the heat valve and the choke valve controls relax since their help is no longer needed. If balky starting, sluggish performance or poor gas mileage afflict your engine, check up on the choke and manifold heat valve.

V. McL. asks: "What is the automatic advance? It's the vital distributor mechanism which automatically times delivery of the spark according to engine speeds and loads.

From L. B.: "I read somewhere that battery strength can be helped in winter by keeping the water level a little lower than usual. Is this so?"

The theory here is that a lower water level keeps the battery electrolyte more potent. But then you flirt with the danger of too little water. Play safe and keep it at the exact level indicated.

N. J. writes: "If I hit the brake suddenly for a quick stop, my engine stalls. Yet it never does this during gradual stops or idling."

Your car is equipped with a throttle return check which slows down closing of the throttle when you decelerate quickly. Apparently, this isn't functioning properly.

F. M. asks: "The front wheel bearings on our car were too loose and the mechanic said this could also be responsible for the brake noise I complained of. Is he right?"

Yes . . . in fact, loose bearings can cause brake drag or grab, as well as chatter.

Carol for Another Christmas Will Have No Commercials

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Carol for Another Christmas on ABC tonight is an extraordinary departure for commercial television.

Television writers were invited to an advance showing of the 90-minute film, an almost unheard of procedure.

Carol for Another Christmas is the first of four or five shows to be made under a $4,000,000 grant by Xerox, a photocopy equipment manufacturer, to a non - profit foundation for the production of strong dramatic shows supporting and explaining the work of the United Nations. Top theatrical talents — writers, directors and actors — are working for minimum salaries to make them. The shows will not be interrupted by commercial messages.

Tonight's drama was written by Rod Serling around Dickens' Christmas Story. In this case, Ebenezer Scrooge is a contemporary tycoon named Dan Grudge, who is bitter over the death in war of his only son, Marley. Grudge is furiously isolationist, opposes the United Nations and is dedicated to the proposition of a very strong America, which should "stay on our own side of the fence."

Into his barmial hall on Christmas Eve, anniversary of Marley's death, comes the ghastly little figure of his nephew, a man of goodwill, seeking to change Grudge's attitudes. He fails, but soon Grudge finds himself aboard a creaking ship transporting the dead of all wars past, and the ghost of Christmas past. The ghost's message: Those men died because the men who govern nations stopped talking and started fighting.

The picture is magnificently produced and handsomely acted by Sterling Hayden, who plays Grudge, and Ben Gazzara, his nephew. Steve Lawrence, Pat Hingle and Robert Shaw are the ghosts while Peter Sellers, with frightening humor, plays the mad demagogue.

Another highly unusual television event was Sunday night's hour - long performance of Britain's Royal Ballet on CBS. The small screen is not the perfect medium for the dance, but even so it was a rare and lovely treat. Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev danced with great purity and authority.

Recommended tonight:

Carol for Another Christmas, ABC, 9:30-11 p.m. EST.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Gummo won the $66,175 California Breeders' Champion Stakes for California two-year-olds Saturday as Santa Anita opened its winter meeting before a record first-day crowd estimated at 71,000.

Native Diver took the $73,350 Palos Verdes Handicap at the Arcadia, Calif., opening.

Gummo, ridden by Don Pierce and owned by Michael H. Silver of New York, overtook the favored Hampen in the drive to the wire and won by more than one length.

The time for the seven furlongs was 1:24 2-5.

The victory was worth $45,675.

Gummo paid $14.80, $6.80 and $5. Hampen paid $4.80 and $4 and Arkzrul returned $3.80 for show.

This was the largest Saturday opening-day crowd since 66,683 attended Dec. 26, 1953.

The Palos Verdes, at six furlongs, drew seven older horses, with jockey Jerry Lambert taking an early lead on Native Diver and winning by 3½ lengths.

Viking Spirit was second by two lengths and Sledge was third. The time was 1:10 4-5.

Native Diver returned $14.20 for owner L. K. Shapiro. Native Diver paid $4.20, $4.80 and $3.20. Viking Spirit paid $3.20 and $3.20 and Sledge $2.60.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — College students in the community: Anne Reid and Barbara, Watson of Queen's University, Kingston; Jimmie Gray and Fred Spencer of the Ryerson Institute of Technology, Toronto, are spending the Christmas holidays with their respective parents at Rylstone.

Larry and Helen - Anne Thompson and their children Laurie Appe, all of Springbrook, visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Morton and Reed, on Saturday afternoon.

Chicago Gunmen Rob Brink Truck On Church Call

Copy New Jersey Theft To Obtain 'Large Haul'

CHICAGO (AP) — Police sought three men today who bound two Roman Catholic priests in a church rectory, locked a guard and escaped with what officials described as a "large haul" from a Brink's incorporated truck.

The robbery was almost a duplicate of a church holdup in Paterson, N.J., Dec. 21.

The guard involved in Monday's robbery here was taken to hospital with head injuries, but the priests were not injured.

The gunmen, wearing Halowe'en masks and a ski hood, bound two priests in the rectory in suburban Norridge late Monday, then jumped the Brink's guard when he arrived to collect the church's Sunday collections.

One gunman put on the guard's uniform and gained admittance to the armored truck outside the Divine Savior Church. He slugged the driver, drove the truck to a nearby secondary site and the three rifled with the money in a car, police said. They declined to estimate the amount taken until after an inventory.

Police said after a robbery, three gunmen wearing Halowe'en masks robbed Paterson, while it was picking up the Sunday collection at St. Anthony's Catholic church. The bandits made off with the truck containing $513,000 after binding four priests and guards who guided the rectory to pick up the money.

Critical Over Terms Of Aid Loan

From AP-Reuters

KUALA LUMPUR (CP)—The United States came under fire from Malaysian political leaders today who said the Americans are not doing enough to help Malaysia in its undeclared war with Indonesia.

Their comments came on the heels of a statement Monday by Deputy Premier Tun Abdul Razak, who said he was disappointed at defence loans Washington offered Malaysia by the U.S. government.

He said the terms were unacceptable to Malaysia.

Razak, who also is defence minister, was reported earlier to have said the U.S. was asking for an interest rate of 2½ per cent on defence loans, but Finance Minister Tan Siew Sin said today the figure was actually five per cent.

The loan, to run from five to seven years, was to be used for buying American planes and other military supplies.

"We have to reject this kind of assistance," he told the House of Representatives Monday night. He thought our friends would look to us with sympathy in our time of difficulty."

U.S. officials said five per cent interest was normal for short-term credits for purchase of military equipment.

Tan Chee Khoon, leader of the small opposition Socialist Front, called on the government to make a "complete reappraisal of its attempts to obtain aid from the West so that Malaysia will not become a pawn in the game of politics."

A spokesman for Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman's party, the United Malay National Organization, told the Malay Mail: "All along we were doubtful of U.S. aid. At least we know now just how sincere the Americans are toward Malaysia."

Razak told the House his government would accept an American offer to train Malaysian personnel. He did not elaborate, but originally the United States offered to train pilots to fly the jets it was going to sell Malaysia.

Britain has been shouldering the bulk of Malaysia's defence burden and is expected to continue doing so.

Indonesian President Sukarno has vowed to destroy Malaysia, a federation of former British territories in Southeast Asia.

Snow, Cold Threaten to Block Food Airlift to Flood Victims

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A mighty force of men and machines shouldered the task today of clearing the path for the West's Christmas week floods, called by the governor of California "a major American disaster."

A massive airlift hoisted food and emergency repair equipment into stricken northwestern California.

Snow and falling temperatures added to the misery of refugees from high water and threatened again to block helicopter delivery of food bundles to hundreds marooned in the high California timber country for the ninth straight day.

Between 400 and 500 persons were isolated in westward lumbering and mining communities along the Klamath and Salmon rivers in extreme northern California. They've been cut off since Dec. 20, and civil defence workers said the situation was desperate for food.

Dozens of air transfers were in Yreka, Calif., near the Oregon border loaded for mercy missions but unable through Monday to take off because of snow and icing conditions.

Roughly the northern third of California, all Oregon and 14 counties in Washington had been declared a disaster area, enabling the region to receive special government assistance.

California's Governor Edmund Brown made a low level helicopter tour of part of the stricken area Monday.

California's property loss was estimated at between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 by office of emergency planning and small business administration regional officials.

Washington Governor Albert Rosellini asked for $1,000,000 in federal funds for immediate relief and state and federal officials estimated the state's storm damage at at least $7,000,000.

Disaster officials said they had not yet been able to total the widespread property loss in that state.

Flood damage in Nevada's Douglas County was estimated at $3,000,000 by Leroy Wilfor, director of emergency planning for the state civil defence agency.

Teachers May Be Licensed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario teachers were told Monday that a plan for certification of teachers in the province is not ignored as a replacement for provincial licensing.

An official of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation told a joint meeting of his group and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation teachers hope some day to be able to license their colleagues in the same manner as lawyers and doctors.

He said that only then would the certificates granted become licences but that in the meantime they would take the form of an accreditation which it would be hoped school boards would recognize when hiring teachers.

H. E. Gillies of St. Catharines, outgoing president of the public school federation, said:

"It has been our contention for many years that any profession of quality worthy of the name must be ready and willing to assume the responsibility of placing its ethical blessing and seal of approval upon all of its members who conscientiously practise the profession."

GIVES WARNING

And in a warning note, William Powell of Richmond, certification committee chairman of the secondary school federation, said:

"This is a trust and you can own not only to ourselves but to the school boards of Ontario and the taxpaying public. We must maintain and demonstrate our professional ability to exercise power with complete integrity."

The first 3,000 certificates ever awarded in Ontario will be mailed about Jan. 1, a spokesman said.

Another warning note was sounded by Charles McCaffray of Ottawa who said the secondary education system in Ontario is "in serious difficulties in a number of vital areas" and that effective reform must come from within the ranks of the teachers themselves.

He said there is nothing wrong with the system that "the teachers couldn't put right."

SUGGEST INCREASE

The public school federation suggested an increase in senior teaching salaries and a cut in the basic salary for starting teachers as a means of creating an incentive for the beginners to increase their qualifications.

The federation suggested that senior teaching salaries should be paid as much as $10,500 a year while elementary school teachers in the top category should receive only $3,600 annually.

The federation report suggested that teachers were being required to do more extra-curricular work and they especially should be handsomely paid.

The secondary school federation said in a report that some teachers were being required to put in as many as 16 extra hours a week starting, looking after students' extra-curricular activities and preparing lessons and some high school teachers were complaining of the extra non-teaching responsibilities.

Gunmen Rob City Treasury At Buffalo

BUFFALO (AP) — Two gunmen today robbed the city treasury office of an estimated $299,000, believed mostly in cheques, police reported.

One of the pair beat City Treasurer Melvin Elliott on the head as Elliott sought to stall the bandits' escape.

Patrolman Thomas Wright, assigned to the treasurer's office, said he grappled with one bandit as the second fled with a money bag, Wright ran outside.

"I got outside in time to see the last of the two entering the car and the car pulling away, but managed to get one shot at the getaway machine," he told a reporter. "I think I hit it."

Mae Wicks, a cashier, told police:

"I was holding the money bag. The count was $299,000, mostly cheques, when the two men confronted me from outside the counter. I was ordered to hand the bag over and I dropped to the floor. I saw one had a nickel-plated revolver."

Nigerian Election Wednesday

From Reuters-AP

LAGOS (CP) — Security arrangements have been completed with the armed forces and police to ensure that federal election is carried out Saturday in a peaceful and orderly manner, it was officially announced here today.

A federal information ministry communique said Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa had made the arrangements at a meeting today with the heads of the armed forces and police.

Radio Nigeria interrupted its programs to broadcast the communique as a special announcement.

Meanwhile, representatives of the eastern and mid-western regions arrived in Lagos for a meeting of premiers and governors of all the regions, but by noon—the fixed starting time—no representatives from the north and west regions had arrived.

The informed sources said the premiers and governors of the northern and western regions had decided to boycott the meeting.

Sources close to the northern premier's office said arrangements were going ahead to hold the federal elections in the northern region as planned.

The meeting of the regional governors and governors was called after President Nnamdi Azikiwe and the premier disagreed about what to do whether or not to postpone the election.

Balewa, who represents the Moslem north, favored going on with the voting. President Azikiwe, a southerner, wanted it delayed at least a month.

The issue threatens to split the north from the rest of the country. Most seats in the last Parliament were controlled by the north because of its larger population, and the northern-based Nigerian National Alliance formed to win the election.

BREAK UP CROWD

Police broke up a crowd of angry demonstrators who marched through the city to party branches and shouted slogans as they wrecked some polling booths.

Leaders of the southern United Progressive Grand Alliance (UPGA) called for a postponement of the voting to check on alleged irregularities.

Northern leaders denied the charges and said an election must be held. It would be impossible because the Moslem holy month of Ramadan which begins then.

The southern alliance asked its candidates to boycott the election. Thousands of its supporters surged through Lagos streets Monday calling for a postponement.

HAMILTON (CP)—The Canadian daily newspaper has increased its effectiveness in the community and has not lost out to radio and television, J. J. Doyle, editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, told the annual convention of the Canadian University Press Monday night.

"The newspaper today is still the primary source for public information," said Mr. Doyle, honorary president of CUP.

"Over 4,000,000 newspapers are sold each day in Canada. We are constantly seeking and finding new production techniques which will reduce the economic hazards which have been obvious in the past. We are constantly seeking new methods by which we will be able to place our product. . . . in the hands of our readers."

Mr. Doyle said there has been a vintage year for critics of the news media. He cited the Warren commission report on the assassination of president John F. Kennedy and subsequent events.

"The commission believed that a part of the responsibility for the unfortunate circumstances surrounding president's death must be borne by the news media. The commission felt that the crowd of newsmen failed to obey the demands of the police and officials.

"The individuals in our profession require discipline then let us find a way of doing the disciplining."

But, he said, "let us not start by muzzling the lot."

Mr. Doyle said some Canadian Newspaper mes must take a share of the blame for turmoil during the Diefenbaker visit to Canada. The year 1964 was one in which Canadian had been "more than something of an international scandal, he said.

"Involved were the legitimate political and economic aspirations of Quebec, the opportunism of the revolutionary or lunatic fringe of our French-Canadian population, the irresponsibility of a number of Canadian newspaper men—and the Queen of Canada."

When the Queen visited Quebec, police panicked, an inquiry was launched and the press was criticized. The press retaliated by turning on the politicians, he said.

Senator Said Trying to Heal Political Rift

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon was reported Monday to be a central figure in efforts to heal a rift between Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Leon Balcer, Quebec leader of the Progressive Conservatives, who says he is considering quitting the party.

However, official party sources said they know nothing about the reported efforts of Senator McCutcheon.

Scientists Developing, 'Smart Pill'

HOUSTON (AP) Scientists here and elsewhere are conducting research for eventual development of a "smart pill" for human beings.

Baylor University research-ers are working with a variety of chemical compounds that show a potential for such a pill.

The most hopeful of these compounds is a naturally occurring hormone that produces changes in the ability of nervous system cells to receive and transmit information.

The hormone is not ready for testing with human beings but the researchers hope it eventually may prove helpful to children with certain types of mental retardation and in combatting the mental confusion often experienced by elderly persons.

A report on a similar research project was made Monday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Montreal.

McRUER HONORED

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto jurist James C. McRuer and Montreal Publisher Director J. Adrien Robert were honored today by the American Society of Criminology with awards marking their contributions to crime studies. The society recognized "distinguished contributions to the administration of criminal justice" by Mr. McRuer, former chief justice of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Favreau Aide Says MP Sought Talk On Rivard

Guy Lord Testifies Before Dorion Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—Guy Lord, former special assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, testified today that Liberal MP Geo Rouleau asked him to telephone Pierre Lamontagne in early August concerning the Rivard case.

Mr. Lord, testifying at the Dorion inquiry, was giving for the first time his version of the events surrounding attempts to obtain bail for Lucien Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on charges of narcotics smuggling.

Mr. Lord, now attending Ottawa University in Britain, said Mr. Rouleau, Liberal MP for Dollard, had come to see him Aug. 4 or 5.

Mr. Rouleau had said he wanted to speak to Mr. Favreau concerning narcotics smuggling charges against one of his constituents named Rivard.

The MP had said Mr. Lord could obtain the information by discussing the case with Mr. Lamontagne, the federal prosecutor in Montreal narcotics cases.

Mr. Lord said the name Rivard meant nothing to him at that time.

The 25-year-old witness said Mr. Rouleau said he wanted to speak to the justice minister on that same day and that the matter seemed urgent so he (Lord) had called Mr. Lamontagne.

He said Mr. Lamontagne had given him all the information in the case.

NAMED ROULEAU

He quoted Mr. Lamontagne as saying that he knew the MP who wanted the information and he had named Mr. Rouleau.

Mr. Lamontagne had said the case was giving him a lot of worry and that he had received threats and telephone calls and was fed up with calls.

Mr. Lord said Mr. Lamontagne had told him that it would be quite impossible to grant bail for Rivard.

He had said the RCMP had a big file on Rivard, that the RCMP had been watching him for a long time and that Rivard once had easily got away if bail were granted because he had a great deal of money.

Mr. Lamontagne had talked about the Rivard property at Ste. Rose.

Mr. Lord said he had worked at the hotel on this property in the summer of 1961 after he was under the proprietorship of a man named Trudel.

Trudel had been sentenced to a group of individuals including Rivard and the new proprietors had refused to keep him on.

Mr. Lord said he had told Mr. Lamontagne that this Rivard

UN Accord Delays Showdown

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The way was reported clear today for the UN General Assembly to clean up year-end business without a showdown over the Soviet Union's vote.

Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana was expected to tell the assembly today that he had worked out an agreement with key delegates.

Diplomatic sources said the agreement would let the assembly elect four new Security Council members and adopt a stopgap budgetary resolution by the general interest procedure that was used on opening day, Dec. 1, to elect the president and admit Malawi Malta and Zambia to UN membership.

The agreement was reported to include a preliminary informal poll to resolve a race between Jordan and Mali for a Council seat. This Wednesday, five assembly four unopposed candidates it could elect by acclamation.

WOULD AVERT SHOWDOWN

That would put off a Soviet-U.S. showdown over Article 19 of the UN charter. The assembly, after finishing up the essential business Wednesday, would recess until around Jan. 11.

Article 19 says any UN member two years behind in total assessments shall have no vote in the assembly. The Soviet Union is more than two years behind because it will not pay assessments for the Congo and Middle East peacekeeping operations, which it contends are illegal. The United States says it should not be allowed to vote.

120 Hostages Freed From Rebel Lands

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—White hostages in the Congolese Army troops today freed about 120 whites from rebel lands in Uvira, Fizi and Baraka, Radio reports reaching here said.

The reports said 10 white persons had been killed.

It was not known here how many whites were originally in the Wamba area.

Canadians Will Find It Costly To Celebrate New Year's Eve

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians wishing to celebrate the arrival of the New Year will have the choice of attending a party at home or spending up to $30 a couple for entertainment and dinner at a night spot.

The Canada Consumer Survey by The Canadian Press shows that prices range from $10 to $25 in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver and $20 in Toronto. Most prices include dancing and dinner but exclude drinks.

While many Canadians plan house parties, Quebec residents will be without "take-home" liquor due to a strike of liquor board employees.

Many are expected to go to Ontario or nearby United States points for New Year's Eve. However, Quebec hotels and bars say they are not running short of liquor.

A night out in Winnipeg costs from $12 to $20 while house parties also are popular. Many hotels and other night spots are booked solid. Police Chief Robert Taft said the "strongest possible" force will be out New Year's eve "in order to protect law-abiding citizens."

Entertainment in Regina ranges from dining and dancing, at from $10 to $20 a couple, to house parties. Service clubs run dances. Police will have extra men on duty and will watch closely for drinking drivers.

In Montreal, the liquor situation may force many people away from house parties. One of the more lavish evenings could be had at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel which offers a six-course meal, dancing and entertainment for $25. Hotels are planning special patrols.

In Ottawa, the only major night club is the Chateau Laurier grill, is just about sold out with $15 a person the charge and comedian Bert Kelly the headline entertainer.

Police are reminding drivers can expect no mercy.

Governor-General Vanier will hold a new year's levee.

House parties are popular in Toronto where prices for a night out range from $10 to $20. Police will be out in full force and drivers have been warned that "a lot of spot checks" will be made.

In Halifax, prices for an evening out range from $15 to $20 and the dances are usually crowded. Hotels say they are booked full well in advance.

Night spots and house parties are also popular in Edmonton with a night on the town costing up to $25. Police will have a normal complement of traffic and public safety patrols at work.

Car clubs, which in previous years have operated drive-home services for drinking drivers, have been advised by the Alberta Motor Association to drop the practice.

The AMA says a driver could lose his licence or get into a lawsuit in case of an accident where there was no insurance coverage.

The most popular entertainment in Calgary is an evening on the town which prices running up to $18 a couple. Many private clubs will hold parties. Police plan to wake up drinking drivers and offer a drive-home service for those who had "had one too many."

In Vancouver, it will be the first of two New Year's celebrations, with perhaps the most colorful to come Feb. 2 when "The Year of the Snake" will be welcomed in the Chinatown district.

Prices for Jan. 1 celebrations range up to $15 a couple with many residents preferring to stay at home. Police will operate special patrols to check drinking drivers.

Today's Weather

Synopsis: A strong southerly circulation is bringing milder air to all of Ontario. But a storm developing over the American Midwest will cross the upper lakes tonight and move northeastern Ontario Wednesday.

Snow has spread into northwestern Ontario this morning and will spread to the remainder of Northern Ontario tonight. For southern Ontario rain is expected overnight followed by cloudy mild weather Wednesday.

New Hospital Extension Will Start in June and Take 2 Years to Complete

Tenders for Belleville's new hospital extension are expected to be called next June with construction to take about two years to complete.

This was learned by Belleville city council yesterday as approval was given, to an estimated gross cost of $7,960,000 for the hospital addition.

The above figure will be reduced by government and other grants to a net cost of $5,062,000 which would be shared 65 per cent city and 35 per cent by the county of Hastings.

The $5,062,000 net cost figure is approximately half a million dollars higher than was expected during earlier stages of planning.

Earlier this month at its December session county council gave approval to the new cost figure.

OUTLINE PLANS

Yesterday at the brief special meeting of city council, A. McLean Howard, chairman of the joint city-county hospital committee, along with John Buchan, chairman of the hospital building committee, outlined plans for the new hospital extension.

They said the new extension would provide for a total of 450 beds of which 300 will be housed in the new eight-storey patient tower.

Approximately 150 present hospital beds will be retained, along with kitchen and certain other facilities. The east wing of the hospital, built in the 1880's will eventually be razed, while the central part of the old structure will be retained for the time being for use as administration offices and storage.

Hospital board representatives were questioned on the cost factor tying in the new hospital extension with the present building, and also whether planning allowed for ready future expansion.

NO FURTHER CANVASS

Mr. Buchan said that costs for the new extension were not out of line with comparable hospital construction in other centres and assured that planning allowed for ready future expansion at a minimum cost.

Mr. Haig said the board had acquainted the best possible advice as to the advisability of building a completely new hospital on a new site as compared with extension on the present site.

The advice had been to build on the present site, thereby retaining hospital services worth close to three million dollars.

Clinching the decision to build on the present site had been the refusal of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission to allow a dual hospital operation in a city the size of Belleville.

There will be no public canvass to help raise funds for the new hospital extension, according to Mr. Haig.

There will, however, be a campaign for the acceptance of individual and commercial contributions. Such donations would be used for the purchase of specific equipment items and would result in a better equipped hospital than might otherwise be the case.

Although construction of the main hospital extension is not expected to get underway until mid-summer of next year, a first phase of construction will commence early in the new year.

This will be the construction of a new boiler house to replace the present one which has to come down to make way for the new hospital building.

Hugh Murray Construction of Belleville submitted the lowest tender for the construction of the boiler house and with OMB approval will be awarded the contract.

Ground breaking ceremonies to mark the start of construction of the new boiler house are being planned for January 21st with city and county officials taking part.

Rotarians Hosts At Children's Party

There'll be four days after Christmas but—as far as Belleville Rotarians were concerned—there was a good a time as any for a children's party.

And a good time was had by the small fry as the Rotary Club rounded out its year with its annual children's day.

Over 200 children were the children of Rotarians who sat down to lunch in Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room.

Highlight of the entertainment which followed was "The Snow Queen"—a film with a Christmas fairytale theme.

They Beat Us Hard, Often Says Nun of Congolese Rebels

SUDBURY (CP)—Sister Suzanne de Notre Dame, a nun of the Daughters of Wisdom order and one of seven Canadians held captive by Congolese rebels in Stanleyville, said Monday she is not going back to Africa until "things are more settled."

She arrived in Canada Dec. 1.

In an interview here she said the Congolese disagree among themselves and act like children.

They are not ready for independence, she said.

Sister Suzanne was a nurse in a hospital 200 miles from Stanleyville, the rebel capital.

She said the rebels attacked because they thought a radio transmitter was hidden there. However she feels the rebels were actually afraid that Belgian paratroops would take over Stanleyville for good.

"I am glad, she said, "the soldiers were drugged—that is why they were so cruel."

Sister Suzanne told how 43 priests and nuns were held for more than 24 months in a stone, foot-square room. All hostages suffered from starvation and lack of water.

"The Congolese rebels were just as cruel to their own people," she added. "They killed and tortured government officials."

Sister Suzanne said none of the order will be sent back for the time being. There are trained Congolese nurses in Stanleyville, but no doctors, she said.

Sister Suzanne expects to be working at either Sturgeon Falls, near North Bay, or Ottawa as soon as she is recovered. Her mother, Mrs. Arthur Beaudry, lives at nearby Chelmsford.

Palomino Colt, 1,800 Bales of Hay Destroyed

A Palomino colt was burned to death and 1,800 bales of hay were destroyed this morning when fire consumed a farmer's barn two miles south of Rosemore.

The barn, owned by Burton Thompson, on the crossroad to Huff's Island was completely destroyed but the contents was lost. Belleville firemen answered the alarm and prevented the fire from spread of flames to other buildings.

Fire officials told firemen that the motor of an electric pump may have been the cause of the blaze. No one was home or had been heating up during operation.

Firemen were called to the scene about 7.25 a.m.

Deep Hostility of U.S. Toward Castro Continues

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The deep hostility of the United States toward Cuba's Premier Castro continues into 1965 but there is an air of resignation about it now after five years.

Despite evidence the Cuban economy is badly strained, Castro's discard of the sugar market slump and internal troubles, there is no sign Cuba is about to reject communism.

The U.S. is not expected to make any major change in its Cuban policies this next year, for some good reasons.

The U.S. has a lot of other fish to fry. It also is true the Cuban export of revolution in Latin America has not been notably effective and hence there is no compelling reason to intervene militarily in that country.

There is not much more that the U.S. could do about Cuba without giving direct military support to anti-Castro forces in exile in the United States or elsewhere.

PERSUASION USED

The U.S. worked in 1964 to persuade Latin countries to break trade with Cuba, but the response from Canada, Britain, France and others was not great. The U.S. department by trade figures calculates such trade in 1964 will total about $200,000,000 compared with $1,000,000,000 last year.

This is attributed to a windfall in foreign funds for Cuba because of the sugar crop last year and part of 1964. But the prices have dropped again and so have Cuba's purchasing in the third quarter of the year.

Further cuts are forecast for 1965.

For the public at large, the Vietnam shock of having a Communist country on the doors of the coast seems to have passed. There is no sense of good, too, and other foreign trouble spots such as South Viet Nam have eroded concern about Cuba.

Realistic state department officials, watching Cuban trade with the rest of the Communist bloc, say Cuba's economy is in bad shape but by no means collapsing.

Castro had stepped up buying Canadian fertilizer and flour, but the U.S. sees no threat there the sugar-price decline on sugar and consumption some are equipment, officials say. They suggest the economy may remain stagnant for another year or more.

Bad as the economy is, Soviet and other Communist aid continues and the American assumption is that such aid will be accompanied by tighter Soviet supervision in an effort to see it has some effect.

Hull Woman Wounded When Home Attacked

HULL, Que. (CP)—A 65-year-old woman was struck by nine inches below the heart Monday night by one of three bullets fired through the front window of her home in nearby Deschenes.

Mrs. Charles Lachapelle was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Her daughter, Mrs. Jacques Guertin, 25, narrowly escaped injury by scurrying behind a narrow partition as a bullet came in her direction. Three others in the room also were unhurt.

A 22-year-old man was arrested shortly after the shooting.

Police Chief Larry Dubeau said the shooting occurred after he gave up an hour-long watch on the home that started when patrons of an Aylmer, Que., hotel reported a man with a "handful" of bullets had threatened to shoot the entire Lachapelle family.

Shortly before the .22-calibre bullets shattered the window, a Deschenes priest, Rev. Henri DeCelles, was threatened in his home by a man with a gun.

Father Decelles said the man left after he was told he could shoot "but it won't do you any good."

Mine Cave-in In B.C. Kills Mining Engineer

Mr. and Mrs. Stan White of this city received a message that have been advised of the death of their son-in-law Robert Gable, 32, as result of a mine cave-in in British Columbia.

The accident of which little detail has been learned by the White family here, occurred the day before Christmas.

Mr. White said that his son-in-law, a mining engineer employed by the Federal government, had been underground to inspect the mine when it caved in killing him instantly.

Mr. Gable, a native of Aurora, leaves his wife, Phyllis, and two small children, Mrs. White flew to the West Coast yesterday to be with her daughter.

Invisible Light New Weapon In Scientists' War on Pests

By FRANK CARET

MONTREAL (AP) — Science is building an arsenal of new, bizarre and powerful weapons against insects and weeds — a range from invisible light to insect sound waves.

Some already are paying off in the fight against pests which cost billions of dollars a year in lost crops, to say nothing of livestock mortality and disease.

Dr. Nyle Bradyref of the U.S. department of agriculture reported on the new weapons during a discussion of new approaches to pest control at an international science meeting today.

The new weapons are in the experimental stage. But he said all of them show promise of being intensity the war against pests — and perhaps overcoming the drawbacks posed by present chemical pesticides, including health hazards to men and animals.

As for the conventional, chemical pesticides — which have been a subject for controversy as a result of the late Rachel Carson's book The Silent Spring—Brady said in his report to the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"Chemical pesticides are still essential to American agriculture and will be for some time to . . . today, however, the emphasis is on non-chemical approaches. There are many of them . . . some are new and have unusual interest and merit. . . ."

TEND TO PERSIST

"In using chemicals, our greatest difficulties are concerned with the fact that some of them tend to persist in the environment . . . and build up in the bodies of biological organisms used for food.

"Although we believe our food supply is safe at the present time, we are alert to the possibility of a particular buildup in the food chain and to other potential hazards associated with (chemical) pest control methods . . . (including) . . . the problem of applying them properly use."

Discussing some of the new non-chemical weapons, Brady said certain kinds of light—including ultraviolet and "invisible light"—show promise of trolling various insects "particularly those that fly long distances, such as some of the tobacco, cotton, and cabbage pests."

The lights, he indicated, attract insects to traps in some as yet unexplained way.

"We trapped tobacco hornworms in an area of 113 square miles in North Carolina for three years in succession, using near-ultraviolet light," he said. He added that the method reduced the hornworm population 90 per cent.

U.S. Will Still Sell Surplus Wheat to Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only five days after President Nasser of the United Arab Republic told the United States in effect to take its aid and "go to hell," the United States is going through with plans to provide him with $16,816,994,000 worth of surplus wheat.

The agriculture department issued an authorization Monday for the purchase of that amount of wheat under the food-for-peace program.

The department will pay cash for the wheat in the open market and the U.A.R. will pay for the grain in its own currency, a part of which will be spent in U.A.R.

Arrangements for the transaction had been made some time ago.

Boys' Parliament Is Unable To Agree What Privileges French Canada Should Get

WATERLOO (CP) — The Ontario Older Boys' Parliament was unable Monday to agree on any conclusions on a government motion to grant French-speaking Canadians "special treatment" in education, the federal government and the advancement of their culture.

The motion said that as citizens of brotherly love in dealing with the "special question in Quebec," we tabled after a lengthy debate which saw both government and opposition members support its basic principles but object to its specific points.

The motion said that as "Christian young Canadians" the 121 delegates had to realize their several and moral responsibilities to recognize the problems of French-speaking Canadians.

It was the government's feeling that the "highly centralized federal government" had intended in the past to overlook Canada's diverse population structure.

It urged that the 44th Boys' Parliament go on record as supporting greater emphasis on the study of the French language, literature and history.

The issue was called for a bilingual civil service and the same educational privileges for French-speaking minorities in Canada that are already are granted to English - speaking minorities in Quebec.

The motion can be debated again before the parliament adjourns Thursday.

The Boys' parliament unanimously supported a resolution calling for sex education to be part of the school curriculum in Ontario and that the parliament's view on the subject be taken before church, educational and governmental authorities in Ontario.

Delegates agreed that irresponsible thinking habits and pre - marital sexual relations are indicative of immaturity rather than of maturity. They said development of a mature attitude towards sex is often impaired by an incomplete and distorted education.

Speakers deplored the widespread and increasing use of alcoholic beverages, especially among university students, and condemned promiscuity among teenagers.

The delegates are meeting at the University of Waterloo.

The parliament is sponsored by the boys' work board of the Toronto Council of Christian Education.

Favreau

was not a person for whom he had any sympathy.

Andre Desjardins, commission counsel, asked whether Mr. Lord knew at that time whether the U.S. government was interested in the Rivard case.

Mr. Lord said he didn't know what Mr. Rouleau had not told him.

GRANTED SCHOLARSHIP

Earlier Mr. Lord said he was admitted to the bar in Ontario in June, 1963, and at that time had been granted scholarship by the Canada Council and the Nuffield College, Oxford.

However, he had been advised it would be good experience to work in Ottawa for a year and Mr. Favreau had known from the outset he would leave the minister's office in September, 1964.

Mr. Lord exhibited a letter dated April 30, 1964, from the master of Nuffield College saying he had been admitted there.

Mr. Justice Emmett Court Chief Justice Frederic Dorion was appointed by the federal government May 7 to look into charges levelled by Conservative MP Erik Nielsen of bribery and corruption in the Rivard case.

Mr. Nielsen said in the Commons that Raymond Denis, former commissioner assistant to immigration Minister Tremblay offered a $30,000 bribe to Mr. Rivard's lawyer, Jean Lamontagne, to bail. He said that Mr. Lord tried to pressure Mr. Lamontagne for the same reason.

After Mr. Nielsen raised the matter in the Commons that his post as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

WAS NOT AWARE

Mr. Lord testified that he was not aware when he telephoned Mr. Lamontagne that the U.S. government was interested in the Rivard case. He said Mr. Rouleau had not told him anything about this.

He said that after his call from Mr. Lamontagne it was perfectly clear to him that this was not a case involving the Canadian government, that he had told Mr. Rouleau this and had advised him that it would be futile for Mr. Rouleau to talk with Mr. Favreau.

At one point in his testimony Mr. Lord denied using the expression "ruddy bandit" as a description of Mr. Rivard. This referred to testimony by Mr. Lamontagne that Mr. Lord had so described Rivard.

Mr. Lord, continuing his account of the period just after his talk with Mr. Lamontagne, said that Andre Letendre, Mr. Favreau's executive assistant, had asked him whether Mr. Rouleau had come to see him about the Rivard case.

He said he doesn't think this occurred the same day as his call to Mr. Lamontagne.

He said he told Mr. Letendre that Mr. Rouleau had been to see him and that the information he had obtained from Mr. Lamontagne.

GAVE TO ROULEAU

Mr. Lord said at a second meeting on the day he talked to Mr. Lamontagne, Mr. Rouleau was given the information about the case and advised that it would be futile to discuss it with Mr. Favreau.

Mr. Lord testified that at some subsequent time he answered a telephone call from Mr. Lamontagne who said he wanted to talk to Mr. Letendre. He quoted Mr. Lamontagne as saying he was returning a call from Mr. Letendre.

Mr. Lord said it was a normal occurrence for MPs to seek information from ministerial assistants and that Mr. Rouleau simply asked for information without mentioning the possibility of obtaining bail for Mr. Rivard.

He said he received such calls once or twice a week.

Replying to questions from Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government, Mr. Lord said he had received a similar call from Mr. Nielsen (PC—Yukon) before seeing Mr. Rouleau. But Ross Drouin, counsel for the Progressive Conservative party, successfully objected to any questioning to indicate the purpose of that call.

WIG NO JOKE

NEATH, Wales (CP) — A strike involving 1,100 workers was caused by a Beatle - type wig. One of the women employees wore one as a joke. But management was not amused and they warned that the wig-wearer was allowing production by distracting other workers. When the union failed to win a retraction of the warning, the entire factory went on strike.

Dawson City Beats Record With 68 Below

By ATHOL RETALLACK

DAWSON CITY, Y.T. (CP) It was 68 below here Monday in this old gold rush community 400 miles south of the Arctic Circle — 10 degrees lower than the previous record for the date, set in 1912. But Klondikers were unperturbed by the chilly freeze.

The last time a prolonged cold spell hit the town, made famous by the Klondike gold-seekers of 1898, more people burned their furniture for firewood because at 60 and 70 below zero it was too cold to go into the bush to cut fuel supplies.

Now Dawson City's residents—849 at last count—are geared for cold with oil-fired and electric appliances. Two feet of snow helped insulate water and sewer lines from the intense cold.

It has been 35 below or more almost daily since Dec. 1. Many predict another winter like those of 1942-43 and 1946-47 when the temperature stayed for days at 60 below.

The cold Monday was made more bearable because there was no wind.

One of the few noticeable effects of the cold was ice fog, caused by water vapour from car exhausts and other heat - producers in extremely cold air. It has reduced visibility to 100 feet or less.

In the old Palace Grand Theatre, re - built after the Dawson gold rush festival two years ago, the plumbing has frozen. But this week's expected to stop Dawson's gala New Year's Eve entertainment there.

TAKE TAXIS

The only concession of Dawson gamblers to the cold weather is to hire taxis rather than walk on house-to-house visits.

Outdoor clothing includes fur parkas and Eskimo mukluks. Many resemble sacks of potatoes. But no one cares.

Inside the warm enough to wear a cotton housedress.

Dawson City schools will open in the new year despite the cold. Years ago schools closed whenever the temperature reached 50 below. Teachers noticed that the children played outdoors anyway, so decided they might as well be in school.

Now the school board leaves it up to parents whether or not to send their youngsters out. About a third of Dawson's grade one pupils went to school every day until Christmas.

The only possible hardship foreseen is the failure of the thrice-weekly mail plane from Whitehorse to arrive with supplies. Normally, it doesn't make the trip at 60 below or colder. Supplies usually can be transferred to trucks, which defy the weather in this area.

Duck Bullets To Sow Fields

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Israeli farmers ducked Syrian bullets for 2½ hours today while sowing fields east of the Sea of Galilee, an Israeli Army spokesman announced here.

He said the farmers, using armored tractors, completed the sowing despite the fire from four Syrian fortified positions. Israeli forces gave covering fire.

The spokesman said the new flareup on the Syrian - Israeli frontier ended after United Nations military observers negotiated a cease-fire.

There were no casualties on the Israeli side.

To be sworn in are Councillors Ross Burtt, Edward Todd and Paul Tripp. Mayor James MacDonald and Councillors C. W. Graham, Joseph Gould and Duncan McDonald are serving the second year of their two-year term and will not be sworn. At this meeting, Mayor MacDonald will deliver his annual message to the people of Trenton, outline past achievements and tell of planned for action in the new year. Behind of the "deal" between the town and the two separate governments are expected to be unfolded at this meeting. The reason for the new charge which will appear in utility bills next month, will probably be explained at this time as will the town's plan to install additional trunk sewers.

Dec. 31 a Thursday, and at 4 p.m., Charles Hilton, re-elected to the utility commission this year, will be sworn in. Other commission members are C. A. Hubbs, the mayor, by virtue of his office.

Tentative date for swearing in education board members is M. Parker Jr., Jack Hadley, Louis Aziz and Ralph Weaver in Monday, Jan. 11.

Other board members, (serving the second year of a two-year term) are Ian Dickinson, James Bowman, Douglas Whitley and E. D. (Del) Topping.

Prince Charles, Princess Anne Put on Party

WINDSOR, England (AP)— The ancient stones of Windsor Castle echoed Monday night to British royalty's first boat party, with Beatle-topped Prince Charles as master of ceremonies.

The 16-year-old prince and his 14-year-old sister, Princess Anne, twisted and shook with more than 100 teen-age guests and served them champagne to wash down their suppers.

It was the first dance they have given together. Charles taped the music in advance from records and cut himself his royalty's first disc jockey.

The Beatles, The Rolling Stones and Sandie Shaw, who can't sing with her shoes on, topped Charles' selection from the Hit Parade.

Charles himself owns a Beatle-type guitar to match his Beatle - type haircut. But whether he contributed a number may never be known.

The party was staged in the Castle's Crimson Room, largest and most magnificent of its three state dining rooms.

A buffet supper of hors d'oeuvres, salmon and turkey was laid out with champagne and soft drinks. In one corner a big Christmas tree stretched toward the ceiling.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip looked in during the evening with Princess Margaret and joined the twisting. This being strictly a teen-age affair, they didn't stay long.

It all added up to the brightest Windsor occasion in many years.

Dismiss Charge Against Doctor Who Took Drug

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Charges of dangerous driving and driving while his ability was impaired by drugs were dismissed against an Ontario bus driver psychiatrist following an 11-hour trial in magistrate's court.

Dr. John Kevin O'Shaughnessy testified he had taken a drug — chlorpromazine — prior to an Oct. 27 accident when his car swerved from one side of the street to the other, struck two parked cars, went through a stop sign and collided with a truck.

Dr. O'Shaughnessy said he did not remember the accident.

He said he had been taking the drug for about five or six years for a period of a week at a time, two or three times a year, to relieve tension.

Magistrate Fred R. Barnum, in a written judgment, said the evidence had fallen short of proving the doctor was impaired by the drug.

The doctor was not aware and would not be expected to know what would happen in taking the drug. This constituted a strong defence against the charge of dangerous driving, Magistrate Barnum said.

Strong Attack Against Sale Of Alcohol

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Rev. J. R. Mutchmor of Toronto, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, suggested Monday that the Ontario government enact legislation to handle the sale of beer through an agency like the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

In a strong attack against the sale of beverage alcohol, Mr. Mutchmor told the Ontario Youth Conference on Alcohol Problems that "the curse of near monopoly has been reached by the beer and hard liquor business on this continent."

At present, Ontario brewers retail stores are run by the brewing companies and are not licensed but that advertising of beverage alcohol should not be a deductible item from corporation taxes.

He also urged the government to require the Drug and Alcohol Foundation to inform the public through press, radio and television "the way in which the booze boys have piled up profits for themselves."

Dr. Mutchmor said Toronto had set a new record for traffic deaths so far this year and 40 per cent of them were caused by drinking.

"Whenever liquor or beer is found in a car involved in a highway accident, the quantity and the brand ... reported publi-

Around the Tee

A perfect raise on an outside stone to the four-foot ring won a Consols playoff game 11-10 in 11 ends for Mac White against a rink skipped by Ben Corke last night at the Curling Club. In the other half of the draw Murray Johnson skipped his rink to a 12-8 win over Charlie Cox. These games were for the right to enter the district playoffs to be held at Kingston early in January. The winners of this playoffs will meet the district winners of the east at Trenton in a two-out-of-three game series for the right to proceed to Cobourg to play for the Ontario title.

Mac White has shifted his team from last year. Bill Henderson is leading with Al McCallam, second and Roan Bean as vice skip. White won his game with the last rock and with three shots lying against him. Both Corke and White scored four-enders in the game with Corke scoring on seven of twelve ends. It was an interesting game and watched by a large gallery. Corke had Ab Woodcock as lead, Bob Lanning as second and William Riley as vice skip.

In the other game Charlie Cox scored on five ends and had only get one at a time, while Johnson put together two four-enders and a three-ender in the game beyond doubt. Curling Johnson rink were Al Shukster, lead, Jim Pettit grew, second, and Dave Brown as the skip, while Charlie Cox had W. Weymark as lead, W. Spinelli as second and Dr. McIntyre-Dallas as vice skip.

This is a round robin double knockout draw with five teams entered. Last two games will put a rink out of the competition. Ernie Wilkinson will skip the fifth team and the personnel of the rink has not been ascertained. A double draw will be held again tonight.

On Wednesday evening the festivities for the New Year will start at the Curling Club.

A number of the members are getting together for a curling game and social evening, and expected there will be some curling but mostly it will be social evening topped off by bountiful feed. Bob Alexander and Fred Mann are in charge of the arrangements and should be a good party.

On New Year's Day the president and officers will be host at a reception for the members and a number of out-of-town guests from three to five in the afternoon. A tribe has been engaged to play for the reception and there will be shuffle board served during the afternoon. This is strictly a got-together for members and their wives and sweethearts and it is expected a large number will be in attendance during the afternoon.

Bonspiel time is coming up immediately after the New Year and this can surely be a place to go. Of course for the curling big spiel will be the Quinte the last week in the month. Sixty-four rinks will be in play at the three clubs with a banquet the first night and a reception and dinner on the Sunday between the finals are played. The RCAF Curling Club will be the host club this year and they have some surprises will be in store for the locals and visiting curlers.

Bill Gault, director of the Ontario Curling Association, and a member of the Quinte Curling Club will be a member of the curling team that will play in Scottish curlers when they visit this country in mid-January.

Prices Awarded For the Best Decorated Home

TRENTON — Winner of first prize in this year's Chamber of Commerce contest for the best decorated house at the Christmas season was Lieut. Gordon Bowyer, 46 Oriole Street. First prize was $15.

Second prize winner ($10) was E. D. (Del) Topping, 66 West Street; third prize winner ($5) was Thomas Woodward, 304 King Street.

Judges were Cecil Paul and James Paterson of the Quinte Disabled Persons' Club who drove 22 miles around town during the judging.

In the opinion of the judges the town was better decorated this year than ever before, with almost every other house on the block sporting some sort of outside decoration and many householders going all out in the colored light department.

Wrong Picture

Eskimos, we are informed in a Canadian Press story from Winnipeg, do not put much store by Santa Claus.

Christmas is a time of fun for them—they call it Hohvisahookvik, time of happiness—but many Eskimo children have never heard of the jolly old saint, all wrapped up in his woollies and rushing around in his sleigh drawn by reindeer.

Small wonder. There would be no novelty about our picture of Santa for a Lapp and even for the Eskimo the reindeer only have to be transformed into dogs to make a picture of everyday life.

The ideal Eskimo Santa would be clad in the male version of a bikini and would ride the clouds on a surf-board. Now there would be a picture to capture the imagination!

It might be a little uncomfortable, though, for Hudson Bay post Santas. Better to swelter in the red woollies in a steam-heated store than to parade from the airport to the trading post in a bathing suit.

Three Absurdities

"This little girl feels insecure and only Protestant adoptive parents can give her self-certainty and happiness."

"He is a 3½ year old, Canadian, Protestant boy."

"Wayne needs Roman Catholic parents and his own permanent home before he grows any older."

These three sesntences appeared in an advertisement of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare, seeking adoptive parents for wards of Children's Aid Societies.

The statements have one thing in common. As worded, they are all absurd.

Their absurdity arises for the inclusion in the sentences of one or two words.

The words are "Protestant" and "Roman Catholic."

Does anybody believe that only Protestant parents could make "this little girl" secure?

Has anybody seen a child aged 3½ who knew enough about religion to be called a "Protestant?"

Wayne needs parents, but why must they be Roman Catholic?

Hon. Louis P. Cecile, Minister of Welfare, has a report recommending changes in adoptive procedure. One of the changes urged is an elimination of religious restrictions in adoption procedures.

This should be implemented.

Wormy Salmon

Ontario's Department of Lands and Forest fisheries research has announced Kokanee salmon eggs have been brought from B.C.'s Kootenay lake to stock Lake Ontario and Georgian Bay.

These fish may make the lake suitable for other species, since they will eat the excess of animal and vegetable organisms produced by sewage and waste pumped into the lakes, and may as a result rejuvenate the once multi-million dollar lake fishing industry if the plan works. Sportsmen should be warned about the need for care in cooking the Kokanee.

In Nelson, B.C., Professor Desmond Anthony spent most of 1964 examining tape worm sperm in the meat of Kokanee trout, the name British Columbians give them.

He studies revealed that the majority of B.C. Kokanee are infested with tape worms and that these worms, which feed upon and draw energy from the fish, are a major reason for Kokanee dying.

Further studies revealed that these worms can be transmitted to human beings who digest the fish, and within the human body can grow to 20 feet long.

Among the few Nelsonites Prof. Anthony examined, he actually found a worm close to this size.

Symptoms that the worm is within the body are a tired, worn-out feeling since the worm is drawing away nourishment.

Although there is danger of contracting these worms, proper cooking will kill them.

Professor Anthony pointed out that if the fish are not eaten raw and are well cooked, the seed of the worm or the worm itself is completely destroyed, cannot be seen, and does not affect the edibility of the fish in any way.

Of course, if you are still squeamish, you can enjoy the prestige which comes from catching a salmon and releasing it!

Air Force Being Cut Back More Than Hellyer Planned

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There are signs of a smoldering feeling of rebellion in the largest of the armed services, brought on by the new policies of Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

Officers of the RCAF, and some senior non-commissioned officers, resent the manner in which the air force is being downgraded as the three services take their first tottering steps toward integration.

It is becoming obvious to them that their striking power is being reduced and that they may well wind up as little more than chauffeurs for the army.

The immediate case in point is the manner in which some $350,000,000 — designated for the purchase of a new fighter plane — is going to be spent.

The minister, and thus the government obviously favors the U.S. F-5 Freedom Fighter, a subsonic, low-level, low-cost aircraft which can carry a multitude of weapons for use in ground - support operations.

Men of the air force, on the other hand, much prefer the F-4 Phantom, a highly supersonic, high-level, sophisticated and expensive interceptor. Experts in their field, they can easily pick apart all the technical considerations which the minister argues for the F-5.

REAL COMPLAINT

But this means little — their real argument is that they will be left without an aircraft capable of defending the country from a possible bomber invasion.

The supersonic Voodoos now being flown from only five bases in Canada are considered obsolete in the United States and will soon be considered the same here.

The CF-104's in Europe are detailed for use as nuclear bombers in the event of war, will never be brought back to Canada for any permanent use and may well be phased out in Europe within a few years.

If the government should now purchase the F-5, it will mean that within a few years the air force will have no high-level interceptors.

In an age of missiles, this may make sense, but it does nothing for the feelings of men trained as fighter pilots.

Granted, they might get their chances to fight with the F-5, but it would be low level shooting and bombing of ground targets in support of ground troops. The Voodoos would have to run from enemy fighter planes, if it could.

The air force would also be used, of course, to carry ground troops around the world, if Canada honors its NATO and United Nations force go through. This would mean flying huge, slow, uncomplicated transport planes.

Somehow, this doesn't appeal to many young pilots.

THE RESULTS

Accordingly, although it is being kept quite quiet, the RCAF is beginning to lose many of its best young officers.

At the time of the announcement of the government plans to cut the forces by about 10,000 men over three years, a great deal of concern was expressed about the compulsory retirement of a certain proportion of the 10,000.

Now the worry has shifted — it centres instead on the fact that men are leaving more than the government wants to get rid of.

Add to rough resigning means the officers cannot take advantage of the special bonuses and increased pensions given them retired early, they are going anyway.

In the words of one relatively young officer here (necessarily anonymous), of medium rank and many years service:

"Why should we sit around and watch the government make what we think are mistakes against the advice of our senior officers, when all we can be told is, 're going to be retired early.

"I have applied for a civilian job and if I get it, I'm out, just like a lot of others."

Add to that the enlistment rate is not up to expectations and it becomes apparent the RCAF is not going to cut back more than Mr. Hellyer ever wanted, and right where it hurt most.

Congo's Problem

Christian Science Monitor

The recent history of the Congo partly explains but does not mitigate the savagery of Stanleyville. If the Organization of African Unity had acted with more decisiveness during the past six months, it is conceivable that things might have gone better. After all, the best hope for a solution to the Congo's problems is one worked out, if not by the Congolese themselves, at least by Africans.

Soil experts and nutritionists were given a huge jolt when Dr. William Albrecht told a London audience recently that in these humid eastern regions plant growth and crops did not contain the elixir of life as did the vegetation produced where the hard wheat grows. As a result of this lack, human frailities are more pronounced and animal diseases are more prevalent. It seems we think in terms of bushels and tonnage per acre, but that is not enough. It is calcium (lime) and phosphorus in the food we eat that enables the body to synthesize or build up the various compounds vitally essential to good health and virility. In a man's body of 150 pounds only 5½ pounds are of mineral origin and incombustible in character, and this small percentage is of tremendous importance and animal well-being may well depend on the availability of these elements so important in the metabolism of plants, animals and man.

Why Tshombe Is Hated

By EMILE LEJEUNE In Paris Nouvel Observateur

When I returned to Paris, I saw in a large evening newspaper, spread across eight columns, a horrible headline: "Stanleyville Hostages Wait To Be Eaten."

I did not recall that one could push indecency so far, nor that one could exploit horror to such a point.

What the hostages feared was not cannibalism. It was death, and that was enough.

Everything in this story is hateful: from the very idea of bottom-up to the assassination by his own troops of the revolutionary chief who tried to stop the massacres of the whites.

One will never be able to say enough about the hideous senselessness of these murders. But one could at least demand that everybody make a distinction between victims of different color and that indignation not be so overly selective.

For in the course of the last four months I have seen planes strafe and burn dozens of villages. I have seen tens of thousands of peasants exterminated in the lunch by the army of Tshombe. Their corpses are still there; the stench hangs over the streets and the fields of a ruined country.

Who cares? Only when the troops of General Olenga, commander of the Armee Populaire (formed "a band of rebels"), threatened to execute white hostages did the civilized world, as if it hadn't noticed that a savage war was raging in the Congo, one that did not spare civilians.

No voice is ever raised in the Western world in favor of the Africans.

* * *

Those elements of the Congolese army which swept through the Albertville area like a flaming lance set fire to all the villages in the region of Fizi and of Baraka. That was the mission assigned them.

They grilled alive all the men and women they encountered. These were their orders. Only the children were spared.

No government intervened. There is one law for the whites and another for the blacks.

For six months the Tshombe government has stayed in power thanks only to white support. Only mercenaries, come from Rhodesia and South Africa for the pleasure and "cruising Negro heads", have dared to possible to stop and then to turn back the revolutionary wave.

Tshombe's military adviser is a Belgian, Colonel Van de Walle. The planes which supply the regular army are American, piloted by Americans. The pursuit planes which machine-gun and bombard the Soumialist troops and the villages which have joined the rebellion are American and piloted by anti-Castro Cubans.

Massacred by the American and Belgian military, the insurgents threatened to revenge themselves on American and Belgian civilians. That's abominable, but it is not astonishing.

Where would the Congo be today without foreign intervention? It would probably be in the hands of the rebels. No force seems able to stop them.

The Katanga gendarmes? For several weeks after his accession to power, Tshombe thought that he could make them the spearhead of the Congolese army.

He was wrong: the gendarmes began by demanding their back pay. Then they asked an advance. Finally, they refused to fight. M. Bukavu their weapons served to intimidate the street-walkers when the girls demanded pay.

Why make your livelihood in the risks of combat if you can do better by pillaging and by selling arms to the rebels? That's how they see it in the Congolese army.

Unable to wage pitched battles with their rudimentary weapons (which very often were not firearms), the troops of Gaston Soumialot are learning today in blood and fire the hard lesson of the Algerian and Indochinese peasants: how to wage guerrilla war. Thanks to those methods, Pierre Mulele has been able to defy the legal authorities for a year.

Tshombe can win military victories, Belgian parachutists can retake Stanleyville, but peace cannot be reestablished that way any more than in South Viet Nam.

* * *

Achieving power after the murder of Lumumba by the grace of the mining companies, victorious, thanks to white mercenaries and foreign armies; rejected by the Organization of African Unity and by the third world as a whole, Tshombe has no way of rallying the Congolese nation to his banner.

Locked Doors Are Problem

Sudbury Star

"Push" and "Pull" signs on doors are common sights in business buildings these days, but that alone is not enough to help out the people who have to use these doors!

Isn't it about time that two more signs be added to doors? For instance, "locked" and "unlocked".

How many times does a person approach a set of double doors, instinctively notice the "push" sign and without losing stride, stick out a hand to push the door open . . . and nearly fracture every bone from fingers to shoulder?

That side of the door was locked whenever this happens. And it is seldom that an individual can approach the same set of doors twice — and find the same doors locked and unlocked.

Why aren't both doors left unlocked?

Don't people realize the difficulties a stranger has when he encounters a set of unfamiliar doors? Most everyone stand in front of a set of double doors and gingerly put out a hand to try one of the doors, having learned the hard way that every door should be treated with respect of a locked door?

How to "beat" the system! One line of thought suggests that the right-handed person happens to unlock the door, he will naturally have the key in his right hand and similarly unlock the right door. But if it happens to be unlocking the door from the inside the left door would get the key — from the point of view of people entering the building, the confusion sequence could be reversed, supposing the unlocker is left-handed.

Regardless of the hypothetical situations that might be put forward, the "safety" solution lies in unlocking both doors!

Civilization Breeds Worst Barbarians

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is equally amusing and depressing that we are so "shocked" when natives in the Congo imitate in a small scale what civilized nations have done on a massive scale throughout history.

A U.S. foreign service official recently observed that the rebel rioters in the Congo are "just out for loot, for "personal gain and theft." I, wonder what in the world it is imagines most wars have been fought for, since the first Assyrian dynasty.

Wars are begun for gain, and for nothing else, in almost all cases. Invasion of foreign soil is nothing but theft, "legalized" by the judges of the invading nations, and "sanctified" by the preachers of the bread is gone.

When a rioting bunch of natives slaughters women and children in Stanleyville, it is a "massacre." When a U.S. airplane drops the first atomic bomb that slaughters women and children in Hiroshima, it is — what? Justice? Retribution? Charity? Strategical necessity?

Our capacity for wrongous indignation is nearly limitless. What happened in the Congo was barbarous behavior, but a good case could be made out that the most "civilized" nations in the world have been the most barbarous, in the 20th century and before.

The bloodiest and most devastating wars in history have been fought not by "savages" in Africa but by presumably Christian countries against one another. The most powerful instruments of warfare have been devised and used not by "primitive" peoples but by highly sophisticated, intelligent, educated peoples against one another.

It is precisely the "advanced" countries that have looted, pillaged, exploited and slaughtered "backward" countries, and not the other way around. We have used our superior knowledge for the most inferior motives; and our "education" has enabled us to camouflage our motives as grand and noble ones.

Our indignation at events in the Congo is not pure; it makes us feel good, to be angry at the native rabble who are butchering innocent citizens. Meanwhile, we are creating more and more bombs whose ultimate purpose is to assure that nobody on earth will be an innocent civilian.

Everybody is against other people's wars; other people's atrocities, other people's massacres. But, in truth, there are no "other people." Wet ears are we all of one flesh, but of one mind. And perhaps we will teach us that lesson — for if we cannot all live together, we shall surely die together, in the agonized embrace of involuntary brotherhood.

Mother's Milk Now Available For New Baby

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Children's Hospital reported Monday it has a three-day supply of nursing mother's milk in the refrigerator for four-month-old Alexander Pappas of Brandon.

Alexander is allergic to cow's milk and formula. He was brought to hospital here in October when his mother couldn't feed him, but later returned home.

Wednesday the hospital appealed to nursing mothers to help prevent the 40 ounces of milk Alexander needs each day.

Hospital officials said response has been so good they now have 50 donor mothers. Hospitals in Edmonton have offered to collect milk and fly it to Winnipeg.

The milk is shipped to Brandon each evening by bus.

Alexander is due to be put on a solid food diet in a few months.

Many Famous Canadians, In Different Walks of Life, Died in Year Just Closing

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the nation's best-known poets, Dr. Edwin John (Ned) Pratt, was among famous Canadians who died in 1964.

A native of Western Bay, Nfld., he died in Toronto April 26 at the age of 81, of hardening of the arteries. He had been bed-ridden for a year.

Professor Pratt, who taught English at Victoria College, University of Toronto, for 33 years, was at his best as a narrative poet, and his themes were epic. The fascination the sea held for him is seen in The Roosevelt and the Antinoe, dealing with a celebrated rescue in the Atlantic, and The Titanic. Canadian themes also figured in his work, as in Brebeuf and His Brethren and Towards the Last Spike.

Another prominent death during the year was Henry Larsen, 63, retired RCMP superintendent who was captain of the St. Roch, the first ship to navigate the Northwest Passage in both directions. The St. Roch sailed from west to east 1940-42 and made the return voyage in 1943-44. He died in Vancouver Oct. 22.

Florence (Big Fanny) Storey, 56, leader of the radical Sons of Freedom sect of the Doukhobors, died at Vancouver Sept. 11.

LOSS TO CABINET

Death thinned the ranks of Canada's politicians during the year. John R. Garland, 46, national health minister, collapsed and died aboard a train at Ottawa March 14. Angus MacInnis, 73, founder of the CCF and MP from 1930 to 1957, died at Vancouver March 2. Arthur Slaght, 66, former Liberal MP and prominent lawyer, died at Toronto Jan. 24. Byron Johnson, former Liberal premier of British Columbia, was 73 at his death at Victoria Jan. 12.

The upper chamber lost Senators Gordon Campbell, 65, who died in Toronto Jan. 15; James Turgeon, 84, in Vancouver Feb. 14; Charles Howard, 75, in Sherbrooke, Que., March 25; Arthur Blais, 59, in Vancouver Nov. 10, all Liberals, and Ralph Horner, 80, Conservative, at Saskatoon Dec. 14.

Three sitting MPs died in addition to Mr. Garland. Harry Hay, 62, Conservative member for Saskatoon, died there March 4. Sherwood Rideout, 66, Liberal representing Westmorland, died aboard a train en route from Ottawa to Moncton May 29. Gordon Chamlio, 57, Progressive Conservative for Waterloo South riding died at Galt, Ont., June 27.

Other deaths in the field of politics included Walter Thomson, former Ontario Liberal leader, at the age of 68 in Toronto April 27; William Hughes, 76, former Liberal provincial treasurer, health minister and provincial secretary of Prince Edward Island, at Charlottetown Nov. 11, and Leslie Morris, 69, federal leader of the Communist party, at Toronto Nov. 13.

Supreme Court, at Vancouver Sept. 25, and Mr. Justice Bernard Bissonnette, 67, member of the Quebec Appeal Court for 22 years, at Montreal Nov. 11.

Maj.-Gen. Harry W. Foster, who commanded the 1st and 4th Canadian divisions during the Second World War, died at 63 at Halifax Aug. 6. Other notable military men were Commodore E. Reginald Brock, 72, of the Royal Canadian Navy, at Vancouver Feb. 13; Henry Robson, 68, British VC winner in the First World War and former sergeant-at-arms to the Ontario legislature, at Toronto March 2, and Maj.-Gen. Vast New Mineral Riches In Eastern Canada Disclosed

MONTREAL (CP) — Expanding knowledge of geology coupled with improved exploration methods are disclosing vast new mineral riches in Eastern Canada, a team of mining and geology experts reported here today.

In a symposium tilted the Mineral Renaissance of Eastern Canada at the American Association for the Advancement of Science, panellists reported on potential oil and gas fields and possible new iron and asbestos deposits.

The series of seven reports dealt with Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

W. A. Rolff of Imperial Oil Enterprises Limited in Toronto said 100,000 square miles under the Great Lakes and in shallow Atlantic coastal waters contain sediments indicating oil or natural gas may be found.

The area, parts of it already being explored, is equal in extent to seven land areas explored during the last century with the discovery of more than 20,000,000 barrels of oil and 700,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas in southwestern Ontario and New Brunswick.

P. H. Riordon of Asbestos Corporation in Thetford Mines, Que., noted that asbestos production in Eastern Canada has tripled in the last 20 years with the discovery of 12 new deposits in Quebec, Ontario and Newfoundland.

"There is every likelihood that other large deposits will be discovered in future years," he said.

Discovery of some of the world's richest iron deposits on Baffin Island and the likelihood of developing new fields elsewhere could increase Canada's status as a major iron producer, said Prof. Roger Blais of the University of Montreal.

Dr. W. H. McCartney of the geological survey of Canada said that on the basis of geological formations now known, additional deposits of gold, base metals and uranium are a real possibility.

Economic Chaos Usually Results When Africans Take Over Countries -- Thomson

HAMILTON (CP) — Lord Thomson of Fleet said Monday economic chaos usually results when Africans take over previously white-controlled countries in Africa.

"Wherever this has happened, for instance in Kenya, the white settlers move out, sales go down and there is a great deterioration in the country's economic affairs," the Canadian-born publisher said in an interview after he addressed the Canadian University Press annual conference here.

"When African governments take control there is usually a lack of confidence in the country among business interests outside. Then too, internally, people with the spending power leave as a rule, causing chaos."

He said the only two white governments remaining in Africa, those of Rhodesia and South Africa,—learning lessons from what has happened in other countries—could be expected to pursue a hard line to preserve what they assumed to be their rights.

He sympathized to some extent with the government of Rhodesia, although it closed down his paper African News in Salisbury several months ago.

CASTS NO BLAME

"I can't blame them," he said. "I see no real reason for what is happening there."

The African News, with circulation of about 18,000, is one of about 100 newspapers Lord Thomson owns in Canada, Britain and the United States and Africa.

Lord Thomson said he thought there were "very good African leaders and named Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya as one, despite that country's economic difficulties after African took over.

He told 120 delegates to the meeting of Canadian university newspapers that the old concept of complete press freedom, with accompanying self-imposed responsibility, is not workable in many of the world's new nations.

He said people responsible for the press in many new African countries lack the necessary background and training to control it.

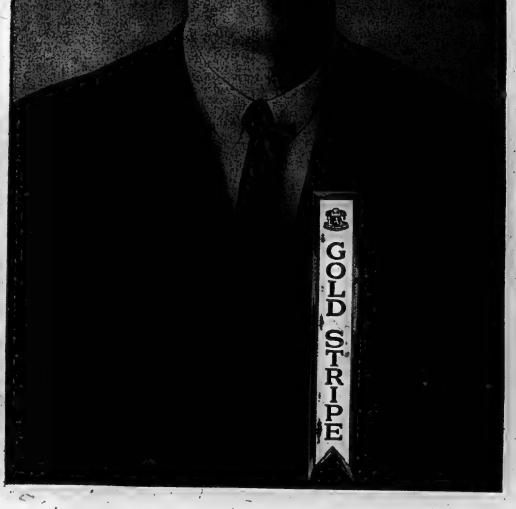
PAPERS IRRESPONSIBLE

This resulted in much unreasonable and irresponsible criticism in local African newspapers of the governments.

"It is more in the interests of democracy to continue to publish under heavy restrictions imposed by governments than to pull out in a huff, as publishers have in the past," he said.

Of his own African newspapers, Lord Thomson said he will continue to publish as long as press censorship is restricted do not become unbearable.

"African politicians are peculiar people," he said. "Unless you have their name in large type on the front page every day, they think you are against them."



Snowmobile Is Recovered

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Searchers recovered a snowmobile from the bottom of Stony Lake, 28 miles northeast here, Monday and police said today they may have to call off the search for Gordon Lesman Haddleay, 40, of Norwood, Ont.

Police in charge of the search since Sunday when Haddleay's snowmobile plunged through the ice, said thin ice and the muddy bottom of the lake were making attempts to find the body treacherous.

Two other men in the vehicle were rescued.

Successful Living

A Malicious Gossip Inadequate Individual

DEAR DORIS — I can sympathize with "Torn Apart," who was the victim of a gossip.

I asked a person for whom I had done some stenographic work (for free), if I could refer prospective employers to him for a reference, which he agreed that I could. I then left his name with several people.

One gentleman telephoned me that I should find someone else to give me a reference as that person had told him I had been in a mental hospital (which is not true.) Sympathetic as the caller was regarding this incident, he still didn't offer me the position.

DORIS CLARK

I realize now, after simmering down, that it's only a person who feels very inadequate in himself that would tear down another person in such a fashion. "T.A." shouldn't feel too badly. — A SYMPATHIZER.

DEAR SYMPATHIZER — Could be that he:

1. Resented the circumstances which made it necessary for him to accept your services gratis.

2. Feared you might discover confidential information about him and aimed to discredit you in advance.

3. Is a victim of delusions.

Take your pick. You guessed right in thinking that he (and any other malicious gossip) just has to be an inadequate individual himself.

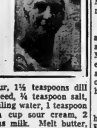
DEAR DORIS — I have a large home with six extra rooms beautifully furnished and I find myself needing a little extra money to pay a few bills. I am a registered nurse but my husband does not wish me to work; says married women working only cause the cost of living to rise.

One thing I was wondering about was if there was a need for a convalescent home or anything of that nature and what authority to approach. Is there any need for rooms for aged without a home? — HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL — In many places, yes. Your public health nursing service, general hospital or family agency, can tell you about the need where you are.

But isn't private duty nursing, when and where you can manage it, the most satisfying answer for a trained nurse? There's hardly a spot in Canada where you would not be welcomed with open arms. Has it ever occurred to your husband that the use of your profession would give you the soul-satisfying boon of self-expression?



I'd hate to think he had any basis for his statement about working women and the cost of living. If it weren't for the married women in the labor force right now we could hardly be getting on with the job of developing Canada as a prosperous nation at all.

DILLY MEAT BALLS

Notes:—1) Save this recipe for everyday winter use for it is a double duty one that may be used as the main meat course with noodles or rice or mashed potatoes. 2) If prepared in advance chill, then reheat in double boiler in a little water.

½ lb. mixed ground beef and veal, one 3-oz. can devilled ham, 1 slice bread, ¼ cup boiling water, ½ cup evaporated milk, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1½ teaspoons green onion flakes, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon allspice, 2 tablespoons water.

Four boiling water over bread to soak it. Add all remaining ingredients.

Heat 2 tablespoons butter in large frying pan over medium high heat. Shape meat into about 30 balls and brown in hot butter on all sides, dropping from greased spoon. If desired impale each on cocktail pick. Guests dip them into Dilly Sauce (or sauce may be poured over hot meat balls): One tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1½ teaspoons dill seed or weed, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon catsup, ¾ cup sour cream, 2 tablespoons milk. Melt butter, add dill seed or weed, salt and flour. Stir to blend; stir in boiling water until thick. Let cook 1 or 2 minutes, stirring. Add catsup. Just before serving add sour cream and milk and reheat.

CORNED BEEF IN BLANKETS

To enough pastry for a 2-crust pie add ¼ cup grated old Cheddar cheese. Roll out ⅛" thick into large square. Cut into 10 or 12 squares. On each, place diagonally, a strip of chilled corned beef (approximately size of a cooked sausage.) Bring points together and overlap and seal. Brush with melted butter or beaten egg yolk. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Serve piping hot.

COLD LIMA BEAN SALAD

To serve 10 or 12 buy 3 packages fresh frozen green limas and bring to boil in ¾ cup salted boiling water. Cook until barely tender. Drain. Chill. Add garlic French Dressing to coat all beans and marinate at least 4 hours. Serve on bed of delicate lettuce. Exceptionally popular served well chilled.

Note:—See Thursday for recipes for Wassail Bowl and Eggnog. You will need two 48-oz. cans apple juice (to serve 18), 2 lemons and whole spices for Wassail; for Eggnog you will need 6 eggs, cream, milk and some whipping cream to serve 14.

Adoptions Increasing But Still More Children Available Than Parents

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"You know, Spence, just say old parents will do," said a small boy to the adoption worker who was trying to find a home for him.

His chances are better than they would have been a few years ago.

Across Canada, adoptions are increasing, though there are still more children available than parents willing to adopt them.

Some agencies report they could place more babies if they had them. They are successfully stepping up efforts to find homes for the difficult-to-place child.

Orphanages have been emptied in most provinces. Laws are gradually loosening.

Questioned in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, most adoption experts ascribed the improvements to the spiraling effects of broadening public attitudes and efforts by agencies to tell the public about adoptions, available children.

"Thirty years ago there was little adoption in Ontario or anywhere else," says L. S. Richardson, director of the Toronto-politan Toronto Children's Aid Society. "It had to be sold."

In Ontario the number of adoptions a year has tripled since 1943. It was 1,783 then. Twenty years later, of 9,502 permanent wards of children's aid societies, 5,493 were adopted.

NOT ALL ADOPTABLE

Of 2,076 wards in Alberta, 1,153 were adopted in 1963. And the Newfoundland figure was 120 out of 250. Both provinces expect to increase the percentage in 1964.

As examination of Saskatchewan figures shows why it is unlikely that all wards in any province will ever be adopted. Of 1,081 permanent wards, 522 were adopted, 193 were old enough to be on their own, and 207 were in institutions because of physical, mental or emotional problems. Not every child is adoptable.

Most of the children who remain fit into one of several categories of the difficult-to-place. As the lies of adoption have gained general acceptance, more attention has been focussed on these children. Their cases usually take special efforts, but agencies report they now are bringing some children who would have been considered beyond hope as recently as four or five years ago.

Among them are older children, and in the context of adoptions, a child begins to be old at about 18 months. "Every day after six months they are more difficult to place," said one social worker.

The categories of children few people want to adopt also include the mentally or physically handicapped, the non-white and the child of mixed racial strain.

In every group, boys are harder to place than girls.

MOSTLY ILLEGITIMATE

In every province, 90 per cent or more of adopted children are illegitimate. Orphans and abandoned children are a rarity. Except in Quebec, most of the rest are from homes where they were abused or neglected. In Quebec, legitimate children are not legally adoptable but for a few exceptional cases.

Children who have been taken from their natural parents or who have lived in several foster homes present special problems. Most have memories which are painful in a number of ways.

"With any older child you have to accept them," says Barbara Spence, a Toronto CAS worker who specializes in working with these children. "He isn't going to believe this new home will last—he's really from Missouri."

The child of mixed race is generally the most difficult to place—although of course a youngster of this sort who is also physically or mentally disabled has an even greater problem. The white-Negro mixture heads the list in some regions. White-Indian in others.

In Montreal and Toronto, private groups are working with adoption agencies to promote acceptance of mixed-race children. Members of Montreal's Open Door Society talk to community groups and arrange for parents who have already adopted such children to talk to those considering the idea.

A Montreal Children's Service Centre official said that in 1958 eight mixed-race children were placed. From 1960 to 1963 about 30 were placed each year.

WHITES ADOPT NEGROES

One reason why Negro children are sometimes difficult to place is that among the relatively small number of Negro families in Canada, there is a larger-than-average proportion of economically unable to adopt.

Ward Markle, executive director of the Catholic Children's Aid Society in Toronto, reports that this year for the first time the agency placed six Negro children with white families. And the Metro Toronto CAS placed 22 Negro or part-Negro children and 35 Indian or Oriental children, mostly with white parents.

"The important thing is for a child to have parents," says Ronald Arellano of the Toronto Catholic Children's Aid Society. "If he has problems, they will be worse if he has no parents."

This reflects a certain change in the attitude of social agencies as well as of the public.

"We used to feel that a parent should get something pretty good in adoption," says Miss M. E. Battel of the Saskatchewan Welfare Division branch. "We pretty well decided ourselves which were the best child for us. But now we're just about the children—handicapped and mixed race too—before the parents. We're letting them make their own decisions. It's still difficult in some cases but we're doing quite well."

Laurie Charleson, adoption consultant for the Ontario department of public welfare, says it has placed children of every type of disability.

"We'll go on and on trying to place each child. We don't give up easily. I believe there is a home in Ontario for every adoptable child."

Tomorrow: Adoption laws becoming more liberal.

A.N. and A.F. Ladies' Aux. Holds Meet

The December meeting of the A.N. & A.F. Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 46, was held Monday evening in the Unit 201 auditorium, with Comrade president Buckley presiding.

Three new members were initiated. The charter was draped and two minutes' silence was observed in honor of Comrade Charlotte Clarke, who passed away on December 17. The sick committee chairman Comrade Curnoch asked you to Comrade Terry Curnoch, who visited the late Comrade in the hospital daily and taking little treats.

The secretary, Comrade Gannon read the lengthy minutes of the Dominion Command convention, held in Saskatoon. Numerous Christmas cards were read and acknowledged which have been received from various auxiliaries. Notice was received that the Provincial Command will meet in London the last of January, and there are at least 12 members planning on the trip.

The entertainment chairman, Comrade Fitzgerald informed everyone that the Unit (201) is planning its annual New Year's Eve party. Help will be needed on the 31st of December from 11.00 a.m. on to prepare the food which Comrade Draup and her assistants will set up for the midnight festivities.

President Comrade Buckley wished everyone a Merry Christmas, and, the meeting was adjourned until January when the election of officers takes place.

Refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed with each wishing the other a happy holiday and all the best in the new year.

THOMASBURG—The Christmas meeting of the Evening Group of Thomasburg U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Seekings recently with ten members present.

The leader, Mrs. Ruth Seekings, opened the meeting in the usual manner and the devotional was in charge of Mrs. Margaret Coulson who presented the Christmas story in a most interesting manner. She showed colored pictures of the various stages of events as read from the Scripture and this was interspersed with the singing of Christmas carols.

A number of announcements were made and several items of correspondence and "Thank You" notes were read.

Refreshments were served, during which time appropriate Christmas background music was provided.

Ann Landers

Daughter's Loose Spending Caused by Helpful Parents

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last February our 22-year-old daughter began to work. She opened up charge accounts all over town the day she received her first pay cheque.

She agreed to pay us $7.50 a week for room and board but that lasted only two weeks. From then on it was nothing but excuses.

This is the record since February: We've had to make eight cheques good at the bank. She borrowed $500 from us in July when the creditors threatened to garnishee her salary. She owes $400 to dress shops and shoe stores. She refuses to answer a telephone call because she is dodging collectors.

We are honorable people and tried to raise our daughter right. What's the matter with this girl, anyway? Is she immature or does she have an inborn flaw in her character? — PUZZLED.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR PUZZLED — Your daughter was not born irresponsible. She got that way because her parents were always on hand to pull her chestnuts out of the fire — and they are still doing it.

You can expect no change until your daughter understands, once and for all, that she is strictly on her own — sink or swim. If she sinks a time or two, and nobody throws her a life-saver, she'll swim.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Three years ago we gave our daughter a wedding every girl dreams of. We invited all our relatives and friends even though we had to go deeply into debt. We are happy we did and we would do it again.

Now our son is getting married. The girl's parents are in a financial category equal to ours. We have been informed there will be 100 guests at the wedding and we can invite 50. Our family members will over 200. We would need 300 invitations to do it half-decent.

These people refuse to go into debt for their daughter's wedding. Yesterday, we were told if we want to invite 300 people, O.K., but that we'll have to pay the difference. My husband almost had a stroke. We are still paying off our daughter's wedding.

Isn't it unfair of them to have a wedding that will make people mad at us for life? Maybe a word from you will knock some sense into their heads. — ANOTHER ANN.

• • •

DEAR ANN — Never mind about their heads. Your head worries me. Everyone knows the bride's parents decide on the number of guests who will be invited to the wedding. Anyone who would be mad at you because he was not invited doesn't know much. I admire the girl's parents for refusing to hook their eyeballs to pot on a fancy bash which they can't afford.

Many Marriage Bureaus Are 'Just Rackets' Claim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Many marriage bureaus are "just rackets" and the government should exercise some control in this field, says Lin Brown, a graduate social worker who opened a bureau here in 1956.

Mrs. Brown says some operators "accept any clients, even if they know there is no chance of doing anything for them, and these clients have to pay immediately for their names to go on file."

The only way to stop such practices, she maintains, is to bring in a measure of municipal or provincial government control. She also says operators should be professionally trained in social work or psychology.

Women constitute the largest portion of her clientele and most are in the 41-50 age bracket, Mrs. Brown says.

"Many professional women—doctors, lawyers, social workers—approach me, but I usually do not keep their names on file because I get so few applications from the type of man they would be wanting to meet. Most women are looking for a man older than themselves, with as good an or better education."

Only four per cent of her male applicants have post-graduate or professional training and these "are usually men who have buried their mates in books for years, then wake up to find they are in their 30s and all their friends' children married."

Among men, she gets most applications from farmers—"A woman wants to marry a farmer can have a choice of 15 introductions."

Patients at Belleville General Hospital were remembered at Christmas by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary when six members visited the hospital on Christmas morning and presented gifts and greetings to each patient.

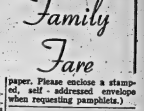
ELECTRIC NEWS

Dear Susanna: I am an executive connected with an appliance parts manufacturer, and since a large number of homes have as many as three or more small electrical appliances right in the kitchen, here are three New Years safety-first resolutions that I think would be worthwhile printing for your many faithful readers.

They are suggestions for at-home safety — the type of thing about which we all need reminding from time to time:



1. Keep electric appliances as far away from the sink as possible.

2. If your appliances are immersible, be sure to disconnect them before washing.

3. Disconnect all appliances when not in use — first unplug at the wall, then at the appliance. — M. Abrahams

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Holstein Club was held in Baxter's Hall, Bloomfield on the afternoon of December 8th, with approximately 60 breeders in attendance. The guest speaker was Mr. D. S. Dunton, Brampton, who spoke on "His Experience as a Holstein Breeder". Mr. Dunton was well qualified to speak on this topic being a master breeder, nationally recognized judge of Holstein cattle and a breeder for more than 40 years. In his remarks Mr. Dunton gave many suggestions which would be of help to young breeders in the business. He emphasized the importance that the dairy heifer should be well grown, but not maintained in too high condition. Mr. Dunton suggested that Holstein breeders should strive to develop mature cows that are in the 1400 to 1650-pound weight range and in his closing remarks he urged that breeders should advertise their cattle at every opportunity.

The next speaker on the program, was Mr. Harold McCaul, Vice-President, Holstein Friesian Association of Canada, who brought greetings from the parent Association and reported on the years business. Mr. McCaul also presented R.O.P. Herd Average Certificates to County winners. In the section for herds with at least 20 records the winner was James Alexander, Hillier with a B.C.A. for milk of 132; B.C.A. for fat of 130 and a composite of 131. N. Foster, Bloomfield with a B.C.A. for milk of 155; B.C.A. for fat of 146 and a composite of 150.5. The runner-up was T. H. Kerr and Son, Picton with a B.C.A. for milk of 133; B.C.A. for fat of 132 and a composite of 133.5.

G. E. Nelson, Holstein-Friesian Association Fieldman also spoke on the program and lead a discussion on suggested changes in show classifications. Mr. Hubert Townsend, President of the Club was in charge of the meeting.

The remainder of the competitors in the competition in alphabetical order were as follows: Douglas Brack, R. R. 7, Belleville; Bert Eggleton, R. R. 2, Hillier; Henry Leavens, Bloomfield; Mel Jewitt, R. R. 10, Picton; Alex Mann, R. R. 10, Picton; Don Thompson, R. R. 2, Picton; George Young, R. R. 10, Picton. Yields were determined on a basis of 15 per cent moisture.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Prince Edward Soil and Crop Improvement Association was held in the Bloomfield Town Hall on the afternoon of Tuesday, December 15th, with a good attendance. The speakers on the program were Jack Hagarty, Soils and Crops Specialist, Brighton; Grover Smith, Weed and Seed Specialist, Brighton and Byron Beeler, Fruit and Vegetable Extension Specialist. A number of co-operators also commented on projects that they had undertaken. Jack Hagarty emphasized the importance of the corn crop in Prince Edward County and stressed the use of early hybrids suited to the area, early planting, good cultivation, and the use of fertilizer according to soil tests and planting at recommended seeding. Jack also commented on the direct seeding of forage and pointed out that direct seeded forages could give greater returns in the first year than a crop of oats.

Grover Smith discussed the Barberry and Buckthorn control program and weed control in general. He also mentioned the use of Atrazine in an oil water emulsion which will be recommended for weed control in corn in 1965.

Byron Beeler spoke on the fertilizer trials on peas at Fowmiles Farms and the Regional potato trials on the farm of Clarence Vanclief, Ameliasburg. Others who spoke on the program were E. F. Edson, Department of Lands and Forests, Napanee, and Fred Hope, County Weed Inspector.

Seymour Hamilton, director, Ontario Seed Growers' Association, spoke briefly and presented a long service certificate to Howard Anderson, R. R. 2, Picton, in recognition of his many years as a successful seed grower. Other growers who were recognized were S. W. Da~ford, Consecon, and the late Harry Redner, Ameliasburg.

The members of the Prince Edward 4-H Grain Club Team, Donald Welbanks, R. R. 8, Picton, and John Thompson, R. R. 2, Picton, who was first place at the 4-H Inter-Club Competitions at Guelph on October 16th, were introduced to the meeting by Ivan Bell, Agricultural Representative, and presented with travelling alarm clocks, by the Association President, Holmes Matchie.

Congolese Poorer For Independence

With virtually no preparation. The Congo was catapulted into independence four years ago. Results have been sometimes comic, often disastrous. An American correspondent, who visited The Congo before independence and again four years later, describes the country's efforts at survival in this second of three articles.

By SAUL PETT

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Like so much else in The Congo, there is a primitive religious sect in the east which invites both smiles and tears.

It is called the Kitawala sect, whose idea of the genesis goes something like this. In the beginning, God had three sons and a daughter. They were all color less until God grew bored with this. So he gave the sons the colors of the rainbow to choose from.

The eldest chose to be white and was given a rifle and went to live in Europe. The second son became tan (Arab) and went to live in Zanzibar with a munition-loading gun not as good as the rifle. There was nothing left for the third son and he became black and went to live in The Congo armed only with a bow and arrow.

This son became God's favorite and was given the daughter in marriage and they had many children, one of whom was called America. America was carried off into slavery by the son in Europe to a distant land where he invented the automobile, the refrigerator and the transistor radio.

On judgment day, America will return to The Congo and give all the descendants of his parents automobiles, refrigerators, radio and all the other good things he invented.

Judgment day still eludes The Congo. For centuries The Congo was allowed to sleep until the white man came and grew rich here. Then, after 80 years, The Congo suddenly became independent and found itself rushing into the 20th century with scarcely enough preparation for the 18th.

BETWEEN TWO WORLDS

Thus, a black lady seeks to protect a fetal rat with both an antiseptic bandage and a witty British term a witch doctor. She seeks the best of two possible worlds and finds neither.

Thus, the average black man, poorer now after four years of disillusioning independence still walks while the white man rides, still lives in a shack or mud hut while the white man enjoys a big house. The black man has been known to appraise whites and ask for their "intelligence pills" as the only sure key to the white world.

Thus, at a recent meeting of the national cabinet, one of the ministers was telling about, his trip to New York. He told of a heavy rain one day in Manhattan, of the cab problem and the traffic. It took him 40 minutes to cover 700 yards. "Really!" Said the cabinet member of his left. "Was it raining?"

The Belgians gave many Congolese the equivalent of a fifth grade education very few got and paid them better than most African under colonial rule. The Belgians put their rich colony no preparation for independence. When it came suddenly four years ago, there was not a single Congolese college graduate, not one person or lawyer or engineer or military officer or man with any government training higher than that of a postal clerk.

Now, there is a handful of graduates in these fields in a country with a population of 15,000,000 and a size 80 times the area of Belgium. It is number near enough. And so, four years after independence, The Congo has no sense of being a nation, no central government or army which can function without foreign help. And it is still plagued by the feuds and dialects of more than 200 tribes.

BROUGHT NO JOYS

For the average Congolese, four years of independence have meant almost four years of bloody genocide in wars of secession, tribal rebellion, riotous graft and ineptitude in government, fewer jobs, fewer medical facilities, fewer goods and galloping inflation.

The rich copper mines, the palm oil, rubber and coffee plantations still are owned by the Belgians and other Europeans. Most of the stores and small businesses are still owned by Greeks, Indians and Portuguese. Most of The Congo's white population has fled but those still here because of the profits continue to do well financially.

Among black men, only the 50,000 Congolese who have replaced the Belgians in government jobs are doing better economically. But the black bourgeoisie is still largely untrained with the result that the government of The Congo, by Western standards, is often government by slapstick.

And now a new element has appeared in The Congo. It is the cold war.

Americans are here with their refrigerators and transistors and planes but judgment day remains far off. The United States supports the Moise Tshombe government as the only one available with a chance of governing.

The Chinese are evidently here, too. Their guns and propaganda have shown up among the rebels. If they increase their aid, the United States may be forced to increase its involvement.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was a sports year of running and jumping, records smashing, boobs and champs and chumps. It had its hassles, heartbreaks and head-rolling. It produced gold, glory and goofs, heroes and heroines.

The mighty Kelso was named the Horse of the Year for the fifth time. Canada's "Northern Dalhesi" was named our top athlete, winning the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness before injury retired him.

Seven major baseball league managers saw their heads roll in one of the greatest upsets of the year. Yogi Berra was fired and Johnny Keane hired before the world series started. Warren Spahn was chopped by the Braves and joined Yogi in the New York Mets janitor quarters.

Also in the running Bob Hayes equalled his own world 100-yard record of 9.1. Our Harry Jerome made a magnificent comeback and a bronze medal, but Bruce Kidd was "run out." Bill Crothers was tops, bringing home an Olympic silver medal.

Canada's four-man bobsled team surprised the world by winning our lone gold medal at the Olympics without benefit of a home country course. Our national hockey team finished fourth in the Olympics by virtue of a strange points set-up. Doug Rogers brought home a silver medal in judo.

Petra Burka was the Canadian figure skating championship finishing third at the Olympics and was named Canada's top female athlete. Canadians' Bobby Rousseau scored five goals in a 9-4 win over Detroit. Russia's Lidia Skoblikova won four Olympics gold medals. Tom O'Hara ran the fastest indoor mile, 3:58.8.

In boxing's biggest upset Cassius Clay took the world heavyweight crown from Sonny Liston who failed to come out in the eighth. Later Clay was deprived of his crown by the WBA.

FORMER CATCHER DIES

SEATTLE (AP)—Thomas J. Young, 62, once a battery mate of pitcher Satchel Paige, died here Sunday. Young came to Seattle in 1942 from Kansas City, where he was a catcher for the Monarchs baseball team and a teammate of Paige.

EXPECTATIONS NOT MET

TOKYO (AP) — Only 80,813 foreigners, including athletes and officials, visited Japan in September and October for the Olympic Games, the Japanese immigration office said Monday. This was 30 per cent under immigration office estimates, and less than half what tourist officials expected. A total of 9,199 athletes, officials and reporters were issued special credentials. The total of visitors to Japan was 40 per cent above 1963.

Lose To Czechs 5-3 * * * * * Disallowed Goal

Canada Rally Too Little, Too Late

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—Just as he did in the 1964 Winter Olympic Games, Josip Vladimir Nadrchal of Czechoslovakia turned back Canada's national hockey team Monday night and just about ended the Canadian chances of winning the international tournament here.

Behind 4-1 after two periods of lacklustre play, the Canadians broke loose for a pair of goals early in the third period and might have salvaged a tie if a goal in the last 30 seconds had not been disallowed.

Nadrchal, a 27-year-old office clerk who has faced Canadian teams four times in Olympic and world competition, made a total of 33 saves, most of them in a wild third period.

The Canadians outshot the Czechs 36-28, and in the last period alone the margin was 15-8, but Nadrchal was able to smother the fire.

As Canadian coach Gordon Simpson noted, the Canadians played pretty well the first two periods. Czechoslovakia led 1-0 at the end of the first and scored three times in the first 11 minutes of the second period for a 4-0 margin before the Canadian line finally broke the scoring column less than three minutes before the period ended.

Jaroslav Jirik, Jan Klapac, Josef Golonka and Jiri Holik scored the Czech goals while Reg Abbott, Ross Parke and Gary Dineen tallied for Canada.

Russia, the favorite after winning its first two starts 8-3 over Czechoslovakia and 5-3 over Canada, can clinch the Walter Brown Memorial Trophy tonight with a win over the Czechs.

The tournament is a double round-robin affair. In other words, the three countries in it meet each other twice. The Canadians, with two defeats, haven't much of a chance now although they still get another try against the Russians and Czechs.

The standing:

	W	L	T	F	A	Pt
Russia	2	0	0	13	6	4
Czechs.	1	1	0	6	11	2
Canada	0	2	0	6	9	0

Canada plays Russia Wednesday night and coach Simpson was non-committal about his team's chances although the losing effort against Russia Sunday night was nothing to be ashamed of.

It's beginning to dawn on a lot of people that the current national team is about the strongest ever assembled by the Soviet Union with the cream of the crop still left from the world and Olympic championship clubs of 1963 and 1964.

"I just can't say how we'll do against the Russians," Simpson said. "We could give them a fight, but as for winning I don't know."

Simpson was more vocal when asked to discuss the loss to the Czechs.

LIKES COMEBACK

"I was amazed by our third-period comeback, but I also was disappointed by our lack of style the first two periods."

Simpson contended that "Czechoslovakia is a typical European team."

"Their play looks good but it isn't effective. I think we will beat them the next time."

Maybe so, but the Czechs have a habit of upsetting Canadian teams.

In the 1964 Olympics, Nadrchal made 34 stops and Holik scored what proved to be the winning goal as the Czechs defeated the Canadian nationals 3-2. It was a costly defeat, for the Canadians wound up in fourth place, the lowest ever by a Canadian team in international competition.

In 1959, at the Prague world tournament, Nadrchal made 44 saves as Czechoslovakia defeated Canada 5-3 to hand the Canadians their only loss of the tournament. But Canada won the world crown on a better goal average than the Russians.

Has Problems

Imlach Shuffles Deflated Leafs

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP) — It hasn't been a quiet holiday for Toronto Maple Leafs. And the turmoil and shouting hasn't exactly added up to a seasonal anthem in praise of the Stanley Cup champions.

Not that all the customers were unsatisfied. The Leafs sent a Chicago crowd home happy on Christmas night when they blew a two-goal lead and settled for a 3-3 tie with the Black Hawks, the hottest team in the National Hockey League.

The Hawks declined to enter into the spirit of things when the teams met again in Toronto Saturday, outlumping the Leafs decisively on their way to a 5-3 victory.

The gallery reserved its loudest applause on that occasion for Bobby Hull when the Hawks' Golden Jet closed out the scoring with his 29th goal of the year. But a lusty voice was raised on the Leafs' behalf Sunday.

It belonged to general manager Punch Imlach, who summoned his players from their belated Christmas festivities for an off - day workout and preceded it with what was ostensibly a private meeting in their dressing room.

NO COMPLAINTS

Reporters, who have deplored their occasional exclusion from the sanctum at Maple Leaf Gardens, had no grounds for complaint this time. Imlach was clearly audible at a considerable distance as he dealt with the Leafs' shortcomings.

Rinkside observers of the scrimmage that followed noted drastic realignments of personnel. The defence pairings of the last six years — Carl Brewer and Bobby Baun, Tim Horton and Allan Stanley—were split with Brewer and Horton switching partners.

And the forward lines were revamped to approximate the lineup that won the Stanley Cup last spring. Bob Pulford centred Ron Stewart and Eddie Shack. Dave Keon was back between George Armstrong and Don McKenney. And rookie Ron Ellis, replacing the injured Andy Bathgate, was on right wing with Red Kelly and Frank Mahovlich.

The reshuffled Leafs had a friendlier reception Monday, when 8,250 minor hockey players, guests of a large grocery firm, watched their workout and cheered them to the echo. But things may be different today.

This time the visitors are Rochester Americans, Leafs' top farm club and leaders of the American Hockey League's Western Division. The Americans, who clobbered Quebec Aces, the Eastern Division leaders, in Rochester Sunday night, are just dropping in on their way to Buffalo, where they play the Bisons Wednesday.

There were reports that Imlach might persuade them to put on their skates for a friendly session with the fourth-place Leafs. And there were further reports that one or two of them—defenceman Duane Rupp and centre Pete Stemkowski—were among the most prominently mentioned — might be talked into prolonging their stay.

That would give them a chance to meet Montreal Canadiens when the first - place club comes to call at the Gardens Wednesday night. And it would give the Buffalo fans a look at one or two deflated Stanley Cup champions.

'A's' To Stay In Kansas

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The long - simmering feud between Charles O. Finley and city officials over a stadium lease for Kansas City Athletics ended Monday in smiles, handshakes and a promise by Finley to keep the American League club here for at least three more years.

After a two-hour closed session with Mayor Ilus Davis and city council, Finley said it marked the beginning of a new era in relations between the city and the baseball club.

City officials promised to try for a goal of 5,000 season ticket sales. Last season the club sold only 2,019 before the season opened.

Finley, who tried unsuccessfully to move the club, filed suit against the city last May. He wants the abolishment of a clause in the lease which would permit him to move the club if the annual attendance fell below 850,000.

It was dismissed by Court Dec. 9, but Finley's attorneys filed motions for a new trial and to set aside the judicial order dismissing the case.

Finley announced on a radio panel show Sunday night that he is dropping the suit and adopting the plan to stay in Kansas City for the remaining three years of his lease.

The Athletics, consistently in the cellar in the 10 years they have been in Kansas City, had an attendance of 642,478 last season. This was about 6,800 better than the poorest season for attendance in 1962.

Third Year in Row

The 47-year-old Burlington, Ont., golfer tied for the No. 1 ranking in 1961. A member of the Mississauga Golf Club, Weslock was a member of the world amateur championship team, the only Canadian amateur to be selected in the team five times, was first in Ontario Willingdon Cup trials with a 279 and was runner-up in the Ontario amateur golf championship.

Other golfers ranked by the association are Gary Cowan, 25, of Kitchener; Paul Williams, 22, Burlington; Ken Bowles, 36, Toronto; Mike Whitney, 21, of Kitchener; Ken Thorpe, 36, Toronto; Bill Morland, 34, North Bay; Brian Wilcox, 21 Thornhill; Stu Handley, 19, Brampton, and Ernie Bentley, 41, Toronto.

It was the third year in a row that Cowan ranked second behind Weslock. Cowan also was a member of the world amateur championship team and a Willingdon Cup member.

SCORED 823

Cowan was a member of the world amateur championship team and second in Willingdon Cup trials with a 282. He placed second among the amateurs in the Ontario Open tournament and fourth in over-all competition with a 214. He was second in the Ontario amateur qualifying round with a 68.

None of the other golfers ranked this year won the association's top 10 in 1963.

Slipping Leafs 7 Points Off Pace

Habs Hold Lead

MONTREAL (CP) — Though they missed out on a banquet or two, Chicago Black Hawks and Bobby Hull are still eating high off the hog in the National Hockey League.

Weekly NHL statistics released today show the Hawks and their scoring-machine left-winger Bobby keep their weight up even when they have to set another place at the table.

The Hawks naturally want victories, not sawoffs, and Hull would rather score than contribute to somebody else's goal. But a tie is far better than a loss and an assist always beats a zero effort.

By this not-quite-a-banquet standard, the Hawks are doing all right.

Chicago extended its undefeated streak to 10 games in last week's action, salvaging a tie when Toronto Maple Leafs snapped the Hawks run of wins at seven straight games.

Hull was held to a single goal in three games but picked up five assists to bring his point total to a fabulous 50 in 31 games.

At his current pace—which includes 29 goals—not only is Hull in a good position to break the 50-goal barrier but also stands a good chance of becoming the first NHL player to score 100 points.

Hull's individual efforts aside, Montreal Canadiens proved themselves equal to the runner-up Hawks as treachermen and maintained their two-point lead atop the NHL standings with a similar week's effort—two wins and a tie.

LEAFS SLIP BACK

The Canadiens have 39 points while the Hawks, with 37, hold a two-point margin over third-place Detroit Red Wings. The Maple Leafs slipped seven points off the pace and are fourth with 32.

New York Rangers are fifth with 29 while Boston Bruins, who managed one victory last week, their seventh of the season, remain mired in the cellar with 18 points.

Stan Mikita of the Hawks, the runner-up individual scorer, has almost as much of a lead over third-place Norm Ullman of Detroit as Hull holds over him.

The Chicago centre has 39 points, including a league-leading 27 assists. Ullman is third in the scoring race with 31 points followed by Claude Provost of Montreal with 30 and Phil Esposito of Chicago with 29.

Andy Bathgate of Toronto, out with a broken thumb, and Gordie Howe of Detroit are tied in sixth place with 26 points each.

Charlie Hodge of Montreal has taken the lead in the goaltenders' battle. The Canadiens have 74 goals against, four fewer than Detroit netminder Roger Crozier.

"Hot" Spurs Win Sixth Straight

LONDON (Reuters)—Tottenham Hotspur, the glamorous London club that has fallen on comparatively lean times in recent seasons, looks as if it is on the march again.

A 2-1 victory Saturday on Nottingham Forest's ground was Tottenham's sixth straight and hoisted it to fourth place in the English League's first division. It was also Spurs' first road win of the season.

A heartening point about Saturday's victory was that the winning goal was scored by Alan Gilzean, the centre forward for whom Spurs paid Dundee £72,500 a fortnight ago to add bite to their attack.

The London club hit its highest peak four years ago when it became the first club in 64 years to notch the double of league championship and Football Association Cup in one season. The following season it again won the cup, and finished third in the league.

DROPPED TO FOURTH

In 1962-63, it was second in the league, but there were signs that it was slipping. Last season it was fourth—the lowest position it had filled in the final league table for five seasons. In the cup, it succumbed to fellow Londoners, Chelsea.

This season, if Gilzean can consistently reproduce the form he showed with Dundee, a new day of triumph may dawn for the Spurs.

They have fine forwards in Jimmy Greaves, Jimmy Robertson and Cliff Jones, and Gilzean could provide the touch needed to galvanize the front line into a formidable scoring machine.

Awarded Lou Marsh Trophy

Oarsmen Given Top Honors

TORONTO (CP) — Roger Jackson and George Hungerford may never row again as a pair-oared team, but they're still reaping awards for their moment of glory last October at Tokyo.

The two University of British Columbia students, surprise winners of a gold medal in rowing pairs at the Olympics, were named today as co-winners of the Lou Marsh Trophy.

The award, in memory of the late Lou E. Marsh, a former sports editor of the Toronto Star, is presented annually to Canada's top athlete—amateur or professional, male or female.

Judges are five Toronto sportsmen who make up a committee headed by Harry (Red) Foster of Toronto.

Also ranking high with the committee were Bill Crothers, last year's winner and a silver medallist in the Olympic 800 metres; Canada's four-man bobsled team which won a gold medal at the winter Olympics; jockey Ron Turcotte and Doug Rogers of Toronto, Olympic silver medallist in heavyweight judo.

CAREER MAY END

Hungerford and Jackson, two stars from Canada's eight-oared crew who were the most likely Olympic winners, may have to end their short careers as a team, however, because Jackson can't afford to go on. "It's simple," says Hungerford. "Roger hasn't a bean in his name. That means he'll probably have to start working and that will be the end of rowing."

Hungerford, from Vancouver, is an inspiring lawyer in the fourth year of an arts course. Jackson, a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, is studying at UBC for a master's degree in physical education.

If they can stay together, and can afford to make the trip, the boys will take part in the Henley Royal Regatta next summer at London, England.

ROOKIE HONORED

NEW YORK (AP)—Golf Digest magazine Monday named R. H. Sikes, 24-year-old Arkansas player, as golf Rookie of the Year. Sikes, who did not join the pro circuit until June this year so he could finish spring semester studies at the University of Arkansas, won more than $23,000 for 23rd place among PGA money winners. He won the Sahara Open at Las Vegas in October.

Varsity Defeats Welshmen

LLANELLY, Wales (CP)—University of Toronto's touring rugger Blues dumped University College Cardiff 12-3 Monday in hitter Canadian-type weather that cancelled every other scheduled sporting event in Wales.

"We had the weather going for us," was the smiling comment of Paul Wilson, who starred for the Canadians by notching six points.

Wilson, English - born centre who moved to Toronto four years ago, scored on a penalty kick in the first half, which ended with the teams tied 3-3.

Wilson, English - born centre who moved to Toronto four years ago, scored on a penalty kick in the first half, which ended with the teams tied 3-3. Paul Tarleton was also scored on a penalty boot.

MAKE BEST SHOWING

The Canadians, in the best performance so far of their six-game British tour, followed up with three tries in the second half.

Jim McElroy, winger from Toronto, was first across the line, followed by Gus Sinclair, 22-year-old Ont., and Wilson.

The game was fast and open on rock-hard frozen ground. Welsh officials in other parts of Wales, hard hit by storms considered conditions too tough for play.

The Blues have won two matches and lost two in Britain. They move on to Scotland, playing in Edinburgh Thursday.

Blanks Blackburn Rovers 2-0

Leeds Joins Leadership

LONDON (Reuters) — Leeds United skated to join leadership on points in the English League's first division soccer standings with a 2-0 road victory over Blackburn Rovers Monday night.

It grabbed both goals in a two-minute spell on an icy pitch to join Manchester United with 37 points at the top.

Snow and ice caused 14 of the 46 scheduled English League matches to be postponed.

While Leeds was making up for dropping a home point to Blackburn Saturday, Burnley (1-0 at Bulham) and Tottenham Hotspur (4-0 at home to Nottingham Forest) both took their second victories of the weekend.

Without a manager, Fulham hit trouble Monday night. Centre half Bobby Keetch was sent off in the 65th minute against Burnley.

Tottenham's biggest crowd of the season, 56,097, saw its Alan Gilzean score the fourth goal in Spurs' 4-0 win over Nottingham Forest. It was Gilzean's first home goal since he joined the club from Dundee of the Scottish League.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Sid Abel, Detroit Red Wing manager-coach, bought me a very good point in practice the other day regarding forechecking.

Anytime you go deep as you're forechecking and your opponent tries to freeze the puck in the corner of their zone, Sid stressed the point to let him freeze it.

If you're alone and there are two of them, and you're poking away at it, trying to get it free, you're definitely at a disadvantage.

Let him freeze it and take your chances on the faceoff. If they're shorthanded at the time, nine times out of ten he's going to throw it down the length of the ice and you have to skate backwards.

If the sides are even, you've got it in their zone, by forcing the faceoff, you can put the pressure on them.

Abel also had a word of warning about the drop pass. He warned that the only time this manoeuvre is guaranteed 100 per cent is when you have your body between the player ahead and the fellow you're dropping it to.

Then the opposing player has to go around you which gives the man you're dropping it to plenty of time to get a shot away.

Otherwise the danger of a drop pass is that an opponent will come through to pick it up. The momentum of your team is the other way.

If someone intercepts it, you either have to stop or make a quick turn. Or if somebody interferes with you just a little, so that you have to go around him, you're out of the play. You're giving them a golden opportunity for a breakaway.

That's like the situation when Bruce MacGregor scored a goal against Toronto in a game at Detroit earlier this season.

The whole traffic was towards our net. The last Toronto man back tried to get a fancy pass away. Bruce plucked it from him, had only Johnny Bower to beat, and he did.

Top Stars Will Head Indoor Meet

TORONTO (CP)—Two Olympic gold medal winners will headline the indoor track meet Maple Leaf Gardens Jan. 29, officials of the meet announced Monday.

Here are women's 100-metre dash champion Wyomia Tyus of the United States and Lyn Jones of Rehoth, men's broad jump gold medal winner at Tokyo in October. Miss Tyus will run in the women's 50-yard dash and Davies will run in the men's 50.

Henry Jerome and Bill Crothers will also compete. Jerome, 800-metre medal winner in the 100 metres in Tokyo, will run in the 50-yard event and Crothers will double the 600-yard run. He won a silver medal in the Olympic 800 metres.

Business Good in Movie Industry But Rocks Ahead

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This has been another turbulent year for the movie world.

Death, divorce, illness and a kidnap trial were among the top news stories of 1964. At year's end, more trouble appeared on the horizon. The film industry was faced with the possibility of a major strike, and clashes over the moral content of movies seemed imminent.

Despite these travails, Hollywood appears healthier at the end of 1964 than it has in recent years. The reason: Business is good. Large numbers of Americans once more find excitement in going to the movies. In addition, most of the major studios are successful in their television operations.

With rare exceptions the film companies had good news for their stockholders this year. All this seemed to prove what some of us have suspected for a long time: That Hollywood thrives on trouble.

Here is how the top news stories of the movie world stacked up to this reporter:

1. The Sinatra kidnap trial. The July 8 kidnapping of Frank Sinatra Jr. at Lake Tahoe in December, 1963, was followed by a trial that was equally bizarre. It ended in the conviction of the three men accused of the crime.

2. The Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton wedding. The event itself may have seemed anti-climactic, but nevertheless the highly headlined pair continued to make news.

3. The deaths of Gracie Allen, Harpo Marx and Eddie Cantor. Coming within a few weeks of each other, the loss of these great stars seemed to signal the sunset of a great era in entertainment.

4. Sidney Poitier's Oscar. Few academy awards have been as happily received by the film community as Poitier's for Lilies of The Field. The award to the Negro actor was well deserved, but it was especially significant in a time of racial unrest. Patricia Neal's Oscar for Hud was another popular choice.

5. The death of Alan Ladd. The sudden passing of the laconic, steel-eyed star was a shock to Hollywood. He had only recently made a comeback with The Carpetbaggers.

MURPHY WINS

6. George Murphy's election to the Senate. The one-time hoofer was scarcely taken seriously when he announced he would run for the U.S. Senate. Even some Hollywood Democrats openly disguise their pride when Murphy won the election, achieving the highest elective post for any film figure.

7. Peter Sellers' heart attack. The youthful, newly - married British comedy star was rescued from death by a hospital team.

8. Ethel Merman-Ernest Borgnine. Their much - publicized marriage lasted five weeks. At year's end McHale's Navy skipper was engaged again, to actress Donna Rancourt.

9. The Beatles. They were the hottest attraction in show business and their visit caused riots in Hollywood, as they have everywhere. Their film, A Hard Day's Night, surprised everyone by being uncommonly good.

10. The film industry's recovery. Hollywood's cheeriest news was the movie business' prosperity, which, it is hoped, will continue in 1965.

Ottawa Divides Honors

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa teams and out-of-town entries broke even in opening night activity in the 13th annual Carleton University high school invitational basketball tournament Monday.

Ottawa's Glebe Collegiate defeated Cobden, Ont., district high school 51 to 34, and Ridgemont High School of Ottawa pulled away in the second half with a 52 to 40 win to send Cornwall, St. Lawrence High School into the consolation play.

Toronto's York Mills Collegiate outscored Ottawa Technical High School 34 to 26. Sudbury Lockerby Composite School, like Ridgemont, pulled away in the second half of their game to win 49 to 33 over Ottawa's Lauriedale High School.

Winners and losers of Monday night's games meet in semi-final and final matches today for both tournament championship and consolation prizes.

Cornwall stayed with Ridgemountain in the first half, which ended with the score 28-26 for Ridgemont. In visitors, however, lost touch in the final 10 minutes and Ridgemont pulled away.

LANDRY TOP SCORER

Ridgemont top scorer was Mike Landry with 15. Larry Journey followed with 13. Tom Good and Mike Dorey each had seven for Cornwall.

York Mills' Bob McLaggage was the night's top scorer, with 22 points, 13 in the first half of the game with Tech. The winners had a 34 to 20 blead in the intermission. Top scorer for Tech was Lorne Lennox with 12.

Glebe got 17 points from Jeff Polowin as they easily defeated the inexperienced Cobden team. The winners outscored the first-year entry 28 to 19 in the first 16 minutes, and gradually increased their margin. King-pin for the losers was John Dunbar with 19 points.

Sudbury had trouble with Laurentian in the first half and managed only a 23 to 21 scoring bulge. They had no trouble the rest of the way. Terry McKinty got 18 for the winners and Dwight Fowler was best for Laurentian with eight.

Commentator Makes Sure Jackets Are Wrinkle Free

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Tom Kennedy is the ale-pulling, pleasant-mannered fellow who each afternoon presides over an NBC program during which studio contestants and celebrity guests team to play a word game for some money (for the studio contestant) and national television exposure (for the celebrities).

Kennedy enjoys doing herd on the players and hopes You Don't Say will go on forever.

He puts in a couple of busy days a week taping the five-day output of "You Don't Say." His preparation consists merely of making certain his sports jackets are wrinkle-free.

"Nobody sees me from the waist down," he said. "So I just keep eight jackets at the studio and change between shows."

The celebrity guests, particularly the women, also know about this costuming dodge and are likely to turn up with five different blouses.

He observed that viewers have become more sophisticated about game shows.

"The show has got to swing and it must make sense. There are no more big money prizes and it's hard to build much novelty into games now."

All Look Good

Als Sign Four Prospects

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes figure they have acquired four fine Canadian prospects in Larry Fairbairn, Mike Gibbons, Terry Evanshen and Willie Danychuk, all due to graduate in the spring from United States colleges.

Signing of the four was announced at a press conference Monday.

They are expected to provide needed competition for Canadians already on the team, and for those who will be seeking a berth.

Danychuk, 24, a native of Timmins, Ont., who came to suburban Lachine at an early age, is the most impressive of the four.

TIPPED BY BROKER

A six-foot-four, 240 - pound tackle and centre, he was a first stringer with University of Tennessee.

Coach Jim Trimble was tipped about Danychuk's possibilities by the coach's Montreal real estate broker who saw the boy play. Assistant coach Ed Enos signed him Sunday night after a long period of negotiations.

Fairbairn, 23, who stands six feet and weighs 190 pounds, is a defensive half. Outstanding as a junior with Rosemount Bombers, Fairbairn, of Lachine, is in his fourth year at University of Arizona.

Evanshen, 21, sent to Portland Seahawks of the Atlantic Coast Conference last season after failing to make the Alouettes, will be tested as an offensive halfback. Trimble says Evanshen, a light-weight 185-pounder, matured during his year with Portland.

Another Lachine product, Gibbons, 23, will be a flanker prospect, trying for the spot held last year by flanker-end Willie Lambert. At 195 pounds, Gibbons outweighs Lambert by about 30 pounds and is attending University of Tulsa.

POSITIVELY THE YEAR'S HAPPIEST FUN! SOMETHING GREAT FOR EVERYONE! . . . . fine family fare . . . . Take the kids along."

AT THE BELLE — Debbie Reynolds expresses delight at the wedding ring given her by Harve Presnell in this scene from "The Unsinkable Molly Brown", in the lavish screen production in Panavision Metrocolor. Ed Begley, Jack Kruschen and Hermione Baddeley also star in the song-and-dance filled story of America's most famous Cinderella, Now playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

"Dancer's" Sister May Run Here

TORONTO (CP)—The sister of the Canadian horse of the year, Northern Dancer, has been difficult to break but will probably run on Ontario tracks this season, her trainer, Duke Campbell, said in an interview Monday.

The filly, which will celebrate her second birthday New Year's day, was purchased by Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal for $100,000 at E. P. Taylor's annual yearling sale here last October. The filly never has been ever paid for a filly at a public sale.

Levesque is expected to choose a name for the filly soon. Like those of his other horses, the name is expected to have a French ring to it.

FORWARDS TRADED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League Monday traded Yves Locas and Dennis Rathwell to Springfield Indians for left - winger Fred Hilts. Hilts, 25, has been on suspended hockey's suspended list since September, 1963, then he refused to report to Springfield after playing the previous season for Cleveland.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR
FOR DECEMBER 30

Aries (Mar. 21 - April 19)—Plans should be long-range. Excellent day for outlining resolutions. You can attract favorable attention — perceive "shadow" of future. Fine for decisions regarding correspondence.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)—Be cautious concerning confidential information. New contact proves worthwhile. But you must utilize your natural powers of ESP—trust your intuition—know when to stop talking.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)—Your "public image" due to come under close scrutiny. Maintain innate integrity. Be true to highest principles. Remember you must face yourself in the morning. Rest to utilize logical approach.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)—Fine day for celebrating—if you are moderate. Good to share interests, hobbies — make new friends. Plan future festivities. But don't over extend yourself tonight. Obtain needed rest.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 23)—If you go to extremes, you suffer loss. If you over-pursue pleasure—it eludes you. Best to remain close to familiar surroundings. Very favorable for plans concerning young persons.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)—Close friends appear to contradict each other. Feeling of restriction quite natural today. Attend to details. Clear away emotional debris. Get sights. Find out where you are headed.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)—Last minute shopping could cause confusion. Listen to advice of one with experience. Be specific. Follow instructions. But realize you do not have to make perfect choices.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)—Remember budget. Realize sincere feelings now outweigh extravagances. Purchase what you can afford. Receive gifts, cards in gracious manner. Express contentment. Many look to you as example.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Cycle high. Emphasis on personal approach. Time on your side. You can get your way if you are persistent. Display abilities. Handle added responsibility. Romance, adventure available.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)—Be considerate. Remember one who may not be able to celebrate. Personal call could work wonders. Adhere to principles of Golden Rule. Then happiness is assured.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)—Your friends due to come up with some unusual proposals. Realize that once you commit yourself—you must follow through. Be cautious. Lead rather than follow. Stress integrity.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20)—Your judgment correct — need for "second look" is evident. Don't be talked into question-able parties, schemes. Be true to inner feelings. Then you approach new year with clear conscience.

If Today Is Your Birthday—You are intrigued with unusual subjects, including aviation, astrology, space age developments. You seldom are satisfied with the status quo.

General Tendencies — Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Virgo: One in your own home makes startling suggestion. Keep mind open!

Week of Khrushchev Ouster Was by Far Most Dramatic In Year of Continued Strife

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Oct. 15, 1964, marked the end of an era and the start of a new one.

On that day, a stunned world learned that Nikita Khrushchev, dominant figure of world communism for a decade, had been summarily ousted as leader of the Soviet Union.

The news broke on an autumn Thursday as people around the world were preoccupied with many things far removed from Kremlin intrigue.

In Britain, voters were going out on a chilly and rainy day to end 13 years of Conservative rule, putting in office the Labor party headed by economist Harold Wilson.

In st. Louis, on a sunny day, the Cardinals were winning their first World Series in 18 years with a 7-5 victory over the Yankees in the seventh and deciding game.

In Saigon, a 19-year-old Viet Cong agent was dragged off to a soccer field, placed before an 11 - man firing squad as he shouted "Long live Ho Chi Minh," and shot.

WON GOLD

In Tokyo, a husky pair of Canadians, George Hungerford of Vancouver and Roger Jackson of Toronto, were winning Canada's first summer Olympics gold medal since 1956 with a victory in the rowing pairs event.

In China, technicians were putting the last touches on a nuclear device set to go off the following day, blasting China into the nuclear club.

In New York state, President Johnson was campaigning for American elections still two weeks off, shaken by the disclosure of the day before that one of his top aides had been arrested on a morals charge.

In Texas, Republican opponent Barry Goldwater was headed for a sharp defeat in the Nov. 3 voting, was saying that the American people had "looked at the White House and found it dark with scandal."

In Moscow, residents of the Soviet capital were preparing a big welcome for their three new space heroes, who earlier in the week had made the world's first group flight into space.

RENT OF OUSTER

The first hint of Khrushchev's downfall came that day when Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, failed to publish. Shortly afterward, word came that Khrushchev had been succeeded as premier by Alexei Kosygin and as the party's first secretary by Leonid Brezhnev.

The questions then was whether the new regime would continue Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence policies and his uncompromising stand against Communist China.

Brezhnev answered the first question before the end of the week as he took over for Khrushchev at the traditional ceremony of welcome for the cosmonauts.

He pledged that Russia would continue to try to get along with the West. But the China issue remained in abeyance as the new leadership and the Peking government made tentative approaches toward each other.

OUTSTANDING WEEK

All in all, the week of the Khrushchev ouster was by far the most dramatic in a year that saw continued turmoil in Southeast Asia and in Africa, cries in Panama and in Cyprus and summer race riots in the United States.

It was also a year that saw historic changes in the Roman Catholic Church through the third session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council; passage of a civil rights act in the United States and the independence of three new Commonwealth countries—Malta, Zambia and Malawi.

South Viet Nam continued to be a major East-West trouble spot, with the United States providing more than 20,000 men by the end of the year to help successive Saigon governments repel the Communist Viet Cong. On two occasions the struggle threatened to spread as American and North Vietnamese ships clashed in the Gulf of Tonkin. And at year's end there was talk of the possible bombing of Viet Cong supply routes from North Viet Nam through Laos.

In Malaysia, Indonesia stepped up its campaign against that Commonwealth nation with repeated incursions of guerrilla "volunteers." Britain, Australia and New Zealand provided troops to aid the Malaysians.

In Africa, rebellions continued sporadically in the Portuguese colonies of Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea. South was wracked by fighting pitting Arab against Negro.

But the main trouble spot was the Congo, the rich central African giant where rebellion broke out shortly after the withdrawal of United Nations troops at mid-year.

In November, this rebellion reached the point of where white antagonisms as some 2,000 white hostages, threatened with death by the rebels, were rescued in a Belgian-American airborne operation backed by the British.

In Cyprus, the United Nations proved more successful in restoring peace after repeated clashes between the Turkish and Greek communities at the start of the year.

A UN force of more than 6,000 men, including 1,100 Canadians, went to the island in March and remained through the rest of the year, as stability was gradually restored and the threat of Turkish and Greek involvement abated.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Employees and their families were entertained by Canada Cement plant No. 5 at their annual Christmas party on Sunday in the plant canteen. The choir of St. John's Anglican Church entertained the large gathering with several Christmas favorites and then led the guests in a general singsong of carols. Santa Claus arrived and distributed candy and gifts to the youngsters in attendance.

First Point Anne Guides and Brownies met last week from door to door, caroling. Donations of groceries and cash were received and a White Basket was made up for giving to a needy family. Following this the girls and leaders held a Christmas party. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served.

Many of the young people of the village have attended numerous Christmas parties in Belleville and district.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Marcade have left the village to take up residence in Belleville.

On Friday evening the Point Anne Rockers held a most successful Christmas party in Point Anne Public School auditorium. The hall was beautifully decorated in keeping with the festive season, for the event a white basket was given for distribution to a needy family from a committee of grocers received from each teenager as part of their admission. Refreshments were served.

Canadian Duck Hunters Will Have to Pay Way

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a good chance Canadian duck hunters will have to pay their way into hunting areas in the near future, says the deputy minister of national resources.

Ernest Cote says Canada so far has failed to recognize that the cost of maintaining the sport of duck hunting has reached the point where the government must "seek new sources of revenue and squeeze more tightly those they already possess."

"Payment for access to hunting grounds may become the rule, not the exception."

His views are contained in a hard-cover book, entitled Waterfowl Tomorrow, published recently by the U.S. Department of the Interior. It has been hailed in Canada and the U.S. as the most comprehensive popular work ever written on migratory wildfowl.

The 784-page book includes 194 photographs and numerous maps and other illustrations. Written by 102 American and Canadian wildlife officials, it is available in Canada through the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, for $4.

Mr. Cote says the Canadian government would be negligent if it didn't plan for up to 750,000 duck hunters by the year 2000. There now are 350,000 in Canada.

He says the government's prime objective is to keep the waterfowl population at about the same level as in the early 1950s.

"If they become less, they will make no significant contribution to public recreation."

Bag limits in the Prairies in those years were about 10 a day. With the population explosion among hunters, bag limits probably will be less than six daily before too long, says Mr. Cote.

Meeting the demand by maintaining the duck population above the level of the early 1950s would run into opposition now from prairie farmers whose crops are damaged by ducks.

Erasing this problem will require "a vigorous and positive program which may be costlier than earlier efforts but which must be so effective that the users of the resource will be prepared to pay their fair share."

In addition to duck hunters, there are untold thousands of Canadians who derive pleasure from seeing and photographing wildfowl. Then, too, Indians and Eskimos "have first call on such wild food as may be necessary for their welfare."

While the problems are numerous, Mr. Cote is sure that "we will maintain waterfowl as part of the North American way of life for many years to come."

But to accomplish that, we shall have to pay our way," he concludes.

Rats and Kittens Throw Light on Retarded Humans Scientists Are Informed

By CARL MOLLINS

MONTREAL (CP) — Tests showing how rats play, kittens seek comfort and monkeys win friends are pointing the way to projects designed to offset mental retardation in children, a panel of scientists reported here today.

A series of reports at the annual congress of the American Association for the Advancement of Science showed that stress coupled with affection during infancy promotes mental and social growth.

"Cats and rats—and probably humans —subjected to mild stress early in their lives react more adequately to stressful situations later, making learning easier," reported psychologist John M. Warren on experiments at Pennsylvania State University.

"Stimulation in the first two months can determine whether a monkey will later be socially withdrawn or socially aggressive," said researcher Gene P. Sackett of experiments at the University of Wisconsin.

"The most important factor in early experience for monkeys—generally more important than having a mother—seems to be having friends to play with early in life," Dr. Sackett reported.

TEST CHILDREN

A test application of such findings among children in the southern United States was described by psychologist Susan W. Gray of the George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn.

The children come from homes where income and education standards are low. Forty per cent of the homes have no fathers and most of the mothers work. The children all are six years old and entered school last September.

One group of children attended three special summer school sessions of 10 weeks each and had weekly visits in the home by a specially trained teachers before entering regular school.

"A second group took part in a similar program, but for a year less. A third group took no part in the program other than to take the same periodic tests given to the first two groups.

Tests of intelligence and language ability show the first two groups made and maintained progress. Individual intelligence tests show the first two groups generally have a mental age of about a year more than the control group.

OFFSET RETARDATION?

If the first two groups maintain the gains already shown, "we are hopeful that the techniques we have used are effective in offsetting progressive retardation in school performance," Prof. Gray said.

In the Wisconsin experiments with rhesus monkeys, Dr. Sackett found that experience in the first six months of life appears to be critical in determining future social, emotional, sexual and maternal behavior. The first six months in a monkey are roughly equivalent to two years in a human infant.

"Monkeys reared without friends and with little to see, hear and feel are inactive, do not explore or play, may be sexually incompetent and do not like to behave in complex situations."

Another discovery was that female monkeys raised without mothers are poor mothers themselves when they have young infant, rarely nursing, offering little protection and being abusive. But they improve with their second infant.

"Being a good mother, therefore, does not seem to depend much on so-called 'mothering instincts.' Of greater importance are proper learning experiences either early in life or during exposure to a baby later in life."

Youths Killed, Car Hits Culvert

WELLAND (CP)—Two Toronto-area youths were killed and three others injured early today following a one-car accident on Highway 3A, about eight miles west of here.

Police identified the dead as the driver, Randall Uehnergard, 18, of Agincourt, and William Minor, also of Agincourt.

In hospital at Welland are Robert McCrea, 17, of Scarborough, with severe head cuts; Stephen Bailey, 17, Agincourt, with a fractured pelvis and jaw; and David Cole, 18, of Agincourt, with undetermined injuries.

Macnamara of the RCN

Stayed Close to His Desk And Never Went to Sea...

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — He's completing 50 years in the Royal Canadian Navy — longer than any other man—yet he's never been at sea.

Harry Noller Macnamara, 64, director fleet supply administration, RCN, cleans out his desk here Dec. 31. After six months' retirement leave until June 30, he officially retires, 50 years and 15 days after he joined the navy.

It hasn't been a life on the rolling sea.

But every ship of the Canadian fleet for the last 20 years or so has carried Mr. Macnamara's thumbprint, from the smallest bar of soap to the thousands of gallons of fuel oil.

His half-century career began in 1915 as a messenger in the naval intelligence office, His Majesty's Canadian Dockyard, Halifax.

Mr. Macnamara's father was stores chief of the federal marine and fisheries department. There were seven children in the family. In 1916 Harry moved to the naval stores office where he worked until 1944.

That year he became deputy director in Ottawa of naval stores and in 1947 was named director. Next came posts of assistant supply officer-in-chief and finally in 1961 his present job as director fleet supply.

SURVIVED EXPLOSION

But there's a lot of history in that 50 years, including the frantic years of the two world wars. There was also the great Halifax explosion of Dec. 6, 1917, which levelled much of the city and almost ended Mr. Macnamara's career.

A munitions ship exploded in the harbor, after a collision, killing some 2,000 persons, injuring another 8,000 and leaving 10,000 homeless.

"A piece of steel as big as a desk came through the roof of my office. . . . I never ran so fast in my life," Mr. Macnamara recalls.

HARRY N. MACNAMARA

He joined rescue operations and found one man unconscious on the street. When revived the man told of having been blown from a ship in the harbor, then carried half a mile inland on the huge wave which followed the explosion.

Other painful memories were the ships and crews that Mr. Macnamara helped to provision and watch sadly set out of the harbor—never to return.

SUNK IN GULF

One such was the corvette HMCS Charlottetown.

"It went down in the Gulf of St. Lawrence Nov. 11, 1942. A submarine got two torpedoes in her. They lost nine of their crew of 64.

"I'll never forget sitting in my office many a morning and watching those convoys leaving. . . ."

He also watched naval stores change its name to navy supply; the civilian staff in Halifax rise from 25 in 1939 to 1,000 within two years, then drop back to its present 500; giant piles of coal give way to modern fuel oil, and the start of Canadian armed forces integration.

"They used to load that coal in baskets and carry it aboard on their shoulders—cooks, officers, the lot of them, except the ship's band which played during the loading."

A navy spokesman refers to him as "a walking history of the RCN."

Mr. Macnamara, who is married and has one son, belongs to a list of clubs and organizations as long as his employment record. His favorite is the Little League Baseball organization, with which he plans to stay associated.

District Capital For Viet Cong Guerrillas Taken

Heavy Losses Suffered By Government Forces

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—Government forces recaptured the district capital of Binh Nghia today, but the Viet Cong guerrillas captured two U.S. soldiers and wiped out nearly two companies of government troops.

Two other U.S. soldiers, members of the special forces, were killed Tuesday night in another action 30 miles north of Saigon. Their deaths brought to 341 the number of Americans killed in combat in South Viet Nam since December, 1961.

Thirteen Americans now are missing.

Other U.S. servicemen also were wounded in the three-day battle for Binh Nghia, 40 miles east of Saigon. Fighting still flickered tonight, but the Viet Cong was believed to have left the 15,000 population city.

At the peak of the fighting some 1,200 government troops faced about the same number of guerrillas, making it one of the largest engagements in South Viet Nam in the last four years.

Three U.S. helicopters were shot down Tuesday.

JAPANESE REFUGEES

The town, jammed with 6,000 Roman Catholic refugees from North Viet Nam, was occupied by the Viet Cong Dec. 3, but government forces drove them out.

A powerful Viet Cong unit overran Binh Nghia again Monday. Two government Ranger companies tried to re-enter the town but were driven off.

Tuesday, a government battalion of 500 men was flown in by helicopter but also was repelled. It moved back with massive assault today, plastered with artillery and air strikes, fighters strafed and bombed Communist positions.

A correspondent Peter Arnett tried to drive to the scene and reported the Viet Cong had left the city after placing mines, making ground relief difficult.

In Saigon, a number of officials said that a military countercoup attempt was afoot.

Outwardly, things appeared peaceful as the crisis continued on the dispute between U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor and Nguyen Khanh, the armed forces chief, over military interference in Premier Phan Huy Quat's civilian government. But there was widespread fear, apparently based on faulty information, that a new and possibly violent plot was about to hatch.

$60 Asked To Save Car Licence

TORONTO (CP) — A woman clerk in the driver control branch of the Ontario department of transport was arrested Tuesday night after a motorist who was about to lose his licence told police he was offered a chance to clear his poor driving record at $3 for each demerit point.

The motorist — whose name was not disclosed—had piled up 26 demerit points and faced a new driving charge which would have given him another three points and lost him his licence.

The motorist said he did not have the 50 required for the first 12 points, so he went to police. He said he was shown a file card listing his convictions and points.

Evelyn Rose, 28, a $3,500-a-year department employee for four years, was charged with theft under $50. She has been suspended by the department. William Manock, 27, a truck driver, was charged with possession of stolen documents. A second man is being sought.

Police said no charges are being laid against the motorist who tipped them off.

In Ontario a motorist is assessed varying numbers of points for a wide variety of driving offences, and loses his licence when he has collected 15 points.

WILL OFFER COURSES

TORONTO (CP) — The Provincial Institute of Trades and Occupations will offer two four-year courses beginning next fall to produce skilled tradesmen and marine engineers for Canada's merchant navy. Principal C. C. Lloyd said Tuesday the courses, under Capt. Donald M. Livingstone, will be offered to Grade 12 graduates who are 17 or older.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Slightly cooler air is expected to move into the province today bringing a gradual dissipation of the fog in southern Ontario. However, it may re-form late tonight.

Not Drunkard But Social Drinker Said Greatest Accident Hazard

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The social drinker, not the drunk, presents the greatest problem on streets and highways, Police Chief Alexander Mackey of Metropolitan Toronto said Tuesday.

In a speech to the Ontario Youth Conference on Alcohol Problems, Chief Mackey said that one-quarter of the traffic accidents in Metro Toronto "involve more than a trace of alcohol."

A driver's ability is definitely impaired when even small amounts of alcohol are consumed," he said. Two normal cocktails can reduce vision sharpness as much as wearing dark sunglasses at night."

The chief said the impaired driver, Chief Mackey added, assumes a false sense of well being" under the influence of alcohol. The social drinker behind the wheel of a car thinks he is a superman" and is more of a concern to the police than the drunkard."

He urged an absolute campaign to educate teen-agers as to the dangers they face in consuming alcohol beverages.

The emphasis now seems to be on the problem rather than on the prevention of the problem, he said.

Magistrate C. A. Fassel of Toronto criticized the liquor industry and other big business for the exploitation of teen agers."

Hundreds Arrested In India

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI (AP) — Hundreds of Communists throughout India were arrested before dawn today.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri's government said the Communists had been "preparing for violence" and "acting as a fifth column"—apparently meaning they had been working for China.

The government, which faces a close election contest with the Communists in Kerala State, arrested Communist party leaders in closely co-ordinated raids all across the country.

The leader of the pro-China Communist party, E. M. S. Namboodiripad, accused the government of paving the way for the elections in Kerala Feb. 15.

Top officials in Shastri's governing Congress party have said privately in recent weeks that the Indian military had little chance of defeating the Communists in Kerala, a politically turbulent state chronically hit by critical food shortages.

TOPPLED GOVERNMENT

Defections from Shastri's party enabled the Communist-led United Front to topple the state's government and in September it formed its own government.

More than 100 pro - Chinese Communists were arrested in Trivandrum, capital of Kerala. About 100 also were arrested in the Punjab State on the southwest coast.

Five pro-Chinese Communist party politburo members were arrested at Trichur in Kerala, where they were attending a party meeting.

One of them, A. K. Gopalan, is a member of Parliament and pro-Chinese party faction's parliamentary leader.

Until recent weeks, the political strength of the pro-China Communists in India had reduced by their bitter argument with the considerably stronger pro-Soviet faction of the party.

But the two factions had begun moving toward co-operation in the election against the government. Today's arrests appeared aimed at breaking the back of any unified Red campaign.

The arrests were made under catch-all legislation called the "Defence of India Rules," emergency legislation enacted during the 1962 Chinese-Indian border war.

Eastern Ontario's Growth Rate In Decade Fastest in Province

TORONTO (CP) — A pilot study of labor income in Ontario from 1951 to 1962 shows that six of the province's 10 economic regions experienced above-average growth rates of regional labor income.

Eastern Ontario, Georgian Bay, Metropolitan Toronto, the Lake Ontario region, midwestern Ontario and the Lake Erie region were all above the provincial average of 7¼ per cent, says R. B. Frank of the Ontario economics and development department.

Eastern Ontario, with the development of chemical and associated industries, registered the biggest gains with an annual growth rate 10¾ per cent.

Writing in the monthly Ontario Economic Review, Mr. Frank says that Metropolitan Toronto is capturing a larger and larger share of labor income. Its average annual rate of labor income growth was 7¾ per cent.

Other regional increases were Georgian Bay with 8¼ per cent, Lake Ontario with 7¾ per cent, mid-western Ontario with 7¼ per cent and Lake Erie with 7¼ per cent.

The study also shows that per - capita labor income has been consistently higher in the metropolitan region, northeastern Ontario and northwestern Ontario.

Per-capita income in 1962 was $3,528 for the Metro region, $3,701 for northeastern Ontario and $3,254 for northwestern Ontario. The provincial average was $3,528.

The share of labor dollars in the Niagara region declined to 12.3 per cent from 13.4 per cent because of its outlying position in relation to major industrial centres, the study says. But per-capita income exceeded the $3,000 level throughout the period because wages in the steel and automotive industries rose sharply.

Mr. Frank says the transfer of a large portion of existing automotive operations to central Ontario caused the Lake St. Clair region's low annual growth of only five per cent.

Assembly Dodges Vote Issue To Stop Having Showdown

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN General Assembly makes another attempt today to finish its 1964 business without a showdown over the Soviet Union's assembly vote.

Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana called chief delegates to his office for a second informal poll which he hoped would give Jordan or Mali a two-thirds majority for a seat on the Security Council starting New Year's Day.

In one such informal poll Tuesday the assembly members gave Malaysia 80 votes, The Netherlands 91 and Uruguay 82 for the other three council seats that became vacant Jan. 1. At an assembly session afterward, Quaison-Sackey declared them elected by general consent.

But on the first informal poll Jordan got 70 votes and Mali 50. Mali refused to withdraw unless one of the two got the two-thirds majority required for election on a formal vote.

Quaison - Sackey and Secretary-General U Thant meanwhile awaited Soviet acceptance of a plan to recess the assembly late today, seek voluntary financial contributions from members and resume the assembly Jan. 11 without raising the Soviet vote question.

Thant proposed to appeal at

Canada's Economy Advances

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — On almost every count, Canada's economy has been moving ahead faster than that of the United States.

The gain in industrial production has been the same in both countries, about 30 per cent since the first quarter of 1961 when the two economies began rising.

However, gross national product—the more comprehensive yardstick—has increased by 30 per cent in Canada up to the third quarter of this year, compared with a U.S. gain of 25 per cent.

The following comparisons have been made by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the first half of 1964 as against the same period a year earlier:

Personal spending in Canada rose by 7.1 per cent. In the U.S. it went up 6.1 per cent.

All - government expenditure on goods and services was 5.8

Mountie Heard Phone Talk With Tremblay Aide

Says Denis Refused To Reveal Bribe Source

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne feared for his life over the Rivard narcotics smuggling case, the former chief of the RCMP narcotics squad in Montreal testified today before the Dorion inquiry.

Former RCMP Sgt. Ronald Crevier said that during a telephone conversation he monitored Aug. 20 Mr. Lamontagne told Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, that:

"When some people get money and they don't deliver they find themselves in the bottom of the river."

Mr. Crevier said Mr. Lamontagne said in the RCMP-monitored conversation that his situation was serious because some people thought he had accepted a bribe in the Rivard case.

Mr. Crevier confirmed for Ross Drouin, Progressive Conservative, a statement that in his report he said Mr. Lamontagne told Mr. Denis many people thought he had taken money, that Rivard might be under that impression and unless Rivard was convinced otherwise he and his gang could decide to get rid of him and he (Lamontagne) might find himself at the bottom of the river.

Mr. Crevier told Mr. Drouin this was why Mr. Lamontagne was worried.

ACTING FOR U.S.

Mr. Lamontagne at the time was acting for the U.S. government which is seeking to have Lucien Rivard extradited to the U.S. to face charges of narcotics smuggling for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne has said he was offered and rejected a $20,000 bribe by Mr. Denis to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Mr. Crevier monitored for the RCMP the telephone conversations between Mr. Lamontagne in Montreal and Mr. Denis in Ottawa. He later left the RCMP to join Mr. Lamontagne's law firm as a special investigator.

He said Mr. Lamontagne suggested to Mr. Denis that the person behind the multiple bail was Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for the Montreal Dollard and at that time parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Crevier said Mr. Denis replied "I can't tell you," or something like that."

The former RCMP sergeant said that throughout the con-

Teachers To Create Commission

TORONTO (CP)—Representatives of 20,000 Ontario high school teachers voted up to $150,000 Tuesday for creation of a five-man secondary education commission designed to "better the province's education system."

The commission? is intended to "initiate, stimulate and coordinate" activity of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation in educational studies and place the federation in the forefront of education thinking.

Robert Brooks of Toronto told 400 delegates to the federation's annual meeting that "It's high time we moved into the field of educational studies until we have cleared up the mess which exists there at the moment."

Studies are planned on community colleges, changes to the Grade 13 program, free textbook plans, teaching aids and effectiveness of school programs.

Glenn Kilmer of Brantford chairman of a committee which carried out early planning, said that although the federation will not have the power to implement changes which its studies may show are needed, it hopes it will put up such persuasive arguments that the department of education will have no alternative but to agree.

DISCUSS PAY

Salaries were under discussion by both the secondary school federation and the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, also holding its annual meeting in Toronto.

The secondary school teachers went into secret session to discuss their problems. Jim Bennett of Hamilton, chairman of the salaries committee, said there would be increasing efforts to "get a quality price tag on quality teaching."

Delegates to the public school federation meeting voted against the principle of accepting salary cuts for teachers with extra qualifications. They also rejected a motion to discipline teachers who assign individually with high school boards on salaries. A survey showed that 57.3 per cent of the members

Prince Philip Takes Children On Ski Holiday to Leichtenstein

LONDON (CP) — Prince Philip, with Prince Charles and Princess Anne, went by air and train to Europeanear Zurich Tuesday night on a skiing holiday to Leichtenstein.

The trip to the tiny principality is simply a family outing but newspapers, meanwhile, are commenting on the vast amount of travelling that Philip, husband of the Queen, has been called upon to make in recent years.

Buckingham Palace announced Monday that Prince Philip will fly alone to Australia for a week-long visit in February after he and the Queen pay state visits to Ethiopia and the Sudan.

The African trip ends Feb. 12. Right after that a Prince Philip will be in Australia, where he is scheduled to address a meeting of medical and electronic engineers.

The visit means that in 14 months he will have visited 16 different countries, ranging from African to the Caribbean," says The Daily Express.

Five States Start Cleaning Up Billion-Dollar Mess

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Far West's disastrous floods entered the recovery stage today as 15,000 homeless families and hundreds of stricken farms and business dug out from nature's $1,500,000,000 blow.

"As far as the real emergency—that's over, right now," said Jack Morrison, civil defence spokesman at Eureka, Calif., in hard - hit Humboldt County.

The report was identical in the five flood-distressed states of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Nevada.

Helicopters and jets on Tuesday brought the first outside food supplies in a week to the last-known isolated pocket—500 persons stranded in lumbering villages west of Yreka, Calif., near the Oregon border.

The flood, described by U.S. interior department water specialists as probably the greatest ever experienced in the West, caused 19 known deaths in California and 18 in Oregon.

California's damage was estimated at upwards of $500,000,000.

In Oregon, many evacuees returned to devastation left by the Willamette River. Oregon's damaged totalled $315,000,000 in [illegible] several years. Mark Hatfield [illegible] the state's worst disaster in history.

At Reedsport, an estimated 1,500 persons still were receiving clothing and food from volunteer centres and the Red Cross. Several dozen homeless were bedded down at the Independence, Ore., city hall.

The Yakima River in central Washington posed a potential threat because of two huge ice jams, one a mile long and the other three miles in length. Many passes in the Cascade Mountains remained closed by snow slides.

Washington estimated its damage as $7,000,000.

[illegible]n, snow or cold weather prevailed, replacing flood conditions unusual for those areas. Rivers neared normal levels.

Idaho estimated damage as $5,000,000. Nevada officials ventured no dollar estimate of damage.

The 50-odd helicopters which evacuated 600 persons in Humboldt County and Oregon City, Ore., have begun to supply fulltime airlifts, except for unexpected emergency medical evacuations.

Disaster workers say that towns remain isolated because of washed out highways.

Officials could give no estimate on how soon they could repair major highways washed out by the floods. U.S. 101, the main link between California and Oregon, was washed out in many places. U.S. 199, linking Oregon to the interior, was described as a "mass of filth" in some places by observers.

Sixty tons of grain and hay were flown to Arcata north of Eureka for starving cattle. An estimated 2,500 cattle were drowned in northern California.

A massive bridge - building program is under way, but engineers hardly know where to start. At least 18 key bridges were washed out in Humboldt and Del Norte counties in northern California. Yreka, Calif., reported 36 bridges gone in its area alone.

Neither East Nor West Heavily Committed In Affairs of the Congo

What Do The Congo's chances of survival as a united country? Is this finally the end of the Congo? part series, an Associated Press correspondent examines the outlook and prospects in the turbulent African republic.

By SAUL PETT

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Ironically, one hope of reaching some stability in The Congo is that the Communists may find it even more frustrating and maddening than the West has.

Thus far, neither East nor West appears heavily committed in this country, which, to the visitor, seems to have a natural instinct for anarchy, contradiction and chaos.

The Russians have talked loudly about aiding the Congolese rebels but to date there is little sign they have. African countries such as Algeria, Ghana and the United Arab Republic apparently have sent some material aid but, because of their own economic difficulties, Western sources doubt that they can send much.

The Chinese have won considerable mileage on what appears to be little effort—some economic, money and propaganda. The United States, which supports the central government with a flagon-crossed attitude, now supplies The Congo about $50,000,000 a year in aid, most of it in agricultural surplus. As the cold war goes, this is small.

HOW MUCH INTEREST?

If the Chinese increase their involvement in the mineral-rich, strategically placed Congo, the U.S. may be forced to increase its commitment—all of which could quickly lead into another Viet Nam. The big question then is how interested are the Chinese?

"Logistically, another Viet Nam here would be difficult for the Chinese since they would be a long way from home," said one Western diplomat. "Obviously, they don't want prop-ping turmoil in the Congo but I can't believe that they or any other Communists seriously regard this as their kind of revolution. Communists require a people capable of more political discipline and tillerability."

Nothing is so rare as political discipline in The Congo or a politician who is not flexible. Ideology counts for nothing. Civil wars start simply because group of politicians wants to replace another at the public treasury. Today's irrevocable feud may be tomorrow's irrevocable alliance.

For two years of bloody warfare, Moise Tshombe fought the central government with his secession movement in Katanga province. Now, as its frustration, he heads the central government as its premier.

Christophe Gbenye now leads the revolution, apparently from Stanleyville. But it was Gbenye who once offered the top post in the rebellion to Tshombe in exchange for financial support. Tshombe turned him down.

And it was Gbenye who once was host to the American embassy in Leopoldville with a letter asking for money for his movement. The letter has not been published but it is believed that Gbenye also asked for help in arms.

Mild Weather Spoiling Fun For Skaters

With sliding and slalorriding literally "washed out" by the mild weather of the past week, it looked like a comparatively inactive Christmas holiday period for local sports-minded youngsters.

But colder temperatures on Monday night tightened up the ice on the open ponds to save the day for the skaters.

Belleville's ponds in the lowlying areas of the city and district were well populated with skaters pegging at it from dawn to dusk.

One particularly popular area has been the pond on the Sir Winston Churchill School grounds where skaters both young and old have been active.

And in the rural areas yesterday ponds were busy with skaters, some of them trying out new Christmas skates.

But the open air skating fun was rather short-lived.

Rising temperatures spoiled all the fun and many of the ponds were again watercovered.

Aid Is Refused FAME Co-op

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Representatives of seven Ontario agricultural groups Tuesday refused assistance to the Farmers Allied Marketing Enterprises Co-operative Limited, which is faced with raising nearly $2,000,000 to regain control of a Burlington - based slaughtering and processing company.

The slaughtering and farmer-owned co-operative bought the F. W. Fearman Packing Company Limited last October for $3,500,000. The Burlington firm had an adjusted equity of $789,000 last June.

A $1,000,000 payment was due on the purchase price but the co-operative was unable to meet the deadline and secured an extension until Jan. 15.

Representatives of the United Co-operative of Ontario, Ontario Federation of Agriculture, Co-operative Insurance Association, United Dairy and Poultry Co-operative, Co-operative Credit Union of Ontario, the Co-union of Ontario and First Co-operative Packers Limited, refused both financial and managerial assistance.

The co - operative has been holding shareholders' meetings for more than two weeks in an effort to raise the necessary money for the Jan. 4 deadline.

Security Measures in Force In Nigeria as Voting Starts

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS (AP)—Nigeria's first general election in four years of independence began today in a cloud of confusion.

Early indications were that the boycott ordered by leaders of opposition parties had widespread support in the south, where the opposition is strongest.

The ruling Nigerian National Alliance, based in the northern and western regions, was expected to win even without the boycott because its areas are the most populous. Voters will elect 312 members to a new Parliament for a term of five years.

At least 30 temporary polling booths were destroyed by opposition supporters. Four smashed in Lagos had not been replaced by mid-afternoon. Police were the only persons present at these booths. Some lacked electoral officers.

"I cannot say what is happening, but I do know," said an official at the federal electoral commission office.

QUIT POSTS

Two members of the five-man commission, representatives from east and the middle west, quit their posts in Lagos and police workers and non-operating personnel of the Nigerian railway stopped work.

The capital was quiet. Electioneering and demonstrations were banned in this section.

The opposition parties, which are strongest in southern Nigeria, had asked for a month's postponement of the election to investigate their charges of irregularities in the populous Mid-lern north. But a meeting of top officials, including all the premiers and governors of the northern and western regions, decided Tuesday to go ahead with the balloting as scheduled.

GUARD POLLS

Riot squads guarded polling places in Lagos, the seven-year Nigeria's 10,000-man army was on a full alert. Motorized patrols circled the city. Most of the troops throughout the country, Africa's most populous.

"Some blood is sure to be spilled," said one civil servant.

The opposition United Progressive Grand Alliance, which draws most of its support from the south, proclaimed a "total boycott of the polls."

"We have advised all our candidates to withdraw," said the party's national secretary, Fred McEwan.

an afternoon session to all members, "without prejudice to their previous positions on the question of principle," considering the financial situation of the organization to solvency by voluntary contributions.

He also proposed to have the assembly authorize him to spend money for UN purposes in 1965 at the 1964 budgetary level, "pending decisions to be taken at the resumed session on a new budget."

Quaison - Sackey then would declare Thant's proposals adopted without objection; call for consultations on the Soviet-U.S. assessments dispute during the recess, and announce that the assembly would "proceed with its business" Jan. 11.

The two statements were designed to lay the groundwork for settling the Soviet-U.S. dispute over Articles 19 of the UN charter, which says any member two years behind in assessments loses its vote in the assembly.

But assembly since convening Dec. 1 has done necessary business without voting to avoid the challenge of the Soviet vote. But the Russians have said the assembly should get back to normal procedure quickly.

The 30-nation Afro - Asian group has appeared to be taking the same position.

Hard Line Will Be Taken On Pollution

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Governor Nelson Rockefeller said today that the state's anti-pollution program he has proposed for New York State would eliminate the need for any excuse for communities to stall on cleaning up lakes and rivers.

He indicated the state would take a hard line in forcing them to build sewage - treatment plants.

The governor discussed at a press conference his $1,700,000,000 program he announced Saturday for eliminating pollution.

Under the plan, communities that have been dumping untreated sewage or otherwise polluting the state's waters would be helped to build treatment plants.

If they did not act voluntarily, the state would invoke an alternate existing law to compel them to.

Many communities have pleaded financial hardship in refusing to build treatment plants.

Under the Rockefeller approach, the state would raise $1,000,000,000 through a bond issue to finance 50 per cent of the cost of such plants.

The localities would pay 40 per cent.

Rockefeller, will try, through gation, to reduce the federal government.

Vancouver Again Hit By Big Fall

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hit by another series of snowflurries Tuesday, Vancouver's day deeper into its dwindling supplies of salt in efforts to keep main streets clear.

Crews continued their round-the-clock sanding, salting and plowing following a heavy snowfall Monday night and early Tuesday and snowflurries again Tuesday afternoon.

The overnight storm dumped between three and five inches on the western portion of the greater Vancouver area. Some north shore communities got as much as 12 inches.

The snowfall Tuesday afternoon added to the 30.4 inches that has fallen at Vancouver airport in December. Many suburbs had heavier snowfalls.

The weather office saw no immediate end to the snow and cold.

IS NEAR-EMERGENCY

Ran Martin, city engineer, said the situation was a near-emergency and the city was appealing to motorists not to park on main roads so that snow - clearing could be done effectively.

If an emergency was called, the city would ban street parking.

Salt was looming as a major problem, however.

"We have got some salt left and we're trying to make it last until our big supply comes in (in January)," said Mr. Martin.

The Vancouver Salt Company said its supplies were exhausted but it was making efforts to immediately because of flooding in California and Oregon and shut trucking routes.

It was virtually impossible to get chain or snow tires in Vancouver Tuesday.

Britain Gets Respite From Heavy Snow

LONDON (AP)—Most of Europe endured another day of freezing cold Tuesday but there was respite in Britain and some southern climes.

The break in England's cold spell may last only a short time, however.

In France, heavy snows fell in the central region and the mercury dropped to 14 in Paris.

In Italy, rain - loosened landslides blocked the main north-south rail line between Rome and Florence for half an hour Tuesday. Storms battered the Ligurian coast, driving fishing fleets to shelter, and several small boats sank.

There were still chaotic conditions in northern England and Scotland as a result of the heaviest snowfall of the winter in recent days.

Major Shuffle In Department Of Justice

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Wagner's crime-busters of 1965, all as youthful looking as the Quebec attorney - general himself, were introduced to the public Tuesday.

"You'll notice they're all under 40," the brash - cut attorney - general who looks like a varsity fullback, told a press conference.

It was held to announce a major shuffle, the first in years, in the department in which he took office two months ago.

Replacing veteran deputy minister Charles-Edouard Dubuc, 63, a key figure in the department since 1931, is 36-year-old Rhodes scholar Julien Chouinard.

Two new assistant deputies also were introduced:

—Yvan Mignault, 35, will continue as chief crown prosecutor in the Quebec district.

—Jacques Ducros, 30, will be assistant in charge of criminal cases. He is a graduate of Montreal's McGill University.

TOOK MASTER'S

Gabriel Lapointe, 36, a Laval law graduate who took a master's degree in business administration at Harvard, will replace Guy Desjardins, who returns to private practice as chief Crown prosecutor in Montreal.

A civil service competition is under way to find "the best possible replacement" for Sheriff L. P. Caisse of Montreal.

"This policy will be continued in the future," said Mr. Wagner.

The appointments change the whole top echelon of the department and are described as a stage-setting step in Mr. Wagner's promised crackdown on everything from Mafia racketeers to political extremists.

Mr. Cantin's retirement is effective Feb. 1 and the other appointments Jan. 1.

Mr. Cantin, who served as Liberal member of the Quebec legislature for St. Sauveur from 1927 to 1931, joined the attorney-general's department in 1931 and rose steadily through successive Liberal and Union Nationale administrations. He was appointed deputy minister in June 1954 by the late premier Maurice Duplessis.

RAWDON TOWNSHIP — Municipal garage and firehall at Springbrook will be officially opened on January 9th. New $43,000 oil-heated structure houses township fire pumper and musicial road machinery.

FIRE CHIEF — Malcolm Mason demonstrates controls of new Rawdon fire pumper for township Reeve Fred Beckett.

Old Fashioned 'Barn Dance' To Open Rawdon's Fire Hall

There is nothing old fashioned about the building itself, but an old fashioned "barn" dance will be part of the official opening ceremonies for the new Rawdon township fire hall and municipal garage.

The new municipal garage at Springbrook, costing approximately $43,000, will be officially opened on Saturday, January 9, with W. E. Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, along with other parliamentarians and county officials invited.

Following official opening ceremonies, a dance on the garage floor will wind up the evening's activities.

Situated on the site of the former Springbrook cheese factory, the new Rawdon township garage has been in use for several weeks and already has proven its worth for storing and repair of township road machinery.

HAVE NEW PUMPER

The new 625 gallon per minute fire pumper, costing in the neighborhood of $18,000 has never been out of the garage, but Reeve Fred Beckett is not worried.

"We hope it never has to be taken out. It is good insurance," he says.

The new Rawdon municipal garage is the last word in garage construction and would be a credit to any municipality.

Measuring 91 by 44 feet, the new three-bay garage is oil heated throughout and has a 30 foot wing for storage of a new fire department tank truck.

The Rawdon volunteer fire department under fire chief Malcolm Mason, Springbrook garageman, is one of the few completely rural departments in the area with its own fire pumper.

The cost of the new $18,000 pumper was a direct charge on the township ratepayers, with neither the fire fighting equipment or the fire hall section of the municipal garage being eligible for grant.

On the other hand the township will receive a department of highways grant of 75 percent on two-thirds of the cost of the new building which will amount to approximately $21,500.

ISSUE NO DEBENTURES

But payment for the cost of Rawdon's new township garage is an example of good municipal housekeeping. The cost will be repaid without the issuing of debentures—and without increasing the township millrate.

"We don't like debenture financing," was the reeve's comment.

For the sake of ready availability of manpower, members of the township's volunteer fire department are for the most part Springbrook area residents but a few have been chosen from all parts of the township.

Regulations call for at least 21 department members, but Chief Mason expects the Rawdon department to eventually have as many as 26 or 27.

There are four fire phones in the homes of as many Springbrook volunteerr, while a fire siren atop the fire hall can be expected to rouse the balance of their neighborhood in case of a fire emergency.

DEPARTMENTS SEPARATE

Although housed in the same new building, the Rawdon fire department and municipal garage quarters are entirely separate.

Above the fire department section is a large room to be used for holding the mutual aid fire department meetings.

Separating the fire department section and garage sections is a road foreman's office, storage and washrooms.

Rawdon township contractor Wilfred Spencer built the new garage.

Youth Attacks Woman, Scared Off by Screams

TRENTON — A 56-year-old woman, Mrs. Hazel Gunter, 20 Richards St., was attacked by a youth last evening as she walked from work through the College Street school grounds shortly before 6.00 p.m.

Mrs. Gunter told police she heard footsteps behind her and was suddenly struck on the head with a stick, knocking her to the ground. Mrs. Gunter screamed and the youth dropped the stick and ran off.

At the College Street entrance to the playground he was joined by another youth and the pair made off. Mrs. Gunter at first thought the second youth was coming to her rescue.

A Princess Street resident came to her aid and took her to a nearby doctor's office.

Mrs. Gunter described her assailant as being in his late teens, about five feet nine inches, with short dark hair and weighing around 140 pounds. He was wearing a short dark jacket and dark trousers.

Today Trenton Police Inspector R. J. Rutherford issued a warning for women to be Chary alone at night on dark streets.

Car Hits Pole

TRENTON — A car owned by a Montreal man, Maurice St. Jacques, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 when it went out of control on Dundas St. East around 2.15 a.m. today, and struck a hydro pole, shearing it off. Streets were icy at the time. Damage to the pole was $150.

Boy Remanded Out of Custody On Two Charges

TRENTON — A 19-year-old Glen Miller youth, Donald Lawrence, was charged in magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday with assaulting a Trenton woman and attempting to steal her purse. Lawrence was remanded out of custody until next week.

On December 18, Mrs. Sonja Graham of Edwards Street, reported to police a man had tried to grab her purse as she walked across railway tracks at the intersection of West and Dufferin Streets, around 9.30 p.m. that night. Mrs. Graham told police she had struck the man with her purse, and that he had then assaulted her.

Lawrence is charged with the offence several days later.

SENTENCE SUSPENDESD

Gerald John Wellman, 26, of 44½ Edwards Street, Trenton, who last week pleaded guilty to indecent assault involving a 6-year-old girl, was placed on a two years' suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton court yesterday. Two weeks ago the court heard evidence that Wellman had assaulted the child while he was baby sitting with her. The child told her mother of the incident when her parents returned home.

Arrangements have been made for Wellman to live in at the Salvation Army Rehabilitation Centre in Toronto and he must report to a probation officer monthly.

TRENTON — A charge of attempting to defraud by passing a worthless cheque, brought by the Crown against a Trenton man, Kenneth Robbins, was withdrawn in Trenton court yesterday after the court heard evidence that the accused had money in another account, but had issued the cheque while Toronto bank where his account had lapsed.

On Oct. 6, Robbins paid the balance of $16.53 on a wedding ring at Hadley's Jewellery in Trenton with a cheque drawn against one Toronto bank. The cheque was returned NSF. He pleaded guilty to the charge brought against him in court yesterday, but after hearing the explanation, Magistrate T. Y. Wills rejected the plea and the charge was withdrawn.

ADMITS BREAK-IN

A Trenton youth, 18-year-old Paul Leroux of 9 Lewis Ave., Middleton Park, pleaded guilty in Trenton court yesterday to entering the Ebenezer Christian Reformed Church on 4th Ave. and stealing a microphone from the pulpit. He was remanded for a pre-sentence report until Jan. 5.

The court was told Leroux had admitted breaking a basement window to enter the church and had slept there for several hours. He was picked up by the police at the Hilltop restaurant at 6 a.m. Monday after a Fourth Ave. resident reported seeing lights in the church. Leroux had gone to the Hilltop to buy cigarettes.

Rejects Guilty Plea After Minor Mishap

TRENTON — In magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday, Joseph E. Charbonneau, 26, of RCAF Station Trenton pleaded guilty to a charge of driving his car in a dangerous manner on Dec. 11. But after the court had heard evidence that his car had exploded, a Belleville expert told the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting here yesterday.

One reason Dr. Bryan P. Beirne, director of the Department of Agriculture's entomological laboratory in Belleville, told the meeting was that knowledge is still sparse in this particular sphere of parasite control.

Every parasitical insect has its own insect predator, he said.

"Parasites and predators have a vast potential for use in pest control. But this potential remains largely unexploited," said Dr. Beirne. "Whether or not it will adequately be exploited in time to meet the needs of the future is debateable."

There are only two universities in the United States and none in Canada that have departments of Biological control of adequate size, he said. Every biological control research centre has a staff shortage.

PESTICIDES MISUSED

"It is now generally recognized that chemical pesticides are commonly misused, and that they often tend to intensify existing pest problems and upon the expiry date, Oct. 19. Douglas Whitley, another insurance agent, and Mr. LeClair had approached him about insurance "around deer hunting time", but no policy had been issued and Mr. LeClair had gone hunting.

Mr. LeClair told the court he had been under the impression he was insured.

FLIES LIFE

Houseflies have been known to live for almost a month.

Fined For Failure To Have Insurance

TRENTON—Arthur LeClair, 7 Bay Street, the proprietor of the Trenton Bowl Shop, pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to produce proof of insurance when he appeared in magistrate's court in Trenton yesterday. He was fined $50 and costs on the evidence, fined $50 and ordered to pay court costs of $20.

Insurance agent Mickey Wall told the court Mr. LeClair's "blanket" business policy had been cancelled by the company create new ones by destroying the parasites and predators that were—before the chemicals were applied—important in keeping the pest from increasing unchecked. Integrated control programs can overcome this problem.

In its simplest form, an integrated control is the use of chemical pesticides in such a manner that they do little or no harm to the parasites and predators that attack the pest.

"More usually, integrated controls, involve manipulating, in addition, parasites, predators, and other controls."

In Canada there are about 3,000 kinds of insects that are harmful to agriculture, but some information on the identities and their predators is available for fewer than one-third of them.

It is possible, however, to develop quite effective integrated control programs by a number of methods. One is to reduce chemical pesticide applications to a minimum to reduce the harm done to parasites and predators of pests. Another is to increase environmental factors favorable to predators and parasites. In some situations in Western Europe, nesting sites are provided deliberately for birds and ants that prey on pests.

A third approach is to liberate large quantities of parasites and predators already present in an area. A fourth is to import new kinds.

"To take Canada as an example," Dr. Beirne said, "There are over a dozen former pests that are now of less or no economic importance because they are permanently controlled by parasites and predators originally imported from abroad and elsewhere. They include the wheatstem sawfly in Ontario, the woolly apple aphis, the oystershell scale, the mealy-bug in British Columbia and the larch casebearer in Ontario.

Dr. Beirne estimated that several hundred of Canada's insects warrant control measures.

Self-perpetuating, permanent control with imported pest enemies has been attempted with only 25—or little more than 1 per cent of the total.

An Opportunity for Canadians

One of the most striking paradoxes is that war hastens progress. Idealists and sentimentalists may deny this vigorously, but unless they are permitted to choose their battleground and to exclude from consideration material advancement, the paradox is easy to prove.

In no realm is it more easily demonstrable than in the development of aviation.

Even in the peace years, military demands have provided the aviation industries of many countries with the essential likelihood without which they would certainly not have grown and might, indeed, have died entirely.

Members of the Canadian Cabinet who favored equipping the RCAF with the U.S. Phantom jet fighter-bomber were, therefore, on familiar and tested ground when they argued that the heavy expense involved would spread more benefits through the Canadian aircraft industry.

Nevertheless, we think it well that Hon. Paul Hellyer, Canada's Minister of Defence, won his fight for the adoption of a cheaper plane.

This view is founded on the theory that, if the Canadian aviation industry has any future at all, it can only lie in a specialized field, having little or no relationship to the production of military fighters or bombers.

In an aviation industry sufficiently big and diversified, military orders can still provide the funds necessary to develop large civil aircraft. But these civilian planes are getting so large, their planning and production is becoming so expensive, that such projects appear to lie beyond the scope of any country of Canada's size. Indeed, it now appears likely that if any aircraft industry is to compete in this field with that of the U.S. and of Russia in developing tomorrow's planes, it can only be an amalgamation of the firms of Western Europe.

If Canadian aircraft firms are to have a future beyond a "bits and pieces" participation in the U.S. industry's projects, or the production of U.S. designs under license, then this can only lie in the design of production of smaller aircraft specifically made for use in the less developed countries, where airport facilities are poor, where short takeoff is an important factor and where economy of operation with small cargoes is essential.

Far from limiting the potential customers of our aircraft firms to the home market, planes of this type will be in great demand for export to come in almost every continent, except perhaps Europe.

Not only in our North, but in Asia, in South America, in Australia and perhaps most of all in an awakening Africa, the pioneer days of aviation lie as much ahead as behind.

Not everybody wants to cross continents and oceans at speeds twice that of sound. Most of the history of air transport in the remaining decades of the century will be written by pilots flying goods and workers to remote communities. And, unlike the airliners of the pioneer days, the super-sonic giants now being developed will not be able to retire from the blue ribbon runs to end their days in the bush leagues. They will be too big, too costly to operate, for such service. Special planes will be required—and Canadian firms have already proven that they can design and build this type of aircraft.

An Admirable Suggestion

Blind persons' allowances should be made available at age 16 instead of 18, to help blind teenagers with their education.

That is one of the recommendations in a brief prepared by the Ontario division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The advantages of such a policy are so obvious that one wonders why such a simple reform was not instituted years ago.

Often, though, it requires the intimate knowledge provided by personal experience with the needs of handicapped persons to reveal the best ways to help them solve their problems.

Not only would assistance in furthering their education add immeasurably to the blind teenagers' chances of finding a useful and rewarding role in society, but it could easily have an economy measure. In many, if not all, cases the improved education which these allowances might make possible would enhance their earning capacity and thereby reduce their need for assistance from the public purse.

It is only because we spend more time reading newspapers than history books that we sometimes think of separatism as being something recently discovered by a few noisy students.—Dr. D. B. Armstrong, Graduate School of Business, McGill University

Ottawa Offbeat
Not All Tory Disaffection Originating in Quebec

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Current troubles in the Conservative party in the Commons may seem to be centred on Quebec and its representatives, but such is not altogether the case.

When Leon Balcer, former Cabinet minister, stated he might well withdraw from the party and sit as an independent, he was only taking the most drastic step possible to express his dissatisfaction with the party leadership.

Naturally enough, only other Quebec members were questioned on their feelings. Some (notably Paul Martineau,' another former Cabinet minister) said they would follow the Balcer lead, others that they would remain Conservatives.

But nobody thought of questioning Conservative MPs from other parts of the country — or if they did, realized they would not get very straight answers.

The fact of the matter is that several others, even in the Tory West, are dissatisfied, but they will not speak out, as did Mr. Balcer, for fear of splitting the party.

Enough has been heard from them in private conversations, however, to know that the voluntary retirement of Mr. Diefenbaker would be quietly welcomed.

THE FACTS

It may be sad to acknowledge this of a man who led his party to victory in national elections and sat as prime minister for five years, but the fact should be faced: a fair slice of the Conservative caucus is following Mr. Diefenbaker out of party loyalty rather than personal conviction.

The only thing different about Mr. Balcer is that he has felt it necessary to make his position and feelings known publicly.

On such a vital issue as the flag, it is not at all surprising that Mr. Balcer went so far out of his way to split with Mr. Diefenbaker that he had other Quebec members following him.

But even more surprising (to some) were the mild expressions of disaffection of such highly - regarded Conservatives as Gordon Fairweather, from New Brunswick and Baldwin, from Alberta.

If men such as these would differ with their leader in public, even if only mildly, could not stronger feelings be present, although unexpressed?

They could and they are.

Douglas Harkness, former minister of defence, has not lost many friends in the caucus because of his resignation from the former Conservative cabinet.

Mr. Diefenbaker.

How big was Mr. Balcer's disaffection directly on Mr. Diefenbaker and what voice is raised against him? None.

SURPRISE

It came as more than a surprise to those in the caucus recently when the party's national executive postponed the annual meeting in order to ensure that an election might occur and that they must prepare for it.

There was no doubt that this was merely an attempt to avoid a severe questioning of the party leadership at the unfavorable deposition of Mr. Diefenbaker.

It would be better, the general feeling goes, if the former prime minister would resign his seat, and retire and allow the party a wide-open leadership convention.

In the current controversy, it could be noted that while Mr. Balcer calls the nation's flag leader and Quebec leader of the party, Mr. Diefenbaker denies he holds any place at all.

There is merit on both sides.

At the annual meeting last February, Quebec members objected Mr. Balcer to those posts as a separate meeting.

Mr. Martineau stamped out of the meeting and caught Mr. Diefenbaker in the hall, urging him into the Quebec meeting and listening with satisfaction while Mr. Balcer's new position was announced and cheered.

Mr. Diefenbaker could do nothing more in the circumstances but accept the resolution and acknowledge his new deputy leader, a post not provided for in the party constitution.

So who is right now?

Piqued because they had been refused a pay raise, 94 black-smiths employed by the Chicago municipality stayed away from work for a day pleading sickness. They are back now with a city pay docked and saying they still feel so good.

Perhaps not, because a day's pay at $3.50 an hour is $26.25, and a week's $126.50. Last year one blacksmith, with overtime nights and weekends, made over $12,000. That was more than the pay of his boss, the commissioner of streets.

The American sidewheel steamship Caroline, used by rebels under the direction of William Lyon Mackenzie, was burned in the Niagara River by Canadians 127 years ago today—in 1837. The vessel had been used to carry supplies and men to the rebel-occupied Navy Island in the river. One American was killed in the skirmish that ensued when the vessel was set on fire, causing a diplomatic incident between Britain and the U.S. The figurehead and engine of the Caroline are in the museum of the Buffalo Historical Society.

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1939 — the second contingent of the Canadian Active Service Force sailed. left Canada Dec. 22, arrived in Britain; in a New Year's message to his army and the Nazi party, Hitler said the "hardest possible struggle for existence" lay ahead; Swedish volunteers joined the Finnish army's fight against the Russians.

Russian Ships To Brave Ice

Montreal Gazette

It appears that no Russian shipline will be stocking ships up the St. Lawrence River this winter. It is believed there will be at least four of them. The ships will be specially strengthened so that they can handle winter conditions.

In doing this, Russia will be following an example set by Denmark. Last winter, a specially constructed vessel arrived in Montreal in early January, meaning that the port was never really closed, and that traffic may have fallen to a mere trickle. An example was set. Russian ships are not going to follow it up, and it can be assumed that other countries will not be far behind.

Does this mean that the age-old dream of making Montreal a year-round port is about to realization? In a sense, this port has indeed seen its heyday. It could be said that it became true last winter. But this realization is taking place apparently than was once expected.

A few years ago, there were all sorts of projects being discussed and proposed to make Montreal a year - round port. But most of them involved changes in the St. Lawrence River, rather than changes in ship construction. For example, there was one proposal that atomic reactors could be used to moderate the temperature of water in the river; and another that piles could be sunk on each side of the channel through Lake St. Peter, making it less slueyish and less likely to freeze over.

But the reality is proving to be different. The changes are taking place in the ships. Vessels are being built which seem to have some of the characteristics of ice-breakers. Their hulls are constructed so that they can withstand winter ice conditions up to a point. With regular ice-breakers to give help when needed, they can manage the St. Lawrence in winter.

Of course, no one can say how an exceptionally severe winter might affect calculations. But it presently seems likely that the future will see at least limited use of the St. Lawrence for shipping in winter. In this sense, Montreal is on the verge of becoming a year-round port.

To Your Good Health
Can't Understand Doctor's Treatment

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A short time ago I sent for your booklet on "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," and I am writing to tell you thanks from the bottom of my heart. No longer am I awakened with cramps in my feet, and I can walk without getting pains in the calves of my legs. To me it is a miracle.

I just cannot understand why my doctor did not advise me to do that instead of filling me with medicine that did not help.

I wonder if you know the good you are doing for so many people. God bless you. — H. A.

Thank you, and others have written about getting relief, and quickly, from such leg and foot cramps.

But before you berate your doctor, let me tell how this problem looks from my side of the desk.

Part of it is psychological. Part of it is peculiar and special kind of problem.

For the psychological aspect, when people go to a doctor they generally expect him to give them something or do something for them. They generally have a letdown feeling if the doctor doesn't or they go away saying, "He didn't do anything for me. He just talked to me." Or, "He just said I should lose weight". Or "He told me to quit smoking". Or whatever.

The fact of the matter is that, with leg cramps, as you now know, the best treatment often is something that the patient can do for himself.

Likewise often a combination of things, (all simple luckily) will work when no one thing, employed alone, will succeed as well.

It is nearly impossible to get this group of ideas across, conversationally, without some factors being forgotten. Thus in this problem, a little booklet happens to be the most efficient way of transmitting the information.

One final point: Maybe you didn't get relief from your doctor's medicine, but it may have helped more than you realize just by being part of your treatment.

Skim through the booklet again and note that I stress the importance of using all the possible helpful factors, including medication when needed.

To receive a copy of the booklet, send 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 196, Dundas, Ill. "Leg Cramps and Foot Pains.")

Dear Dr. Molner: I read that cod liver oil is good for a person. Can one take it at any age? Will it cause high blood pressure? Will it make one put on weight? — Mrs. A. R.

I won't hurt you in any of those respects, but dismiss from your mind the idea that any special substance, including this one, is automatically good for you. If you aren't getting enough Vitamin D in your system, cod liver oil is a good source of it. That's why it or other fish-liver oils are given to babies. But if you aren't lacking in Vitamin D to begin with, cod liver oil won't just be a waste of your money.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a person expelled a tapeworm will another develop? What can be done to make sure he won't be any more? — X

Segments of tapeworms can break off, in which case the remaining portion continues to grow. Vermifuges (drugs to attack such parasites) are very effective but must be used under medical supervision.

Strictly Personal
Motherhood Ideal Needs Examination

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One answer to the population explosion is, of course, more effective birth control methods, and better information about these methods to the people who need it most.

Another answer however, that is neglected in most discussions of the subject is the necessity for changing attitudes toward motherhood on the part of many women.

Many women have children through accident or ignorance; but many more have children because it is considered the thing to do, the acceptable role for a wife. They do not want a child as much as they want the idea of a child.

A woman whose heart is not in it should not be encouraged to have children. Yet, while on the one hand we deplore the constant rise in population, on the other hand we scorn those seen to regard as childless a woman is an object of pity or scorn.

Many mothers — too many — did not really want children; this can be seen from the way they like a story-book child; purely obedient, to be put away in a box when the mother is tired of playing with it; not a real child, with a runny nose and torn socks and a sassy tongue and an insatiable desire for attention.

When we talk about the population explosion, we must start thinking about the under-developed countries in the Far East. Not many know that the rate of population growth in the last decade in the U.S. is greater than that of Japan, and about as large as that of India.

True, we can "afford" children more than they can; but our contribution to the problem of space and food supply for the whole world of the future is as substantial as theirs. Moreover, we have access to birth control information and techniques that are lacking in under-developed lands.

One of the principal reasons we have not availed ourselves of these techniques as fully as possible has been our social emphasis on "security for all wives." Many women are motivated by this sentimental fiction into having more children than really want and cannot really handle.

The emotional consequences to such children, of course, are most damaging. A small child is the most rewarding of creatures if one knows how to love it in the right way, and the most taxing if one does not. The common belief that every woman is "naturally" a good mother is as fallacious as thinking that every piano can make good music.

There are people who should not marry, and there are married couples who should not have children. Contraception is one way to reduce the population swell, but it will not succeed until the only women who have babies are those who want the substance and not just the symbol.

At the close of the final meeting of the city council for 1914, Mayor J. J. Wannamaker thanked the members of the council, the officials and several friends at a banquet which was served at Hotel Quinte. The affair was a thoroughly enjoyable one.

The new uniforms for the intermediate hockey team have arrived. The colors are gold and green and it is worth the price of admission alone to view the handsome scarlet.

Mr. W. N. Ponton, K.C., has been chosen to deliver the opening lecture of the year to the law students at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, on January 6.

Puts Rollers Beneath Puck

Ottawa Journal

A Saint John, NB, man has invented a hockey stick and puck with rollers on them to enable boys to play a realistic game of hockey in the laneway. He is a bachelor and says he doesn't have any kids.

This may be a boon for young boys but someone we wonder if half the fun of Autumn hockey wasn't the crazily bouncing ball. Sure we remember, it made for a lively game, bruised shins were kept to a minimum, and there was no difficulty finding a boy to play in goal—not so with a hard puck flying around.

If putting rollers on hockey sticks makes games last any longer, parents should be pleased, but let's hope they don't succumb to more street-hockey. The day when the streets were safe for "shinny" have gone forever, sadly.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Buyers scrambled for shares of gold mining companies on the stock exchange today. Trading in the golds was active while the rest of the market was quiet.

The 15-stock gold index, a measurement of the group's health moved to a record reading of 182.41 with a gain of 6.52. Dome led the way ahead with a gain of 2 to 44, a 1964 high. Other issues at peaks for the year were: Campbell Red Lake up 1¾ at 82, Giant Yellowknife up 1¼ at 18¾ and Dickenson up 10 cents to $6.30. Other gains included Kerr Addison up three at $2.80 and Aumor up 15 cents at $4.50.

Golds have been popular for some time, with numerous explanations offered. One popular idea is that investors are speculating that the price of the metal will increase from its fixed level of $35 (U.S.) at once.

Additionally, golds are traditional havens for defensive money—that is money of investors who feel that the industrial market is due for a severe setback.

Industrials edged forward. CPR tacked on ¼ to 39¾, Bank of Montreal ¼ to 67 and Algoma Steel ¼ at 67¼.

Base metals and western oils took insignificant index losses as stocks moved in small fractions up or down. The base metal index fell .03 to 72.29 and the western oil index .14 to 92.02.

Speculative trading was light. Norbean and Consolidated Marcus were ahead five cents each at 52.70 and 78 cents respectively. McWatters eased one to 73 cents.

INDEXES UP

On index, industrials' were up .68 to 164.18 and the Exchange Index .25 to 153.30. Volume at 11 a.m. was 834,000 shares compared with 857,000 shares traded at the same time Tuesday.

In the market Tuesday golds also provided all the excitement. The rest of the market was trendless.

The gold index, a 12-stock barometer of the group's health, climbed 4.48 to a record 178.29.

Dome led the section higher with an advance of 1 to 42. Campbell Red Lake was up ¼ to 79¼, Giant Yellowknife ¼ to 17, Preston 50 cents to $6.75 and Macassa 25 cents to $2.80.

McWatters, in speculatives, fell four cents to 74 after briefly spurting to a high of 89

Tighter Stock Control in '65?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The surge in buying of speculative stocks that hit Canadian stock exchanges in 1964 may have set in motion events that could see tighter controls being prepared in 1965.

Sparked by a public outcry after the sudden rise and fall of a score of stocks, culminated by the collapse of shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. in July, three official investigations were launched in Ontario. Their reports are to be available for possible action during the new year. One is directed by the Ontario Securities Commission and another by the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The third, equipped with wide-ranging powers to look into how speculative issues can be promoted, who was involved in various dealings and to make recommendations aimed at preventing future occurrences, is an Ontario royal commission under Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Although the Vancouver Stock Exchange saw flurries of speculative excitement, most of the action developed in the Toronto, Montreal and Canadian exchanges and the Canada Gulf Sulphur Co. announced in April it had struck a massive copper, zinc and silver ore body near Timmins.

Value of the find has been put at 50,000,000,000.

SET TRADING RECORDS

On two days, April 17 and 20, the Toronto exchange handled more than 3,000,000 shares each session—far exceeding the previous North American record of 16,400,000 shares traded in New York during the 1929 crash.

Prices of shares of companies with property in the Timmins area, the area around which said they were looking for properties there — doubled and tripled almost as secretaries, housewives, clerks and office boys mobbed brokerage offices.

Most prices fell just as quickly, leaving speculator with losses and brokerage fees hundreds of thousands of dollars. Explorations, Bankeno Mill, Paramaque Ixiex, Glenn Uranium, Bellekerne —those names were on every one's lips during the peak of the excitement but were almost forgotten by the years end.

Windfall rose to a high of 5.80 a share from about 60 cents on rumors and made a major find near Timmins, remained highly priced for three weeks while rumors swirled and investors waited—then fell $3 in one day after company president George MacMillan said no significant strike had been made.

Despite the investigations, however, analysts agree the speculative market is still alive and ready to run on a flock could occur any day, although repeated warnings about the possible dangers have come from some brokerage houses, stock exchanges and government officials.

ISSUE WARNING

Elsewhere in the markets, analysts look for a continuation of the general strength shown in 1964—but several warn there could be a downturn during the last six months of the new year.

One suggests technical factors alone could be enough to slow the markets' advance after the summer.

The market is not responding to the good news we have had lately such as increased earnings, dividends and capital expenditures."

Another says, however, the schedule of increased capital spending planned for 1965 should be a bulwark for the economy.

"I'm looking for a better first half in 1965 and a lower second half, possibly a return to current levels or below."

VOLUME UP — Trading volume on the Toronto Stock Exchange during 11 months of 1964 was 1,227,000,000 up from 805,151,414 during 1963. Graph traces volume of shares since 1951. (CP Newsmap)

Many analysts attributed the strong showing of major industrial issues during 1964 to the steady stream of cheerful corporate news and to the leadership given by the New York exchange.

They were surprised, however, by the strength industrials had during the height of the speculative fever. Usually the higher - priced shares suffer from neglect during a penny rush.

The market faltered briefly in November, apparently reacting to international finance fears raised by Britain's sterling crisis. After four weeks of lower prices, however, a recovery set in and analysts said the market had turned back from a possible serious drop.

Gold shares took off to rare heights as the year ended, spurred by a report of the U.S.-based National Planning Association—a private group of business and labor leaders—recommending an increase in the price of the yellow metal.

Canada's six exchanges traded a total of about 1,900,000,000 shares in 1964 with a total value of $4,180,000,000, Lt.-Gen. R. D. Graham, president of the Toronto exchange, estimated.

GROWTH GOOD

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Civil Aviation Organization said today 1964 showed the highest rate of air traffic growth since 1955. ICAO, a United Nations affiliate, said in a press release figures show its 107 member airlines carried 156,000,000 passengers in 1964, an increase of 16 per cent over 1963.

New Evidence In Slayings Ready for Court

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A federal grand jury reconvening here Jan. 11 will get new evidence if it again probes as expected the midsummer killing of the three civil rights workers in Mississippi.

Government sources confirmed Tuesday existence of the new evidence, but declined to elaborate on it.

Federal District Judge Harold Cox, in an order filed in court Tuesday, directed the 23-member grand jury to report Jan. 11 to "further investigate such matters as shall be presented."

The grand jury is the same one which met at Biloxi in October and heard evidence in the case compiled by the FBI. The jury, which includes one Negro, declined then to return any indictments in connection with the killings.

Cox's order made no specific mention of the slaying. However, the U.S. Justice department earlier this month asked him to reconvene the jury to investigate the killings. The judge's order noted the reconvening was "requested and recommended by the U.S. attorney for the southern district of Mississippi."

The FBI arrested 21 persons Dec. 4 on charges arising from the killings but the charges were dropped when U.S. Commissioner Esther Carter of Meridian refused to accept the alleged confession as evidence at a preliminary hearing.

PLAN SHIELD

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will be shielded by bulletproof glass and a quarter - inch steel plate when he views the inaugural parade on Jan. 20 — the first such protective device ever used at a U.S. presidential inauguration. Officials also are considering protecting the chief executive with bulletproof glass in the inaugural stands on the Capitol's east steps.

300 Million Dollars Spent On Ont. Highways in '64

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton said Tuesday only 318 miles of the 1,453 miles of the Trans-Canada Highway in Ontario remain to be brought up to Trans-Canada standards.

During 1964 reconstruction of 62 miles was completed, with work well advanced on another 63 miles, Mr. MacNaughton said in a year-end report. Most of the work was in Northern Ontario.

During the year the highways department spent almost $300,000,000. Of this, $141,500,000 was for new construction, $47,000,000 for maintenance and $112,450,000 for road subsidies to municipalities.

The department completed 400 miles of new pavement and more than 60 highway structures in 1964.

Mr. MacNaughton said that 37 miles of new lanes opened in Ontario Highway 401 between London and Tilbury left only 20 miles of two - lane highway along the 401 route through western Ontario.

Grading had been completed over the 20-mile stretch and most of the granular base had been laid, Mr. MacNaughton said. An early start could be made on paving in 1965.

STRETCHES 518 MILES

Highway 401 now stretches for 518 miles from Lancaster, near the Quebec border, to Windsor.

Outlining other achievements the highways minister said paving of the 316-mile-long Kaladar Lake causeway east of Fort Frances was completed and the 85-mile extension of Highway 11 between Attikokan and Fort Frances would be in service by the spring of 1965.

An eight-mile section of the Sudbury-Timmins highway was finished and 46 miles of "roads to resources" were completed in the north, Mr. MacNaughton said.

By the end of 1965, an additional five miles of the Toronto bypass of Highway 401 will have been widened to 12 lanes. In St. Catharines a part of Highway 405—a freeway linking Welland with the Queen Elizabeth Way at St. Catharines — should be completed by the end of the year.

North of Orillia another 31½ miles of Highway 11 should be widened to four lanes by the end of the year.

Executive's Smooth Line Not the Office Problem

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our office is what you might call a real swingin' little group. It turns out that four girls, including myself, have been played like crazy — one against the other — by a junior executive. He is tall, dark, handsome and has the morals of an alley cat. He is also loose of lip.

When I came to work here several months ago I fell for the heel and nothing I saw or heard discouraged me. I knew he was dating three other girls in the office and I knew, too, he was blabbing his success to the other executives. I thought surely he'd be discreet about me because I'm the only girl who had not been married.

Well, we four girls had lunch today and compared notes. The dirty dog has been using the same line on all of us — right down to the romantic phrases and pet names. We'd like to fix his clock. Any ideas? — DISTRESSED QUARTETTE.

DEAR QUARTETTE — What do you mean fix his clock? His clock seems to be working just fine. He's been making very good time with all you dumb Doras. Never mind his clock, girls. Fix your own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am sitting up here in my room and this is where you'll be able to find me every evening for the next two weeks. What did I do that was so awful? Well, I got home from a date Saturday night one hour and 10 minutes late.

It so happened Dick's gas gauge went halfway and we ran out of gas 15 miles from town. We were supposed to be double-dating with my cousin and we actually were, but we decided to take a little ride after we dropped my cousin and her date off, Nick and I were alone when we ran out of gas. He is the cornfield. By the time I got home my folks had called my aunt and uncle, the morgue, the police station and the hospitals.

Please print my letter and tell parents that cars are machines and they do break down once in a while and to be reasonable! — JAILBIRD.

DEAR BIRD — Parents break down, too — especially when their kids aren't home when they should be. Every day in the year some teen-ager is killed in an automobile accident, and every parent lives with this fear.

Responsible teen-agers are considerate. They don't do impetuous and foolish things like driving 12 miles out of town when the evening should be over. Sweat out your sentence, Toots, and learn from the experience.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please print this for Canadian Cook's spouse — the louse:

Your head must be as thick as your mother's by-guess-and-by-gosh dumpling. The wife of yours who follows the cook book is a jewel in the culinary diadem. I'll bet there are no secret failures between her stove and the garbage collector.

Perfect cooking is simple chemistry. The same ingredients baked at the temperature for a given length of time will produce the same results consistently.

Junior had better quit telling his wife about the miracles his mother performed in the kitchen with her tasting and guessing. Logic tells us twice so. — AN ANN FAN.

DEAR FAN — Junior's family only saw the successes. Mother never served the failures, but I agree with you, she must have had several.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Poinsettia Plants Can Be Kept For Several Months

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Poinsettia plants received as Christmas gifts may last for many months with proper care, says a federal agriculture department horticulturist.

A. R. Buckley of the department's plant research institute gives this advice on the care of poinsettias and other potted plants which are often received during the holiday season:

Poinsettias: This traditional Christmas plant should be kept well watered until all the leaves have dropped, then removed to the basement and kept entirely dry until April.

Then you should cut the stems back to six inches and start the plant into growth by watering it and moving it to a bright room.

In June, plunge the pot outside in a shady corner of the garden and keep the plant growing all summer. Bring it in before frosts and be careful that it is never exposed to artificial light.

Mr. Buckley says Christmas plants should be kept as cool as possible when they are inside and flowering.

"Except for poinsettias, do not allow them to dry out completely, but withhold water gradually. Plunge outside in the summer in a semi-shady place.

"It is better to plunge the whole pot into the soil but make sure a bed of gravel or ashes is placed at the base for easier removal in fall. Keep the plant well watered all summer, just as though they were still in the house."

Azaleas: Keep these well watered and growing until the flowers are gone, then water sparingly the rest of the winter. Keep them in a light, sunny window, however, and do not relegate them to the basement.

In spring, plunge the pots outside and keep the plants well watered. Bring them in after a few heavy frosts, about the end of November or early December.

Fibrous Begonias: "Give these plants a fair amount of light and they will flower incessantly throughout the year. Pinch the tops off tall shoots to encourage branching and more flowers."

Lady Mac Begonias: These are the large-flowering variety, so smothered in bloom that their round leaves barely show through. "After flowering, discard them, for they are very hard to grow without a good warm humid greenhouse."

Mr. Buckley says any attempts at bringing them through the winter will meet with failure. They are usually grown from leaf cuttings in a very warm, humid atmosphere.

Christmas Peppers and Jerusalem Cherries: Keep these in a sunny window and at a cool temperature of 60 to 65 degrees. Once the leaves drop and the fruits wither, save some fruits and discard the plant. It is better to treat these as annuals and start afresh from seed each spring.

Chrysanthemums: These may be watered sparingly after flowering, removed to a basement window until spring, and then divided and planted out in the garden.

The kidds sold in florist shops are mostly late-flowering types, and will not be early enough to flower outside in the garden. You may put them in the fall before frost and bring them indoors. Make sure they are placed where there is no artificial light.

WOMEN OF THE YEAR — Judy LaMarsh (top left), Canada's Health Minister, is Canada's woman of the year for the second successive year. Chosen in the annual Canadian Press Year-End poll of women's editors of Canadian newspapers, Miss LaMarsh was also named the most newsworthy woman in 1964. Petra Burka (top centre), Toronto figure skater, was chosen woman of the year in sports. Simma Holt (top right), a reporter for the Vancouver Sun, was chosen in the literature-art category for her book about the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect. Maureen Forrester (bottom left) of Montreal and Lois Marshall (bottom centre) of Toronto tied in the music category. Kate Reid (bottom left) was chosen woman of the year in the acting poll. Judy LaMarsh Is Canada's Woman of the Year For Second Successive Time

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Judy LaMarsh, a bit more mellowed and a little less controversial, is Canada's woman of the year for the second successive year.

Women's editors of Canadian newspapers; radio and TV stations also picked the outspoken minister of national health and welfare as the most newsworthy woman in public affairs.

The Niagara Falls member of Parliament nosed out Charlotte Whitton, defeated in her bid for a fifth term as Ottawa's mayor, in both categories in a Canadian Press year-end poll.

Winners in other categories:

Sports—Petra Burka, Toronto figure skater.

Literature and Art—Simma Holt, Vancouver author and newspaper woman.

Music—Singers Maureen Forrester of Montreal and Lois Marshall of Toronto (tied).

Stage, Radio and TV-Actress Kate Reid of Toronto.

QUIETER YEAR

For Miss LaMarsh, 1964 was a quieter year than 1963, her first in the Pearson cabinet. That was the year she caught the headlines by leading a Liberal "revolt squad" which followed John Diefenbaker during the election campaign, tangling with Quebec Premier John Robarts over pensions and making a moderately successful effort to set an example for the public by stopping smoking.

Her major move in '64 was to bring the long-awaited Canada Pension Plan legislation before Parliament in November. It was approved in principle, then sent to committee for detailed study, and awaits final passage by the Commons.

Her department also organized the 15-member Consumers' Advisory Council composed largely of representatives of women's organizations to advise the government, from the consumer's point of view, on matters in the food and drug fields.

Though less inclined to do battle with opposition politicians, Miss LaMarsh still made interesting copy from time to time. She had an audience with the Pope and raised the possibility of a visit to Canada.

She told a reporter that at 39 she still cherishes every girl's dream of getting married and having a family.

She was absent from the Commons for several weeks during the spring because of a back ailment. But this incapacity didn't deter the Ontario Judo Black Belt Association from making her an honorary black belt and giving her a Japanese name — Ju-ri Rama-Rushi.

Ju-ri means "imperishable intelligence," Rama means "delicate gown," and Rushi means "exerts willpower."

In choosing Petra Burka as woman of the year in sports, women's editors were in agreement with sports editors who had previously selected her No. 1 in the CP sports poll.

The 19-year-old miss won the Canadian figure-skating championship and captured third-place bronze medals in the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and the world championships.

Two other Olympic competitors were tied for second in sports — Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., 19 - year - old shotput and discus thrower, and Dianne Gemse of Trail, B.C., Olympic high jumper.

Simma Holt, widely travelled Vancouver Sun reporter, was chosen in the literature-art category for her recent book about the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, Terror in the Name of God.

Both contralto Forrester and soprano Marshall, who shared first place in music, made successful European tours during the year and enhanced their international reputations. Forrester, wife of conductor Eugene Rasb, took time out from singing to give birth to her fifth child, a daughter, in December.

For Miss Reid it was the third time she had been rated first in the acting poll. She won good notices on Broadway when she played opposite Sir Alec Guinness in Dylan, a play about the late Welsh poet Dylan Thomas. She is due to return to New York early in 1965 to appear in a Tennessee Williams double bill.

Remove from heat and add salt and soaked gelatine, stirring until gelatine dissolves. Add cooked fruit mixture to gelatine mixture with vanillé. Stand in pan of cold water to cool to consistency of soft jelly with occasional gentle stirring. Beat cream until stiff, then cut and fold gelatine mixture lightly but thoroughly into it. Turn at once into pudding mould — a melon shape is traditional — of 6-cup size, rinsed in cold water. Cover and chill until set. Unmould on serving dish. This is often garnished with macaroons and glace fruits.

The Embarrassment of Breaking an Heirloom

DEAR DORIS —I accidentally broke a crystal goblet, an heirloom, loaned for a table setting display at our fair. We immediately started shopping to replace it, but no luck. We phoned the owner and while she was gracious, I know she felt badly. She only has three of them left.

We thought of buying a half dozen of another pattern, but thought that would be extravagant and embarrassing for her. I finally bought her a pretty scarf, as a way of saying I was sorry. Now, will this woman of means be offended by my gift? What would you do? — CLUB WOMAN.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CLUB WOMAN—This isn't the first time one of the lady's heirlooms has been shattered, you may be sure, and she knew she was risking something when she loaned it.

Since she is a gracious person, she will appreciate anything you do. But how about trying to find an heirloom-type item, which would carry out the spirit of the thing? An expensive gift might indeed be embarrassing; but gift shops and antique dealers often carry attractive small pieces.

DEAR DORIS — I am over 17 and quite small for my age. My mother died five years ago and my father remarried. I had a while ago she has been hospitalized and the girls are trying to run everything. They are both under 13. If I do or say anything to them they go and tattle on me and I get into trouble. They often exaggerate.

They want me to leave but since I have nowhere to go I cannot. I do not go out with boys and I am quite shy. Please help me. — FULL OF TEARS.

DEAR TEARS — Little girls resent the bossing of older girls, even when it's Big Sister who does it.

Try a new tack. Try teaching them a new game you can all play; or helping them with their homework. Love comes first, both ways, and you can set the example. You need one another.

Susanna's Family Fare

OVER AND OUT

Dear Susanna: When it comes time to carry that tired old Christmas tree outside again, you might like to try my method. It's the same one I use for bringing it in, in the first place.

The idea is to bundle the tree up in two large sheets or blankets. Stretch the first sheet over the top, and let the ends hang down. Now bring the other one up around the tree from the middle at the bottom. Finally, fasten them together half way up with large safety pins. If it's only a little tree, then, of course one blanket will do. — Mrs. C. L. Southon

And away we go, right out the front door — no pine scratches on the walls and no sticky cones underfoot! SUSANNA

THE WETTER THE BETTER

Dear Susanna: To my mind, ironing my table linens and linen handkerchiefs while still wet (just as they come from the spin dry or the wringer) is much more satisfactory than allowing them to dry and then be dampened.

The linens have a body and shows that they do not otherwise possess.

Something else. I keep a brown and black marking pencil on hand to touch up scuffs on shoes and furniture. You'd be surprised how handy it is sometimes when you need to cover a glaring fresh mark in a hurry.

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

DEAR DOLL:

One would have thought we had hit bottom with the Beatlemania that has swept the younger generation into a wild and frenzied ses of hilarious Tuppling. It all was that repulsive view of Ringo's tonsils as he was entering hospital to have them removed, which the CBC had the bad taste to show. That was enough to disgust even a Beatle maniac.

But more chilling and appalling is a letter which came to this desk recently. There is now a fan club for a DOLL! Free membership is open to any girl, and a chapter can be formed by six or more official members of the fan club.

Chapters participate in a special fan club-sponsored program of activities including mother-daughter teas, fashion shows, and presentation of one-act doll shows. Proceeds from money-making projects frequently are turned over to charity, says this letter.

General manager of the company that makes these dolls said the idea for a fan club came about when company officials noted they were receiving increasing numbers of letters addressed directly to the doll.

"These fans," the manager said, "have tremendous age range — although the basic and most numerous age bracket is six to 12. Nowadays membership applications have been accepted from a two-year-old and a 74-year-old grandmother." (Well, really Grandma, haven't you become senile rather early — either that or you have flipped.)

This all seems pretty ridiculous — but wait.

Volume of the doll's mail has become so heavy that a special staff, headed by a graduate in social work (!) has been set up to reply to questions. All letters are signed by the doll's secretary — the only doll in the world with a full-time secretary.

Well! All I can say is that they should add a psychiatrist to the staff to deal with the knucklehead who would write letters to a doll.

What happened to the pen pal idea? If a person has an urge to write letters, communicating with another person in a different land can be fun and informative. But writing to a doll, yet? It could only be a one-way street that leads to a dead end (figure that one out!) but the implications of such a correspondence make one shudder and grow apprehensive for the future potential mothers and their offspring.

COLOR IT REGULINE

Children have colorful ways of saying things. A little girl I know used to speak of bees as "bumble knees." Another one referred to lipstick as "slipstick," and another little girl called me one day to come and "see a spider knitting himself a house."

Still another told me when she got married she was going to have five children, "all twins."

Changing Social Attitudes Ease Practices Governing Adoptions in Canada

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Laws and practices governing adoptions in Canada have changed with changing social attitudes.

At one time a 40-year-old couple without children was not allowed to adopt an infant. Today the practice is more flexible.

Until the post-war years the probation period in Ontario before an adoption was made final was two years. Now it is six months or a year and the same general situation prevails in all provinces.

"Thirty years ago people had terrible prejudices," says L. S. Richardson, director of the Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society. "They thought a child would inherit bad traits from its mother, if she were used to having a kind of guarantee with an adoptive child. We learned a lot about children during the war."

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that aspects of religious laws and practices are being reconsidered in several provinces.

In all, either law or practice dictates that a child be placed with adoptive parents of the child's religion. Usually the specified age by which observed distinction is between Roman Catholic and non-Catholic.

Local attitudes govern the degree to which other distinctions are made. In some areas, for example, a couple professing no religious affiliation may find it difficult to adopt a child.

In areas where there are no Jewish agencies, the non-Catholic community agrees with hasdic a Jewish child and try to place him in a Jewish home.

J. D. Diamond, director of the Toronto Jewish Family and Child Services agency, says this system often breaks down in practice, such as when the non-Jewish agency doesn't keep a waiting list of Jewish couples interested in adopting.

In any event, there are few Jewish children available for adoption. A Montreal agency reported only 14 last year.

Jewish groups wanting to adopt children outnumber available children. In Toronto, however, a Jewish group set up to apply to the Metropolitan Children's Aid for a child and Mr. Diamond says efforts are being made to promote this idea in other Ontario centres.

Ontario is considering a major overhaul of its Child Welfare Act which may, among other things, affect its religion rules. A 13-man advisory committee has produced a report which Welfare Minister Louis Cecile says may be presented to the legislature in January.

While stipulating that parental wishes be respected, the report recommends "that there be no denial of a good home to a child because of the religion or the lack of religion of the adopting parents."

It urges increased emphasis on preventing the breakdown of families so that children who might otherwise become wards could remain at home.

The report also recommends that the province assume legal charge of children removed by courts from their parents. They now are the responsibility of the province's 55 children's aid societies.

This proposal is part of a move to integrate and spread child welfare services, but it could also have the effect of loosening religious restrictions in individual adoptions.

British Columbia and Manitoba already have machinery to make exceptions to the general rule. A child thus may be adopted into a family of different religion providing there is written consent of the natural parent or of a court.

In Alberta a three-man committee has been set up to consider provincial adoption procedures, and the religion law may be amended with an eye to easing the problem of placing Metis children. Most of these children of mixed white and Indian blood are Roman Catholic and may now be placed only with Roman Catholic families.

In Quebec a change is being considered to make it possible for a couple in which only one partner is Catholic to adopt, provided the child is raised a Catholic. At present both parents must be Catholic.

In all provinces except Quebec, children who are taken from their parents and made permanent wards of children's aids are adoptable. In Quebec no legitimate child is adoptable except in very special cases. And Rev. Pierre Hurteau, director of a French - Catholic agency at Montreal, says he thinks a change might make it too easy to put children up for adoption instead of working to reunite families.

In '64 Many Notables Passed Into History

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The world mourned the death in 1964 of Jawaharlal Nehru, prime minister of India since she attained independence from Britain in 1947 and chief spokesman for the non-aligned nations.

"I have grave news to announce to the House and the country," Steel Minister C. Subramaniam told India's Lower House of Parliament. "The prime minister is no more. The light is out."

With the death of Nehru the heavy burden of guiding the destiny of 450,000,000 Indians—the world's largest democracy —was passed on to the smaller shoulders of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri.

Nehru died on May 27 in New Delhi after suffering a heart attack at his home. He was 74.

'BEAVER' GONE

The Commonwealth lost another of her giants with the death June 9 of Lord Beaverbrook, a Canadian-born millionaire who built a press empire in Britain.

Beaverbrook died at his Surrey home two weeks after he had been acclaimed by fellow newspaper men at a London dinner marking his 85th birthday.

Born in Ontario and raised in New Brunswick, Beaverbrook already was a millionaire when he moved to Britain at the age of 28.

Beaverbrook was elected to the Commons almost immediately after arriving in Britain. He was made a peer in 1917 and in 1918 was named to the cabinet as minister of information.

He returned to the cabinet under Winston Churchill in the Second World War as minister of war production.

AMERICAN LEADERS

Among prominent Americans who died in 1964 were former president Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Hoover died in New York Oct. 20 one month after celebrating his 90th birthday and after having suffered several serious illnesses in recent years. He rose from an engineer and became a Republican president, being elected to the White House in 1928. He was defeated in 1932 by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

MacArthur died in Washington at 84, death being attributed to kidney and liver failure.

He was supreme allied commander in the Southwest Pacific in the Second World War and headed the occupation of Japan. He led forces against the Communists in Korea until he was fired by President Harry S. Truman after a clash on policy.

IRISH WRITERS DIE

Two playwrights were among those lost by the literary world. They were Sean O'Casey, 84, who died Sept. 18 in the English town of Torquay, and Brendan Behan, who died March 20 in Dublin at the age of 41.

Born in a Dublin slum, O'Casey drew on the Gaelic God of Ireland from his feet when violent controversy erupted over his plays Juno and the Paycock and The Plough and the Stars.

Behan, a boisterous, anti-British terrorist and incorrigible rebel against authority, was a born talker of the stage, leaving a relatively small body of published and dramatized works and ending what had promised to be a brilliant rather than merely spectacular career.

The little Irishman had long suffered from diabetes and other infirmities that either arose from excesses or dictated a more austere life for survival.

Prominent women who died during the year included Viscountess Astor, a sharp-tongued Virginian who became Britain's first woman member of Parliament. She died May 3.

The world of music lost Pierre Monteux, 89, a French-born conductor whose career spanned more than a half-century with the world's great orchestras. He died in Hancock, Me., July 1.

Cole Porter, 71, the internationally - famed composer of Night and Day and Begin the Beguine, died Oct. 15 in Santa Monica, Calif., a multi-millionaire, confidant of celebrities but a man without any immediate kin.

Among royalty, King Paul of Greece, reigning monarch since 1947, died March 6 in Athens from complications that set in following a stomach ulcer operation. He was 62.

Palmiro Togliatti, 71, leader of the Italian Communist party since 1926, died Aug. 21 at Yalta after suffering a brain hemorrhage in the Crimea while on a vacation.

The entertainment world lost a number of well-known Hollywood celebrities. They included: Sir Cedric Hardwicke, a British-born actor who died in New York Aug. 6; Peter Lorre, 59, who died March 23, Gracie Allen, 58, who died Aug. 27; Eddie Cantor, 71, who died Oct. 10; Harpo Marx, 75, who died Sept. 28; Alan Ladd, who died Jan. 29; and William Bendix, 56, who died Dec. 14.

Other world notables who died during the year included Sir Beverley Baxter, former Conservative member of the London Daily Express and member of the British House of Commons; Clare Boothe Luce, 61, former U.S. ambassador to Italy; Sir Hugh Stephenson, 69, a British diplomat and author; Sir Malcolm Sargent, 68, celebrated British conductor; Sir Norman Angell, 92, Nobel peace prize winner; Sir Alexander Fleming, 66, author of the famous book on crime novels, in London Aug. 12; Secretary of State C. Vyvyan Adams, 66, Conservative member of Parliament for Leeds West; Sir Ralph Wedgwood, 66, British industrialist and member of the Wedgwood pottery family; Sir Alexander Korda, 68, Hungarian-born film producer; Sir Lawrence Olivier, 57, British actor; Sir Basil Liddell Hart, 69, British military historian; Sir Robert Menzies, 69, former Australian prime minister; Sir Ralph Richardson, 71, British actor; Sir Alexander Todd, 57, British chemist; Sir Robert Watson-Watt, 72, British radar pioneer; Sir Lawrence Bragg, 74, British physicist; Sir Edward Appleton, 72, British physicist; Sir Thomas Beecham, 82, British conductor; Sir Malcolm Campbell, 68, British auto racer; Sir Edmund Hillary, 44, New Zealand mountain climber; Sir Winston Churchill, 90, British statesman; Sir Stanley Matthews, 69, British soccer star; Sir Gerald Templer, 66, British field marshal; Sir Robert Boothby, 72, British politician; Sir Frederick Ashton, 60, British choreographer; Sir Noel Coward, 73, British playwright; Sir Jacob Epstein, 76, British sculptor; Sir Lawrence Bragg, 74, British physicist; Sir Edward Appleton, 72, British physicist; Sir Thomas Beecham, 82, British conductor; Sir Malcolm Campbell, 68, British auto racer; Sir Edmund Hillary, 44, New Zealand mountain climber; Sir Winston Churchill, 90, British statesman; Sir Stanley Matthews, 69, British soccer star; Sir Gerald Templer, 66, British field marshal; Sir Robert Boothby, 72, British politician; Sir Frederick Ashton, 60, British choreographer; Sir Noel Coward, 73, British playwright; Sir Jacob Epstein, 76, British sculptor; Sir Lawrence Olivier, 57, British actor; Sir Basil Liddell Hart, 69, British military historian; Sir Robert Menzies, 69, former Australian prime minister; Sir Ralph Richardson, 71, British actor; Sir Alexander Todd, 57, British chemist; Sir Robert Watson-Watt, 72, British radar pioneer versation Mr. Lamontagne was next minister that Mr. Denis tell him who was behind the bribe offer.

Mr. Denis had said "I can't tell you."

WOULD SEEK ADVICE

Mr. Denis had added he would seek justice Minister Favreau's advice and after that see RCMP Inspector J. P. Dupont and make a statement.

Mr. Crevier quoted Mr. Denis as saying that he should never have "got into a business like this."

Mr. Crevier said both men seemed to be "discouraged."

He said Mr. Denis would not admit he had approached Mr. Lamontagne with a bribe.

Mr. Crevier also said that Mr. Denis told Mr. Lamontagne that he (Denis) had been invited by Inspector Drapeau but that he (Denis) "had denied everything."

He quoted Mr. Denis as saying that Inspector Drapeau seemed to know quite a bit. It was at that point that Mr. Denis had said Mr. Lamontagne had promised not to say anything to anybody.

Mr. Drouin asked whether Mr. Lamontagne seemed worried about himself and Mr. Crevier said "not too much."

But, said Mr. Drouin, Mr. Lamontagne had made a reference to fleeting himself in the bottom of the river.

Mr. Crevier said Mr. Lamontagne had made a reference thinking he (Lamontagne) had informed on him.

QUOTES STATEMENT

At this point Mr. Drouin, saying it was to refresh Mr. Crevier's memory, quoted from Mr. Crevier's typed statement beginning March 4 a point that the Crevier reported Mr. Lamontagne as saying he (Lamontagne) had a duty to report the situation to Inspector Carriere.

Mr. Drouin continued then quoting Crevier as saying Rivard had said he under the impression Lamontagne had received money.

Norman Matthews, RCMP counsel, said that Mr. Crevier in his Aug. 23 report on the telephone conversation stated that Mr. Denis denied Mr. Rouleau was behind the money offer.

Mr. Matthews said there was all the difference in the world between this statement and Mr. Crevier's testimony today that Mr. Denis said he couldn't tell Mr. Lamontagne who was behind the whole affair.

Mr. Crevier said to the best of his recollection, when Mr. Lamontagne said in his opinion Mr. Rouleau was the person involved, Mr. Denis said "Pierre I can't tell you."

READS STATEMENT

Andre Villeneuve, counsel for Mr. Rouleau, read Mr. Lamontagne's statement that Mr. Denis said specifically Mr. Rouleau had not approached him.

Mr. Villeneuve asked Mr. Crevier if he now wished to make any correction or explanation. Mr. Crevier said his memories were fresher when he wrote his report. Now it is four years later.

Mr. Villeneuve then asked whether Mr. Crevier's statement to the court was true.

Mr. Crevier said "yes, absolutely."

Mr. Crevier resumed testifying after causing a brief flurry of excitement when he was late for the opening of the morning session.

When he failed to appear at the 10 a.m. opening, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court recessed the hearing briefly until Mr. Crevier showed up.

While tonight officials were on the telephone trying to locate him, Mr. Crevier arrived, apparently unaware he impressed the hearing was to resume at 10:30 a.m.

TELLS OF TALE

Mr. Crevier, 36, began his testimony Tuesday with this account of conversation between Mr. Denis and Mr. Lamontagne

He said Mr. Denis called to express his concern over an RCMP investigation into Mr. Lamontagne's allegation that his "executive friend," Mr. Denis had offered him a $50,000 bribe to help free narcotics suspect Jacques Rivard on bail.

Mr. Crevier, 36, now a special investigator with Mr. Lamontagne's firm, gave this account of the 25-minute conversation:

Mr. Denis said he remembered discussing bail for Rivard in a meeting with Mr. Lamontagne in Ottawa on the night of July 14-15, but denied he had ever mentioned a bribe.

CLAIMS 'RUIN'

"Pierre, you promised, you swore, you would not say a word to anyone," the executive assistant added. "Did it occur to you what this (the RCMP investigation) would do to my career? I am finished, I am ruined."

Cape Breton Hit by Sleet, Power Cut

HALIFAX (CP) — Freezing rain, sleet and high winds caused extensive damage to communications on Cape Breton Island Tuesday night as telephone and power poles were shattered by the combined force of the wind and a weight of sleet on wires.

The Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company said at least 105 poles had been uprooted from Inverness and northern Cape Breton, leaving four communities without telephone service.

The Nova Scotia Power Commission said about 100 of its poles were down and at least 500 customers were without power.

The sleet was accompanied by winds up to 80 miles an hour.

Heated argument broke out among the secondary school teachers after top officials of the federation were accused of revealing confidential information about members.

A motion was introduced by Mrs. Ethel Cunningham asking that no information about a teacher would be given by the federation until the teacher had been warned. It was defeated unanimously, but district representatives were told to "proved their point" by getting a motion on the floor and that it served as a "test of maturity" to federation chiefs that information would not be passed on.

In other business, the public school teachers voted to abstain, by 33 the teaching of French in elementary schools, while the 14 convent schools abstained. voted to complain to Physicians services Incorporated about a fee increase for medical benefits earlier this year.

UP ABOUT 8 PER CENT — The gross national product — the total market price of all goods and services produced in Canada — is expected to close out 1964 with a one-year increase of about eight per cent. If the preliminary estimate proves accurate, it would make it the best year since the 1956-57 boom. The GNP is expected to hit about $46,400,000,000 up from the $42,700,000,000 in 1963. (CP Newsmap)

'65: Another Boom Year?

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — If the current economic expansion lasts through the winter — but it almost certainly will — questions opposed about the general rising prosperity will round out four full years of rising general prosperity.

How much longer will it continue? Will the economy advance at the right speed to avoid imbalance? These are questions few of the experts are yet ready to answer.

The year 1964 closes out with what preliminary estimates say will be another increase of eight per cent in gross national product — the total market - price value of all goods and services produced in Canada.

If the figure proves accurate, it would make it the best year since the 1956-57 boom; better than the 1964 gains in the United States and most European countries.

But 1965 may not be quite so outstanding. Many economists see a slowing-down at the end of the year. And the consensus seems to be that 1965 will bring a growth rate of about five or six per cent.

That would put Canada's economy almost into the $50-billion-a-year class. And if it makes that plateau, it would be a whopping 33-per-cent advance over 1960, when it was $37 per cent by volume, since the upswing began in the spring of 1961.

URGES VIGILANCE

The prospects will be clearer when the Economic Council of Canada publishes its first report, probably in the first part of January. The council is expected to look ahead to around 1970.

The immediate prospects, however, are generally favorable.

But they are coupled with the kind of warnings issued in a Nov. 23 speech by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada. He said in part:

"Stable growth can be brought to be by excessive expansion of productive capacity, by speculative accumulation of inventories, or by contorting increases in costs and prices. All lead to unacceptable deterioration in our international trade and payments.

"Each of these tendencies are hard to recognize in advance, but if eternal vigilance is the price of liberty it is also the price of stable economic growth."

In a recent pre-budget brief of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce also underlined the need for "added alertness" now that the country has entered what it called "the more difficult phase . . . in the persisting battle for an adequate but non-excessive rate of economic expansion."

It . . . in the over-all posture of monetary policy, continued emphasis and timing appear at the moment to shape up as the factors of major importance," said the chamber.

NEW JOBS NEEDED

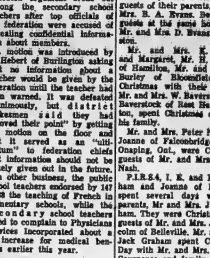
Meanwhile, some new problems have arisen and some old ones have been more sharply defined.

Here are some of them:

Unemployment — The current expansion has created about 1,000,000 new jobs. Unemployment, while down, still is about five per cent of the labor force on a seasonally adjusted basis. In the next few years this level of 700,000 is expected to swell at a rate much faster than in either the U.S. or Europe. Will the Canadian growth rate be high enough to absorb the new thousands of job-seekers?

Poverty—While the over-all statistics spell general prosperity, some 23 per cent of Canadian urban families still have cash incomes of less than $3,000 a year, compared with the $5,000 average. On the farms, one-fifth of all families take in under $2,500 yearly.

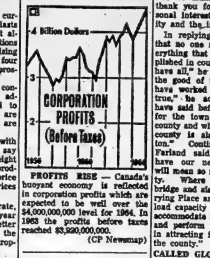
Inflation—This is viewed by most economists more as a potential danger than a current serious problem. Prices have advanced by only 1½-per-cent a year during the expansion. Compare that with a 15-per-cent climb in only one post - war year, 1947. One possible threat to prices in 1965 lies in the anticipated report on the heavy business capital investment.



Business Costs — Some businessmen are fretting about the possibility that costs may rise faster than revenues, including recent wage settlements and negotiations. Such a development would threaten the competitive position of Canadian industry. Mr. Rasminsky has underlined the need for "reflection" and carefully before doing anything likely to add to the level of business costs."

External Accounts—Last year Canada's deficit on all international accounts was $1,000,000,000 peak of 1959. But without the huge flow of capital funds to the Soviet Union, the underlying trend in 1964 was still upward. It now appears that 1964 will close with approximately the same deficit as 1963.

Canada's merchandise shipments abroad rose by about 23 per cent this year, or by some $1,000,000,000 more than last year. But Canada's share of total world trade has declined in the last decade. And while world demand is growing fastest for manufactured goods, these still make up only about 11 per cent of Canada's total exports — roughly the same ratio as in the 1920s.



Imports—They rose by about 18 per cent this year, largely in response to Canada's faster pace of capital investment. Although the 1962 drop in the exchange value of the Canadian dollar helped Canadian manufacturers to displace some imports, Canadian imports still are equal to per cent of domestic output. In 1926 the ratio was exactly the same. One part of the economy has vastly improved in recent years: the financial position of the federal government. Federal revenues and expenditures may be nearly in balance when the fiscal year ends next March 31, after seven consecutive years of deficits totalling $3,569,000,000.

This, together with political and economic factors, has led to widespread speculation that both individuals and corporations may get sizable income tax reductions in Finance Minister Walter Gordon's next budget.

CANADA IS PRODUCING MORE — The value of all goods and services produced by Canadians in 1964 is expected to be about $3,415 for each man, woman and child, an increase from $3,276 for 1963.

(CP Newsmap)

PROFITS RISE — Canada's buoyant economy is reflected in corporation profits which are expected to be well over the $4,000,000,000 level for 1964, the 1963 the profits before taxes reached $3,920,000,000.

Picton Mayor McFarland Praised For Work in Community

PICTON (Staff) — Harvey J. MacFarland, Picton's Mayor, Tuesday night played host to some 30 invited members of his past and incoming councils at a banquet in the Royal Hotel. A delicious roast beef dinner was served by candlelight at a tastefully decorated table in the hotel's main dining room. Following the dinner expressions of thanks were extended by His Worship to the outgoing council members and at official welcome was made to the incoming council. Carl P. Reid, supervising principal of Picton's Public schools opened the evening with a resume of the mayor's outstanding contributions to the town and county as a whole. On many occasions stated Mr. Reid "we have been recipients of your wonderful hospitality and we thank you. We also thank you for your deep personal interest in the community and the individual.

In replying the Mayor said that so much has been done everything that has to be accomplished in county business. "We have all," he said, "worked for the good of the county. We have worked for Picton, it is true," he added, "but as I have said before what is good for Picton is good for the county and what is good for the county is also good for Picton." Continuing the Mayor Farland said, "that we now have our new bridge which is soon so much to the county. Where the Belleville bridge and also the one at Carrying Place will be able to handle load capacity the new one will accommodate a great deal more and perform a very important role in attracting future industry to the county."

CALLED GLORIFIED SANTA

Mayor McFarland said if it were not for Christmas he felt that he could not possibly interest the new industries that he was so anxious to encourage to locate in this area. "We have had a successful year," said the mayor, "and we have pulled together we will go ahead."

In concluding his address His Worship said that the best Christmas present that he could have was to go to Proctor Silex plant and see the fine young people employed. This is good to see that so many young people not leaving their homes and seeking employment elsewhere. "I will tell everything I possibly can," he added, "to attempt to bring more industry to the area."

Fred Ward, Picton lawyer, who expressed his best wishes to the mayor for the coming year said that he had spent 21 years in the service of the town and that he had served under five mayors. "Harvey McFarland has done more since he has been in office," he said, "than all the other 14 put together. Harvey has been instrumental in bringing in Bethlehem Steel, Silex and also the new Green Point bridge. He is a real gentleman," he said, "as a glorified Santa Claus to his Municipality."

ENTERTAINED WELL

U.S. President Thomas Jefferson entertained so well, so the story goes, that in his time was said to pay off his debts.

Youth Died Of Asphyxiation Says Jury

PICTON (Staff) — A coroner's inquest into the death of 20-year-old Stewart Malloy of Belleville was held in Shire Hall, Picton, Tuesday night. Malloy was the occupant of a car which went out of control on County Road 14, two miles north of Picton on October 25. The youth was pinned beneath his 1960 model car which hit several trees before coming to rest on its roof. Malloy was pronounced dead at the scene. The jury found that Malloy died from asphyxiation and the causes of the asphyxiation were immoderate consumption of alcohol. The inquest was conducted by Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond.

per cent higher in Canada. In the U.S. it was up 5.9 per cent.

Housing construction rose 25.5 per cent in Canada between the two periods compared, and increased by less than a quarter of a per cent in the U.S.

Non - residential construction advanced by the same time span was 7.5 per cent.

Canadian exports rose 17.2 per cent. U.S. exports advanced 7 per cent.

Spending on machinery and equipment shot up by 21.4 per cent in Canada between the two six-month periods. The U.S. increase was 14.1 per cent.

All told, DBS included "final demand" in Canada as rise of 10.2 per cent compared with an increase of 5.2 per cent in the United States.

Brought to the same patter was revealed in the DBS comparison of these economic indicators between the years 1961 and 1963. The only exception was that between the two calendar years the increase in spending on goods and services rose slightly faster in the U.S. than in Canada.

Over nearly three full years ending June of 1963, corporate profits in both countries rose by about 37 per cent. However, DBS did not provide statistical comparison of profit performance into 1964, when the U.S. economy was at its peak.

On at least one score—capital investment—Canadian advance was outright that of the U.S. next year.

Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp recently forecast a 9-per-cent gain in Canadian capital investment in 1965. A private fall survey in the U.S. forecast 1965 increase there of around five per cent, DBS said.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carter, Sports Editor

The sports spotlight focussed on two widely divergent events in an otherwise dullish city and district season in 1964.

Individually John Lewis copped top honors in breaking his own Canadian record in the mid-heavy weightlifting and finishing ninth in the Olympics.

Collectively the Bay of Quinte Country Club raced ahead of the organizational pack with its brilliant success in the first "Festival of Golf." Some 400 golfers, including 64 pros took part with Frank Whibley shooting a par-shredding 67 to grab the top award. Country Club president George O'Brien earned well-deserved acceptance, his second term marking the best year in the club's history.

Incidentally four golfers sank "aces." These are Charlie Taylor, Jack Stewart, Terry McCabe and Bob Noble.

Commodore Orland Plaskston led the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club to a highly successful season. The new social atmosphere marks the club as one of the most popular restaurants in the city. The Quinte Power Squadron also had a fine year making a creditable showing at the various meets.

The Quinte Curling Club lived up to its reputation as one of the leading winter sports organizations. It enjoyed another fine season.

Attendance was junior hockey failed to shake the fans loose from TV sets and other attractions. The city club did well in its partial groupings but lost out in the semi-finals to Peterborough.

Senior baseball under a new organization, the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association, had a fair year, but petered out when lack of officials dealt it a hard blow.

The newly-formed Quinte Driving Club had an exceptional inaugural year, featuring some 18 meets. The harness racing season was featured with the new Black Diamond Cheese Stakes which carries a trophy and a purse of $1,500.

Minor sports associations had their usual good season. The minor hockey youngsters were turned back by Kingston in the first round of the OMHA playdowns. But Lionel Beatty's septet all-stars won the grand championship in the Napanee Rotary tournament.

Moira S.S. wrestlers won the Quinte COSSA title . . . BCI senior and junior and Moira junior girls finished the season unbeaten . . . Trenton High won boys' Quinte COSSA track meet . . . Moira S.S. took girls' title . . . Roy Mitchell, well-known Brighton harness driver, died from heart attack while in the sulky.

'Cookie' Leads All-Stars

NEW YORK (CP) — Four former players in the Canadian Football League were named to the American Football League eastern division all-star team today.

Leading the pack is fullback Cookie Gilchrist of the champion Buffalo Bills, along with teammates Jack Kemp at quarterback, Elbert Dubenion at flanker and Ernie Warlick at end.

Gilchrist, who lead the league in rushing during a tumultuous year with Buffalo and who paced the Bills in their 20-7 playoff victory over San Diego Chargers with 122 rushing yards in 16 carries, played at various times in Canada with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Toronto Argonauts and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Also a former Roughrider is Dubenion while Warlick and Kemp are former players with Calgary Stampeders.

Under coach Lou Saban of Buffalo, the eastern all-stars will battle with the all-stars of the western division in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans Jan. 16.

Whip Rangers 4-2 * * * * * * * Bobby Hull Gets Pair

Hawks Climb Into Top Spot With Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The trouble with having a man like Bobby Hull on your hockey team is that the rest of the players look pretty far into the background.

It took more than a one-man effort to pull Chicago Black Hawks into a tie with Montreal Canadiens for the National Hockey League leadership. But the blond speedster's scoring prowess naturally captures the imagination of the fans and overshadows the lesser achievements of some very competent players.

Hull did it again Tuesday night, scoring two goals—including the game winner—as the Hawks rolled to a 4-2 victory over the tiring Rangers in New York.

The victory gave Chicago a share of the league leadership, and the two goals put Hull near his former goal-a-game pace for the season. He now has 31 goals in 33 games.

One of Chicago's unsung heroes in the encounter with the Rangers was Hull's linemate Phil Esposito, who set up both of Bobby's goals. In both cases, Esposito shot first and Hull scored on the rebound.

The two assists he collected gave Esposito a total of 31 points and moved him into a third-place tie on the scoring ladder. That's a far cry from last season, his first in the NHL, when he gleaned only five points in 27 games with the Hawks.

Another noteworthy achievement was that of veteran Chicago defenceman Pierre Pilote, who contributed to the Hawks' victory with his first goal of the season.

Pilote has a healthy total of 23 assists, however, and the single goal put him into a sixth-place tie in the scoring race.

Tuesday night's game was the 10th victory in 11 games for Chicago, and also marked the 10th time in 11 games that the slumping Rangers have failed to win.

The New Yorkers, playing their fourth game in five nights, got off to a fast start but ran out of steam after the first period.

In the first period, they scored their two goals and outshot the Hawks 19-6. Donnie Marshall and Rod Gilbert were the New York scorers, and Bill Hay got Chicago's fourth goal unassisted at 1:11 of the third period.

SPARKED COMEBACK

The Rangers were leading 3-0 when Hull sparked the Hawks' comeback late in the first period. New York goalie Jacques Plante had saved on Esposito's shot but dropped the puck at Hull's feet and the Chicago star swept it in at 16:55.

Pilote tied the score in the second period when he took a pass from Chico Maki and drilled a 15-foot shot past Plante. Hull put the Hawks ahead to stay at 14:43 when Plante, trying to clear the puck, missed a swipe at it with his stick.

That gave Chicago a share of the NHL leadership for at least one day. Canadiens will have a chance to regain sole possession of first place tonight when they visit Toronto Maple Leafs for the only game scheduled.

Three-Year Contract With Jets

Alabama QB Offered $389,000

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Alabama quarterback Joe Namath has been offered $389,000 to sign a three-year contract with New York Jets of the American Football League, it was reported Tuesday.

In light with this kind of money, you could have bought Detroit Lions—twice—and still received $60,000 change.

The astounding offer to Namath involves the multi-million dollar pro football signing war between the National and American Football Leagues.

At the same time, another passing, Tulsa's Jerry Rhome, signed with Dallas Cowboys of the NFL although he was offered more money by the AFL's Houston Oilers.

And Georgia's All - America tackle, Jim Wilson, wound up with two contracts—one from each league.

All three cases bore the mark of the highest bidding war in pro football history.

The formal signing will take place this week-end after Alabama's game with Texas in the Orange Bowl. Namath will become football's highest paid rookie.

His contract and attendant bonuses will double the figure of the previously highest paid college graduates, both signed this year for an estimated $200,000.

They are linebacker Dick Butkus of Illinois, grabbed by Chicago Bears, and quarterback Craig Morton of California, who went to Dallas.

AFL HAS EDGE

The AFL now has a 3-2 edge over the NFL in signing competitive first - round draft choices.

Of the others picked by both leagues as first-round choices, Tennessee tackle Steve DeLong and Baylor receiver Larry Elkins signed with San Diego Chargers and Houston respectively in the AFL. The NFL's two prizes were Kansas halfback Gale Sayers, who signed with Chicago, and Indiana halfback Tom Nowatzke, who decided to join Detroit Lions.

Rhome was a future pick in both leagues and had been traded to Houston by the Jets in turn for the rights to Namath.

Where Wilson will be, however, just might be a question for lawyers to decide.

Drafted by Boston Patriots of the AFL and San Francisco 49ers of the NFL, Wilson apparently signed a contract with the Patriots on Aug. 25—the league office says it has the contract—and then signed with the 49ers after the Sun Bowl game last Saturday.

Vince Dooley, Georgia coach, said the university plans to protest to AFL commissioner Joe Foss because Wilson signed while he was still in school.

'HAD SIGNED ALREADY'

Patriots' president Billy Sullivan said: "We have notified San Francisco that we have a signed contract . . . we are assuming they didn't know we already had a signed contract."

At the other end of the signing scale, the Bears pulled off what may turn out to be the signing coup of the season in picking up undrafted fullback Brian Piccolo of Wake Forest.

Signed as a free agent Tuesday, Piccolo was missed throughout all 20 rounds of the Nov. 28 professional draft even though he lead the nation in scoring with 111 points on 17 touchdowns and nine extra points and picked up 1,044 yards, also tops in college ranks.

A comparative lightweight among ball carriers at 195 pounds, Piccolo and Bear coach-owner George Halas believe this might have been the major reason he was passed over.

But Halas figures to put a bit of beef on his bargain and play him next season at about 210 pounds, a much more respectable weight for a potential star who fumbled only one in over 400 carries during his college career.

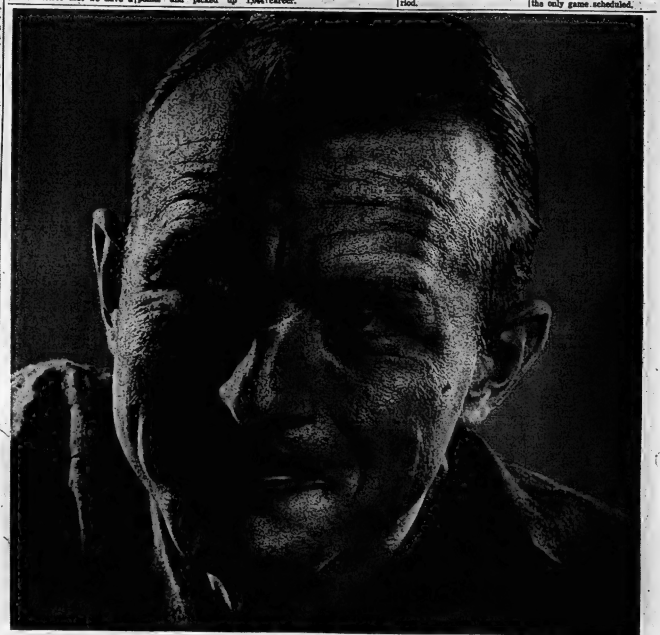
Victoria Turns Back Seattle 6-4

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Victoria Maple Leafs continued their drive in the tightening Western Hockey League race Tuesday night with a 6-4 victory over Seattle Totems.

It was the Leafs' fourth win in a row and pulled them within five points of fourth-place Los Angeles after a long term in the league cellar.

Portland Buckaroos and Vancouver Canucks stayed in position behind the first-place Totems with a hard-fought 4-4 overtime tie.



The night left Totems still with 44 points, Portland with 27, Vancouver 33, Los Angeles 31, Victoria 26 and San Francisco 23.

Larry Kennen scored twice and helped winger Ed Mazur to another in the Leafs win, watched by a crowd of 2,160, the biggest of the year in Victoria. Danny Bellisle, Rolly Wilcox and Bobby Taylor scored other Victoria goals.

Jean - Marie Cossette scored twice, Bob Barlow and Chuck Holmes once each for Seattle.

In Vancouver, Bruce Carmichael and Ron Matthews tied the count for the Canucks in the third period and the club peppered 10 shots at Buckaroo netminder Don Head in overtime, but failed to score before a crowd of 3,445.

Earlier Vancouver scorers were Dun McCallum and Dave Duke. It was Doug Mosier, Pat Stapleton, Andy Hebenton and Bill Sanders for Portland.

BC Lions 1964 Outstanding Team

—Oarsmen Second—

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Sports editors and sportscasters put the finger today on British Columbia Lions as the outstanding Canadian team of 1964. The CFL Cup champions made it easily in the 30th annual Canadian Press year-end sports poll.

The voters were intrigued by the outstanding success of the gold medal winning Olympic pair-oar team of Roger Jackson and George Hungerford and placed them second in a tight fit ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup champions the last three years.

There wasn't much doubt in the selectors' minds about the Lions, who finally went all the way after 11 frustrating years in Canadian pro football. Thirteen other teams were mentioned, but they received scant notice from the selectors.

PICKED FIRST BY 75

The final tally showed the Lions, 34-34 victors over the defending champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the late-November classic, with 224 points on 75 first-place choices, 40 seconds and 19 thirds. The 1-2-3 finishing order computed the basis of three points for a first-place ballot, two for second and one for third.

The Jackson-Hungerford pair received 180 points and the Leafs 178. Maple Leafs had 20 point totals ranged from 48 received by Jim Ready, Canadian and international curling championship rink from Vancouver to the low point total received by the Tiger-Cats and the Canadian equestrian team.

Toronto Marlboros, Memorial Cup champions and tabbed by some experts as probably the finest junior hockey club the country has known, was fifth with with 41 points. Next with 34 points was the Olympic gold medal-winning Canadian bobsled crew captained by Vic Emery of Montreal.

Others receiving votes included Canada's Olympic track and hockey teams, the summer Olympic team, the junior champion Hamilton Cubaws, Green Gaels and the senior lacrosse titleholders Vancouver Carlings and Toronto Rat York Argos, Canadian intermediate football champions.

The Lions made it almost a runaway following their play victory over Tiger-Cats who defeated them for the CFL title year earlier by taking a commanding early May 31-10 decision at Vancouver. This time, the Lions got sweet revenge and were never headed.

The pair, car and bobsled teams posted tremendous victories in the Olympics.

FIRST TIME AS TEAM

Hungerford and Jackson, University of British Columbia students, had never rowed together before the Tokyo Olympics in which they competed as members of the UBC-Vancouver Rowing Club eights but surprised a number of observers aside—a disease of the blood—in August and wasn't strong enough to row in the Games.

He then teamed with Jackson at Tokyo and won the gold medal after only a few times on the water as a unit.

The Bobsleders, with no run in Canada, had to go to the United States and Europe for practice runs before Christmas they came up with their big victory in the Austrian winter games last February.

Czechs Clip Russians' Unbeaten String

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—Penalties and the staunch goaltending of a pair of Czechs proved a key to the undoing of Russia's Olympic and world hockey champions who suffered their first loss of their North American tour Tuesday night in the international tournament.

Czechoslovakia's national team, after a hard-earned victory over pro-Red Army squad, might, trimmed the Russians 5-3 but 24 hours later to move into a first - place tie with the Soviet skaters in the double round-robin tournament.

The Russians and the Czechs each have four points based on a pair of wins and one loss. The Canadian national team, which plays Russia tonight for the second time in the tournament, is in last place with two losses and no wins.

Tuesday night's contest was a complete reversal of form for the Czechs. They were badly beaten by the Russians in the tournament's opening game Saturday night, bowing by an 8-2 margin.

ARE OUTSHOT

Although they were outshot by the Russians by a wide margin—38 to 25—the Czechs led all the way, taking a 2-0 lead in the first period and were ahead 4-3 at the end of the second period.

Baclav Nedomansky scored twice and Vaclav Nedomansky, Josef Golonka and Josef Cerny once each for Czechoslovakia while Eugene Zimin, Alexander Almetov and Vyacheslav Starshinov scored the Russian goals.

Vladimir Nadezhda, whose brilliant efforts helped defeat the Canadians 4-3 Monday night and Vladislav Tretiak, Russian the goaltending chores for the Czechs and made a total of 35 saves.

The Soviet team had come to the tournament after a tremendously successful exhibition tour in Canada where it won seven games and tied one. At Colorado Springs the Russians romped over the Czechs and Team Canada defeated the national team 5-3 Sunday night.

The Russians wind up their schedule tonight and can lose, beat the Canadians to salvage at least a tie in the tournament in which each of the three countries play each other twice. The tournament winds up Thursday with the Czechs playing Canada.

The tournament winner will receive the Walter Brown Memorial Trophy.

Tie Kitchener 6-6
Petes' Grant Scores Trio

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Danny Grant made big strides in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series Tuesday night even if his Peterborough Petes didn't.

Grant scored three goals—his first hat trick—as Peterborough tied Kitchener Rangers 6-6. His performance gave him 28 goals for the season, leaving him one behind Ken Hodge of St. Catharines and Bri Selby of Toronto.

The Petes, however, remained third in the loop in league standings with 36 points, three back of Niagara Falls Flyers and Toronto Marlboros on Canadiens 3-3 at Niagara Falls.

In the only other game, the league - leading Toronto Marlboros squeezed past Oshawa Generals 3-2 in a hard-fought game at Oshawa. The victory left the Marlboros with 41 points.

Andre Lacroix, the circuit's leading scorer, George Godoss and Gary Monahan scored the other Peterborough goals in the stalemate with Kitchener.

Ranger marksmen were Ken Gratton, Bruce Reiser, John Seseskey, Ron Harvey, Sandy Fitzpatrick and Mike Robitaille.

START STRONGLY

The Petes started strongly, skating to a 3-1 first-period lead, outscoring the Rangers 3-0 before the end of the second.

At Niagara Falls, it was a scoring power play that forced the Flyers to settle for a tie. They went ahead 2-0 after the first period on goals by Jean Prouvost and Bud Dorocby, but couldn't add to their lead in the second despite a flurry of Montreal penalties.

Jacques Lemaire and Bob Lemieux scored for the Canadiens, who hung on through the second period to outshoot Niagara Falls 15-7 in the third.

The Marlboros got past Oshawa by out-scoring them 2-1 in the third period of a goaltenders' duel. Toronto netminder Gary Bergman made 26 saves, several from point-blank range, while Dennis Gibson stopped 37 shots in the Oshawa nets.

Selby, Mike Corrigan and Neil Armstrong scored Toronto goals, Clarke getting his late in the third-period with the Generals pressing for the equalizer. Oshawa defenceman Bobby Orr scored his 18th goal of the season earlier in the period.

Saskys Name Eagle Keys Head Coach

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders named Eagle Keys as head coach today when he signed a two-year contract to head the Western Football Conference club.

The Saskatchewan coaching job became vacant when Bob Shaw resigned in the middle of a two-year contract to accept a position as head coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference.

Keys installed Shaw in guiding the Roughriders to a third-place finish in the WFC this year.

"We're extremely happy to have acquired Eagle," said Roughrider president Bob Kerner. "I'm sure he'll do a fine job for us."

"I've always wanted another chance at a head coaching job," said Keys, head coach of Edmonton Eskimos from 1958 to 1963. "But I had not considered getting an opportunity so soon."

Keys, 45, a native of Turkey Neck Bend, Ky., played his college football for Western Kentucky State before coming to Canada 16 years ago. He went to with Montreal Alouettes.

JOINED ESKIMOS

Alouettes won the Grey Cup that year, and after two more All-Star years with Montreal he joined Edmonton Eskimos.

In his three years as an offensive centre in Edmonton, he never missed the All-Star team and ended his playing career by helping Esks to their first Grey Cup championship in 1954—during the last half of that game despite a hairline fracture in his leg.

Keys returned to Edmonton as an assistant coach under Peg Ivy in the two following seasons when Eskimos made it three Cup finals in a row, and remained as assistant for three more years before taking over as head coach in 1958.

He led the club to three consecutive second-place finishes, including an upset playoff victory in 1960 over Winnipeg Blue Bombers which sent Esks to the Grey Cup. They were beaten 16-6 by Ottawa Rough Riders.

But Eskimos failed to maintain the high standard and started to decline from that point and after dismal seasons in 1962 and 1963, Keys was fired in the start of last season and replaced by Neil Armstrong.

'Orange' May Equal 'Rose'

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

While the Rose Bowl football game still is the ranking contest in which the U.S. college season, the Orange Bowl game at Miami may steal a lot of thunder from the Pasadena, Calif., classic New Year's Day.

It's not that the clash between Alabama and Texas is expected to be that great a contest, but the match may pack 'em in Miami and a lot of people would like to see how good a $380,000 player really is.

That's what the Alabama quarterback is expected to be paid by New York Jets of the American Football League if he signs a three-year contract following the game Friday.

Three other bowl games will be played in the U.S. Friday. As well as the Rose Bowl which features Michigan and Oregon State, over the Dixie line there is the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., between Florida State and Oklahoma; the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans between Syracuse and Louisiana State; and the Cotton Bowl at Dallas between Nebraska and Arkansas.

Namath injured his knee in a routine practice Tuesday, but Alabama Coach Paul Bryant says "if Namath is needed, I'm sure he will be able to play."

QUARTERBACKS CLASH

The 51st Rose Bowl game is expected to feature quarterback with Oregon State boasting Rookie of the Year Paul Brothers and Michigan looking All-American Bob Timberlake. Brothers has racked up a 1,467 yards this year, 1,045 of them in the air, and Timberlake 1,381 yards.

Brothers and his Alabama unbeaten and untied this year, has more than a fired-up Nebraska crew to contend with in the Cotton Bowl. Nebraska will turn out to avenge their final game 17-7 loss to Oklahoma and will be extra tough because of that.

In the Sugar Bowl, Syracuse will be out to defend its ranking the U.S. and may be banking on an untried halfback to do it.

Because of an injury to right halfback Ron Oyer, Coach Ben Schwartzwalder may be forced to move in quarterback Wally Mahle and go with passer Rich King at quarterback.

Gets 'Birdie' On Tee Shot

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Golfer Mike McGuire of Tampa got a birdie on his tee shot, which—for golf—is a big stiff —is pretty hard-to-figure.

Daytime Dramatic Serials Show Small Town Life

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A colleague who recently moved to the city from a small community has a theory that the steady popularity of television's daytime dramatic serials is that they are the modern housewife's substitute for big families living close together and small town life.

She may be right. Those enormous TV families of grandparents, parents, children, in-laws and cousins—all with horrendous problems — may serve as substitute relatives to worry over, gossip about and enjoy in a day when families are separated by miles and often by continents.

Perhaps some student of commodes should take a closer look at the soap opera as the closest thing a woman has today to the tall tales once shuttled across the back fence.

The list was lengthened Monday by ABC's Flame in the Wind. It holds great promise for viewers who do not find Peyton Place on a twice - a - week basis enough.

Regals Trounce Hornets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Hornets were at the top of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior heap during the weekend, but their reign was brief.

Tuesday night, the perennial league leaders, Guelph Regals, roared back to trounce the Hornets 4-0 and wind up in a first-place tie with them.

It was the 12th straight home-ice win for the Regals and the second shut-out of the season for goalie Bob Harley against the Hornets.

At Woodstock, Oakville Oaks edged Woodstock Athletics 8-7 in the only other OHA senior game of the night.

At Guelph, Ray Robb, Keith Worrall, Gerry Harrigan and Bob McIntyre shared the Regals' goals. Two were scored in the first period and the other pair in the second.

HAVE LOST EIGHT

Galt now has eight losses to Guelph's seven.

The Woodstock game went overtime when the Oaks scored two goals to end Woodstock's winning streak at five games.

Moe Galad scored half of the Oaks' eight points, Jim Donaldson counted two, including the winner, and Jack Price and Bob Bishop got singles.

Art Sullivan scored twice for Oakville and Bernie Lawrence, Toby Black, Ted Power, Gord Sampson and Bryle Klinck had one apiece.

The game left Woodstock in third place with 24 points and Oakville in fourth with 18.

Sonny Liston Charged With Drunk Driving

DENVER (AP) — A drunk driving charge was filed Tuesday in justice court against Sonny Liston, former world heavyweight boxing champion, arrested by 10 policemen Christmas Day.

Liston spent five hours in jail before his release Friday. He appeared in court Tuesday but entered no plea.

Traffic investigator Richard Lundquist said Liston, dressed in a sport coat and brown slacks, "was very polite, cooperative and had very little to say."

The state charge carries a penalty, upon conviction, of not less than one day and not more than one year in jail and a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $1,000.

The former champion was to appear in court today to enter his plea and receive an explanation of his constitutional rights. He was released on personal recognizance.

Liston was arrested after three officers said they saw him attempt to enter a restaurant parking lot through an "exit only" access. The car turned away and started down a street where the officers halted it.

They said they called for seven other officers because Liston resisted their efforts to put him in their patrol car.

Good Pictures Only Aim Of Uncensored Cary Grant

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those seeking a clampdown on movie morals will find no ally in Cary Grant.

Grant is a man of many guises. The most famous of these is the film star, impeccable, jaded, a master of technique.

But there is Grant the philosopher, and he was the one I engaged in a discussion of the coming crisis in movie morals. The news columns have been full of it, especially with the National Legion of Decency's condemnation of Kiss Me, Stupid and its charge that the film industry has failed to censor itself.

No Cary Grant movie has ever run afoul of the censors. You might expect him to side with the forces of restraint. He doesn't.

"I make my own sort of films," he said. "Films that appeal to me. If others wish to make a different kind of product I have no right to risk the public's wrath, then it's up to them."

DOES NOT JUDGE

"If the public doesn't want their product, then they shouldn't go to see it. I make no claim to know who, or what, is right or wrong, or where the precise boundaries between decency and indecency, morality or immorality. I adhere to no code without, I trust, offense to my fellow man."

Grant thinks good pictures always will make money, and that, naturally, is the kind he aims to make. As to the films that traffic in sex and violence, he makes no judgment.

"I am not so sure that if a young person sees a crime picture that he will want to go out and repeat the crime," said Grant. "On the other hand, it's very possible that by seeing violence on the screen he will be divested of the violence that is within him.

"Kids are so inhibited nowadays that they have to bust out in some way. It's much better that they do it themselves or go at a violent movie than to bust out with the cops.

"That's why the Beatles are so good for teen-agers: They put their energies by screaming at those fellows."

New Year's Eve Specials

CBC television and radio will see the old year out and welcome 1965 with music and merriment in a five-hour, night club or neighborhood party atmosphere designed to help bright-en viewers' and listeners' own celebrations. Highlight of New Year's Eve on television will be an hour-long variety special beginning at 11.30 p.m.

Host-emcee-producer Tom Kneebone, singer Patti Lewis, dancer Carlu Carter, singers Gary Buttigieg and Wanda King, guitarist Jim Pirie, trumpeter Guido Basso, with an orchestra directed by Mario Duliani, choreography by Andy Body and choral direction by Art Snider.

The national message to Canadians from His Excellency, Major-General George P. Vanier, DSO, MC, CD, Governor-General of Canada, will be presented on radio at 10.10 p.m. and on TV at 11.00.

Radio will begin celebrating New Year's Eve with a 6 p.m. EST/7.45 AST, with a Hogmanay party broadcast direct from Scotland. At End Mar. Maritimes, add one hour to following times) things will get even livelier with A. Hoods and A. Blaw for '65, as Anne Robertson and Sandy Webster whoop it up with recorded music and songs from Scotland.

Then, starting at 10.15, and continuing until 4.10 a.m., the network will continue to strike a gay, carefree note with Cross Canada Dance Party, with jockeys in CBC production centres from St. John's to Vancouver will offer dance music in a variety of moods, which will be interrupted on seven occasions so that listeners can "look in" on New Year's Eve parties across the country.

The first visit, at 10.25 is to Fort Pepperall in Newfoundland, to share the fun at a party in a joint services mess. At 10.35 radio will look in at an 816-fashioned Maritime house party. At 11.55 some Quebec celebrators will join the network. At 12.35 there'll be a visit to a party at a Danish Club in Winnipeg, where moongasbord and schnapps will share the spotlight with Scandinavian music and laughter.

At 1.55 a party in the Fall-more Hotel in Calgary will be heard from. At 2.55 listeners can share in festivities at the final New Year's Eve party in the Vancouver mess of the Irish Fusiliers, a regiment which is being disbanded. It is also hoped that there will be a broadcast from a party in Whitehorse, Yukon.

Three-Minute Mile Out Says Bannister

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Roger Bannister, the first man to run a four-minute mile, claims no one will ever run a three-minute mile.

His old school children at the London headquarters of the Royal Society of Medicine:

"I've always been intrigued by the problem of why no one can run a mile in under three minutes. But I am quite convinced no one ever will."

Bannister crashed the four-minute barrier with a time of 3:59.4 on a track adjoining Oxford University in 1954.

Now the mile record of 3:54.1 is held by New Zealand's Peter Snell. Since Bannister crashed through the barrier the four-minute mile has been broken more than 100 times.

Bannister, now a specialist in brain diseases, also maintained that the lack of oxygen at 7,000 feet above sea level would have a bad effect on performances in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

Expert Predicts Man Will Have Answer to Cancer Before He Gets to Moon

MONTREAL (CP)—Man will have the answers to the cause, prevention and cure of cancers before he gets to the moon, a leading American cancer specialist forecast Tuesday.

Dr. Joseph Gershon-Cohen, radiologist at the Albert Einstein Medical Centre in Philadelphia, said fast strides are currently about the role of viruses in cancer will produce "positive results quicker than we get to the moon."

Noting that space programs call for a trip to the moon within a decade, he said science will know how to prevent and treat virus cancers before then and use of vaccine and treatment for others.

Colleagues on a panel at the annual congress of the American Association for the Advancement of Science—men involved in research into cancer viruses — were more cautious than Dr. Gershon-Cohen.

Dr. Ludwik Gross was wary to go so far, said microbiologist Ludwik Gross of the Veterans Administration Hospital in the Bronx, N.Y. "There is no cancer vaccine around the corner. It is extraordinarily premature to advise the hopes of the public."

HAS HIS DOUBTS

However, he added that he believes all leukemia is caused by viruses, although he has no proof. "I think we'll crack it eventually," Dr. Gross said.

Dr. Jacques Miller, immunologist of Oaks University who is studying chicken tumors and viruses, said there has been great advantage but "there is a little bit too much enthusiasm about the virus."

Dr. Beard said he and others involved in studies of the virus cancer link are not yet in scientific outlook. Now the pendulum has swung the other way and caution is called for, he said.

The panel members reported in research showing the presence of identifiable viruses—minisclule bundles of life matter known as DNA or RNA in a protein envelope — in connection with tumors of the cancer type others of cancer in animals and humans.

The significance is that the viruses are present in all or most people in varying degrees and are triggered to cancer growth cers by other factors such as substances in tobacco that upset the body chemistry.

STUDY ENCOURAGING

Dr. Gershon-Cohen said the study of viruses is the most encouraging avenue in understanding cancer because the DNA structure and action of DNA and RNA—the virus carriers—are probably more advanced at less appreciated by the public, than the unlocking of atomic energy."

Once viruses are unmistakably identified as responsible for cancers, "it is natural to further predict eventual trial of vaccines for the prevention of cancer," Dr. Gershon - Cohen said. Various vaccines would have to be developed to deal with the differing types of cancer, he suggested, and some are being tried in animal now.

"Biochemical studies of nucleic acid (DNA and RNA) could lead to the discovery of means of miraculous in the control of cancer and other pathologies have proved in the control of infections," he said.

Dr. Gershon-Cohen said that while some evidence about cancer viruses is a matter for controversy, it is more important to use these theories in finding new methods of treatment than to "get into arguments about the mechanics" of cancer.

He noted that medicine has used and developed effective treatments for diseases such as small pox long before the mechanics of the diseases were discovered.

SUPPORTS THEORY

Experiments in which infectious common cold and influenza viruses produced cancer in mice supports a theory that discovery of an effective method of controlling cancer in human viruses could also reduce the incidence of cancer.

Vaccines are now being tested against experimental animal cancers at the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and Park Memorial Institute in New York and Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, N.Y.

New evidence showing relationships between viruses involved in body inflammation and those connected with tumors support the value of a new device for thermograph, for detecting cancer, Dr. Gershon-Cohen said.

The thermograph measures temperature variations throughout the body. Pinpointing an area hotter than surrounding tissue would indicate inflammation, a possible precursor of cancer.

He said the government must clean house before Parliament opens Feb. 16 if it is to win Social Credit support.

"I am a very dim view of the these charges of bribery and corruption," Mr. Thompson said. "I don't know whether they are true or not, and it is part of their concern right now."

Mr. Thompson did not specify how he thought the government should clean house, but said it should present "a true and entirely clean picture" to the public or his group could not support it in Parliament.

"How could we?"

Mr. Thompson said the government's plans, Mr. Thompson said, his party's policy would remain the same as it has been.

"What is good legislation we will support, what we think can be improved we will seek to have improved constructively. But we think is not good we will not support."

Reds Ambush Grave Detail

Viet Cong Traps Marines

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong ambushed 100 South Vietnamese marines today as they were opening graves believed to contain the bodies of four U.S. servicemen shot down as fighting continued around Binh Nghia.

A U.S. marine captain was wounded in the ambush.

The marines fought their way into a jungle area where a U.S. Army helicopter was shot down Wednesday night as it was covering marines collecting the bodies of government troops. The helicopter burst into flames and exploded when it hit the treetops.

A marine search company which reached the crash site found four fresh graves next to the wreckage, presumably containing the bodies of the helicopter's four American crew members.

South Vietnamese losses were believed to be extremely heavy.

RECAPTURE TOWN

Government troops Wednesday recaptured Bingh Nghia, a town of 6,000 Roman Catholic refugees 40 miles east of Saigon, but fighting continued around it today for the fourth day. It was one of the longest actions of the war against the Viet Cong.

The Communists also captured two Americans and wounded nine others before withdrawing into the jungle when 40 U.S. helicopters landed a battalion of Vietnamese marines to reinforce the hard-pressed government forces of Binh Nghia.

Military sources estimated government casualties at nearly 300 dead, wounded and missing.

A partial count showed at least 32 Viet Cong dead.

In another action, government troops surprised an infiltrating Viet Cong unit Wednesday at Ban Thal, 15 miles west of Saigon, and killed about 42 guerrillas.

On the political front, talks continued in Saigon between Vietnamese and military and military leaders and U.S. embassy officials, but the deadlock over the fate of the government persisted.

Boy, These Eggheads Make Us Giggle, They Can't Tell Girl Without a Wiggle

MONTREAL (CP)—The secretary who hip-swings past the boss's desk is compensating for nature's failure to make the difference in the sexes obvious enough, a student of the subject told a science congress Wednesday.

The female hip-swinging and the counterpart male swagger are sex signals adopted by the human species to guard against confusion, Palladelphia anthropologist Ray L. Birdwhistell told the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He said nature was relatively lax in doling out distinguishing male and female attributes to humans compared with the pronounced differences in the sexes of other species—peacocks and peahens, for example.

Faced with this disconcerting dearth of difference, men and women learn motions and expressions designed to signal their sex, Dr. Birdwhistell said. In other words, the manners and attire of society are associated with maleness and feminity are acquired, not inborn.

Negotiators Still Shooting For Automotive Free Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and United States government negotiators still are shooting for some degree of automotive "free trade," it has been learned.

However, sources say it still is not clear whether the ultimate solution will involve complete or partial removal of each country's tariffs on finished automobiles or parts, or both.

"There still is a great deal of work to be done," one official said Wednesday.

So far negotiations have been veiled in secrecy. There have been no ministerial statements beyond the official acknowledgment that such discussions are going on.

Published speculation varies widely.

Some reports envisage complete free trade in both autos and parts, with Canada guaranteeing a bigger share of total North American production. With the industry producing some models only in Canada and others only in the U.S., the theory goes, northern California, Idaho and Nevada, and the weather bureau predicted the storm would last through Friday.

A steady downpour hampered rescue and reconstruction efforts of 150,000 workers in the four states.

The most critical spot was in northern California's Klamath National Forest where 500 persons were cut off from the outside by washed out roads and four days of snow that has left three to four feet of pack on the ground.

Snow continued to fall in Yreka where helicopter rescue operations have been halted since Wednesday by the storm.

WEATHER A FACTOR

"If the weather keeps up we'll have a serious problem," said civil defence boss Bill Sowle. "The people in there have another week's supplies. It's still an emergency situation."

A one-lane road was opened 70 miles through the forest to the mountain community of Happy Camp, he said, but it is accessible only by four-wheel drive vehicles.

Food, gasoline, and repair equipment were taken in. Despite lack of power and drinking water the situation was termed "very good" by Sowle.

"Indications are now we will come out of this without loss of life," he said.

Many families trapped in the vast forests, innumerable valleys have asked to be evacuated, he said, but others are choosing to stick it out.

Issue Avoided At U.N.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The UN General Assembly started an 18-day New Year recess today after closing out 1964 without a showdown between the Russians' assembly vote.

The Security Council ended its year with a resolution calling for a cease-fire in Congo, withdrawal of Premier Moise Tshombe's white mercenaries and northern troops by the organization of African Unity to bring peace between Tshombe's government and the rebels.

The resolution was adopted 10 to 0—with France abstaining—after its Africa sponsors omitted condemnation of the Belgian-U.S. paratroop operation in November to rescue white hostages held by the rebels. Instead the resolution "deplored the recent events" in The Congo.

Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey announced that Jordan would serve on the council during 1965 and Mali during 1966. If the council is enlarged next fall to 15 members from the present 11 in accordance with proposed amendments to the UN charter, each will get a full two-year term.

COULDN'T GET MAJORITY

Neither Jordan nor Mali had managed to get the necessary two-thirds majority in three inconclusive "preferential" elections Wednesday and Tuesday. The three ballots went 70-37-46 and 66-47, all in Jordan's favor.

The "consultations" actually consisted of secret ballots in the president's office. They substituted for similar voting in the assembly hall, which would have brought a challenge from the United States that the Soviet Union would lose its vote under Article 19 of the UN charter. Russia owes the UN more than two years behind in assessments shall have no vote in the General Assembly. The Soviet Union is that far behind because it will not pay assembly assessments for the Congo and Middle East peacekeeping operations. The Soviet Union contends only the Security Council is empowered to start and finance such operations.

In a 14-minute assembly meeting that followed, the assembly by acclamation:

1. Endorsed the Jordan-Mali deal for the council seat.

Mounties' Lawyer Asserts Report Has No Reference To Lamontagne Incident

Says It Concerns 'Other Matters'; Publication Could Do Damage

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Dorion inquiry, now adjourned to Jan. 12, took a surprising turn Wednesday with veiled references by the RCMP lawyer to a second bribe offer.

Norman Matthews, RCMP counsel, said the force's investigation into a possible leak of information in the Mafia — connected Rivard narcotics case involves "other matters", which, if made public, could produce "very serious consequences for certain individuals."

Mr. Matthews said he has seen the RCMP report of the investigation and that it doesn't refer to "this bribe at all" or to Pierre Lamontagne.

Mr. Lamontagne, 29-year-old Montreal lawyer, has charged that Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to release on bail from Bordeaux Jail in Montreal of Lucien Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on charges of smuggling heroin for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Mr. Lamontagne has been active for the U.S. justice department which is trying to have Rivard extradited to the U.S. to face the smuggling charges.

COUNCIL INTERVENES

Mr. Matthews suddenly intervened when Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, questioned Superintendent J. R. RCMP Constable Gilles Poissant whom he first heard about a bribe offer.

Mr. Fortier had not specified the date of the July 31 bribe offer to Mr. Lamontagne by Mr. Denis.

Constable Poissant said he had heard about a bribe before Aug. 11—the day Mr. Lamontagne formally reported the alleged bribe offer to him by Mr. Denis.

The constable said he hadn't heard about the offer from Mr. Lamontagne.

Mr. Matthews jumped in when Mr. Fortier asked the source of Constable Poissant's information.

He said he had serious grounds for objecting to questions about the source of information. His instructions were to say that the answer was "no one connected with this case." IS CONFIDENTIAL

Mr. Matthews said: "This is confidential information obtained by the RCMP from sources that are considered closed and for very good reason."

He said he would submit the RCMP's secret report on its investigation privately to Chief Justice Frederick Dorion, who heads the inquiry. The "very good reason" then would

Queen Okays Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson announced today the Queen approved the flag design recommended by Parliament Dec. 24. It will be proclaimed early in January.

"The government is proceeding at once with arrangements to order supplies of the new flag for general government use from the effective date that is established in the Queen's proclamation," Mr. Pearson said in a written statement issued during the recess conference.

He did not say what that date will be but noted about six weeks must elapse after tenders for the flags are called.

To Improve Courses For Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — The incoming president of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Association said Wednesday they will be an emphasis in 1965 on improved courses aimed at keeping teachers abreast of changes.

"It is not that anyone is expressing dissatisfaction with the present level of teacher quality," said Harvey R. Wilson of Peterborough. "But we're living in an age that is changing rapidly and teachers have to keep pace."

Federal Sales Tax Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Without fanfare, the federal sales tax on building materials and production equipment will slide up to its full rate of 11 per cent Jan. 1.

It will be the last instalment on the tax introduced in Finance Minister Walter Gordon's ill-fated budget of June 13, 1963, the most perishable product of the Pearson government's first 600 days.

Originally imposed at the full 11-per-cent rate, the tax subsequently was scaled down to take effect progressively starting at four per cent, rising to eight last April 1 and to 11 per cent on Friday.

Though imposed at the manufacturing level and on imports, the cost of the tax in most cases has been passed along to consumers.

Here are some of the effects:

—Prices have risen for the taxed. Wholesale price of building materials went up about five per cent in the last year.

—The doubling of the tax rate last April 1, coupled with accelerated depreciation granted in that 1963 budget, spurred business capital investment. Spending on machinery and equipment last winter was 13.6-per-cent higher than the previous autumn.

—Federal sales tax revenues have soared. The yield in the first eight months of the current fiscal year was up to $504,900,000, about 30 per cent higher than the $394,900,000 a year earlier.

GIVES WARNING

OTTAWA (CP) — Outgoing Mayor Charlotte Whitton in a farewell message said the city is facing "the gravest financial challenge" of its existence.

Four Cabinet Ministers 'Under Cloud Of Suspicion' Says Socred Leader

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Continued criticism and suspicion in Ottawa will force an early re-alignment of political thought in Canada, Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, predicted Friday.

Mr. Thompson said in an interview that four federal cabinet ministers are "under cloud of suspicion" and the Liberal government must "clean house" if it wants Social Credit support when the House of Commons sits again Feb. 16.

He said Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is almost certain to move a motion of non-confidence in the minority government at the next session on grounds that four federal ministers are "under suspicion."

Unless Prime Minister Pearson "cleans house" before then, Social Credit will not support the government on such a motion and the government probably be defeated, Mr. Thompson said.

Should the government not "clean house," Social Credit support would mean putting the Social Credit party under a cloud of suspicion too, he added.

The party leader said an early federal election arising out of a government defeat would bring about a rapid realignment of political thought in Canada. A new "centre-right" political party would be formed.

He said political philosophies are confused . . . some front-bench Liberals are really Conservatives while others espouse views as far left as those of the New Democratic Party. Some Progressive Conservatives have liberal views.

Mr. Thompson said an election without a re-alignment would result in parties winning support on a regional rather than a philosophical basis.

The NDP would get strong support in British Columbia, Social Credit party would get support in the West, the Liberals in Quebec and the Conservatives in eastern and some western rural areas.

Mr. Thompson said he and NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, neither of whom he believed held "extreme" political views, are the natural representatives of two opposing political philosophies about which a political re-alignment will coalesce.

He named only one of the four cabinet ministers "under suspicion" — Justice Minister Guy Favreau. "I think it would be very sad if Mr. Pearson had to fire Mr. Favreau, but he does have to clarify the mess he's in."

Today's Chuckle

The trouble with today's individualists is that they are getting harder and harder to tell apart.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Some of the cold air which has been dominating the weather in the Prairie provinces for many days suddenly surged into the Great Lakes area Wednesday night. The cold air now will probably hold over this area for the next two or three days. This should result in more or less seasonable weather in southern Ontario and a return to sub-zero temperatures in Northern Ontario.

Cold Weather in West May Add To Popularity of House Parties

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An unusual New Year's Eve is shaping up for tonight in about half of Canada.

There's snow in British Columbia, the Prairies are even colder than usual, and there's a blizzard in Northern Ontario.

West Coast municipalities have been fighting—and losing battle with blizzards for about three weeks, trying to keep streets clear of white stuff that literally piles at all major points. And the snowy weather is expected to continue through the holiday.

But Vancouverites apparently won't let snow-clogged streets interfere with plans for a night on the town.

In fact, one nightclub spokesman said, "the trend seems to be toward making a bigger night of it than in past years."

Below - normal temperatures on the Prairies—15 to 30 degrees below zero in most places —are also expected to continue during the holiday and add to the popularity of house parties.

From Ontario eastward, temperatures are generally mild, but it's now the weather that's worrying many Quebec residents.

A strike at provincial liquor stores has dried up the source of champagne and at most house parties that's the drink hoisted to welcome 1965 will be filled with beer, still available at grocery stores.

Bars in Montreal and Hull, Que., report they are well stocked for the holiday, although they have to close by midnight in deference to Jan. 1, a feast day in the church calendar.

In Ontario, the night on the town is expected to be popular in larger centres. Toronto night spots have been sold out for several weeks.

In the Maritimes, house parties will again be the most popular form of New Year's Eve entertainment.

The familiar problem of how to get home after the party may be tougher to solve this year.

In Edmonton, car clubs which in past years have operated drive-home services for revellers have been advised by the Alberta Motor Association to drop the service this year.

The association said that a club member could get into trouble if he had an accident with someone else in a car and there was no insurance coverage.

Calgary police also say they are dropping their drive-home service for New Year's celebrators, and a Windsor, Ont., policeman said: "We'll drive them right to the police station."

The Canadian Highway Safety Council has estimated that at least 26 Canadians will be killed in traffic accidents from 6 p.m. Dec. 31 to midnight Sunday local times.

Railways and airlines report relatively light bookings for the holiday itself, with the greatest traffic expected for Saturday and Sunday.

Governor - general Vanier will hold the traditional New Year's Day levee in Ottawa. Provincial lieutenant - governors, municipal and episcopal figures are also expected to hold levees.

Prime Minister Pearson planned to usher in the new year at his home in the Gatineau Hills.

Another Foot of Snow Expected on West Coast

VANCOUVER (CP)—Another foot of snow is expected to arrive with the new year on the Isolated coast of West Coast.

The Gulf of Alaska is leaving a storm rated with the same potential as one that dropped 33 inches of snow here Dec. 13-14.

On top of near-blizzard conditions over sections of Vancouver Island and the mainland Wednesday, the forecast threatens to keep hard - pressed municipal crews.

One more major snowfall in this series begun two weeks ago would erase almost all records for ing monthly records here and on the Island. Vancouver International Airport has recorded 31.9 inches since Dec. 15, and many more areas within a few miles of the airport have received much more.

The U.S. weather bureau Wednesday issued long - range forecasts indicating the cool unsettled weather of high precipitation will continue for at least another month.

Snow and slippery streets continued to be a big problem. On the hard-hit north shore communities of West Vancouver for 40,000 residents, more snow will force road crews to restrict their efforts to main arteries only.

Towing firms are turning down calls from private motorists and maintaining a frantic pace covering only commercial vehicles.

Some commuters gave up the battle and moved to town, occupying 32 rooms at one hotel which cut its rates by half.

More than six feet has fallen on some parts of the 60-mile Alberni - Tofino highway reaching to the west coast of Vancouver Island, but it has been kept open by round - the - clock bulldozing crews.

The Island made good use of polar cats, produced by a chemical company in the conversion from salt water, and normally used only in manufacturing chemicals for a pulp mill.

Nigerian Separatists Make Demands

From AP-Reuters

LAGOS (CP)—The chief opposition party in the troubled Nigeria's general election pressed a demand today for a new ballot or a conference to consider breaking up Africa's most populous nation.

A spokesman for the United Progressive Grand Alliance said if a "free and fair election" was not held, a proposal to break up the Nigerian federation painlessly should be considered.

The UPGA spokesman called the parliamentary election Wednesday a "farce." It was Nigeria's first general election since becoming independent from Britain in 1960.

The boycott blocked much of the balloting in the south except for the western region, which is controlled by the ruling National Nigerian Alliance.

"We do now cast for the UPGA to become the vanguard of bringing democratic government in the federation," he said.

Of the 19 seats declared this morning, 15 were won by the National Alliance, four by the United Progressives who had called the boycott, and one by an independent.

Support Price For Eggs Will Be Continued

OTTAWA (CP)—The support price for eggs will be continued another year at the present 36-cent level, the agriculture department announced Wednesday.

Under the program, the government will continue to guarantee 34 cents a dozen on grade A large medium eggs until Sept. 30, 1965.

In the 1963-64 support year, the average price across Canada was 22 cents a dozen, resulting in deficiency payments to producers of two cents a dozen. In the previous year the national average was 36.4 cents.

The department said payments for 1963-64 egg production so far amount to about $780,000.

Forecasts do not indicate any strengthening of egg prices until the second half of 1965. Prices are expected to be down in the first quarter compared with 1964, with strengthening in the second quarter and higher prices in the summer and fall.

To be eligible for payments, producers must be registered with the board and market their eggs through registered grading stations or retail outlets. Payments apply up to 4,000 dozen per producer with a minimum payment of $2 per individual.

be apparent to the judge.

Paul Jolin, counsel for the New Democratic Party, asked the way things were going, the RCMP would be able to "accomplish everything."

Chief Justice Dorion said this aspect will be taken up at a later stage when the conduct of the RCMP is under scrutiny.

The judge said Constable Polsz said he could be asked whether he had obtained his information about a bribe offer from someone inside or outside the RCMP.

Mr. Matthews again intervened, saying "I don't want to disclose all the facts at this stage."

"The information doesn't refer to this bribe at all and it doesn't refer to Lamontagne at all," he added.

HEARD ABOUT OFFER

Constable Polsazt had heard about a bribe offer.

Chief Justice Dorion then asked whether Constable Polsazt had heard about a bribe offer from Mr. Lamontagne before Aug. 11.

Mr. Lamontagne before Tuesday, Jan. 12, at Montreal for the discovery of New Year's greetings between the judge and the battery of lawyers.

Chief Justice Dorion said there has been an excellent atmosphere of goodwill and cooperation and that he hopes this atmosphere will have to sit in the evenings or "extend indefinitely."

TELL ALL COMMISSION

Most of Wednesday's testimony concerned an Aug. 20 telephone conversation between Mr. Lamontagne and Mr. Montreal and Mr. Denis in Ottawa which Lamontagne secretary Ronald Crevier and Constable Polsazt monitored.

Briefly, 29 - year old constable also testified that he and Mr. Crevier prepared to tape Aug. 11 on a call to Mr. Lamontagne from Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montcalm, Que., and the latter's parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, but that Mr. Rouleau didn't call about 8 p.m. as expected.

Mr. Crevier, who left the RCMP Oct. 5 after 13 years' service, said Mr. Lamontagne told Mr. Crevier he feared the "Rivard gang" might put him at "the bottom of the river" in the opposing bail for Rivard.

Mr. Crevier, 36 - year - old former chief of 13 - man RCMP narcotics squad in Montreal, said Mr. Lamontagne was saying: "When some people get money and they don't deliver they find themselves in the bottom of the river."

Mr. Lamontagne had said that it was in a terrible situation because some people thought he had accepted a bribe and that these people might include Rivard himself. Unless Rivard were convinced that he (Lamontagne) had rejected the offer, his gang might attempt to get rid of him.

ASKED PROTECTION

Mr. Crevier, who joined Mr. Lamontagne's firm as an investigator after he left the RCMP, said Mr. Lamontagne had asked him to act as his bodyguard for the evening of Nov. 23—the same day that the Rivard case broke in the Commons.

There was conflicting testimony by Mr. Crevier on the role, if any, played by Mr. Rouleau.

Mr. Crevier said Mr. Lamontagne had suggested to Mr. Denis in the Aug. 20 phone conversation that the person behind the whole affair was Mr. Rouleau.

Mr. Denis had replied "I can't tell you," or something like that."

Mr. Matthews said Mr. Crevier in his Aug. 22 written report on the telephone conversation stated that Mr. Denis had declined that Mr. Rouleau was behind the smear offer.

'CAN'T TELL YOU'

Mr. Crevier then repeated that Mr. Denis had said: "Pierre, I can't tell you."

Andre Villeneuve, counsel for Mr. Rouleau, read Mr. Lamontagne's testimony that Mr. Denis had stated specifically that Mr. Rouleau had not approached him.

Mr. Crevier said his memory was fresher when he wrote his report Aug. 22 than it is now.

Mr. Villeneuve then asked whether Mr. Crevier's statement in the written report was true.

"Yes, absolutely," said Mr. Crevier.

Later, replying to the judge, the former RCMP sergeant said he drafted his report on the phone call and while questioning Mr. Lamontagne's statement to the RCMP on the alleged bribe offer.

Constable Polsazt, an 11-year veteran of the RCMP, testified that he took notes of the Lamontagne - Denis conversation on the call but that the bill had disappeared and its location was "the $64 question." He had not submitted any written report.

DISALLOWS QUESTION

Chief Justice Dorion disallowed the question by Guy Guerin, counsel for Mr. Denis, about whether Mr. Crevier had ever heard of a Crown prosecutor being slain by an underworld kingpin in Montreal.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, asked Constable Polsazt whether he had been questioned by the RCMP Dec. 4.

The constable said "yes" and Mr. Matthews immediately intervened.

The RCMP counsel said Constable Polsazt and Mr. Crevier had been interviewed during an "internal investigation" by the force which had nothing to do with the Rivard inquiry.

"The RCMP is very much concerned to ascertain where certain information leaked out," he said.

"The RCMP doesn't want that sort of thing to happen now or in the future."

The force wanted to know whether any documents were party to the leak and "numerous" persons had been questioned.

Some of the information turned up in this investigation should not be disclosed on grounds of "public policy." Certain confidential information had been gleaned from certain sources and "other matters" which the leak were referred to in the report.

Licked Cancer Claims Wayne

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie hero John Wayne, conqueror of thousands of movie bullets, was beaten by a bullet he could not conquer.

Cancer, "the big C," the paranoid all-time movie box office king said Tuesday. "That's what my doctors tell me."

Wayne refused to abide by the Hollywood code that cancer victims or other serious illness could destroy a box office image. But he doesn't smoke anymore.

"My advisers all told me that the public doesn't want its movie heroes associated with a serious illness like cancer. It destroys their image.

"I say nonsense. A half of a lot better image when John Wayne licks cancer."

National Health Plan Lacking Says Jodoin

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite great economic progress, Canada still has pockets of poverty and lacks a national health plan, President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress said today in his annual New Year's message.

Most Canadians held jobs during the year and enjoyed living standards as high as ever, he said. But despite reduced unemployment there are still areas of Canada where citizens struggle for a decent existence.

He said economists are predicting a good year for Canada in 1965.

"If their predictions are justified, then this is the time for us to move forward in social as well as purely economic matters."

We're chiming in with good wishes and grateful thanks to our kind and generous friends.

Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Sadly missed by daughter Iris with husband and daughters Glenn, Ed and Sandra, Heather and son Glenn.

MORGAN — In loving memory of Annie Wilhelmina Morgan, dear mother and grandmother, who passed away January 1, 1963.

The world changes year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never, will the one we loved,
From memory stray
Sadly missed by the family.

McGUIRE — In loving memory of Beulah Mitchell, Mrs. Arthur McGuire who passed away December 31, 1962.

You have left a beautiful memory,
And a sorrow too great to be told,
Dear to those who have known and met you,
Your memory will never grow old.
Sadly missed by daughter Vera Mennebery, husband Austin and family.

CROSS — In loving memory of a dear sister Gertrude Cross, who passed away December 30, 1962.

Sweet was the word of parting farewell,
She said goodbye to none,
The pain of parting hurts spread,
A loving voice said, "Come".
Then all was hushed and still,
The things you used to say,
I wonder if you think of me,
Without a chance to say goodbye,
You went out of sight, but not out of mind,
Sadly missed, loved, still mine;
Lovingly remembered by sister Lena and brothers Jim and Sandy.

WOOD — In loving memory of my dear husband, Joseph Wood, who passed away December 31st, 1962.

Lovingly remembered by sister Clara and brothers Jim and Sandy.

Charles A. Mott, Former City Engineer With 45 Years Of Service to City, Retires

Forty-five years' service with the city of Belleville — 29 of them as city engineer — will be ended today for Charles A. Mott, currently serving as technical assistant and consultant with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

During his long service with the city Mr. Mott has worked under no less than 28 mayors and supervised much of the early paving on Belleville streets.

Mr. Mott was city engineer from 1929 until 1958 when he was named city planning engineer and in 1961 became planning director for the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

Then with the appointment of Mr. P. J. Beavis as planning director, Mr. Mott continued on as technical assistant and consultant to Mr. Beavis.

WAR VETERAN

A veteran of World War I with service in the 73rd Battery C.F.A. and later as a signaller with the 89th Battery, C.F.A., Canadian Siberian Expeditionary Force, Mr. Mott was on his way to serve in Siberia when the war ended.

With the signing of the November 11th Armistice in 1918, the force was turned back in the Pacific and Mr. Mott received his discharge in April, 1919.

On July 2nd of the same year he entered the engineer's office at Belleville city hall as draftsman under former city engineer J. G. Mill, and from 1920 until 1929 he was assistant to city engineer Charles D. Campbell.

With his appointment as city engineer in 1929 "Charlie" Mott automatically became superintendent of Public Works, building inspector, and weed inspector.

FEW STREETS PAVED

In fact, he was alone in the city engineering department office until the next year when he was joined by Cliff Matthews, now deputy assessment commissioner in the city.

Somehow Mr. Mott found time to lay out streets for paving, install curbs, put in storm sewers and build sidewalks.

Mr. Mott recalls that only downtown Front Street, Pinnacle Street, and Bridge Street from the lower bridge to Pinnacle Street, were paved when he joined the city works department.

CHARLES A. MOTT

Many of the storm sewers in "old" Belleville were laid out and installed since 1931, Mr. Mott is a past member of the Engineering Institute of Canada; a 20-year member of the original Canadian Institute on Sewage and Sanitation and a life member of the Ontario City Engineers' Association of Ontario.

For 15 years he served on the water control advisory board of the Moira River Conservation Authority and for the past two years has been Emergency Measures Organization shielding analysis technical engineer for civil defence.

Although now retiring from city hall Mr. Mott will not bow completely out of the engineering field.

He expects to continue to do some private engineering work, but not so much as to prevent him attending up on some fishing during the summer months.

Mother, Two Daughters Die In Boston Fire

BOSTON (AP) — Fire raced through a five-story apartment building Wednesday night, killing four persons including a mother and her two daughters.

The mother — Mrs. Hanna Perry, 26—saved the life of her year-old son, Emmett Jr., by leaping from a fifth-floor window with him cradled in her arms. She died of injuries in the fall. The boy apparently suffered only smoke inhalation.

Her daughters, Betty Jane, 3, and Shelly Marie, 2, died in the blaze, as did Howard Allen, 42.

Fire fighters swarmed up ladders to rescue residents trapped on upper floors.

At least six other persons, including a fireman, were admitted to hospital for treatment.

Mr. Perry's husband, Emmett, did not learn of the fire until he returned home from work at 2:30 a.m. after the blaze had swept through.

Officials told him of the deaths. Dazed and shocked, he was taken to city hospital where he was given sedation.

Toll of White Hostages Killed Rises to 200

By ROBIN MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—The toll of white hostages massacred in The Congo rose to nearly 200 today, as survivors related new acts of horror by ruthless rebels.

An American Protestant missionary, William McChesney, 28, was among more than 30 whites butchered in a rebel rampage that began last month at Wamba, a missionary centre 250 miles northeast of Stanleyville.

Seventeen Belgian priests, including Wamba's Roman Catholic bishop, and an elderly British Protestant missionary also were killed.

Two other Belgians were bound with wire and thrown into a river at nearby Mungbere.

White mercenaries rescued more than 120 hostages at Wamba Tuesday and another 100 were found alive at Mungbere Wednesday. The mercenaries also were searching for missing whites believed hiding in the bush around Mungbere, an old Belgian trading post.

TAKEN NORTH

Other whites were reported taken north of the Sudanese frontier towns of Aba and Faradje, where the rebels are believed regrouping after government forces drove them out of Stanleyville last Nov. 24.

Survivors said they believed many of the hostages still were alive.

Some of the survivors were flown to Leopoldville Wednesday in U.S. Air Force planes. They said that the blood bath at Wamba began Nov. 28 when the rebels heard the drone of U.S. transport planes carrying Belgian paratroopers on their rescue mission to Paulis, 70 miles away.

"It was a water tragedy, it was human butchery," said a refugee.

The rebels took about 100 whites to Mungbere last weekend, survivors told the 24-man group here until, after a four-country dash during the night, the unit reached Mungbere and found all of the hostages alive.

Can of Garbage Was Burning

Belleville firefighters were called to MacKenzie Feeds warehouse on South Front St. last night.

TO BUILD SMELTER

Standard Metals Corp. of Moab, Utah, said in New York Tuesday it plans to build a $25,000,000 lead and zinc smelter at a site not yet determined. The smelter will use a process developed by a subsidiary of Imperial Smelting Co., London, that permits simultaneous refining of all metals contained in a single ore.

Council Members Concerned About Finances of Town

TRENTON — Trenton council's last meeting of 1964 was very much concerned with finances, from the passing of monthly accounts which go up into the hundreds of thousands to allowing assessment commissioner J. Allan Smith $20 with which to purchase a text book on appraisal work. Mr. Smith has embarked on a three-year correspondence course (he is paying the dues himself) and at the end of the courses, examinations passed, he will be considered a qualified appraisor. This could come in handy for the town, council decided, in voting to pay for the textbook.

Council made itself $300 by voting to sell a strip of land, adjacent to the Wesleyan Methodist Church on Dixon Drive to the church officials. There were no objections to the sale as the land is "a liability to the town," and the town will retain an easement on a 22-foot lane at the side of the church. A sewer runs through here.

Council can make itself another $300 if it manages to sell maps of the town to interested persons at 50 cents a map. The maps have been provided by Pathfinder Air Surveys, and the original cost to the town was to have been $1,250. The maps were ordered, and budgeted for, last spring. There are 3,000 of them.

Last night council voted to have Pathfinder print a mock up picture of Trenton's proposed waterfront park on the back of the map. The station will read, "Here's Trenton's Centennial Project . . . What About Your?" Pathfinder has guaranteed to send copies of the map to Canada's 100 centennial committees. This will advertise Trenton . . . and Pathfinder. Additional cost will be $100 for the printing, the total cost to $1,500. Figure it out. If the town sells its 3,000 maps for 50 cents a copy that makes $1,800. Council can't lose.

COUNCIL SAVES MONEY

Council saved itself $4.08 a month by accepting the tender of Trent Caretakers for 1965 at Centennial Park and Memorial office. Cost to the town per month will be $161.50 . . . last year the same company received $164.58 a month for the same service. Other firms tendering were Lorne Ketcheson (Larry's Cleaning Service) and $195. (Superior Maintenance Service).

By accepting the B. W. Fowlers' tender of 14 cents a gallon for the furnace oil and other oil for the 20,000 gallons supplied annually to heat the municipal office, the town hall, the firehall and the community centre, council will (itself) another 4 cents as the same company charged 14.4 cents last year. The unit water inspector, Allores, wanted 14.1 cents a gallon.

Council also voted to permit Trenton taxpayers to save themselves money by purchasing pre-payment tax certificates. If these are purchased between Jan. 1 to Jan. 15, two per cent will be given off the "last end"; from Jan. 16 to Feb. 1, two percent. One company received $164.58 one and a half per cent; from Feb. 16 to March 1, one per cent.

For $70. a week, council voted to secure the services of Mrs. Dorothy Hall of 25 Dundas Street, as yard clerk for the town sheds. Mr. Onyette, the most suitable of the applicants in the opinions of clerk comptroller O. W. Larry and town engineer Lorne Ketcheson "improve himself during a three months' period. Mr. Aldersey will report on his work on April 1.

Mr. Aldersey wasn't being drawn into council's financial complications, as when he was called last night to look over hydrants, calculated by the utility commission at $475, he said, "I don't know . . . he'd never bought one".

WILL PIPE IN BOWL

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)— The pipes and drums of the Black Watch Regiment from nearby Camp Gagetown left Wednesday to keep a New Year's date at the New Orleans Sugar Bowl football game. The 90-piece band will play at the game between Syracuse University and Louisiana State.

Town Officials Thanked by Mayor, Council

TRENTON — Trenton's mayor, D. James MacDonald, and Councillors Weaver, Todd, Graham, McDonald, Gould and Burtt exchanged New Year's greetings last night and also extended best wishes to press representatives and town officials at last night's last meeting of the year.

A number of the councillors announced their intention of attending the New Year's levees at the air station and some of them will accept the invitation of the Trenton Rotary Club to attend the Jan. 4 meeting at which Robert Temple, MP for Hastings South will be guest speaker. All plan to attend 1965 council's inauguration at 11 a.m. that same day. The ceremony will be held in the town hall over the police station and the public is welcome.

ASKED TO PHONE

Trenton council has asked the public, (through the medium of the press) to telephone the Trenton utilities office, when burnt out street lights are observed.

Granted, says council, the utilities workmen do most of their work in daylight hours, they can't be expected to know when street lights burn out, unless they're told.

Council will ask the PUC to install adequate lighting on North Murray Street, from Sidney Street to Reid Street; on Reid Street from North Murray to Roscoe Ave.; on Princess Street from Byron Street to Sidney Street. (Late changes — says Councillor Edward Todd); and on a section of Flindall Street.

Miron-Wiggers Gets Contract For New School

TRENTON — Trenton council and Miron - Wiggers has submitted the lowest tender for the construction of the new V. P. Carswell elementary school on North Byron Street in Trenton.

Trenton Trenton Public School Board at a special meeting last night awarded the contract to low bidder subject to approval by the Ontario Municipal Board and the Ontario Department of Education. The tender price was $212,910.

Preliminary work on the new school project is expected to get underway early in the new year with a September completion date expected. A playroom-auditorium will be incorporated in the new school.

The school is being named after Mr. V. P. Carswell, supervising principal for Trenton public schools for many years.

The Miron - Wiggers tender was the lowest of three tenders received. The others were T. A. Andre of Kingston, $244,117, and Eastwood Construction of Peterborough, $227,777.

Councillor Weaver Makes Few Comments Before Bowing Out

TRENTON — Councillor Gerald A. Weaver, bowing out of municipal politics at the year-end meeting of Trenton council last night, had a few "comments" to make about the local newspaper, the Trentonian.

The councillor said, in effect, that in many instances the Trentonian staff did not "report the news—it attempted to "make the news."

As a case in point, the councillor referred to a front page article which appeared in the paper last-spring, which information he reckons that a petition against re-routing Highway 33 along Water Street had been signed by 1,000 persons. Council had suggested the re-routing, and a Department of Highways engineer had investigated the possibility.

Councillor Weaver said he had gone to the editor and asked to see the petition, but that the editor and the reporter who wrote the story had refused as they had only been told such a petition was in existence. "Bosh," he said, "reporter and editor nor the writer could guarantee that even 100 names appeared on such a petition."

"I looked for a retraction to this story," said the councillor, "but I failed to find one."

Councillor Weaver charged that the newspaper had intimated that certain people determined to get political control over the Trenton Police Commission when Attorney General Wishart had been asked to replace an out-of-town magistrate by a local appointee to the commission.

Councillor Weaver produced at Dec. 21 Globe and Mail article announcing the appointment of the former mayor to the Sault Ste. Marie commission. The Soo is Attorney General Wishart's home town.

"The Attorney General granted his home town, the same thing he had refused Trenton", said the councillor.

Then, said Councillor Weaver, when the 1964 council had suggested moving Fraser Park to Bayshore Park — making a better park of the latter and providing a space for downtown parking in the former — the newspaper had come out with an editorial which said, in effect, that council had "lost" its real newspaper, the Trentonian.

Three Youths Are Injured As Car Upsets

TRENTON — Three youths escaped with minor injuries when their car overturned on the road Wednesday evening. The incident took place on Highway 33 on the eastern outskirts of Frankford.

Taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital were Terrance Conlin, Lewis of Trenton, with back and possible internal injuries. Paul Barr, 18, of Trenton, received minor lacerations and was later released. Driver of the car and former Trenton resident was 17-year-old Ronald Hubbard of Montreal, who received minor injuries.

The 1964 car was a total wreck after leaving the road, hitting a highway sign, striking several "boulders" and rolling over several times before coming to rest on its roof. . . .

Ronald Hubbard and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hubbard, are spending the holidays with relatives in Trenton, and he said oncoming car lights on the sharp bend temporarily affected his vision. After hitting the brakes, the car swerved onto the wet gravel and into the culvert.

Sidewalks Need Attention

If out of sight is out of mind, then the Christmas thaw may provide us with some desirable protection against one of our more annoying municipal problems being overlooked when the city fathers make their New Year's resolutions.

The thaw has made certain that all the potholes in our streets and all the cracks in our sidewalks are in plain view as the Old Year comes to an end.

This is certainly something which should be remedied in 1965, at least in part.

In saying this, we do not mean to slight what has been accomplished. Taken as a whole, we think the city's streets and sidewalks are in better condition than they were a decade ago, and during that period the City Council and its works department has had to face the difficult task of bringing roads and sidewalks in annexed areas up to city standards.

Perhaps, we could not reasonably ask for more than has been accomplished.

Now, though, it is time to turn our attention back to the down-town area and to resolve that, instead of working so hard to stay in the same place, some improvements of a more lasting nature will be made.

In the business district both sidewalks and roads need attention, but particularly the former.

There has been some worthwhile work done on the streets themselves, and with the removal of the railroad tracks from Pinnacle Street and the paving of that street next year, there will be a further important improvement.

Unfortunately, while this work has been going on on the streets, and while the annexed areas have been getting street lights, storm sewers, paved roads and sidewalks, little attention has been paid to the plight of the down-town pedestrian.

He has been left to stumble along as best he can.

It is amazing how quickly sidewalks can wear out under no heavier traffic than hurrying feet. Good sidewalks are, we suggest, a mark of a well-maintained community. Too much work needs to be done for it to be feasible to undertake it all in the course of a year or two, but a start should be made in 1965 and this start should be in the down-town area, where pedestrian traffic is heaviest.

Sidewalks on Pinnacle Street, in particular, are in a disgraceful condition. This street is growing in importance as a business district, and is likely to continue to grow. Patching the existing sidewalks, in most areas, would be a waste of time and money. They need to be rebuilt — and specifications and supervision should be such as to guard against that rapid flaking of the new surface which is unfortunately seen fairly frequently with sidewalks constructed in this area by some contractors, whether the cause is the composition of the concrete, the methods used in laying the sidewalks or a tendency to continue with the work in inclement weather, but certainly some of the sidewalks built today do not seem to stand up as long as those constructed years ago.

With sidewalks, we suspect, the best are the cheapest in the long run. If all the sidewalks in the down-town area were put in proper shape, by replacing broken sections rather than merely by patching them, the works department would be able to forget about them for several years, while it proceeded to catch up with similar work in the older residential areas.

Too Smart By Half

Scientists in Houston are conducting research which, they hope, will eventually result in the development of a "smart pill."

A naturally occurring hormone produces changes in the ability of nervous system cells to retain and transmit information.

All that needs to be done is to produce this hormone artificially, in the proper doses, and, if we are not all Einsteins, we can at least talk as if we were.

These darned Texans are getting too big for their britches.

Somebody may think that "smart pills" are the ideal answer to the computer, enabling humans to spill out all the information with which they have been "processed" besides doing at least a little original thinking on the side.

This view, though, overlooks the inevitable answer of tomorrow's Junior and Sis when they get bawled out for coming home with "D" report cards.

"If you weren't too stingy to buy me 'smart pills' I would get a scholarship like all the rest of the kids."

We hate to think of the size of the bill Pop would run up at the drug store before he digests enough "smart pills" to find an iron-clad answer to that alibi.

Ottawa Offbeat
'Oom Paul Martin' Sadly Missed on the Home Front

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Shaken by charges of Mafia meddling in the offices of Justice Minister Favreau and Immigration Minister Tremblay, by the embarrassment of State Secretary Lamontagne's unpaid $6,000 furniture bill and other such political humiliations, the Government — Front and Backbench alike — has been singing the blues.

"Won't you come home, Paul Martin, won't you come home", is the theme of the lament.

They want the popular practical politician, the Secretary of State for External Affairs, "to forget," as one senior Liberal party hand so feelingly puts it, "about saving the world and, instead, do something about saving us from always falling on our faces."

Ever since the Liberals returned to uncertain power with their minority election victory nearly two years ago now, "Oom Paul," as his admirers affectionately call him, has been taking an exceedingly lofty view of things.

Politics, as such, he has disdained — except, of course, down Windsor way where nothing is too much trouble for him to keep the Grits sweet.

SHOWED 'EM HOW

In fact, so remote has Hon. Paul become — completely engrossed as he so studiously likes to appear in the infinitely more refined sphere of diplomacy — that he often seems to have "opted out" of the rude, crude, down-to-earth world of political affairs.

There are even some who suspect that Monsieur Martin, in withdrawing as a practical Parliamentary politician, does not have set an example for Quebec Premier Jean Lesage in the fine art of "opting out" of things Federally.

Big trouble with the Government has been that when Mr. Martin chose the world of international do-gooding as his special Cabbie for a year or so, accurately, had it chosen for him — and set about foreign-trading to the Commonwealth, Tanzania and other Faraway Places, nobody of any practical political know-how was left to mind the Commons store for the Government.

Paul Martin was one of the "Old Guard," a veteran of the cabinets of Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent, not much believed by the new hands, the Bright Young Men of the Pearson Cabinet, many of them, including the Prime Minister himself, former Civil servants.

There was the suspicion that he was shunted off into the Never-Never world of External Affairs to get him out of the perfect while the New Boys went about the business of running the country.

NO FOOLING

Whether or not this was so, certain it was that his public Paul has been taking his world-saving seriously enough to have stumbled on Cloud 9 many times. He is about as professional as an old political pro can get, and also long in the tooth for it. Mr. Martin has been plagued by ills. And Paul Hellyer, another of the old and experienced team, has been too busy with defence budgets and keeping the integration to mind anybody's business but his own.

So, suddenly, when the Cabinet began making a habit of failing on its face and the political roof seemed to be falling in, there was nobody around on the Government Front Benches but the New Boys, helplessly wringing their hands.

As that most independent of Liberals, Ralph Cowan, M.P., Our trouble has been that we've had too many political Eggheads and not enough practical politicians on the Parliamentary firing line."

So the big one on the Prime Minister, both within the Liberal Caucus and the National Press Gallery, is "Where's Paul?"

Paul from diplomatic affairs in the international world and put his work back here at home, attending to the party's political knitting in Parliament.

The organization men and MPs alike are singing the "Won't you come home, Paul Martin, won't you come home," song straight from the heart.

But is Prime Minister Pearson listening?

Paul Hellyer Individualist

Winnipeg Free Press

Mr. Paul Hellyer, the minister of national defence, is evidently a man who knows his rights and isn't afraid to stand up for them even when all his colleagues disagree.

In the House of Commons the other day, the Speaker announced that the National Film Board had requested permission to take photographs on the floor of the House for an educational film. He added that he had consulted the prime minister and the opposition leaders and obtained their approval, but by tradition it would require the unanimous consent of the House to admit strangers to the floor. Hansard records the following exchange, with incredulous comments from Mr. Knowles and Mr. Diefenbaker:

Mr. Speaker: Do I have the unanimous consent of the House to permit the National Film Board to undertake this photography?

Mr. Hellyer: No. I do not think photographers should be allowed on the floor of the House. I think it is quite permissible that they be allowed to take pictures from the galleries, but it would be setting a most unfortunate precedent if they were allowed to take photographs on the floor of the House while the House was in session.

Mr. Knowles: Does the minister disagree with the prime minister?

Mr. Speaker: Do I or do I not have unanimous consent? Some Hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Hellyer: You do not. Mr. Diefenbaker: I thought the prime minister agreed.

Mr. Speaker: Does the House give consent?

Mr. Diefenbaker: It is difficult to ask you a question, Mr. Speaker, but I understand that the prime minister had given his consent. I fe gave his consent. I did and the other leader did. I am sure the minister of national defence, in his own interests, would be willing to withdraw his objection.

Mr. Hellyer: No, I am not. This is a subject which concerns members of Parliament as individuals and not as individual member of Parliament I do not give my consent to having photographers on the floor of the House while the House is in session.

Brig.-Gen. Richard McDougall of the Royal Canadian Regiment commanded American forces in the Hi-Field assault against Quebec City 189 years ago today—in 1775. Montgomery had fired first, then 1,000 men for the attack which he launched in a howling blizzard. He was killed early in the battle and the operation quickly collapsed.

1857—Ottawa was chosen as the federal capital of Canada by Queen Victoria.

1916—Rasputin, the monk who dominated the affairs of the Russian court, was murdered in a dinner party in Leningrad.

First World War

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1939 — Finns announced the destruction of a Russian division following a two - day battle at Lake Kianta; R.A.F. planes bombed a number of Finnish cities; all was quiet on the Western Front after skirmishes in No - Man's-Land in falling snow.

A BUNDLE OF WISHES FOR ALL

To Your Good Health
To Banish Smoking Parents Are the Key

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a boy of 14. My parents insist that I can start smoking when I am 17 as long as I don't use cigarettes. I guess that's logical, and thinks I should, too, as it causes little strain on the teeth. (I have very straight teeth.)

I would prefer a pipe. All my friends plan to be pipe smokers because their fathers are.

Which is better for health? Is it possible for a young man not to feel sick after smoking a cigar or pipe for the first time? Are pipe and cigar smoking habit forming? — J. A.

That's a fine letter, but I'm not very happy about the idea of parents getting into such ponderous matters of policy-decision when their child is so young.

Let's answer the questions in your last paragraph:

1 — I don't much know which is better for health, pipe or cigars, but either is better than cigarettes.

2 — Sure, it's possible for young men, even those of 11 years, to smoke a cigar or pipe for the first time and not get sick. I guess that's too bad. If everybody got sick the first time not as many people would smoke. Too many parents (remember I'm a parent, too!) have used this old wheeze with the idea that it would discourage smoking. But if children, having been told this, try smoking anyway, and don't get sick, they forthwith decide that all advice they've had about smoking is wrong.

3 — Yes, pipe-smoking and cigar-smoking are habit forming. So are cigarettes, snuff and chewing tobacco. Plus a lot of other things. But I can't think of one single item known to man which has proved to be as habit forming to as many people as that one substance: Tobacco.

The trouble is that tobacco doesn't do any detectable damage at first. Most smokers don't even get sick at the first contact with it.

Going back 40 years in my memory, I remember a girl friend of mine who insisted that I can start smoking when I am 17 as long as I don't use cigarettes. That's too bad. If everybody got sick the first time not as many people would smoke. Too many parents (remember I'm a parent, too!) have used this old wheeze with the idea that it would discourage smoking. Strictly Personal Observations On the World Going By

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The person who has the power not to be vexed by trifles is mightier than the king who cannot bear it if his throne cushion is an inch askew.

The greatest test of an idea is its ability to withstand ridicule; no other weapon is so effective against sham ideas, and so futile against genuine ones.

A "successful professor," in modern academic parlance, is not one who has the great influence on his students, but one who has the least contact with them — who works for the glory of the college and for his own fame, while the students are exposed to third-rate teachers.

Hospitals should screen visitors not by the degree of consanguinity to the patients but by the temperaments of the visitors: and both extremes should be forbidden — those who are idiotically cheerful and those who are irritatingly melancholy in a sickroom.

The only activity worth giving to young writers is this: if you have something to say, don't worry about "style"; if you have nothing to say, not all the style in the world will suffice.

Not looking ahead is the vice of the stupid; looking too far ahead is the vice of the intelligent.

Most political, as well as per-so al, problems are looked upon as a matter of cause and effect, with the disputants arguing about which is which; but, as Goethe observed long ago, "The thinker makes a great mistake when he asks after cause and effect — for they both together make up the indivisible phenomenon."

Looking through the new Charlie Chaplin autobiography (which is largely a waste of paper), I was most forcibly struck by this world-celebrity's need to mention important names and prominent people, as though his acquaintance with them somehow ramified his own reputation; proving again that even the great need constant reassurance of status.

If we expect something long enough, by the time it comes it is nothing like what we expected; waiting in itself changes the character of all experience, and time is the most destructive agent in events.

A person who never contradicts himself is not consistent; he is inert.

Are people generally happier or less happy than people were in any other given age of history? Until we know the answer to this — which historians cannot tell us — it seems futile to compare historical ages.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21st, 1944

I don't think I'm spilling the beans too rashly when I tell you that some of the tartans made and sold today, and some of the conventional accoutrements of so-called "Highland costume," are purely commercial inventions. Be that as it may, if there is some silly sentimentality about the kilt and the wearing of the kilt in general, there is in Scotland a very deep - rooted sentiment about this symbol of national history. Quite early in this war it was decided officially that the Highland regiments of the British Army must go into plain battledress like the rest of the lads. In the last war, the first thing that had to be done was to cover the kilts with khaki aprons for the sake of camouflage. When our battalion went to Gallipoli, we had promptly to shed our kilts and get into khaki shorts, simply because the swish of that heavy cloth on perspiring legs set up sores, just as it did with the waterlogged trenches of the Western Front.

Dial Ignition In Jap Auto

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Those inventive Japanese have come up with an answer for all those people who are determined about hoing their car keys. They call it a "keyless" key, and it operates much the same as a telephone dial.

The "keyless" key is connected to the ignition system. If you lose your key you simply dial the ignition "on" and away you go. Of course, you have to know what numbers to dial or it is time for work. A wrong number starts the horn blowing.

We have some minor questions. Why bother with a key at all with such a system? And what happens if you dial the wrong number in your own car? Would the police understand?

Seriously, it's a clever idea. The Japanese have already signed contracts to supply the "keys" to Japanese and American manufacturers, so we may soon be able to dial our own car ignitions "on" in Canada, and throw our keys away.

Steelworkers Will Appeal Recent Judgment

TORONTO (CP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) announced Wednesday night they will appeal a recent Quebec Superior Court judgment which ordered the union to pay some $2,400,000 to Gaspe Copper Mines Limited of Quebec.

The international executive has authorized union officials to deposit security for the amount of the judgment — an amount the union said represents more than 10 per cent of all the international's net assets—with Quebec authorities in the form of Government of Canada securities to perfect the appeal.

The announcement came in the form of a press release from the Steelworkers Canadian headquarters, and attributed the decision to International President David J. McDonald of Pittsburgh.

The Gaspe court's judgment Dec. 7 came on a suit by Gaspe Copper for recovery of all profits lost during a strike by the union at the company's plant in Murdochville, Que., from March 10 to Oct. 5 in 1957.

The union was ordered to pay $1,747,645 for lost production, plus five per cent interest on the amount and about $700,000 in legal fees for the company. The judgment found both the strike and the manner in which it was conducted were illegal.

CAN'T HANDLE IT

TORONTO (CP)—A Roman Catholic priest complains that Canadians don't know how to handle their liquor. "Our culture does not teach them," Rev. Paul Connolly of St. Helen's Parish said Tuesday in an interview. "Too many people drink today to get drunk, rather than enjoy a glass of beer for its social aspect. By and large I would say that Canadians have the wrong attitude towards liquor."

Teen-Age Canada Money, Fame or Travel Aren't Even on the List

By JACK HUTTON

What are the best things that could happen to you in 1965? While you're thinking, let me suggest a few.

Money? Fame? Travel? They aren't even on the list. Read on.

1 — Let me mention healthy for without health nothing else is possible. Looking at others less fortunate, I realize how incredibly lucky I have been in 1964.

2 — May I never forget to think of the neat fellow before losing my temper or speaking too hastily. It takes a lot longer than one year to heal some wounds.

3 — May I always think of that one question I haven't answered — and the one beyond that. For deciding I know enough "to get by" is when I stop living life the way it should be lived.

4. May I develop at least one more interest, something that's not even thought of yet. Something challenging enough that I'm forced to concentrate a bit farther than I believed possible.

5 — May I read at least three books in 1965 that give me goose pimples; the sense of seeing the world or thinking about the world in a way that hadn't occurred to me before.

6 — May I meet at least three new people every month, people with ideas different from mine and experiences that challenge my own narrow ideas.

7 — May I always remember when temptations beckon that one stupid step can ruin an entire life. We can't pass by that way once so why mess it up before even starting?

8 — May I have my family wit' me in good health in 1965. And how can I ever let them know I appreciate them? There's not much you can say — although you'd like to — after they're gone.

9 — May I always remember that I am not the only other fellow who sounds less intelligent about something I've studied undoubtedly knows far more about subjects that would make me sound a dunce. And I can always learn from him.

10 — May I feel at this time next year that I have accomplished more in 1965 than I was able to do in 1964 — and that the goals will be even higher in 1966.

All those goals sound easy to you?

If you live up to half of them you're living a full, interesting life that's benefiting not only you but those around you.

And, as the man said, that's what it's all about.

PEN PALS

Project Pen Pal has acquired a new name — Project PEN, suggested by several readers of this column.

But can anyone suggest words to fit PEN? Neighbors fits the last word. What about the first two. I like that title because it's shorter but can you fill in the words.

Might be a New Year's project for you.

Let's persist reprinting this letter which came from a lady in London, Ont. regarding Project PEN. And I guarantee you won't be prepared for the punch line.

She writes: "Just about 23 years ago, I heard a speaker at the YWCA in Detroit say that girls in Hawaii liked to get letters from girls on the mainland. Many of us wrote letters to the Y in Hawaii that weekend.

"My homework must have been light because I found time to write letters to 25 other YM-CA branches in the U.S. and Canada.

"I received about 20 replies and corresponded regularly with about a dozen for two years or more. I still have contact with two of the girls and have been eating breakfast with the boy for 19 years."

How to find pen pals and a husband in three easy lessons! Incidentally, the lady adds that she never did hear from Hawaii.

Today's names are from Aggrey Memorial Secondary School, Box 199, Cape Coast, Ghana: R. B. Reindorf, Michael Tutuo, C. K. Allum, John Sosthe, Augustine Abaidoo, John Appiah, Emmanuel Andrah, Kwesio Amuah, Manford Acquash, David Adom, Benjamin Adjei, and Alex Asibley.

Have a good holiday — and a good year!

Give special attention to the headlights. Replace or repair dim reflectors, bulbs, or faulty connections. Every motor vehicle and every trailer must have a red light at the rear as well as a white light to illuminate the rear number plate.

1) Which of the following is the greatest danger when driving a small car rather than a large one?

A) You cannot accelerate as fast; B) You cannot stop as well; C) You cannot see as well, or D) You cannot be seen as well.

Negotiations

that the target is a free border trade only in auto parts.

Government officials here declined Wednesday to discuss the negotiations in any way.

QUERY GATT STATUS

One question the negotiators had hoped to have the plan settled by the new year but complications including the status of any such plan under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Prospects now are for some sort of firm announcement by mid-January.

The negotiations have lasted about six months.

Behind them is the U.S. disagreement with the existing Canadian scheme of offering rebates of $1 worth of customs duties for every $1 worth of Canadian automotive exports above the base year of 1961-62.

American parts manufacturers complained about the scheme and took their case to the U.S. commissioner of customs. When he ruled in their favor, the U.S. law would have required that imposition of countervailing duties on imports from Canada.

Though the decision has never been announced, it is understood the U.S. is prepared as a last resort to impose such duties. The Canadian government on the other hand has said it is determined to keep an auto industry motive-exports incentive.

The present negotiations seek to solve this deadlock.

Canada's object is to get a larger share of the chemical trade in cars and parts. Canada now runs an annual deficit of $400,000,000 on this trade, due to heavy parts imports.

IS MOON DAMP?

SEATTLE (AP) — Pictures taken by the Ranger VII moon probe indicate water may exist on the moon, Dr. Harold Urey, a Nobel Prize chemist, told scientists at a regional meeting of the American Geographical Union Wednesday. Signs indicating the presence of water were revealed in the structure of some of the ridges that were photographed, Urey said.

Sense of Separation Has Developed Says Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that cracks apparent in the Canadian Confederation a year ago now have widened into a crisis without parallel in the nation's history.

He said in a New Year's message that more and more Canadians are persuaded that such a great peril was allowed to develop in a short time.

"Some people were encouraged to seek a destiny for their provinces away from the main stream of Canadian development," the Progressive Conservative leader said. "A sense of separation has developed."

Political doctrines that encouraged separation were false and needed to be exposed.

He called for the prevention of "policies" that he claimed weaken Confederation to the extent that they provoke serious discussion whether Canada can survive in its present form.

"In the creation of a greater Canada, the need is for a strong, effective national government with provincial governments adequate to carry out their constitutional responsibilities.

"At the same time the full and equal rights of Confederation of the basic races must be maintained."

The country is going ahead economically, Mr. Diefenbaker said, but he claimed that the high point of economic progress in recent years was reached in 1962—when a Conservative government was in power.

He said he also shared the concern of many "that the prestige and responsibility of Parliament, in some degree, has suffered because of cynicism in high places."

TOTAL WITHDRAWAL

STOCKS FIELD, England (CP)—When thieves raided a small Northumberland post office they stole a safe. They also stole the post office truck parked outside to carry away the safe.

Pearson Thinks English-French Links Better

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today he believes relations between the English- and French-speaking founding elements have improved in recent months.

This subject—"the closest to my heart"—was one of many touched on by the prime minister in a last-day-of-the-year press conference before beginning a 10-day holiday in Florida.

He announced that the question of jurisdiction over offshore mineral rights will be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Pearson announced sweeping reviews of the immigration department.

He said a special team of outside experts will be hired to study administrative procedures in the department.

However, he saw no need of a judicial inquiry into the department, at least until Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick has made his report into deportation freedoms.

With regard to demands that he fire some ministers, Mr. Pearson told a press conference he doesn't propose to govern Canada on the basis of threats by opposition political parties to withdraw voting support for his minority administration in Parliament.

Referring to his ministerial colleagues, he said:

"I consider them all honest and honorable men and it was a privilege to work with them in the last year."

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

One frequent inquiry comes from readers who want to know if there is a legal prohibition against their selling their homes without using a licensed real estate broker.

Acting as one's own real estate agent is not against the law. It is, however, often against one's best interests.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Recently we put a homemade "For Sale" sign in our yard in hope of selling our home ourselves and saving the broker's commission.

The next day a neighbor called and told us we'd better take it down before we got into trouble, because the law says only licensed real estate brokers are permitted to sell real estate.

We don't know whether to believe her. She is the local busybody and is always predicting the worst. On the other hand she is often right. Is she right this time? — M. M. F.

ANSWER: This is an obvious case of a little knowledge being a dangerous thing. Your busybody neighbor is partially correct. For the public's protection the law does provide that only qualified licensed brokers are permitted to sell real estate for the general public (lawyers also are granted this privilege).

The law also permits, however, any individual to act in his own behalf and sell his own property. You, too, have this privilege, and needn't take down your homemade sign for this reason.

There is, however, a better reason to consider having a realtor sell your home. Experience is convincing that his greater knowledge of values and markets, his ability to negotiate on your behalf, and the array of other professional services he provides, will not only bring you a higher price but will facilitate a more rapid sale and better protect your personal interests.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have a driveway back of our house that is used by all nine of the neighbors in our block. We do not have a car. It is a nuisance to have cars cluttering up and down all night. We'd love to get rid of the driveway.

It's in very poor condition and a contractor wants $3,000 to repair it. The other nine insist we pay our share ($300) of this. Our share of what? We aren't going to use it.

My husband says tell them to "Go to the Devil!" My daughter suggests I get some advice from an expert. — (Mrs.) McD.

ANSWER: My wife insists that in writing me you are following your husband's suggestion — not your daughter's. Hoping for the best, however, I will offer some advice.

If you examine your deed, you probably will find a clause indicating that the driveway is for the common use of owners in the block, and requires their common responsibility for its maintenance.

It is my experience that this clause is almost universally present in cases such as yours.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A number of years ago I made a lucky purchase of some real estate for $5,000. I am now accepting an offer for it of $30,000. This, of course, makes me very happy. The thought of the tax bite, on the other hand, makes me very unhappy.

As a patriotic citizen I naturally am prepared to pay my taxes — but do I have to do it all at once? Isn't there some way I can ease the pain by spreading my payments out in some way? — J. L. P.

ANSWER: Your tax liability can be spread over a period of years if you sell on an installment sales contract. To qualify for this you must not receive more than 30 percent of the sales price during the first year. The balance is to be paid in installments over a designated number of years.

The profit you receive each year from this sales will then be taxed at the capital gains rate — not the ordinary income tax rate.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I follow your column and notice that many of your readers complain about real estate brokers. I would like to present the other side of the coin.

Foolishly I over-committed myself in making improvements on my home until the payments of $220 per month on my salary of less than $200 per month forced me to put my house up for sale.

The realtor I contacted advised me against giving up my home and not only showed me how I could reduce my monthly payments to $130, by refinancing my mortgage, but even made the contact at the bank for me.

If you print this it will help me repay him at least in part for his kindness, but I'd like to find some other way, too.

Could you suggest how? — D. L. F.

ANSWER: By cheque, cash or money order. A fair expression of your appreciation would be about one percent of the amount of the mortgage.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

National Council On Welfare Will Be Established

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh announced Wednesday the establishment of the National Council of Welfare as an advisory body on matters of social welfare.

An announcement from the minister's office said the council's advice will be sought "on those programs through which financial assistance is paid to the aged, the blind and disabled, and the unemployed."

Headed by the federal deputy minister of welfare who will act as chairman, and the 10 provincial deputy welfare ministers, the council also will advise on welfare services, training of welfare personnel and welfare research.

To Improve

Mr. Wilson, who succeeds Harold M. MacDonald of Sault Ste. Marie, was addressing delegates to the provincial assembly at the three-day convention came to a close. Earlier Wednesday Zoltan Veres, chairman of the teacher education program, said Ontario has almost the worst teacher training in the English - speaking world.

Mr. Veres, a Hamilton teacher and head of a group that is preparing a brief for submission to the minister of education on the shortcomings of the province's teacher training, said that "Ontario is sadly lacking in relation to the rest of the English-speaking world."

Mr. Wilson also promised delegates a conference next year to devise methods of improving the association's internal machinery. He said there will be an attempt to improve co-operation with other organizations, thereby reducing duplication.

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation also concluded its annual meeting Wednesday with a similar emphasis on questions of advancement for the teaching profession and of better quality in teaching throughout the province.

LOAD TOO HEAVY

A report introduced by Ward McAdam of Toronto, chairman of the committee on conditions of work for adequate teaching, said four of every 10 teachers are carrying a work load too heavy to allow adequate instruction.

The report also said classrooms are often seriously overcrowded — one Grade 9 student in six is in an overcrowded classroom.

Several speakers or delegates from the convention urged high school teachers to seek greater control over their own affairs by gaining recognition as members of professions such as medicine and law.

A motion was introduced Wednesday suggesting teachers' organizations be thoroughly investigated in an attempt to prevent more of the teacher's time being filled with non-teaching duties.

Phyllis Monkman of Toronto was elected federation president to succeed Thomas Latta of London. Vice - presidents elected were James McNabb of Peterborough, Charles McCaffray of Ottawa and Robert Smith of Burlington.

Elected to the board of governors were W. A. Counts, Amherstburg; R. M. McDonald, Toronto; Margaret MacLeary, Port William; John McNeil, Toronto and S. S. Kats, Ottawa.

Ann Landers

Landers' Fan Tells Readers Zany World Not Make-Belief

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a steady reader of your column and I respect your opinion. I had to laugh at the letter from the person who said he thought you made up the stuff that appeared in the newspaper because people couldn't be that loony. I, for one, can tell you it is pretty mistaken. Such situation exists right under my nose that nobody would believe if-you printed it.

Some friends of ours (two cotplegs) love to dance. They started to go to public dances together. Suddenly they discovered each other danced better with the other one's mate. So they switched.

ANN LANDERS

Right now they are just a happy bunch of nuts, getting ready to divorce each other so they can change partners for life. And get a load of this — they are looking to buy one big house so they can live together. Nobody is mad at anybody. It's just as zany as it can be. Print this as proof that people are wacky. — VERITAS.

DEAR VERITAS — So who needs proof?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My heart is broken in a thousand pieces. This evening I went shopping for my weekly supply of groceries and this is what I saw:

A little-sandy-haired boy, about 11 years old, accidentally bumped the grocery cart against his mother's knee. She let out a stream of curses and slapped the boy across the face five or six times.

As I walked out of the store tears rolled down my cheeks. What I wouldn't give if my own son had lived, and could come with me to the grocery store and push my cart. I thought, too, of the thousands of mothers who have lost little ones. I thought of the hundreds of crippled youngsters who would walk. Each one would gladly change places with that mother who so cruelly struck her son.

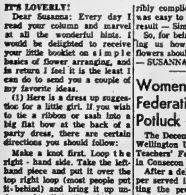
If a mother would treat her child that way in public, what does she do at home? Please, Ann Landers, print my letter. Maybe that mother — and other mothers who are equally guilty — will see themselves as others see them — R.L.

DEAR R.L. — Here is the letter. I hope it helps. I've said it before but it bears repeating — children should not be slapped across the face. A blow to the head can cause permanent damage. Moreover, the incident didn't call for a reprimand of any kind. What a pity that so many parents vent their anxieties and frustrations by physically abusing their children.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother-in-law is 89 years old and has come to our home to live for almost 20 years. She is a remarkably good health but her mind is not as clear as it once was.

We can afford a nursing home which is where she belongs, for her own safety, as well as mine. She forgets that stoves have automatic pilots and insists on lighting the burners with a paper torch. Worse yet, she is the saving-type and insists on doing her own dry cleaning. Last week she put a bottle of naptholene on the stove. I walked into the kitchen just in time to see her do it. I've begged her not to dry clean in the kitchen but she "forgets."

When I told my husband I'm scared to death that we, along with our three children may one day be blown to pieces, he gets insulted and yells, "Don't tell me my mother is nuts. She is old enough to know what she's doing."



Please, Ann, help me — PETRIFIED.

DEAR PET. — A person 89 IS old enought to know what she's doing — the fact is, she may be TOO old.

It is unfair of your husband to disregard the safety of his family because he is afraid of offending his mother. I hope one day he doesn't regret his stubbornness.

"The Bride's Guide", ANN LANDERS' booklet, give authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 40c in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IT'S LOVELY!

Dear Susanna: Every day I read your column and marvel at all the wonderful hints. I would be delighted to receive your little booklet on simple basics of flower arranging, and in return I feel it is the least I can do to send you a couple of my favorite ideas.

(1) Here is a dress up suggestion for a little girl. If you wish to tie a ribbon or sash into a big flat bow at the back of a party dress, there are certain directions you should follow:

Make a knot first. Loop the right - hand side. Take the left-hand piece and put it over the top right loop (most people put it behind) and bring it up under and pull it through. You will have a perfect bow as well as a lovely flat knot in the centre. It is especially pretty when you are using a wide piece of material.

(2) Did you know that full strength vinegar will clean rust off chrome? Try it and see. — Mrs. D. Jones

I did, and it did. Although the vinegar worked much better on light superficial rusting than on older, deeper stains. For these we had to resort to fine steel wool and a car body cleaning compound.

As for the bow, it looked horribly complicated on paper but was easy to follow . . . and the result — Simply Lovely!

So, for being a pet, and showing us how, your booklet on flowers should be there by now! — SUSANNA

'Bride Price' With Papuans Is Increased

BY RICHARD BECKETT

SYDNEY (CP-REUTER) — Papua (Reuters)—Buying a wife can be an expensive business nowadays for a New Guinea Papuan.

Inflation has hit the "market" and a wife now can cost up to 2,400 Australian (about $3,400).

The "bride price," which has been a tradition of Papua for centuries, has, with the march of civilization across the territory, increased rather than diminished in popularity.

But today's father-in-law now demand cash instead of the traditional pigs, firewood or shell necklaces.

"Bride price," in one form or another, exists throughout most of the territory. But it has reached its greatest refinement among the Papuans of the south coast of the Australian territory on the island of New Guinea.

Traditionally, the payments were made by the clan of the bridegroom to the clan of the young girl. All relatives shared in the complicated system of payments, which could go on for years.

PAY TO THE DEATH

They started at the betrothal and continued only for the marriage itself, at which a great distribution of gifts to relatives on all sides took place, but also at childbirth and often, to a final payment at death.

If the woman left her husband or no children were born of the union, relatives of her clan were under an obligation to return the "bride price."

Many white men who have married Papuan girls have also found themselves involved in the bride price system.

While they usually manage to avoid the larger payments, 500 Australian pounds is not uncommon for Australians who marry Papuan girls.

They also have discovered that, under tribal law, they will probably be expected to put housing relatives, providing food for the wife's clan, and giving occasional gifts at certain times of the year.

SOME CONSIDERATION

LONDON (CP)—On four occasions, Noel Cahill drove away taxicabs and picked up passengers — "by mistake" — without fares. It was said in his favor at his trial that he always returned the cabs to the place where he found them.

Adoption Officials Try To Provide Children Who Match Hopes of Couples

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The investigation of couples who want to adopt a child is less arduous than people might expect, adoption officials say.

"We don't make unrealistic demands," said Laura Charlesson, adoption consultant with the Ontario department of child welfare. "We look for sufficient means and someone who can give the child a good life."

Ronald Atkinson of the Roman Catholic children's aid in Toronto says there are usually at least four contacts. "We meet with the couple together, with man and wife separately, and we do look at their home but there are no unexpected visits.

"We check the financial background but are primarily concerned with meeting a minimum. If we check an employer it is with the knowledge of the parents."

"We ask for the marriage certificate, for a medical examination, for a letter from a family doctor. And we ask for four personal references.

Adoption officials, questioned in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, indicated that as far as possible they try to provide a child who matches the couple's hopes, though this may lengthen the waiting period.

EASE WITH INFANTS

When there is a child available he is described to the couple. If they're interested they see him. When an infant is involved, it is usually love at first sight, Mrs. Charlesson says people are cautious to say so if they feel the slightest qualm.

With an older child the procedure is often more complicated because the younger has a personality, a memory and probably fears.

The older child may be taken by his social worker to a store or restaurant where his prospective parents can see him but without his knowledge. If all goes well, the child will be taken to visit with them and left for a day, then overnight.

"It must be on the child's pace," says Barbara Spence, a Toronto social worker who specializes in working with older children. It is her job to get to know the children and to be a bridge from the known to the unknown.

To make things easier in the early stages she tries to tell new parents a child's likes and dislikes — things as small as whether he likes his covers tucked in, whether he prefers a night light on at night.

SAME FEARS

Miss Spence says one question is common to all parties. "The parents say, 'Will he like us?' The child says, 'Do you think they'll like me?'"

An older child, especially one who has been maltreated or moved from home to home, will probably have a stage of trying to test his new parents seeking to assure himself they really do care for him.

Social workers try to tell couples adopting difficult - to - place children what sort of difficulty to expect. They also recognize that it takes special skills to decide to adopt any children in this group.

After adoption, the social workers visit the new family to help if there are problems.

Records are sealed from parents, accelerated in most provinces in recent years, is carried on in various ways.

Many agencies run classified ads, show children on television and in newspapers. However, there is some difference of opinion about this tactics.

M. E. Batiel, director of the Saskatchewan child welfare branch, says: "We used to do advertising. We just got all the wrong kind of people. We feel the best advertising is a good, satisfied adoptive parent who talks to friends."

Rev. Pierre Hurteau of a Montreal French - Catholic agency says its approach has been to organize a public relations information program to encourage adoption generally.

CIRCULATE NAMES

Within the agencies, most provinces run what Nova Scotia calls an adoption clearance service. Descriptions of children are circulated and social workers meet to discuss individual cases. If a child cannot be placed in the area in a province a home may be found in another.

In British Columbia adoption workers are being sent into suburban and developing communities where they have not worked before. The province will place children with families outside B.C., even in other countries.

Some private organizations are helping. Montreal and Toronto have groups that concentrate on finding parents for children of mixed race. And the Ontario Catholic Women's League has been conducting a campaign to encourage adoption, an idea being copied by leagues in other provinces.

Most of the children who aren't adopted live foster homes or. if they need special care, into institutions. Orphanages are now almost non-existent except in some areas in the Maritime provinces and Quebec. "In all studies we don't think institutions," says Mary King, superintendent of child welfare in B.C. "They need a home and parents."

EX-SERVICEWOMEN
Branch No. 587

The December meeting of the Col. May Wills Branch Royal Canadian Legion was held on Monday evening in the Legion Hall in the form of a pot-luck supper.

Guests for the evening were Zone Commander and Mrs. Jack Rashotte, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hodge, Venerable Archdeacon McConnell and Mrs. A. S. McConnell, husbands and escorts of the members of the branch. At the o'clock everyone sat down to a sumptuous meal including turkey and dressing.

Election of officers followed with Janet MacDonald as president; Billie Kirby, past-president; Ina Rollins, vice-president; Kay Dalby, secretary; Dorothy Barriage, treasurer; Doreen Burnay, Sgt.-at-Arms; Clara Jamieson, Kay Poppe and Freida Maracle the executive.

Comrade Norma Powers of Bancroft was welcomed into the branch. Since there is no other ex-servicewomen's Legion Branch near her home she has decided to join this one. Comrade Powers has served as president of both all men's branch in Bancroft.

Gifts were exchanged at the conclusion of the evening. Comrade Janet MacDonald and Comrades Dick and Billie Kirby received gifts from the branch.

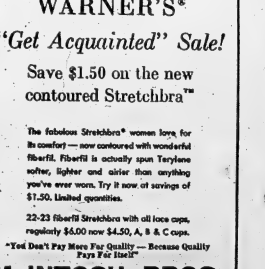
Padre McConnell of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, has again consented to give spiritual guidance to the branch for next year.

CHRISTMAS PARTY



A children's Christmas party was held in the hall on Sunday, December 20th when the branch entertained the children.

Laurie Smith showed films through the courtesy of Mr. Elmer Hardy. Christmas carols were sung with Mary Rashotte playing the piano. Santa Claus arrived in due time and gave each child a gift and a bag of candy.

VICTUAL REFLECTIONS

A custom during the presidency of Thomas Jefferson in the U.S. was to serve meals on a huge mirror made in France for the purpose.

Happy New Year With Wassail

By MARY MOORE

The precious 8-year-old son of a precious friend said to his mother "You told me you'd make me some 'wassail' this New Years Eve". Last New Years her wassail was not the type for a 7-year-old.

The two recipes for wassail I'm giving you are wonderful just as they are and young and old can enjoy them. If you want to make additions for stronger constitutions they are geared for it and it is your decision.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY
(New Years Eve)

Note: For those not having a party in your home serve Jiffy Meat Balls (see Tuesday) on Noodles; Cold Lima Bean Salad (see Tuesday); Canned Peaches; Sliced Fruit Cake; Tea.

Note: Easy supper for those having a party in your home later in evening. Turkey Soup; Crusty French Bread; Baked Apples; Cheese and Crackers; Tea.

SUNDAY

Clam and Oyster Chowder; Oyster Crackers; Assorted Cold Platter: Devilled Eggs, Sliced Goose, Salami; Pieces-lillie; Caesar Salad; Hot Crusty French Bread; Gone With the Wind Cake (see Saturday); Coffee.

FAMILY WASSAIL (serve hot or cold to approximately 15 people)

two 48-oz. cans apple juice,
2 large lemons,
16 whole cloves,
four 3½" sticks cinnamon,
¼ teaspoon powdered nutmeg,
3 or 4 tablespoons sugar.

Slice the lemons, paper-thin and add them to the apple juice with all remaining ingredients. Bring to boil and simmer 15 minutes. Strain through cheese-cloth. Fish out the lemon slices and return them to the punch. Serve hot or cold.

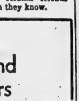
The second Wassail is a rich smooth eggnog.

FAMILY EGGNOG (Serve cold. Seven cups - serves 14 people ½ cup each)

6 eggs, ¼ cup sugar, teaspoon salt
6 eggs,
¼ cup sugar,
¼ teaspoon salt,
2 cups milk,
2 cups 18% cream,
1 teaspoon vanilla,
2 teaspoons rum flavoring,
2 tablespoons sugar (second amount),
½ cup 32% cream, nutmeg.

Separate yolks and whites of 2 of the eggs. Add the yolks to the remaining 4 whole eggs and the ¼ cup sugar and salt and beat to mix well. Stir in the milk and 18% cream and strain if desired. Stir in vanilla and rum flavoring. Beat the remaining 2 egg whites until soft peaks form, then gradually beat in the 2 tablespoons sugar until just stiff. Add to eggnog and fold in to blend well. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving stir well and pour into chilled punch bowl. Whip the 32% cream and garnish top of eggnog with puffs of whipped cream. Sprinkle them delicately with nutmeg.

It will be much earlier in Canada when it is midnight in Soest in Germany, where I will be when you read this. When the bells ring in the New Year on both continents, my family has a pact to toast one another all round, because we are so widely scattered this year. Marianne and Herbie will join me in a second toast: "Happy New Year to my column friends" many of whom they know.



Successful Living

DEAR DORIS — I left my husband in April, taking our little girls with me.

I live with my father and brother. I keep house for them and in exchange I get a roof over our heads. It's the eating, clothes and medicine, and bus fares for school, that I have trouble paying.

Is it true that if a woman leaves her husband, it's up to her to support the children, and she can't get government assistance? — IN TATTERS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR TATTERS — Not exactly. In Canada your husband is still responsible for the support of his children and yours. To get welfare assistance the authorities may require that you lay a charge of non-support in Family Court against him.

Then the judge rules on the whole case, taking into consideration your reasons for leaving, your husband's income and whereabouts, and decides about custody and regular support to be paid.

DEAR DORIS — Last year I sent this boy a birthday card as we were quite close. His birthday is coming up in the near future and the last time I heard from him was when he phoned me and thanked me. We talked quite a bit that time.

I was wondering if it would still be appropriate to send him a birthday card this year even though the last time we talked was last year? — JOYCE.

DEAR JOYCE — No. If he had shown some interest in between times, that would be different.

Red Is Most Exciting Color Says Professor

MONTREAL (CP) — A professor of a relatively new college of psychology has proved scientifically what the world's oldest profession has known for generations: red is the most exciting color.

Professor Lorrin A. Riggs of Brown University, Providence, R.I., has demonstrated in electrical experiments the truth of instinctive knowledge held by shady ladies in red-light districts around the world.

Dr. Riggs told the annual conference of the American Association for the Advancement of Science Tuesday that experiments with an electroretinogram, or ERG showed that red creates more electrical responses in color-sensitive eye cells than any other color on the spectrum.

While Making the News
They Made a Year Seem That Much Brighter!

1964

A Last Look for Always At the Year That Locally Was

* * * * *

Every week has seven days —and every day involved people with the events of their times.

News is made by involving people in remarkable events or remarkable people who themselves create events. Sometimes the news is a combination of both, like the yawning tiddler (upper right), who was the first baby of the year born in the district — a baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Keith Wilson, of Belleville.

Then there's another kind of blessed event — like the one that happened to Mrs. Margaret Niles (upper centre) on March 21. The widowed Belleville seamstress, mother of three children, won $60,000 on a Grand National Irish Sweepstakes ticket.

And of course, the very fact of being in good health — and even better humor, is the kind of thing that puts everyone in a good mood — especially if you're like Mrs. Learn Weller (lower centre) of Carrying Place, who marked 104 years of age this year.

Also receiving good wishes from the district this year was Jake Lewis, of Belleville champion weightlifter, who represented his nation at the Tokyo Olympics.

A Rush of Hooves in Suburbia

Suburbia makes for poor stalking—if you're a hunter.

It was still winter (February 19) when two deer strayed into Belleville's eastern suburbs and led game wardens, police and citizen helpers a 24-hour chase. One eventually fled the city. The stressed (below) was finally cheered to a standstill and lassoed in backland.

Less than a month later (March 16) butcher Les Sweet imparted a more dramatic ending to the pursuit of two steers across the same area. Both animals had to be destroyed by gunfire (above).

At Last! The Last Train Downtown

Of all the municipal oddities, Belleville probably had the most eccentric — a downtown railroad link.

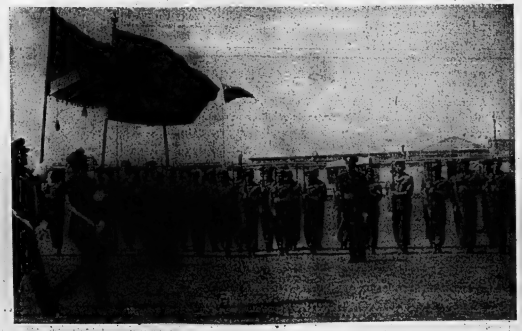
Stretched along Pinnacle Street it provided a comfortable connection between the CPR and CNR systems — a relic of less sophisticated days.

Comfortable for all but the mid-century motorist.

However, 1964 saw the end of three years' negotiation, instigated by Mayor McLean Haig, and the end of the rolling stock blockade.

The last train shunted down the link June 16 (above) and, after a week's junketing, the track was symbolically lifted June 25 (right) with Mayor Ellis and ex-Mayor Haig as lead hoisters.

For the Regulars — Trouble in Cyprus . . .



This year also brought world tensions in tangible form to the district.

RCAF Transport Command at Trenton continued to serve as a basic UN link in trouble spots.

Then in the Fall, Picton bid adieu to its 1st Canadian Guards as the first contingent (left) deported for Cyprus, September 11.

For local militiamen there was an event of rededication as the proud old Hasty Pees paraded new cattle colors (right) presented by Lieutenant-Governor Rowe, May 17. Later the regiment was to escape annihilation in sweeping defence-pattern changes.

Chance Discovery by Bee Expert Leads to Compounds That Inhibit Cancer Growth

MONTREAL (CP)—A chance finding by a bee expert in Guelph led to the discovery in a Canadian government laboratory of five compounds that inhibit the growth of mouse cancers, an Ottawa scientist reported today.

Dr. Susan Tolnai, teacher and researcher in histology at the University of Ottawa, said there is no evidence that the compounds would work against human cancer.

"But the possibility does exist that in certain human cancer—leukemia—they could be tried with beneficial effect," she told the closing session of the week-long annual congress of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Tolnai, wife of Ottawa pathologist George Tolnai, singled out leukemia as a possible object of trial treatment because that blood cancer is easier to detect in its earlier stages than some other cancers.

RESULT FROM FINDING

Experiments on 10,000 mice during four years at the national laboratory of hygiene resulted from a finding in 1957 by Dr. Gordon Townsend, a bee expert at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph. Studying acidosis a royal jelly, an excretion of queen bees, Dr. Townsend noticed that it reacted against certain leukemia mouse cells. He reported the fact to Dr. Tolnai and Dr. Louis F. Morgan of through the federal department of health and welfare.

The tip led to the testing of acid compounds which prevented the growth of cancer cells injected into live mice which destroyed mouse cancer cells in test tubes.

Dr. Morgan, who moved late last year to Saskatoon to direct the cancer research institute there, is continuing the research. Dr. Tolnai now is doing research into bone metabolism at Ottawa University.

In the Ottawa experiments, they extracted two fatty acids from royal jelly, known as 2 decenoic and 9 decenoic acid, and tested them along with three that occur in natural foods such as butter and eggs—linoleic, linoleic and oleic acid.

The acids were tested against three kinds of cancer cells both in living mice and in test-tube tissue cultures.

AFFECT ALL KINDS

Three of the acids—linoleic, linoleic and 2 decenoic—were effective against all three kinds of cancer, a mammary tumor known as TA3, another named Ehrlich Carcinoma and a lymphatic cancer called Gardner-Oleic acid worked against TA3 and Gardner, but not Ehrlich, and 9 decenoic worked against the cancers in only part of the test-tube trials.

In the test tubes, where the cancer cells were in an advanced state of malignancy, the acids killed not only the cancer but later the surrounding normal cells in tissue as well, Dr. Tolnai said.

But in the living mice, acid injections within 24 hours of an injection of cancer cells prevented the cancer from taking hold. There was no evidence of side effects and all the mice thus treated survived in health.

Dr. Tolnai was reluctant to translate this evidence into human terms. The injected cancer cells seven days in advance established in a mouse and the acids within less than a day after the cancer cells, she noted.

EFFECT DEBATABLE

While the comparable time elements would be much longer in a human, the question of whether human cancer could be detected early enough to give the acids time to work and whether they would work at all in human cells is debatable.

Dr. Tolnai said she would like to see the acids tried clinically. The difficulty is that researchers standably want to use tried treatments in early stages of disease, leaving to experimental treatment only after others have failed. On the basis of the mouse experiments, the acids might not work in advanced stages of cancer.

It appears that the acid compounds might lack the poisonous properties of some cancer compounds in which the dose necessary to fight the cancer is too near the danger level to danger of serious side disorders.

Lord Thomson Discloses Plans to Increase Interests

TORONTO (CP)—Lord Thomson, Canadian-born head of an international publishing and broadcasting empire, disclosed Wednesday plans for enlarging his interests in the United States, England and Canada.

The London-based peer, visiting the Canadian headquarters of Thomson newspapers, said his organization is negotiating for "a number" of newspapers in the U.S. where it already owns nine dailies and five weeklies.

"I think the biggest immediate development in our organization will take place in the United States," he said in an interview. He said his U.S. holdings now are run from Chicago. He would not say where he plans to make purchases.

Lord Thomson said he recently completed negotiations with the government of Pakistan to operate that country's first five television stations and is negotiating with India to set up the first TV stations there.

The Pakistan stations will be in Karachi, Rawalpindi, Lahore, Dacca and Chittagong, and are expected to be in operation within a year, he said. They will be owned by the government. The Indonesian negotiation, which has 15 stations in several countries, will build and operate them.

Lord Thomson said the stations will be advertising-supported proceeds from which will be used to hold down the amount of government subsidy.

In India, he said, plans contemplate the development of stations all over that huge country, with the first stage consisting of stations in Delhi and Bombay, Calcutta and New Delhi.

"The negotiations are progressing favorably, though nothing has been absolutely decided," he said.

The great problem of the emerging nations is education, Lord Thomson said. Knowledge could be achieved relatively quickly through "crash programs" on television without requiring an ability to read or write. This could boost standards of agriculture, diet, public health and the like.

Lord Thomson, who controls more than 100 newspapers including 28 dailies in Canada, said he has no plans at present for acquiring more Canadian papers.

"Not big ones, anyway," he added. He plans to remain in Canada on annual visit until around Jan. 28.

Smoking Area Set Aside For Students

TORONTO (CP)—A collegiate in the municipality of Etobicoke will be the first in Metropolitan Toronto to set up a special smoking areas for students on school grounds.

Thomas R. Boone, Etobicoke's secondary schools superintendent, said the concession is an experiment sparked by complaints from residents near Thistletown Collegiate Institute.

Residents complain that 30 to 40 students have been loitering on their property en mass, damaging shrubs and littering lawns.

"Undoubtedly some parents will interpret our actions as saying to children, 'Get your self out and go to it'," said Mr. Boone.

"But in an effort to solve the problem we have prepared, on an experimental basis, to designate a section of the schoolyard as the place to smoke."

Smoking areas were established in high school grounds in suburban Toronto Township two months ago and Secondary Schools Superintendent J. A. Turner said the scheme has worked well.

In Etobicoke, students will be able to smoke during the noon break. No date was announced for the start of the experiment.

High school officials in the rest of Metro said they do not intend to lift their ban on smoking in schoolyards.

Dean of Canada's Deputy Ministers in Retirement

OTTAWA (CP)—After hovering over treasury purses for more than 30 years, the sturdy hands of David Sim now will do nothing more strenuous than squeeze an accordion, tickle a piano, dangle a fishing rod or wield a curling broom.

Mr. Sim, 65 and dean of Canada's deputy ministers loses the title of "Mr. Civil Service" Monday when he steps down as deputy minister of national revenue.

Mr. Sim has served under 14 national revenue ministers, heading a division that employs about 8,000 persons across the country. "No man has done more to humanize the public's impression of federal officialdom," a senior press columnist once wrote.

In 1917, riddled with shrapnel, he was the last dead on the battlefield of Passchendaele. A group of Canadian infantrymen found him and used him as a passport to enter allied lines to surrender. For weeks he hovered between life and death in a military hospital at Epsom, England.

CHANGED OUTLOOK

"That changed my whole outlook on life. From then on I felt I was living on borrowed time, and that I had to do the best I could to deserve it."

He went back to Kitchener, where his family settled in 1911, and took a job in a bank at $400 a year. By 1923 this had shot up to $1,300, and he left to join a trust company as an assistant secretary.

In 1927 the late William A. Euler, then revenue minister, brought Mr. Sim to Ottawa as his private secretary. After the Liberal government was defeated in 1930, Mr. Sim caught the eye of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, who in 1934 appointed him commissioner of excise with the rank of deputy minister. In 1943 he became deputy minister of customs and excise, his position until today.

Just before Canada entered the Second World War, Labor Minister Norman Rogers appointed Mr. Sim, Fred McGregor, director of combines investigation, and Hector McKinnon, chairman of the tariff board, to head the Wartime Prices Board. This was to block any wartime profiteering and prevent shortages of food and material.

GLASGOW NATIVE

The three Scots—Mr. Sim is a native of Glasgow who came to Canada with his parents in 1911—recruited business leaders from across the country to join the board. These men included another Scot, Donald Gordon, now president of the CNR.

Mr. Sim is one of the most sought-after men in Ottawa for parties. He changes musical instruments the ease of a carpenter changing tools, whether it be the piano, accordion, trumpet, fiddle or saxophone. He can put the show on the road with any of them.

He likes curls, occasionally golfs, and he loves trout angling.

Stelco Workers Vote to Accept New Contract

HAMILTON (CP)—A threat-ened strike at the huge Steel Company of Canada plant was averted Wednesday when nearly 4,000 workers voted by a margin of fewer than 700 votes to accept a new two year contract.

The 10,000 - member Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) agreed by a vote of 4,251 to 3,564 to accept the company's offer of a 60-cent increase and fringe welfare package of almost 32 cents an hour.

The new contract will be retroactive to last April 2 and will run until Aug. 1, 1966.

It provides for wage increases and improvement in vacations, shift premiums, welfare and job training.

Acceptance of the offer was recommended by all but two members of the local's negotiating committee. Local President John Morgan and Frank Badgley urged rejection of the contract

The four other members of the committee recommended acceptance and were supported by National Union Director William Mahoney and District 6 Director Larry Sefton.

Although the new contract covers only workers at the Hamilton Hilton works, it is expected to provide a basis for settlement at other Stelco fabricating plants in Ontario and Quebec. About 9,400 employees at the other plants are involved in talks which adjourned here Wednesday and are expected to resume Monday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday sent a message to President Johnson expressing sympathy over the loss of life and property caused by floods in the western United States.

Third Person Is Arrested In Demerit Case

TORONTO (CP) — A third person was arrested Wednesday in connection with an alleged offer to clear a driver's poor record at $5 for each demerit point against his licence.

Leonard Casella, 25, of Toronto was arrested and charged with possession of stolen goods under $50. He was remanded in court until Jan. 6.

Appearing with him will be Evelyn Rose, 28, an employee in the department of transport's driver control branch, and William Elliot Manock, a truck driver. Miss Rose is charged with theft under $50 and Manock with possession of stolen documents.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett promised an investigation within the department to ensure that there are no other similar cases.

Police charges were placed after a motorist—whose name was not disclosed—told police he offered a charge to have erase his 12 demerit points for a total of $80.

The motorist was facing a new driving charge which would have given him three more points and cost him his licence.

Canadian Given Year in Jail In United States

RENO (AP)—A former accountant for a Toronto bank was sentenced to one year in federal prison Wednesday on a charge of interstate transportation of stolen travellers cheques.

Robert Donald Cummings, 29, of Toronto pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying $7,550 in stolen travellers cheques from Los Angeles to Reno Nov. 17.

The United States attorney's office said Cummings was charged in Toronto with taking $17,800 in American Express travellers cheques from a cashable branch of the Bank of Montreal, where he worked.

Immigration authorities have a hold order to return Cummings to Canada when he has completed the sentence. Authorities in Inglewood, Calif., also want Cummings in connection with the travellers cheques.

His lawyer said Cummings preferred to be returned to Canada to face prosecution in the theft of the cheques.

His parents live in Kingston.

U.S. Intent on Stepping Up Drive to Get More Moral, Material Backing From Allies

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government seems intent in 1965 on stepping up its campaign to get more moral and material backing from its allies in fighting communism around the world.

It is also determined to be more "sensitive" to hostile acts such as literary burnings or attacks on diplomatic property in countries receiving American aid.

As far as stresses within NATO are concerned, the U.S. wants to talk less, listen more, and let the other members of the 15-country alliance come closer to unanimity before committing itself again to any problem in nuclear or other matters.

These are views expressed by American government officials looking into the new year.

Nuclear spread, with special recognition of China's acquisition of the bomb, continues to constitute a "serious problem to which we just don't see the answer at the moment."

Most probably the next step in deciding the nuclear fabric for NATO will be continued bilateral talks in Europe and with Britain.

WANTS SUGGESTIONS

On the basis of the mixed reception for the American proposal for a multi-nation crew to man surface-carrying missile ships, the U.S. now wants to hear what its allies want.

It pays tribute to Britain's suggestions but says other countries have contributed little recently to discussions.

On German reunification, the U.S. government notes first that the Soviet Union does not have an interest at all in the desire to end partition or lessen it.

Second, it underlines its conviction that all facets of reunification have to be discussed—boundaries, future arms and all other related matters. It also maintains the contention that so far the allies have yet to reach any common ground on these matters and the U.S. will present no proposals until that is done.

However, while no formal four-power conference is planned—among the U.S., Russia, Britain and France, the subject will be discussed shortly among the four governments.

Officials are most explicit in discussing the question of future aid for countries such as Egypt or Indonesia where U.S. property has been damaged in recent mob demonstrations. The U.S. attitude is summed up this way:

"I think you will find us more sensitive (to hostile acts) in 1965 than we were in 1964."

ACTION NOT INDICATED

But there is no indication of just what reprisals might be taken.

The U.S. government also stresses that countries that should be getting more help from allies in combatting communism, in South Viet Nam and elsewhere.

President Johnson late this year sent a special envoy, Henry Cabot Lodge to Ottawa and other free-world capitals seeking more aid in South Viet Nam. The responses were limited but the U.S. attitude is unchanged.

47 Aboard Airliner Landed Safely After Engines Quit

NEWHALL, Calif. (AP)—An airliner with 47 persons aboard made a safe landing in a plowed field Wednesday after both engines stopped, apparently quit.

Two of 43 passengers on the United Air Lines Fresno-to-Los Angeles flight were reported slightly injured when the twin-jet Convair came down in the rain. Police had said earlier an eighth-grade student was injured after the landing and was taken to hospital.

The report that both engines quit came from the tower at Los Angeles International Airport, the plane's destination. The flight originated in Reno, Nev., and had been stopped at San Francisco, Stockton and Modesto as well as Fresno, Calif.

The pilot, Capt. Bill Wade of Los Angeles, "pancaked" the plane into a field muddy from recent rains, after the tail surface struck and snipped high tension wires.

He was able to keep the nose up, despite uneven ground.

Korea is cited as an example of the scale on which the free world can gear to mount a common fighting front.

"We're not sure a little isolationism isn't growing up in the West, outside the U.S.," says an official. "There is a need for more Western countries to adopt a free-world policy toward communism—a policy and a readiness to act."

No countries are named but the American attitude takes note of trade with Cuba and China by Canada, Britain, France and others, as well as readiness by allies to recognize China.

People Want News Chiefly Says Publisher

HAMILTON (CP)—The greatest single challenge facing daily newspapers today is the interpretation of news in specialized fields, T. E. Nichols, vice-president and publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, said Wednesday.

Newspapers "have moved slowly, but happily they are moving" to meet this challenge of interpretation in a balanced and intelligent manner, he said.

Mr. Nichols was addressing the closing banquet of the three-day national convention of the Canadian University Press.

"I think the young people carding alternatives today are the best ever," he told the university students. "Somehow the prestige of the reporting profession and its rewards must be steadily improved."

Mr. Nichols said that the pompous and arrogant editorials of the past have become a sad joke.

WANT NEWS

"Columnists who can be entertaining and a lot of fun have moved up to the front of the stakes and yet I still honestly believe that what people want chiefly is news," he said. "This is the basis of the success of great newspapers."

A large part of the press has failed and still fails to undertake this role, however, and continues with the inertia and sensationalism that has in no small measure caused resentment against newspapers.

"Do not be misled into thinking that because news is objective, it is therefore dull," he said. "Opinion by itself is the cheapest commodity in life."

To be able to intervene to the public dispassionately, in spite of personal prejudices, just what is going on is the highest achievement of a news person and I believe it always will be."

BANS BIBLES

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A judge issued a restraining injunction Wednesday against the distribution of 3,000 Bibles to school children by the Gideon Society Judge Lawrence E. Monroe said the proposed distribution would violate the first amendment of the U.S. constitution that provides for separation of church and state.

BANS BIBLES

Charles R. Hawks, chief of the Federal aviation Agency's western aircraft engineering division, said the odds against the simultaneous failure of failures "are just astronomical."

"We never heard of it happening before," he said. "And we need more facts to find out what happened here."

Hawks said two engines on a plane provide what is considered a reasonable level of safety because each engine must be completely independent of the others.

"Each must have an independent oil tank, lines, fittings, valves and so forth," Hawks said, "so that failure of one could not possibly endanger the other."

United Air Lines, asked about the report that both engines quit, said "both engines had a loss of pressure." Asked whether this amounted to a virtually complete loss, UAL spokesman Charles Novak replied, "Well, yes." He added that the chance of such an occurrence is "just fantastic."

Habs Puncture Leafs' New Defence

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One way to succeed, even in the National Hockey League, is by trial and error.

If a forward line or a defensive unit hasn't been working well, shuffle the players and try a new combination.

Sometimes the results exceed expectations, as in the case of Chicago's warehouse forward line grouping Bobby Hull, Phil Esposito and Chico Maki.

And sometimes the result is a bust. Take, for example, the defensive shakeup tried out by Toronto coach Punch Imlach Wednesday night as the visiting Montreal Canadiens edged his Maple Leafs 4-3.

The defence on both sides made plenty of difference in that contest.

Imlach, who has been threatening the Leafs with a shakeup for several weeks, broke up the rearguard combination of Bob Baun and Carl Brewer who had the best defensive record in the league for the first one-third of the season.

He paired Tim Horton with Brewer and Allan Stanley with Baun. The Baun-Stanley combination was on the ice for three Montreal goals.

Punch Imlach

On the Montreal side of the ledger, defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot stickhandled the length of the ice to score the winning goal as the Canadiens were a man short in the third period.

The earlier Montreal marksmen were Claude Larose, Bobby Rousseau and John Ferguson. Red Kelly, Dave Keon and rookie Ron Ellis scored for the Leafs.

Canadiens, regaining sole possession of first place in the NHL standings, now hold a two-point edge over the runner-up Chicago Black Hawks. Toronto remains in fourth spot behind Detroit, nine points off the pace.

Ellis, an outstanding rookie, turned in the best performance of the night by a Toronto player.

His put the puck in the Montreal net early in the first period, but the score was disallowed because one of his teammates was in the goal crease. He also tested Montreal goalie Charlie Hodge on four other occasions, one of which resulted in Kelly's goal.

The red Ellis scored was his 12th of the season.

Defence plays in Detroit tonight in the only game scheduled. On New Year's night, Toronto visits Boston and New York is at Chicago.

Russians Must Get Permission

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—An official said Wednesday the Russian national hockey team must get permission from the International Ice Hockey Federation's European division before it can play a professional team in the United States or Canada.

The Russians, competing in an international amateur tournament here with Canada and Czechoslovakia, play their ends Thursday night, had been reported interested in clashing with a team from the National Hockey League or another pro circuit.

Robert Labell of the North American division of the IIHF, said: "The European division approves such a game, then the request could be passed along to the North American division for consideration."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

In solemn gesture Old Father Time will push that "go-ahead" button tonight midnighting to blast off a supersonic 1964 and usher in a willing but uncertain 1965.

A survey of New Year's Eve and New Year's Day functions reveals that residents intend letting down the celebrative hair in a shower of parties, dinner-dances and general whoopee.

A number of associations, clubs, hotels, motels and other collective units plan gala celebrations. Perhaps with an idea of shying away from the bottle-throttle combination many celebrants will hold house parties.

Prices range from the costs of a soft drink if you are a television buff and stay at home, up to $25 per people. Most prices from the low of $6 the couple provide dinner and dancing but exclude drinks.

The welcome to the 1965 cherub will be one of the gayest and noisiest in years. It looks like an all-out celebrating since not a few of the night spots have hung out the "Sorry—Sold Out" sign.

And some are providing professional entertainment as a chaser to or a divergent from the popular gesture of "tying one on."

Highlighting the social events are the dinner dances planned by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, the Hotel Quinte, The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, the Shrine Club, the Belleville Club and others.

The armed services of the district have planned a number of outstanding get-togethers. Lt.-Col. K. D. H. Willcocks and his officers of the "Hasty Four" will host a large crowd at a buffet dinner dance in the mess.

Warrant officers and senior non-commissioned officers will entertain members and associate members at a dinner-dance in their mess. Officers' and other messes of the RCAF Trenton will be the meccas for jolly parties.

Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment officers have planned a New Year's Day levee, starting 9.30 a.m. It is understood similar functions will take place at the RCAF.

The Belleville Shrine Club has a limited guest list for their dinner dance. The Masonic Temple is holding a buffet with dinner from 8 to 12.00 p.m. Quinte Order of the Alhambra will host guests at the Knights of Columbus hall with a ten-dollar dinner tab.

The Royal Canadian Legion branch here has a dinner-dance scheduled with a package-deal price of ten dollars. The RCAF Beacon has a big party planned with both floors of the club being utilized for dining and dancing. The tab here is $8.00 the couple.

The Club Cedars has the "sold-out" sign out for its big party while the Club Canara also plans a big dance. The Club Commodore plans a big dance party which will separate you from twelve dollars with wife or sweetheart.

The Sun Valley Motel will be en fete for the midnight birthday featuring dancing, dining and entertainment at $7.50 the couple. The Tops Motor Hotel is offering a "jamboree" dinner-dance with entertainment which will set back guests ten dollars the pair.

Many people will visit or entertain friends at cosy home functions. Some city restaurants are offering tasty New Year's dinners on the day after.

The Belle Theatre in keeping with usual custom is offering a gala New Year's eve show with noisemakers and other holiday paraphernalia.

As the man in the police uniform said, "Be a good mixer but don't mix the bottle with the throttle." Good advice when you remember the life you save may be your own.

Hawks Coach Says Mikita Best Centre In League

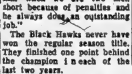
NEW YORK (AP)—Chicago Black Hawks, hottest team on ice, have forged into first place in the National Hockey League on the strength of an 11-game unbeaten streak and Bobby Hull is getting most of the credit.

"Bull," said Billy Reay, the Hawks' coach, Wednesday, "don't overlook Stan Mikita. He's the best centre in the league and has been a major factor in our streak.



"I've used Mikita against the best centres in the league in recent games, Norm Ullman of Detroit, Bob Pulford of Toronto and Henri Richard of Montreal and he has outplayed every one of them. He definitely belongs on the first All-Star team."

Mikita, the league scoring champion last season, has 12 goals and 27 assists for 39 points. In the scoring race, he trails only Hull, the blond bomber whose two goals in Tuesday night's 4-2 conquest of New York Rangers enabled Chicago to tie Montreal Canadiens for the top position with 39 points.

"Mikita also has been tops defensively," Reay said. "I use him when we are two men short because of penalties and he always does an outstanding job."

The Black Hawks never have won the regular season title. They finished one point behind the champion in each of the last two years.

"We'll be in contention and it'll go right down to the wire again," Reay predicted."

Friday's Games Cancelled

Ed Adamson, president of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, announced late yesterday that the tyke and novice games scheduled for Friday (New Year's Day), have been cancelled.

Adamson said that he learned Wednesday afternoon that the arena would be closed Friday, "so there was no alternative but to cancel the games and hope all the kids have a good time at the late date," he added.

Pewee and bantam games will be played as scheduled on Saturday.

Hershey Wallops Barons 10-3

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hershey Bears handed Cleveland a belated Christmas present last Saturday, but didn't exactly wish the Barons a Happy New Year when they tangled in a rematch Wednesday night.

The Bears turned in their highest scoring victory of the American Hockey League season, walloping the Barons 10-3.

The victory gave the Bears 38 points, nine less than the second-place leading Quebec Aces. They had dropped a 3-1 decision to the western division champs Saturday.

Bruce Cline, Myron Stankiewicz and Mike Nykoluk sparked the Hershey attack with two goals each, while Gene Ubriaco, Howie Vanoski, Mike Mahoney and Dan Poliziani added the others.

Fred Glover, Bob Courcy and Joe Szura replied for Cleveland.

Pete Goegwill, Stan Smrke and Gerry Ehman counted for Rochester. Art Stratton was the lone Buffalo marksman.

Canada Loses Third To Russians 7-5

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Russia's ability to keep shooting at the net at a faster pace than the opposing side paid off handsomely again Wednesday night when the Russians defeated Canada's national hockey team for the second time, 7-5 and virtually clinched top tournament honors here.

The Russian sharpshooters pounded goalie Ken Broderick with 37 shots, and scored six of their goals in three-goal flurries in the first and second periods that wiped out an early 2-0 Canadian lead. Soviet goalie Viktor Konovalenko had 25 shots to handle.

The Canadians dropped their third straight decision in the tournament that ends tonight when they play Czechoslovakia. Previously the Canadians lost to Russia 5-3 and Czechoslovakia 4-3.

Canada held the Russian Olympic and world champions to a 3-3 tie in the first period, but Anatoli Firsov, one of the stars of the Soviet team, broke loose for a pair of goals in the second period and Stanislov Fyukhtov added another to make it 6-3 for Russia and put the game out of reach of the Canadians.

SCORE FOR RUSSIANS

Victor Yakuchev, Leonid Volkov, Yevgenin Alexandrov and Vyacheslav Starshinov scored the other Russian goals while Reg Abbott led the Canadians with two goals and Jim McKenzie, Roger Bourbonnais and Gary Aldcorn also scored.

The Russians now lead the three-country tournament with three victories, one loss and six points. Czechoslovakia is second with two wins, one loss and four points and a game in hand. The Canadians are last with three losses and no points and can't go any higher even if they win tonight's finale.

If the Czechs beat Canada they could tie Russia on points but they would have to score more than 12 goals to beat the Russians who are far ahead in the goal average and on that basis have virtually clinched the Walter Brown Memorial Trophy that goes to the tournament winner.

In the tournament, each country plays the other twice.

The standing:

	W	L	T	F	A	Pt
Russia	3	1	0	23	15	6
Czlovakia	2	1	0	11	14	4
Canada	1	3	0	11	16	0

The Czechs beat the Russians 5-3 Tuesday night after losing to them 8-2 in the tournament opener last Saturday night and were rested for tonight's meeting with Canada.

STARTS SCORING

McKenzie started the scoring against Russia slightly more than two minutes after the game started, flipping in a rebound from eight feet. Bourbonnais made it 2-0 almost two minutes later when he deflected a slap shot by Terry O'Malley past Konovalenko.

Yakuchev stepped one from inside the blue line past Broderick for Russia's first goal at 5:33 and Volkov tied it up on a 20-footer that whizzed past Broderick's skate.

The Canadians were shorthanded when Starshinov scored on a power play at 11:11 to put Russia ahead 3-2. The Russians had a man in the penalty box also when Canada tied it up with less than five minutes of the period left on Abbott's initial goal, a deflected shot that hit the left corner of the net.

In the tough second period when six penalties were handed out including a misconduct to Starshinov, Firsov got his first goal, a slightly tainted one as the puck hit the skate of a defenceman and bounced into the left corner, at 1:45. Then at 8:43 he scored his second tally on a sliding shot that just caught the far corner of the cage.

HIGH SHOT COUNTS

Fetukhov let fly with a high shot that sailed past Broderick's shoulder for the sixth Russian goal at 17:12.

The Canadians scored twice in the third period while Russia tallied once.

What Will 1965 Bring?

It was a year of ups and downs, surprises and upsets, champs and chumps and deeds of derring-do in the wonderful, sometimes wacky world of sport.

Canadians thrilled to the feats of the bobsled team, the two-man oar crew, Doug Rogers, the judo silver-medallist, Harry Jerome, Bill Crothers, Petra Burka, the Lyall Dagg world curling champions, and other spotlight sports people.

The comeback of Jerome was heart-warming, even as Bruce Kidd's injuries were disappointing.

The Olympics gold medal won by George Hungerford and Roger Jackson, the coxless pairs of Toronto caused a flush of pride to all Canadians. No less brilliant was the feat of the bobsled team which won a gold medal without benefit of a home run to train on.

There were instances of surprise and upset. Cassius Clay surprised the entire circle of experts with his knockout of Sonny Liston. Who would dream that Yogi Berra would be fired after winning the pennant with his Yankees? Or that his conqueror Johnny Keane, would replace him?

Canada's Olympics hockey team finished a disappointing fourth through quirk of circumstances.

Perhaps 1965 will bring new faces, new records, new upsets and more surprises. Who knows?

Half-Hour Comedy Shows Will Be Popular in 1965

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — With a new year only hours away, it seems fitting for a television writer to peer into the misty glass screen and predict "things to come."

The only real equipment needed for this little guessing game is a sheaf of old Nielsen ratings and a conviction that the television programming leopards will not soon change their spots.

It is safe to predict that 1965 television will consist primarily of half-hour comedy shows, with particular emphasis on fantasy and military life. This is based on the success this season of many comedies but particularly Bewitched, Gomer Pyle and No Time for Sergeants.

There will be little interest in the hour-long anthology show; none has done well for the last couple of years. The tongue-in-cheek action show, expected to be big entertainment fad, will disappear quietly into the reruns, after the calm public reception accorded The Man from U.N.C.L.E. and The Rogues.

A new cycle of half - hour westerns will roll in, each heralded as a "new concept." The new concept will consist of the usual hero with a fast draw roaming the familiar plains and dusty main streets in search of his identity, his enemy, or the one man who can prove him innocent of some terrible crime. After all, The Fugitive has been a success for two seasons and he hasn't run out of steam or popularity yet.

Gananoque Shades Trenton 5-4

TRENTON (Special) — Gananoque Islanders climbed upon the OHA Eastern Junior hockey league's top rung last night by shading Trenton Apple Kings 5-4 in Picton.

The game was a home tilt for Trenton, played at the Picton arena.

Trenton meets Kingston Junior "B" Frontenacs in an exhibition game here in the Community Gardens Friday evening.

Last night's battle was a zip and tuck affair all the way. Apple Kings led 3-1 at the end of the first frame and 4-3 late in the second. The Islanders snatched the win on goals by Peter Small and Bob Dickson in the period's dying minutes.

Trenton pressed for the equalizer all during the third but the goalies stole the limelight in the scoreless period and it stayed 5-4.

Trenton outshot the visitors 33-33 and Gananoque collected nine penalties compared to the Apple King's six. All were minors except for fighting majors to Bob Fellows, of Trenton, and Peter Small, late in the game.

Bob Dickson was the game's only two-goal man leading the islanders' attack. Single markers were scored by Murray Roantree, Small and Stan Parker.

Trenton goals came from the sticks of Les Gencreaux, Bob Fellows, Don Morrison and Dave Johnson.

Gananoque moved one point ahead of Belleville in the league standing with the victory. 15 to 14, but the "B's" have one game in hand. Trenton and Picton share third spot with eight points apiece.

OMHA Teams Win Pair From Picton

Rollins peewees and Oddfellows bantams scored OMHA victories over Picton here last night.

Oddfellows scored two last-period goals to blank Picton 3-0.

Rollins took a 3-0 first-frame lead and went on to top Picton by a 5-1 score.

The midget Oddfellows were also scheduled to play here but it was learned this morning that Belleville had arranged for the game to be played in Belleville, due to tournament commitments in Orillia.

In a novice exhibition which opened the night's action, Napanee defeated Belleville Ritzways by a 5-1 count.

The bantam Oddfellows, who return to Picton for an exhibition game at 7:00 p.m. next Monday, scored both their goals early in the third period to snap the scoreless tie.

J. Lumsden potted the first marker with D. MacCormack getting the assist. B. Jenitsch made it 2-0 a couple of minutes later. R. Mallory was the playmaker on this one.

In the peewee tilt, Rollins added to their first-frame lead with two in the second for a 5-0 margin going into the third. Then each side scored once.

Austin Wilson paced the Rollinsville scoring with a brace of goals and two assists. Cliff Jenitsch was close behind with two goals and one helper. Terry Meagher and Peter Fralick trigpered the winners' first two goals. Allan Neill had two assists and John Mulvihill one.

Wayne Robbin got the lone Picton goal, aided a Mark Woodward.

In the novice exhibition, Napanee jumped ahead 1-0 in the first and had a 4-0 lead after two periods.

Ritzways' lone goal was scored by Dan Lupenette.

Allan Garrison and Dale Plumley scored twice for Napanee while Jerry Hinchey kicked in with a single and an assist. John Munroe also had an assist.

Baby Habs Nip Hawks 3-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two weeks ago the Junior Canadiens took a gamble and reached into the Montreal minor hockey system for goaltender Fernand Rivard.

Since then the Canadiens have been undefeated in four games and have climbed from seventh to fifth place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Wednesday, Rivard registered his third victory against one tie since coming out of the Montreal Junior B system as the Canadiens defeating the Catharines Black Hawks 3-1.

Toronto Marlboros defeated Kitchener Rangers 6-3 in the other scheduled game.

Norm Ferguson, Bob Lamleux and Jacques Lemaire were the Montreal marksmen, while Brendan Shelton replied for St. Catharines.

Paul Laurent and Brit Selby fired two goals each for Toronto, while teammates Wayne Mosdell and Sam Allan got the others.

Sandy Fitzpatrick counted twice for Kitchener. Bob Jones, Mike Robitaille and Jack McCreary added the others.

AT THE PARK — Connie Francis, who has followed her navy husband, Roger Perry, to the French Riviera, is caught up in a domestic argument in this scene from "Follow The Boys", also starring Ann Russ Tamblyn and Paula Prentiss, all in color. Tonight at the Park.

Jim Begley Wins Holiday Tournament

Veteran bowler Jim Begley made a brilliant comeback to win the Holiday Classic Tournament at the Bowl-O-Drome last night.

Begley nosed out Ron Saylor in a two-victory rally with a score of 291 as against Saylor's 283.

Forty-three bowlers from Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg and Campbellford took part in the tournament.

The highest score of the tourney was turned in by Woody Woodward of Cobourg who rolled nine consecutive strikes before "bradjing" for a 290.

Jim McKenzie took third place with Lee St. Louis, Jack Canning, Woody Woodward, Art Atkin and Wally Devere finishing in that order.

Rated the most exciting tournament to date, the holiday feature was productive of close and exciting play.

In the final game Begley started on six strikes to finish with his 291 while Saylor headpinned and followed with five strikes for his runner-up score of 283.

Napanee HS Wins District Curling Title

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Napanee high school won the District 11 Ontario schoolboy curling championship Wednesday, defeating Cornwall Collegiate 7-5.

The Napanee rink, skipped by Eric Poulsen, won the game in their last rock. The same rink, with another skip, was District 11 representative in last year's competition.

Losing skip was Brian McCartney.

The Cornwall curlers advance to the eastern Ontario playdowns at Smiths Falls next month.

Allan Sherman Writes Script For New Show in Hospital

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cedars of Lebanon hospital may never be the same following the invasion of Allan Sherman.

The comedy songman checked into the hospital Dec. 1 for treatment of asthma and overweight. Since then he has written a television special and 200 pages of a book, keeping a secretary busy full-time and entertaining a small squad of writers in rollicking story sessions.

The major result will be Allan Sherman's Funnyland on NBC Jan. 18 as forerunner for a possible series.

I dropped by Sherman's room one morning to check on his progress with scripts and scales. He was bleary-eyed and unshaven, looking more what like an undernourished Buddha. His doctor had just wakened him for short consultation, pronounced him well and departed.

"I'm not quite in this world as yet," Sherman apologized. "I was up until 5 a.m. with Lou Busch working on the music for the show, and I didn't sleep until well after that." He called for a nurse to bring a scale.

WEIGHS 199 POUNDS

Sherman padded around the bed and stepped up to weigh himself. "Hey — I broke the greater barrier," he said. "I'm 199½. We'll call it 199, won't we, dear?" The nurse assented.

Sherman suffered an asthma attack in New York last November and submitted to an examination. The doctor pondered Sherman's weight—then 230—and way of life, which includes playing night clubs and racing around in sports cars. The doctor's comment: "You're the most promising candidate for a heart attack I've ever seen."

"Being candidate for a heart attack didn't appeal to me," said Sherman. "I went into the hospital. I dropped seven pounds in five days, then came out here to take off more.

"I plan to get down to 185-190. Yeah, I know people tell me I might ruin my act by getting skinny. Well, this is the way I look at it: If people buy me because of my fat and not my personality, then I have no right to be in show business."

Liston Pleads Not Guilty

DENVER (AP) — A lawyer Wednesday entered a plea of not guilty for Charles (Sonny) Liston, former world heavyweight boxing champion, to a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Liston did not appear at the hearing. Trial was set for Jan. 29. Liston remained free on his personal recognizance.

The charge was based on an incident Christmas Day when Liston and a friend were stopped by officers. A patrol-man said Liston resisted efforts to put him in a police car.

Conviction on the charge carries a maximum year's jail term and a $1,000 fine.

Supreme Court Prohibits Hearing

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Racing Commission was prohibited Wednesday from conducting a hearing on a charge that harness racer Murray Waples of Victoria Harbour, Ont., drove his horse contrary to the public interest in August.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of Ontario Supreme Court ruled that an administrative directive giving itself power to penalize an improper conduct "is shockingly contrary to the very basic conception of fairness and justice."

Waples, 36, was suspended by the commission on a charge of affecting the outcome of a race, but was reinstated in October by the Canadian Trotting Association.

The commission then tried to hold a hearing on Waples' performance driving Success Top in the sixth race at Toronto's Greenwood Raceway Aug. 4.

Waples applied to Ontario Supreme Court to prohibit the hearing.

Campbell Breaks Record

PERTH, Australia (AP — Donald Campbell broke the world water speed record at 276.33 miles an hour today and became the first man in history to establish both land and water speed records in the same calendar year.

Last July he broke the land speed record for conventional direct drive cars with a 403.1 m.p.h. at Lake Eyre, south Australia.

Campbell set his new mark on the anniversary of the death of his equally famous father, Sir Malcolm Campbell, himself a former holder of both land and water world records.

Campbell made two runs across the lake at mid - afternoon in near - perfect surface conditions.

He reached a speed of 283.6 m.p.h. in his first run and 269 m.p.h. in his second for an average of 276.33.

Campbell already held the existing water speed record of 206.35 m.p.h., which he set at Lake Coniston, England, in May, 1959.

77-Year-Old Briton Wins $664,848.00

LONDON (CP) — Silver-haired Joseph Almond, 77, celebrated his £221,616 ($664,848) win in the football pools Wednesday with champagne and talked excitedly of a return trip to Canada to see his grandchildren.

"It means a chance to see my son and granddaughter in Canada once again," the retired insurance collector told reporters.

His son, Eric Almond, and granddaughter Susan, 12, and Ellen, 11, live at Aurora, Ont., near Toronto. Joseph Almond went with the children when they emigrated to Canada some years ago but he returned to England in 1956.

"I thought I would never see my grandchildren in Canada again before I died," Almond said happily. "But now I'll be off like a shot. You're not old at 77 when there's money in your pocket to spend."

Canadians Blanked In Europe

STOCKHOLM (CP - AP) — Lacombe Rockets were defeated 4-0 by Sweden in the first loss in the Ahearne Cup tournament being played here.

The central Alberta hockey team, in the midst of a European tour, fell before the veteran Djurgaarden, Sweden, assist in a game at Johannesberg indoor stadium.

In another cup game, Bryneas defeated Leksand 9-1 in a clash of Swedish teams.

The Rockets looked slow in Wednesday's game and failed to penetrate a good Swedish defence.

The Canadians are playing five games in the tournament which ends Jan. 4.

Will Coach Watusis
Wow, Five 7-Footers

By BOB GREEN

NEW YORK (AP)—"I'll destroy the game of basketball," says Lapchick, the very successful coach at St. John's and centre on the original Celtics. "We'll win 'em all 1-0."

Lapchick, whose career spans the life of the game, was kidding—maybe—when he talked about his appointment as assistant and an African offer he has.

"It's a bonafide offer," Lapchick declared. "I'm gonna go coach the Watusis."

Then the 64-year-old who retires at the end of the season, explained:

"I've been coaching in the East a lot of years now. When we get a kid 6-foot-7 we figure, man, this is the guy. Then we get one. Our forwards go 6-4, 6-2. Then these Western teams—Michigan, Cincinnati—come in and they go 6-7, 6-6 and 6-5. It's discouraging.

"Now, I'm retiring, you know. My daughter lives in Uganda. I've got a friend over there, Harry England. He sends me this offer.

"You see, the Watusis used to be the warrior tribe there. A runt goes 6-10. But the Lions got real powerful and kicked them out and they're wandering around the camp back now. So Harry figured it would be a good thing, restore confidence, pride, that sort of thing. If we found something for them to do they could do real good.

"So I'm going to go coach the Watusis and I'll destroy the game of basketball.

"Can't you just imagine five seven-footers playing a zone? Think of all those arms up there. We couldn't have to score. We'd win 'em all one to nothing."

Edge Moira SS In Final
Oshawa Wins Hoop Crown

KINGSTON (CP) — Oshawa Central Collegiate Institute captured the annual Holiday high school basketball championship Wednesday night.

Oshawa went undefeated in the eight-team, 11-game tournament sponsored by Queen's University.

In the final game, Oshawa edged Moira Secondary School of Belleville 43-40 and in the semi - final downed Thousand Islands Secondary School of Brockville 33-30.

It had previously defeated Belleville 46-19 and Kingston Collegiate 38-34 to advance to the semi-finals.

Oshawa went ahead early in the Moira-Oshawa game, leading 26-18 at the half, but Belleville had a late burst that gave it a 30-26 margin.

Jim Jenkins dropped in the winner for Oshawa in the last 17 seconds and John Rajkovich clinched the victory with a last-second basket.

In the other semi-final, Belleville defeated Kingston Collegiate Institute 39-29.

Preliminary game scores: Brockville 33, Napanee Collegiate 21; Brockville 45, Kingston Collegiate 19; Belleville 41, Cobourg Collegiate 20; Kingston Collegiate 45, Loyalist Collegiate and Vocational Institute of Kingston 27; Loyalist 47, Napanee 33; Cobourg 23, Kingston's Queen Elizabeth 19.

Denies Making Big Offer

CHICAGO (AP)—The owner of Milwaukee Braves denied making a "big offer" for his club's immediate escape to Atlanta amid top - drawer suggestions that Chicagoans of Milwaukee may get a program of borrowed big league baseball talent.

The twin developments centering on the Braves pending lame duck season before formally switching to Atlanta in 1966 included:

1. Denial by owner Bill Bartholomay, Chicago insurance executive established recently in the Dayton (Ohio) News that the Braves will pay $1,000,000 in cash settlement to the Milwaukee County board for release from a 1965 contract to play baseball there.

2. Promised co-operation by the baseball Cubs of Chicago Cubs and Charles O. Finley of Kansas City Athletics in any over-all major league program which conceivably could bring big league baseball to Milwaukee on a co-operative basis in 1965.

Win Hoop Marathon
690 - 673

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)— It took nine hours Wednesday for the Catholic Youth Organization to edge a YMCA squad 690-673 in a basketball game here.

The marathon was arranged by Asheville Catholic High School coach Charlie Munday with all of it aimed toward a marathon record for basketball.

Tipoff was at noon and all 10 starters stuck it out until 9 p.m. A five minute halftime was held at 4:30 p.m.

Munday wasn't particularly impressed with the offensive display.

He recalled that he played in an eight-hour contest in Canton 22 years ago in which the final score was 2,300-768, with a teammate scoring 500 points.

Will Defend Bobsled Title

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's four - man bobsled team that stunned the sports world with a gold medal-winning effort in the winter Olympic games at Austria last February, will defend its world title at St. Moritz, Switzerland, next month.

An announcement Wednesday that an eight-man team — almost half the active membership in the 20-member Canadian Bobsled Club — will compete in the two-man and four-man events. Canada will have two entries in each.

Members on the sled that won the gold medal last year will be reunited for the four-man runs Jan. 30-31. Two - man events are scheduled for Jan. 23-24.

Likely to defend their world title are driver Vic emery, second Doug Anakin and brakeman Peter Kirby, all of Montreal, with Dr. John Emery, Toronto, in the No. 2 spot.

These men upset expectations at Austria considering that there is no bobsled run in Canada and team members had to go to the United States and Europe—at their own expense—for practice and competition.

Stan Hamer, of Mactier, Ont., the team's equipment man, will go to Switzerland with the team.

City Rink Beaten In Final

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Munro of Hanover, Ont., won the Canadian junior and national schoolboy bonspiel Wednesday for the second year.

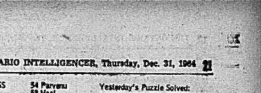
Munro's rink defeated Paul Hough of Belleville 7-5 in the final round.

Other members of the winning rink were Charles MacMinn, Brian de Jong and Ian George Grutzner. All but MacMicking were on Munro's winning rink last year.

The Munro rink defeated Mike Patterson of Toronto in the semi-final round and Brian Lawrie of Unionville, Ont., 8-6 in the extra-end quarter-final match Tuesday.

Hough dismantled John Harris's Owen Sound rink, which represented Ontario in the Canadian senior championship last year, 7-5 in the quarter - final round and beat Brian Lawrie 8-6 to get in the semi-final Wednesday.

Patterson's rink edged John Cook of Calgary 7-6 in the quarter - final and Mills went into the bonspiel after a 10-game win over Jim Aitken of Toronto Avonlea Club.



PLAYER FINED

DETROIT (CP) — Jack Adams, president of the National Professional Hockey League Detroit Red Wings, announced that leftwinger Larry Mickey of St. Louis Braves had been fined $100 and suspended for one game for slashing John MacMillan of the Memphis Wings in a game at St. Louis Dec. 27. MacMillan escaped serious injury. Mickey will miss Friday night's game when the Louis visits Memphis.

Ti-Cats Protest Signing

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats are protesting Montreal's signing of the 240-pound tackle, Will Danychuk, from the University of Tennessee.

Jake Gaudaur, president and general manager of the Hamilton club, filed a protest Wednesday with G. Sydney Halter, Canadian Football League commissioner.

Gaudaur declined to release details until he is certain Mr. Halter has studied the protest. It is thought, however, that Hamilton's case is based on Canadian Football League territorial rules concerning the signing of Canadian players. Danychuk is a Canadian. was one of four signings announced Tuesday by the Alouettes.

Each club has certain areas concerning the recruitment of native talent. Danychuk played football in Niagara Falls and was a member of the Tiger-Cat Niagara junior team. From there he went to Tennessee.

Soviet 3-Man Orbit 1964 Space Triumph

By BORIS MISKEW

NEW YORK (CP) — The Soviet Union's launching into orbit of a three-man space ship dominated the 1964 chapter of the space age.

The launching Oct. 12 was the only manned space flight of the year and it marked the first time that a space vehicle had carried more than one person around the earth.

The most spectacular United States shot of the year was Ranger VII.

The American spacecraft, an insect-shaped robot, was hoisted aloft atop an Atlas-Agena rocket on July 28. Some 68 hours later, approaching the moon, it relayed to earth 4,316 close-up photographs of the lunar surface, with its work done, it smashed into the moon.

The successful U.S. flight came after six failures in various types of moon probes. Previously, the closest lunar pictures were those taken by the Soviet Union's Lamik III of the far side of the moon in 1959 from 40,000 miles away.

LAUNCHED SATELLITES

Both the American and the Soviet space programs in 1964 included the launching into orbit of a series of equipment-filled space packages designed to further each country's space ambitions.

Besides Ranger's VII's remarkable close-up pictures of the moon, the U.S. program included advanced weather satellites and a Syncom spacecraft that hovered over the mid-Pacific and relayed Olympic games television pictures from Tokyo to North America.

On Nov. 30 the Soviet Union launched a spacecraft—Zond II —toward Mars for the start of the dramatic multi-million-mile race with the American Mariner IV spacecraft which was sent on its two days earlier. The flight is expected to take 7½ months.

The Soviet Union said the 24-hour, 17-minute orbital flight of the three Soviet cosmonauts in the space ship Voskhod (Sunrise) laid "a firm foundation for lasting trips in cosmic space." It said the flight represented a big stride toward a moon landing.

Aboard Voskhod were Col. Vladimir Komarov, the pilot; Konstantine Feoktistov, an scientist; and Dr. Boris Yegorov, a physician.

The flight, in a cigar-shaped orbit ranging from 110 miles to 225 miles from the earth, totalled about 435,000 miles.

The Soviet launching brought to 13 the number of persons sent into orbit since the historic flight on April 12, 1961, of Maj. Yuri Gagarin, the Soviet cosmonaut. He is a pioneered orbital space flights. Of the total, nine are Soviet citizens, including a woman, and four are Americans.

Lt.-Col. Valery F. Bykovosky of the Soviet Union broke all space records between June 14 and June 19 in 1963 with a flight of 82 orbits in 119 hours and six minutes, 54 minutes less than the U.S.

Problems such as a lightning hit, hurricanes and technical difficulties delayed the pace of the U.S. Project Gemini-man flights—and prevented an American-manned launching in 1964.

The new year, however, is expected to mark the first orbital flights by two-man U.S. teams, with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration still gearing its major efforts to send three-man Apollo crews to the moon by 1970.

Both Mariner IV and Zond II were hurtled aloft from multi-stage rockets en route to Mars. Each was launched from a satellite placed in preliminary orbit.

Mariner IV is designed to photograph Mars when it flies close to the planet in mid-July. It intended to pass within 6,000 miles of Mars after a space voyage of more than 300,000,000 miles.

Previous Soviet and American Mars shots had gone astray.

CLAIMS SUCCESS

On Dec. 15 the Soviet Union claimed the first successful tests in outer space of a "new electronic jet plasma engine" on her Zond II spacecraft.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported that the spacecraft was equipped with both conventional rocket engines and the new plasma engines to orient and stabilize it during flight.

The plasma was described as made up of positive, negative and neutral particles. The plasma is heated by electricity from Zond's solar batteries and accelerated by electromagnetic forces.

Although the Russians reported a 50 - per - cent loss of power by Zond II when it was launched, a communique Dec. 18 said radio communications with the probe were stable.

Potato Prices Likely to Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Retail prices of Ontario potatoes may soon rise to 99 cents for 10 pounds from 49 cents, a Toronto potato broker said Tuesday.

David MacKay, president of MacKay and Hughes Limited, said a shortage of potatoes in the United States has raised the prices dealers are paying to Canadian growers.

His company is exporting 100,000 pounds daily to the U.S., compared with almost none a year ago.

Ontario farmers are receiving $1.50 a 50-pound bag, the highest price paid at this time of year for about eight years, he said. A year ago, they were being paid 85 cents for 50 pounds.

Later this winter, said Mr. MacKay, the farmers may get $2.50 a 50-pound bag for their 1964 crop potatoes, $1 more than at present.

Prince Edward Island potatoes now cost Toronto importers $2.60 for 75 pounds, the highest price since 1952 when the U.S. had another short crop.

Prime Minister Pearson Canada's Man-in-News Second Time in 2 Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For a second year, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson was Canada's Man - in - the-News in 1964 with Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker the runner-up.

Their selection as the country's top news-makers was by news editors of Canadian Press member dailies and radio and TV stations served by Broadcast News Limited, a CP subsidiary.

Mr. Pearson was voted Man-in-the-News in 1963 after leading the Liberals to a minority victory in the April 8 federal election, toppling Mr. Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative administration.

This year his successful campaign for adoption of a new Canadian maple leaf flag kept him in the news forefront for many months. The flag issue was voted by Canadian news story of 1964.

Others winning some support included Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan whose Liberal party ended 20 years of CCF government in that province; Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec; Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland; Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia; and Charlotte Whitton, defeated in her campaign for re-election as Ottawa mayor.

LBJ NEWSIEST

President Lyndon B. Johnson of the United States was selected as the world's newsiest man in 1964. Last year President John F. Kennedy was chosen posthumously.

Senator Barry Goldwater, defeated Republican candidate in the U.S. election, was voted into second spot. Third was shared by Nikita Khrushchev, ousted Soviet leader who was Man-of-the-Year for three years before 1963; and Pope Paul, whose trips to the Holy Land and India caught editors' fancy.

Notable public affairs, Hal Banks, deposed boss of the Seafarers' International Union in Canada, was voted newsiest figure in Canadian news. He barely won first place over Lord Thomson of Fleet, the Canadian publisher whose business interests spread around the world.

Others mentioned included Cardinal Leger who had a prominent place in ecumenical council deliberations in Rome and polio victim Roger Garcole whose death sentence was commuted by an cabinet with unprecedent there will be a free vote in Parliament next session on abolition of the death penalty.

In 1964 Wheat Belt Was Money Belt

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Prairie farm belt rode high on booming wheat sales in 1964 and continued prosperity appears sure for 1965.

A bumper wheat crop of 578,000,000 bushels is in the bins and markets are virtually assured for the commodity, long a mainstay of the Prairie economy.

Looking ahead, Jim Clarke, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, says anticipated wheat sales "added to a generally firm demand for other agricultural products should help support an expanding production."

Cash returns to Canadian farmers in 1964 are estimated at $1,500,000,000, a 10-per-cent increase over the 1963 record. The Prairie producer got his share. In Saskatchewan, for example, income before taxes and expenses will be at a record $500,500,000, bulk of it from grain.

Saskatchewan, whose 1964 wheat crop of 348,000,000 bushels was more than the rest of Canada combined, was the major benefactor of record exports of 295,000,000 bushels in the 1963-64 crop year which ended July 31.

The unprecedented export figure was largely due to a $500,000,000 cash sale to the Soviet Union in September, 1963. The effects are still being felt.

RECORDS FALL

Wheat deliveries to Prairie elevators put cash into farmers' pockets at a record rate. Wheat producers received about $900,000,000 in the last crop year, the highest amount ever.

Even in Manitoba, with a more diversified farm economy, wheat helped the province to a $433,000,000 production record for all crops and livestock in 1964. It was a shade better than the old high of $426,000,000 in 1962 and much better than 1963.

In Alberta the provincial wheat pool says the year-end farm economy picture is slightly better than 12 months ago. Summer drought and too much harvest rain cut yields across much of the province.

Poor weather generally served to lower the quality of much of the Prairie wheat crop, cutting cash returns to the farmers.

The lower-than-usual quality also has market implications. Officials hope China, a big Canadian customer tied up under a long-term contract, will go for large quantities of this lower grade wheat and thus solve a potential over-supply problem.

Wheat exports generally could hit 400,000,000 bushels in the current crop year, well above average, and Canada has enough high - grade wheat to meet commitments.

FACE COMPETITION

But the Canadian wheat board, responsible for marketing wheat, oats and barley faces stiffening competition. Crops in 1964 were fairly good around the world and there's no longer a seller's market.

But on the plus side, Canada has tied several Communist countries up through long-term wheat - buying agreements. These provide a solid customer base to go with traditional markets.

The board has the problem of disposing of a 100,000,000-bushel stockpile of durum wheat, the four-year supply. A cut - rate sale by the United States to France recently forced Canada to slash its durum prices to remain competitive.

A. P. Gleave, president of the National Farmers' Union, says a problem for the farmer is a decline is some commodity prices coupled with rising operating costs.

For example, in Alberta, livestock prices were down in 1964 and only increased marketings managed to offset this, boosting the value of production to an estimated $250,000,000 compared with $240,000,000 in 1963.

Deliveries were up in Saskatchewan, too, but prices for replacement cattle fell four to six cents. In Manitoba price decreases were about evenly offset by increased marketings.

BUT MORE IMPLEMENTS

Farm implement sales, reliable indicator of a surging economy, were up in 1964 although some Alberta dealers reported a levelling-off.

As a pre-Christmas gift, Western Canada generally got the best rainfall since 1959, says the Searle Grain Co. research department. Some southern areas still lack moisture reserve but the general moisture outlook is promising.

"Given sufficient surface moisture in the spring to provide proper germination, there should be ample moisture in most districts to promote early growth and to carry the crop through early development stages," Searle says.

However, even if the weather deals a poor hand in 1965, Canada will have a comfortable wheat carryover at the end of the crop year July 31. It should total about 500,000,000 bushels.
